

RUNIC PHYSICS by Robert Blumetti

While reading a book on quantum physics I reach the center of the book where a collection of photographers were included depicting subject matter of the different chapters. One of the photographers was a famous photograph of Albert Einstein standing in front of blackboard. The blackboard was covered with mathematical physics equations in chalk. I could not help but notice how similar the chalk marks resembled runic writing. It was then that I experienced a hyper-cognitive revelation that I could work out physics computations in runic symbols.

Each rune represents certain runic energy patterns. The shape, sound and esoteric symbolism of each rune harnesses and shapes the currents of life-energies that I refer to as Vril, and transform these currents of energy into the many different manifestations that are the foundation for the laws governing the structure of both the objective universe and the subjective multiverse. It is through these computations, I believe, we can discover the methodology that the Gods use in giving form to the universe and multiverse from the chaotic formlessness that was Ymir.

I decided to explore the runic principles behind the creative process of Ginnungagap.

There were two forces at work in the creative process of Ginnungagap. They are the expansive force of fire out of Muspellheim, represented by Fehu F, and the force of contraction of ice out of Niflheim, represented by the rune Isa I. Fehu represents the masculine power of Force, while Isa represents the feminine power of Form. Isa R which represents the concentration of energies at a single point, pulls in the expansive force of Fehu f like a black hole pulling into itself external forces. But this whirling contraction of forces is not the same as the whirling power of Jera j which is an upward spinal force of evolution. This force of concentration is self-impregnation, transforming both fire and ice into a growing power that eventually needs to be released.

Within this zero-point the power of Fehu f is transformed by Isa I until Fehu's shape is shifted into a bindrune that is actually a synthesis of Isa I and Kenaz k. We can see Fehu's expansive power begin transformed into a controlled fire by the transformation that is undertaken when the lower arm of Fehu reverses itself until the two arms form a Kenaz joined to a Isa I rune.

What is interesting here is that if we double this bindrune, according to the principle of force and form as the underlying process in the universe that is regeneration, we can then speculate that two bindrunes are formed, but one forward facing and the other reverse facing.

The union of these two forces, one positive and the other negative, which are ruled by the forces of opposites attracting, is the formation of an alternative runic symbol for Hagalaz.

Hagalaz is the force of evolution represented by the esoteric force of hail. Hail is directed, sending power of ice, just as Kenaz k is the directed, sending power of fire. Thus we have a relationship between Isa I undirected ice, and Hagalaz h , directed sending ice, and Fehu f undirected fire, and Kenaz k directed sending fire. We can see the underlying runic principle of evolution which can be formed by two Kenaz runes k around a central point expelling energy that can be visualized by the alternative Hagalaz form.

Here we have the forces of directed fire, rotating around the central zero-point causing the icy forces of Hagalaz to expand in all directions, giving form to force. Is not ice after all the solidification of a non-solid substance, water?

We can see in this process symbolized within the alternative symbol for Hagalaz h. If we break it down, we actually have four Kenaz runes expanding out in all or four directions.

It is this process that is behind Hagalaz's power of initiating evolutionary change through the destruction of the old patterns and thus, fertilizing that which has been laid waste with regenerating forces that create new patterns of growth and evolution, symbolized by the melting water from hail.

THE RUNIC PRINCIPLE BEHIND GINNUNGAGAP AND YGGDRASILL

by Robert Blumetti - copyright 2008

In the realm of modern science physicists ponder the question: What existed before the Big Bang? But in the Norse world view, the universe was not created from nothing, but from a state of existence where the universe was still unformed. We can hypothesize that this state of existence within the Norse world view, the pre-Big Bang reality, is referred to as Ginnungagap.

Ginnungagap existed long before Yggdrasill existed, before the existence of the Giants, the Gods and even the nine worlds—well, this is, seven of the nine worlds. Two of the worlds that make up the Yggdrasill, Muspellheim and Niflheim, the realms of fire and Ice, existed when the universe was pre-formed. We can refer to this state as the pre-universe.

The realm of fire, Muspellheim, can be compared with the masculine power of Force, while the icy realm of Niflheim is the feminine power of Form. These two realms represent the negative and positive polarities of the magnet, thus they represent the mysterious force of gravity. The Rune representing Niflheim is Isa, while the Rune for Muspellheim is Fehu. If we look at the two Runes, we can visualize Isa, in this case representing the feminine principle of Form, as the slit of the female vagina, while the two arms of Fehu represent the erect penis.

In the process played out in the formation of the universe, the fiery sparks of Muspellheim flew out of the realm of fire in the southern most part of Ginnungagap, and mixed with the icy yeast flowing out of Niflheim in the north, just as the male sperm enters the female fallopian tube to impregnate the ovary. Since Niflheim is the northern polarity and Muspellheim is the southern polarity, we can see the principle of opposites attracting in the magnetic attraction. The Fiery Force flies north and impregnates the icy Form of the Northern end of Ginnungagap, causing the ice to melt and form a flow of water.

If we create a bindrune from Fehu (Male/Force) impregnating Isa (Female/Form) we discover we have a bindrune that looks remarkably like the rune Hagalaz. Hagalaz is the force of hail, which is ice that is being sent with a sending-force that destroys everything that existed before, then melts into water and refertilizes everything so that new life can grow. This Hagalaz principle is the process behind evolution. The combination of Fehu and Isa, fire melting ice, cause ice to be transformed into water.

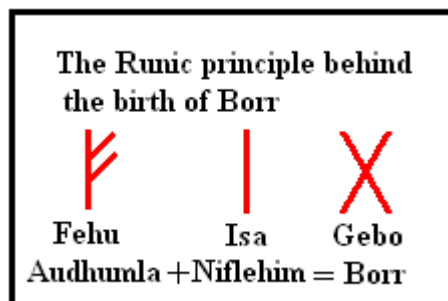

This is represented by the Rune Laguz. Ice (Isa) represents Vril in a pre-Life Force state, before it had the power to create, while the melting ice, forming water, (Laguz) represents Vril as the Life Force with the power to create, because within Vril is the universal power of Male/Female copulation, which is the generative power of creation. If we look at the shape of Laguz, we can see Isa melting. The arm of Laguz, which is pointing downward, is the melt off water from the melting ice.

This principle of melting ice is very important within the Norse cosmology of creation. Since Niflheim represents the Feminine power of Form, from which new life is born, we can notice that out of Niflheim is born the first God, Borr. Fehu, as Audhumla, is the heating action of the creative force of sexual combustion and the heat within the human body, especially the female womb.

Borr is neither male or female, but androgynous, encompassing both principles of Force and Form. He is represented by the Rune Gebo, the joining of Male and Female. Buri gives birth to Borr, a son, who takes Bestla, a Giantess, as his wife and they have three sons, Odin, Vili and Ve. Odin, Vili and Ve represents the trinity or triangle, the most stable geometric form. An interesting point is the $3 \times 3 = 9$ ($\times 9 = 81$. If we break down 81 into $8 + 1$, this adds up to 9).

Buri is born from Ice as a result of the nurturing power of Vril, represented by the bovine, Audhumla, who is represented by the Rune Fehu. Fehu represents cattle, which is a nurturing element on which Ymir suckles and from which, through Audhumla's licking the yeast from the ice of Niflheim, Buri is also born from the ice. Buri rising out of ice as a result of the licking power of Audhumla is representative of Buri gestating within the female womb and eventually being born, which is indicative of the Female power of Form. Within Buri, we have the union of the masculine and feminine principles in the form of the Perfected Human of higher consciousness (higher evolution) which is represented by Mannaz.

This is interesting because Mannaz is a Rune that incorporates Ehwaz, the rune of spiritual journey (one rides Sleipnir to obtain higher consciousness) and Gebo, the Rune of Buri Thus, Mannaz is the Rune of the human being that has reached the Perfected Status of Buri. And within Mannaz is the Rune of Enlightenment, Dagaz, which is the state of awareness when one reaches the higher evolutionary state of Perfection.

The melting waters of Ice flows, causing pre-Vril to turn into Vril, the Life Force, which then causes Audhumla, the nurturing principle to cause Buri to be born. Here we see the life-giving power of Vril, once it is unleashed from its pre-Vrilic state, causing life to form within the Female principle of Form in Niflheim. The flowing water flows out of the well that is found within Niflheim, Hvergelmir.

It is interesting that Hvergelmir, which is one of three wells, each feeding one of the three roots of Yggdrasill, is the only well that can be found within one of the two pre-Yggdrasill or creation event. This realm is Niflheim, unlike the other two realms where the realm of Urd is found in Asgard (Order) and the Well of Mimir is found in Jotunheim (Chaos). Hvergelmir is the Well of Creation. From it flows the eternal currents of Vril energy. While Laguz represents pre- Life Force Vril becoming currents of energy, the Rune Elhaz represents Vril as the Life Force itself, which can be utilized by man to awaken the Gods within us.

In Elhaz we can see the male penis penetrating the female womb. Here, we have Isa, representing not the female Form, but the male Force as the erect penis, while the fiery Rune of Kenaz represents the female Form. This is the reversal of Fehu and Isa, but then, this reversal is consistent with the androgynous principle of opposites creating perfection, which is within the runic energies of both Gebo and Mannaz.

If we examine Isa and Kenaz, we can equate Isa as a piece of iron placed within the smithfire of the blacksmith (Kenaz representing controlled fire of the blacksmith furnace, and the Rune of Creation out of fire) to give it new power, shape and form, even being transformed into a superior element, steel. We can see this principle within Elhaz, the Life Force and the Valkyrie, which is the female element that permits spiritual evolution and the union of humans with the Gods of Asgard.

The process is the power harnessing process within the runic symbol of the Helm of Awe, which is eight Elhaz Runes in its simplistic form.

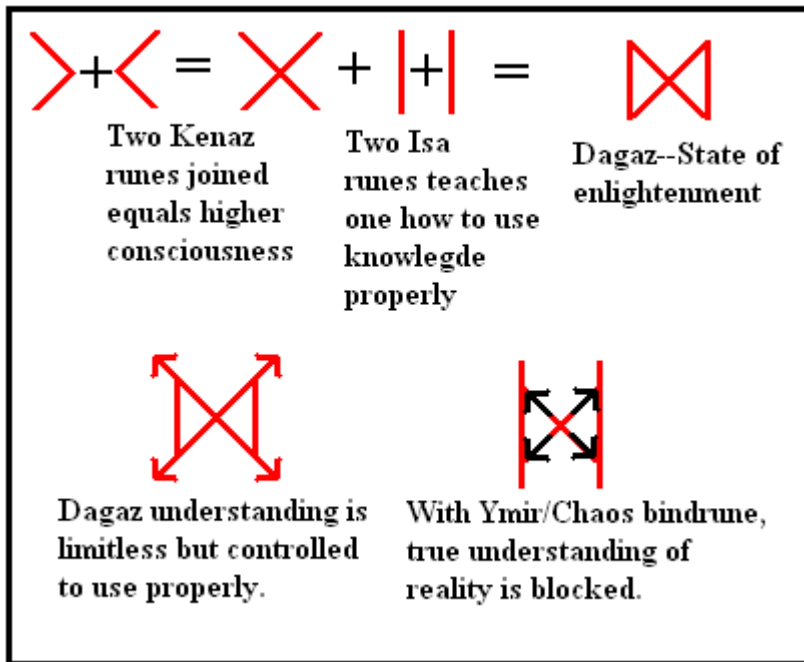

At the same time, another life-forming creation has taken place, even before the creation of Borr. This is the first Giant known as Ymir. Ymir represents the formation of Vrilic energy into an uncontrolled form lacking order, and thus the principle of Chaos. This principle is the first principle of nature. All things eventually breakdown and decay unless it is maintain and re-nourished. We can see this in the many ghost towns in the western United States. If we do not constantly maintain the upkeep of something, nature will claim it and it will eventually decay and disintegrate. This happens when life is extinguished in organic material. We can see this principle of Isa and Kenaz within Ymir. Ymir, being a Giant or thurs, is represented by the Rune Thurisaz, or Thurisaz reversed (pointing in the opposite direction) as opposed to inverted (upside down).

The principle behind Thurisaz and the duality in its nature, one being the chaotic force of Ymir and the other being the order restore force of Thor, is similar to the Perfected state that Mannaz represents, but not exactly. If we take Thurisaz and the reversed Thurisaz and combined them, we have a bindrune similar to Mannaz, but something is askew. It looks like Mannaz, but the Dagaz principle of enlightenment within Mannaz seems to have slipped, thus causing imperfection. While Mannaz represents the Perfected Human, this bindrune, which personifies the chaotic element of Ymir, represents the Imperfected Human, a create dedicated to Chaos and is aligned with the Giants instead of the Gods.

We take a closer look at this Imperfected Human Rune, which represents Ymir as Chaos, we can see that it is made up of two Kenaz Runes pointing away from each other. Thus we have creative fire expanding in all direction, which will eventually permit the Perfected Human to achieve universal understanding and a God-like state. When we apply two Isa Runes to help contain or control this knowledge, which represents the levelheadedness needed to know how to properly use such knowledge, for knowledge is power, we have the Rune Dagaz.

We can also see the principle of Thurisaz within the multiple qualities of Elhaz. If we take the Kenaz runic shape that is part of Elhaz, and move it around to the side of the axis we have the Rune Thurisaz. Thurisaz represents Thor's hammer, Mjollnir, the force that breaks resistance and controls Chaos. This force permits the evolution of the individual toward higher consciousness (Asgard), by breaking resistance within one's life, which would be chaotic influences.

- 1) We can see Elhaz as the force toward higher evolution, higher consciousness, which permits communication and union with the Gods of Asgard.
- 2) If we take Elhaz's two components apart, separating Kenaz from Isa, and then
- 3) rearrangement into Thurisaz, we can understand that the runic energies of Thurisaz, representing the breaking of resistance power of Thor's hammer, will prevent Chaos, the Giants, from causing barriers to form that will impend your evolution toward higher consciousness and thus, reaching Asgard.
- 4) But if we reverse this principle, instead of Thor's hammer, we have the chaotic forces of the Giants, thus principle of Thurisaz,
- 5) when rearranged back into an Elhaz,
- 6) it will create a inverted Elhaz, which looks like the roots of a tree, which exist beneath the surface, in darkness and which represents lower consciousness.

But the union of the Elhaz and the inverted Elhaz will form the entire Yggdrasill. It is the Yggdrasill that was formed from Ginnungagap.

RETURN TO RUNIC PHYSICS

THE GODS DWELL WITHIN US

Everything in the universe is made up of atoms, even the human body. There are 50 million cells within the human body. Each cell is made up of molecules and our molecules are made up of atoms. It is estimated that there are 7 billion billion billion atoms in the human body. About two thirds of these atoms are hydrogen atoms. Hydrogen atoms made up about 90 percent of all atoms in the universe. To understand the proportions of an atom, let's say the proton within the hydrogen atom is the size of a tennis ball. The electron orbiting it is another tennis ball whirling about it at a distance of 200 miles outward. But what is amazing is that the electron is not always there because it is flashing in and out of our universe. It is this orbiting action of the electron around the proton that captures and harnesses Vril energy and gives it a frequency unique to the type of atom it is.

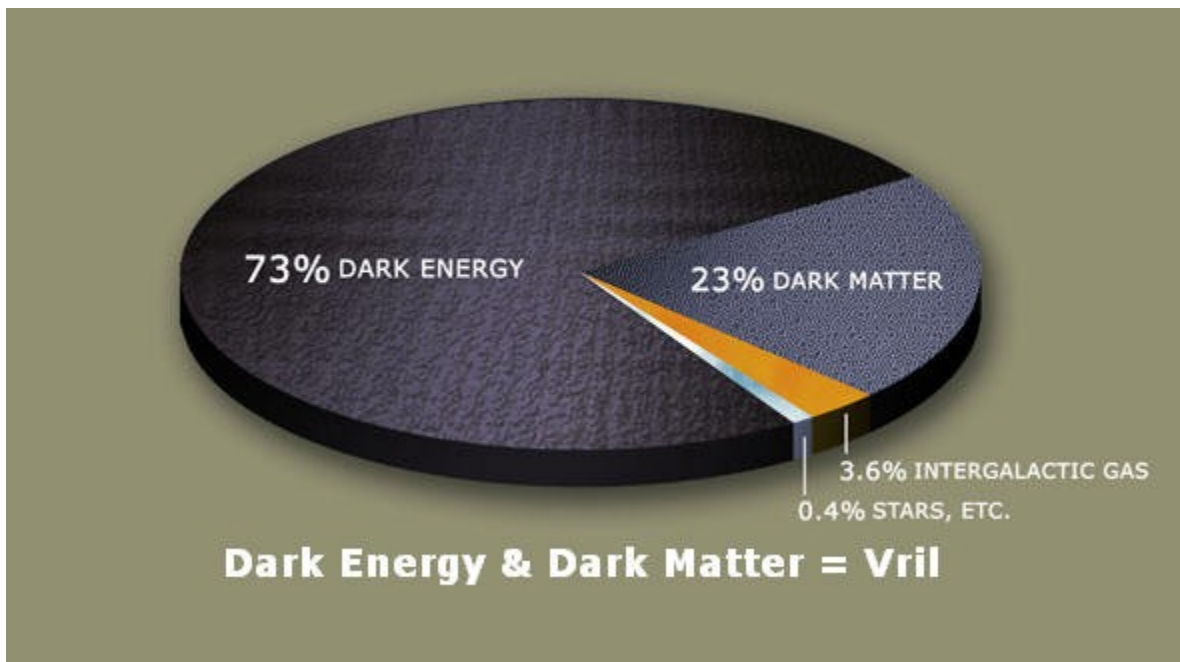

The hydrogen atom is truly a wonderful object because it has a single electron orbiting a nucleus of one proton. The magnetic Resonance Imaging, known as a MRI, can measure the way different concentrations of positively charged hydrogen protons vibrate within the human body after being subjected to a powerful rotating magnetic field. Whenever we look at the electron it flashes conveniently into view. In its true state it is a blur-like wave or strong, but whenever we look at it, it changes its reality into a ball-like object that we refer to as a particle, or sub-atomic particle. The reason for this transformation is that when we look at it it is actually aware of our observation and makes itself easier for us to observe it because of its sensitivity to our thoughts. But what is most interesting is that we are made up of these transforming atoms and whenever we look at ourselves, they are forming themselves into solid objects. So—are we really entities of energy that are being transformed into solid objects when the atoms become aware that our consciousness is observing them? Is there consciousness within the atoms?

Remember, atoms are made up of Vril energy, 99 percent or more is made up of Vril energy, which is the Life Force of the Gods. Thus, the atoms are the Gods, or the realm within which the Gods dwell—Asgard!

Now, back to the atoms. The electrons within our atoms come from somewhere else. They are actually wavy lines or strings, vibrating sound frequencies, that come from large wavy lines or strings, or what is known as superstrings. No one knows where superstrings come from, but we can hypothesize that strings (or waves) are to humans what superstrings are to the Gods.

If we examine our inner space, we discover that it is very much like outer space. It is really made up of vast amounts of nothingness, but that's not exactly correct. For the nothingness is actually made up of Vril energy, both within the inner space of our bodies and the vast distances of outer space. We know that energy and matter makes up less than 5 percent of the universe and that the rest of the universe is made up of what science refers to as dark energy and dark matter (Vril).

But let's get back to the atom. Atoms actually "talk" to each other. How they perform this feat is still a mystery, but it has come to be described as "entanglement" as the scientific community. But just what

When we observe an electron, it settles into a spinning rotation around the atomic nucleus in one direction. The direction appears to be random. Entanglement occurs when a twin atom's electron instantaneously spins in the opposite direction. Thus, if one spins clockwise, the twin spins counterclockwise. What we must be clear is that one atom does not cause the twin atom to spin in the opposition direction, because that would imply a time delay. Entanglement happens instantaneously, together in unison outside our known dimension of time.

This phenomenon has been tested in the same laboratory over and over, but what really amazed scientists has been the same result happening when tested over longer and longer distances. This has lead them to conclude that entanglement is only a phenomenon that exists outside our known understanding of time, but it is also independent of distance, which is now referred to as a non-local event. The conclusion is amazing. Entangled electrons exist anywhere in the universe, even when separated by millions of light years, and yet the entanglement happening is not weakened by distance. It is as if distance does not exist.

The sub-atomic world of electron behavior give credence to the belief that psychic abilities function on this level of reality, which is the realm of quantum physics. This is the realm of higher consciousness in which the Gods dwell.

Morphic fields of Vril energy with the nine Hvels

Rupert Sheldrake, a British evolutionary biologist, has come up with an interesting theory that explores the existence of morphic fields. These are invisible energy field of information that all living creatures possess. They are made up of what we refer to as Vril energy and are part of the extended Soul that we explore in Vrilology. Sheldrake believes they exist in a dimension apart from the physical realities of the known universe, and thus they possess quantum qualities. These fields interact with each other among different individual members of the same species and are the reason why flocks of birds fly in coordinated formation or why fish swim in schools turn spontaneously with any of the hundreds of individual members colliding into each other.

Sheldrake theorizes that these living fields exist in the past, presence and future simultaneously and govern both human and animal behavior, forming a living matrix upon which the physical bodies are formed. Thus, this would fit the description Vrilology gives of the physical body existing as one of many parts of the Soul.

In the world of medicine, there is the image of the caduceus that is commonly used as an emblem used to denote the medical profession. The caduceus is a rod with the twin serpents entwined on the rod, climbing towards spreading winds that signifies the Greek god Hermes (Mercury to the Romans and Odin to the Norse). The caduceus can be found on many medical logos and even used to denote communication and travel. It has been used for many centuries by many diverse people, including the Sumerians over four thousand years ago to represent the emblem of their god, Enki, the Lord of the Sacred Eye (Odin) and by the Greeks as a symbol of healing. It has been used by alchemists, such as Sir Isaac Newton, as a symbol representing the power of transformation.

The intertwining serpents also look every much like the coils of electricity that one notices in the Tesla Coil that Nicola Tesla invented and claim could harness infinite amounts of electricity and send it over vast distances. The coiling serpents also represent the twin coils of energy (kundalini fire) represented in the diagram representing Chakras or Hvels. Our spiritual, mental and physical well being depends on the unfettered movement of Vril energy through the body and its passage through the nine Hvels, representing the nine worlds of the Yggdrasill. The image of Vril energy coiling down and up once more along the cosmic axis of the Yggdrasill that the human spinal cord represents, is seen in the caduceus, coiling about each Hvel and then reaching the upper most realm of Asgard, which is depicted as the open wings, denoting the highest obtainment of higher consciousness, and thus, oneness with the Gods.

We can see this process clearly in the image of the caduceus, as the twin serpents wrap around the Hvels, controlling the flow of Vril energy entering and exiting each Hvel. This process is rooted in the universal principle of Male-Force and Female-Form. The twin coiling streams of energy is the female form wrapping itself about the male force of the rod or staff. It is interesting that in the Norse cosmology, the first man and woman are described as being created by the Gods from living trees (representing the Life Force or Vril energy) and are named Ask and Embla. Ask is thought to be the ash tree and Embla is the elm tree. But some believe Embla is actually a vine that grows by wrapping itself about the trunk of a tree. This would fit nicely with the symbolism of the caduceus and the relationship between the universal principle of Male-Force and Female-Form.

Our health depends on the continuous and uninterrupted flow of vril through the Hvels and throughout the body. This can be achieved by maintaining a balance of forces, by cleansing one's Orlog, and thus creating harmony throughout the body. We need to understand the flow of this energy through the body and how it affects every cell, gene and atom. If you examine the shape or model of the DNA you will discover the similarity between it and the caduceus. But interesting enough, the DNA strand also resembles a series of Dagaz runes aligned side-by-side. It can also resemble a variation of the Ingwaz rune.

Ingwaz represents Frey, the God of fertility and thus DNA, while Dagaz represents enlightenment. Once again, the combination of these two Runes represents the principle that the Gods dwell within us. If we remember that the double helix of caduceus represent the flow of Vril energy into us, moving down the spinal column (Yggdrasill) and then undergoing transformation at the junction where the bottom two Hvels (Niflheim and Muspellheim) are located, it then flows back upward through through the spinal column, undergoing additional transformation as it passed through each of the other seven Hvel, representing the other seven worlds of the Yggdrasill and then is disseminated throughout the spirito-physical matrix of the Soul. We can see that within DNA, which possesses a form similar to the variation form of Ingwaz and Dagaz, is behaving like billions of tiny superconductors, or collectively, as one great superconductor.

Briefly, let us describe just what a superconductor is. "A superconductor is a substance that conducts electrical energy incredibly fast because there is little or no resistance." For instance, if you freeze mercury at 269 degrees C below zero, it loses all its electrical resistance and becomes a superconductor.

Other elements, such as tin, aluminum, titanium, zinc and tungsten, also become superconductors when frozen at extremely cold temperatures. Science began to look for a superconductor that functions at a warmer temperature so that they could be incorporated into computers, making them extremely fast.

Scientific American magazine ran an article in 1995 describing how a strand of DNA became ten thousand times more conductive in the presence of the superconductor ruthenium. Additional experiments demonstrated that a combination of DNA and carbon coated rhenium, another superconductor, achieved this state at room temperature. Thus, when DNA is extracted from a living being, dried and added to a superconducting compound it appears to enhance the compound's superconductivity at temperatures nature prefers. Thus, we can speculate that when DNA is nestled cosily in its friendly environment within the nucleus of a cell, it behaves as a superconductor, acting as a balancer of opposing magnetic forces, allowing another dimension of energy (Vril-the Life Force of the Gods) to enter into its midst.

Vrilology believes that Odin spoke three Runes into Balder's ear as he laid dead on his funeral pyre. These Runes were, Dagaz, nauthiz and Ansuz, and they were the runic formula for Balder resurrection and with this resurrection, the rebirth of the Gods. Dagaz is enlightenment that one achieves with Vrilology (a thorough understanding of Galdor magick), Nauthiz, the need to reestablish the connection or bond between the Gods and their children, and Ansuz, the state of spiritual ecstasy one achieves with the ability to communicate with the Gods. The secret of achieving this state of higher evolutionary consciousness is rooted within our DNA, a realm where the Gods dwell. If we accept the notion that our DNA is an advanced form of superconductor, generating Vril energy throughout the spirito-physical body or Soul, then we can understand the principle behind the runic formula that Odin spoke to Balder.

DNA--WHERE THE GODS DWELL

If we examine closely the structure of DNA, we discover that only 10 percent of our DNA is directly involved in setting the genetic structure of our bodies. Scientists have puzzled over the function and purpose of the other 90 percent and has labeled it "junk DNA." Many hoped that this mystery would be solved once we had completed the Human Genome Project, and while this pioneering research has revealed much about the nature of our genetic heritage and nature, we are still in the dark as to the purpose of "junk DNA." But we are slowly beginning to view beyond the mere chemistry of the DNA and its mathematical coding, into a world of quantum dimensions, a realm where the Gods dwell.

For a long time, scientists in Russia have examined DNA with a more holistic vision. They have examined its nature from outside the box, so to say, by exploring the electrical and vibrational qualities instead of just exploring its chemical nature. With the understanding that light is necessary for life, their research has revealed that DNA molecules respond to photons of light. Their research has led them to claim DNA molecules actually receives, harmonizes, stores and transmits light. This is done mostly in the blue spectrum of color that we see in the rainbow, which corresponds to the fact that it is the same shade of blue as the sky.

What is interesting about the nature of light is that its smallest particles or quanta can also be considered to be waves that travel at the speed of light, but stranger still is the issue of color. A red rose is not red because its surface is red. When light shines on a red rose, the red color of the spectrum is reflected. It is this reflected red light that we see when we look at a red rose. The rest of the color spectrum is absorbed. With white objects, all colors are reflected and thus white objects tend to be cooler because they are reflecting the heat of the light. Black, on the other hand, absorbs all colors and thus is hotter because it is absorbing all the heat of the light.

Light has healing qualities that can have a positive effect on the body because it is energy that enhances the healing process. Russian research has shown that our DNA, which acts as a receiver and transmitter, is involved in this process. They have included the assistance of linguists in their research. They discovered that the so-called “junk DNA” is constructed in precisely the same way that our languages are with syntax and grammar. We can conclude from their research that human language has its origin in the life encoded within our very DNA, and has been transmitted into our consciousness. Could this be the result of the Gods providing us with consciousness? Empowering us with the ability to communicate with them and each other?

If we take the three Runes representing DNA—Dagaz, nauthiz and Ansuz—we discover that the first of these Runes, Dagaz, represents light and the God Heimdall. Heimdall is known as the “White God,” and white is the totality of the light spectrum. Heimdall also is the guardian of Bifrost, the rainbow bridge. The rainbow is what we have when we break white light up into the various colors of the spectrum. Another nature of light is heat, and the rainbow bridge is often referred to as the fiery bridge. This is the second Rune, Nauthiz, the Rune of Need-Fire. The third Rune is Ansuz, the rune of communication, which is sound and the transmission of thought and consciousness. We can understand that Dagaz, light or enlightenment is transmitted through communication, Ansuz, and between them is the need to do so, which is Nauthiz. Thus, with us, within our DNA, is the need and means to communicate with the Gods.

We know now that our DNA resonates not just with light, but also with sound. Remember—everything vibrates! This is how we can chant the Runes and use their frequencies to transform the world around us, as well as transform ourselves. Since our DNA resonates with both light and sound, it is possible to actually change our DNA through the vibrational qualities of the Runes. Thus, we can discover the soothing or harmful effects of all forms of music, as well as the spoken word. Here we have the nature of the Rune Ansuz revealed to us.

conducted in Japan using water crystals. Water crystals were exposed to different types of music. Dr. Masaru Emoto noticed that the shape of the water crystal changed when exposed to different types of music. This was true even when they were exposed to different words. Words would be written on a piece of paper and suspended on the water. Loving and kind words and certain types of music, such as classical music, produced beautiful crystalline shapes. This was true even when the same word was written in various languages. Angry and hateful words, and music such as gangster rap or hard Rock music produced bizarre images. Even the intent of the way the words were used caused different effects. It was as if the water “knew” the emotional intent of the way words and sounds were employed. This principle is behind the practice of chanting and prayer.

Before going on with our exploration of DNA as a conductor, we need to take a look at the standard electrical coil that we find in our electric kettle. It has a conducting cable through which passes an electrical current. This produces an electromagnetic field, which in turn heats the water. This is illustrated for you in the picture to the left as the “Standard Coil.” But if we double the coil, by wrapping the coil in tight circles around a ring, some North and South electromagnetic fields cancel each other out. We see this in figure B, the “Bifilar Coil.” But if we configure the coils into a figure-eight shape known as the “Möbius Coil,” all the magnetic fields cancel each other out, leaving a magnetic vacuum. The same effect is produced by the “Torroid Coil.” This is a space beyond magnetism, like the space created between the MagLev train and the rail it rides over. This space is “entangled space” where connecting electrons of opposing spin opens to another dimension where energy exists outside our concepts of space and time, known by science as “free energy,” “zero-point energy,” and “scalar energy,” but Vrillology refers to it as Vrill.

You might ask, “What has this to do with the DNA?” Well, the double helical DNA is constructed of many tiny, but extremely powerful Mobius coils laid end to end. We now know that Vril energy is being transmitted by every molecule of DNA within every 50 trillion cells is continuously transmitting to receptors all around the body. You can image it working similar to an old-fashioned slide projector, which converts tiny transparent images onto a large screen. But unlike the slide projector, DNA is projecting Vril energy, which is other-dimensional scalar energy, instantly and holographically. But Vril is not being directed onto a flat screen, but throughout the entire the matrix of our three-dimensional body. A good analogy of how the DNA molecule holds with its fields, the total data of the entire body, is the hologram, where the smallest part holds all the information of the whole. The microscopic double helix of the DNA therefore leaves its imprint within the matrix of the whole body.

Some scientists believe that there are differences between the 3-dimensional hologram and the DNA model, which acts as a projector for a 4-dimensional reality, as time itself is processed by this molecule. This takes us into speculation in the relationship of the shape of the Mobius Coil, which is a figure-eight and Dagaz.

In both the Mobius Coil and Dagaz, we have the figure “Eight.” It is interesting that the Norse year is divided into eight parts. Thus, if we draw a circle and divide it into eight parts which is the symbol for the Norse year, we actually have a circle with nine points. The ninth point is located in the center with all other eight meet. These nine points represent, once again, the nine worlds of the Yggdrasill. The ninth point, located in the center, is Midgard, which is at the center of the cosmological diagram that the Yggdrasill represents. It is here that the natures and influences of all other eight realms converge and manifest themselves collectively. Thus, this is the center of reality, the place where consciousness can be transformed. But we inhabitants of Midgard might not necessarily recognize our realm as a place where we can achieve higher consciousness because it exists in a dimension that is “other worldly.”

At first sight, when we observe the year divided into eight parts, we might not recognize the center as the ninth point. Nor would we understand its significance because its nature exists in a dimension that is beyond our three-dimensional sense of reality. But if we take the diagram of the Norse year circle divided into eight parts, we can grasp a better understanding of its nature.

The illustrations of the nine points of the eight part division of the year and its significance in the extra dimensional reality can help us to better understand the extra dimensional nature of the Dagaz Rune. If we take the DNA helix, which is made of two strand coiling about each other like the Mobius Coil, and view it head-on, we can see that it looks like the eight-part yearly circle. Running down the center of the helix would be the ninth point, which would form an axis around which the double helix would twirl. Thus this would form the Yggdrasill. It is this vortex nature that Victor Schaubberger, the Austrian engineer who tried to harness vril energy mechanically, used as the principle in his experiments, creating a convecting double vortex that created an implosion, and thus releasing infinite amounts of “free Vril energy.”

Caduceus

We can see that our DNA, in addition to coordinating the construction of the physical structure of our bodies, using runic principles, dynamically constructs a map of the spirito-physical Soul, which the physical body is a part of its multi-dimensional nature, in the form of a holographic matrix. This ensures that the building blocks know where to piece themselves together both within the physical realm of Midgard and within the extra-physical realms of the other eight worlds of the Yggdrasill, which is depicted in the shape of the whirling double helix of the DNA. It is remarking to realize that our most ancient ancestors grasping the significance of the double-helix of the DNA, and the fundamental truth of our physical and spiritual growth and relationship with the Gods, long before Watson and Crick won their Nobel Prize for their discovery of the nature of the DNA.

The nature of the complexity of the structure of this double-helix structure, involves trillions of information fields that are projected by our DNA, interacting with each other on a scale that is really beyond our wildest imagination, which send ripples of morphic fields of Vril (Life Energy) reverberating, not only throughout our physical body, like ripples on the surface of a lake (our bodies are made up mostly of water) but also throughout the Vril-powered energy field or Soul that extends outside or beyond the physical body. This creates a bond between the microcosm that exists within our selves with the macrocosm of the universe. So as our understanding of our DNA deepens, we can begin to perceive it as a vital link between our earth-bound (Midgard) mortal/physical body and the more ethereal realms (the other eight worlds of the Yggdrasill) of our immortal, timeless Soul, and the Gods who dwell within our DNA. It is no coincidence that the Mobius Coil, as well as Dagaz, have shapes similar to our double-helix DNA and is the classical sign of infinity. If we were to turn the double-helix DNA on its side, and look through it, we see the Torroid Coil, and like the Torroid Coil, the magnetic fields are cancelled out. It is here, in the center, where the magnetic fields are cancelled out become an opening or window to another dimension—Asgard—where the Gods dwell. If we could shrink ourselves down and enter this realm, we would experience perfect alignment with the Gods. This would be a dimension where a state of perfect peace while all around us we would witness a fierce electrical storm raging. This perfected state is the order that the Gods establish and work to maintain. The electrical storm whirling about it is the forces of chaos that is represented by the Giants, who seek to storm Asgard, but are unable. It is into this realm of perfect alignment with the Gods that we seek to establish in Midgard. Thus, to become a Vril Being is to evolve into a entity governed by peace and contentment, impervious to the world of pain and suffering whirling about you. Achieve this state is what we mean by—BALDER RISING!

THE RUNIC PHYSICS BEHIND THE BIRTH OF YMIR by Robert Blumetti

During the creative process of Ginnungagap, there were process at work: the expansive force of fire out of Muspellheim, represented by Fehu (F), and the force of contraction of the ice out of Niflheim, represented by the rune Isa (I). Fehu represents the masculine power of Force, while Isa represents the feminine power of Form. Isa, which represents the concentration of energies at a single point, pulls in the expansive force of Fehu like a black hole pulling into itself external forces. But this whirling contraction of forces is not the same as the whirling power of Jera (J), which is an upward spinal force of evolution. This force of concentration is self-impregnation, transforming both fire and ice into a unified power, feeding on itself, growing in strength that eventually needs to be release. (Figure 1)

Within this zero-point transforms the power of Fehu by the power of Isa until Fehu's shape is shifted into a bindrune that is actually a synthesis of the runic energies of Isa (I) and Kenaz (K). We can see in this bindrune the expansive fiery power of Fehu being transformed into a controlled fire by the transformation of its energies that is undertaken when the lower arm of Fehu is reversed into itself until the two arms form a Kenaz Rune (K) joined to an Isa Rune (I). (Figure 2). This runic formula represents the uncontrolled fire runic energy slowly being transformed into a controlled fiery energy to be used for creation. The runic energy of Isa, which is a controlling power, plays of the fiery power of Fehu, and uses it to forge a new reality, much as the forge of the blacksmith is used to transform base metals into valuable objects. This is the power of Kenaz.

Now, if we were to double the bindrune according to the principle of Force (male) and Form (Female), which is the underlying generative principle of the universe, we can then speculate that two bindrunes are formed, but one forward facing and the other reverse facing, creating a positive-negative polarity and thus a magnetic factor which is a universal principle in the physical universe. (Figure 3).

The union of these two reversed forces, one positive and the other negative, which are ruled by the forces of opposites attracting, and thus is the formation of an alternative runic symbol for Hagalaz. (Figure 4).

Hagalaz (H) is the runic force of evolution, represented by the esoteric force of hail. Hail is directed, sending power of ice, related to Isa (I) much in the same way that Kenaz (K) is related to Fehu (F). Just as Kenaz takes the power of fire and directs in an controlled process of transformation, so too does Hagalaz that the icy power of Isa and sends it in a controlled process of creation. What is interesting is that both the controlling and creative process of the runic fiery energy of Kenaz and the runic icy energy of Hagalaz is based on the principle of destruction before creation. Hail crashes to earth, destroying everything before its icy form melts into life-giving water that fertilizes the earth, giving it the power for new life. This is similar to the blacksmith placing base metal into the fires of his forge and melting the metal before h can shape and form it into a new creation.

This is the underlining principle of evolution—before new life can be created, the old must die. Thus we see the runic principle of evolution which can be formed by two uniting two Kenaz Runes (K), around a central point representing Isa (I), expelling energy outward in all directions that can be visualized by the alternative Hagalaz form. (Figure 5).

We can see in this process symbolized within the alternative symbol for Hagalaz. If we break it down, we actually have four Kenaz Runes expanding outward in all direction. It is the principle of expanding force in all directions that is behind Hagalaz's power of initiating evolutionary change through the destruction of the old patterns and thus, fertilizing that which has been laid waste with regenerating forces that create new patterns of growth and evolution, symbolized by the melting water from hail. (Figure 6). Fehu fiery energy is drawn into the zero-point and then released in all direction as controlled, creative powers by the principle of Isa-Hagalaz. This leads us to the runic principle behind the birth of Ymir.

Ymir was the first life-formed, created by the runic principle of fire (Fehu) (F) and ice (Isa) (I). Ymir is the personification of Chaos. Within Ymir is the union of fire, masculine Force, and ice, feminine Form. But this principle is uncontrolled and thus chaotic. Ymir represents Vril energy, which fills the universe, created by the process we have just examined. The very name VRIL written in runic form (FRIL) is a formula for creation of Vril. The first letter, V is represented by the V-sound of the Rune Fehu (F), fire. The second letter R, is represented by the Rune, Raidho, the correct road of transform (evolution) traveled, meaning fire is sent through the proper evolutionary process of transformation. This transformation is caused by the pulling power of the runic symbol of Isa (I) representing the third letter of the word, Vril, I. The forth letter, L, is represented by Laguz (L) which is water, and water is symbolic of Vril, the Life Force, which Laguz represents. (Figure 7).

Within the entity known as Ymir, we have the created, controlled fiery power of Kenaz (K) pulled by the icy power of Isa (I). This synthesis gives birth to Ymir, personified by a reversed Thurisaz. (Figure 8). Thurisaz has two meanings: in its forward facing form it represents Thor, the God who keeps the forces of chaos, represented by the Giants, under control, and in the reverse facing form, the Giants themselves.

These two opposing force, Order (the Gods) and Chaos (the Giants or Ymir) are at odds with each other, representing the opposite force of matter and anti-matter and the magnetic forces of positive and negative principles. Since Ymir is the original Giant, who gave birth to the races of Giants, in this case, the reverse facing Thurisaz represents Ymir (Figure 9).

If we were to create a bindrune from a forward facing Thurisaz (T) and a reverse facing Thurisaz, we would have a bindrune that would actually be a variation of Jera (J) found in the Anglo-Saxon Futhark. Jera is not just a spinning Rune. Many compare it to the Chinese Ying and Yang, but Jera is a whirling Rune like the blades of a helicopter, its whirling action propels it upward. Thus, Jera is an evolutionary force of upward progress, or downward if it is reversed (Figure 10).

Now, if we take the two Thursiaz Runes, and instead of placing them facing away from each, place them so that they face each other, we create a variation of another Rune–Dagaz (D) (Figure 11).

Dagaz represents controlled fire for enlightenment or spiritual transformation and the release of great power. It is esoterically translated as day or daylight, and this stands for the rising of the sun in the morning that brings warmth and light to the world. Thus, the power of the sun is release for our use.

The bindrune created by two facing Thursiaz Runes can be broken down in several ways to understand the esoteric power of the runic energies of this bindrune. If we examine the runic symbols in figure 12, we see symbol A as the two Thursiaz Runes facing each other. Symbol B is the Rune Dagaz (D) squeezed between two Isa Runes (I). We use Isa as a force for and containment, as well as compression. Dagaz is contained with the two Isa Runes. In symbol C, a variation of this process is two Kenaz Runes placed between the two Isa Runes. Here we have fire and energy controlled and compressed (Figure 12).

Thus, we can see how both the Giants (reversed facing Thursiaz) and forward facing Thursaz (Thor) represent the containment, and potential release of enormous amounts of power and energy. Here, we are threading on the principles of matter and anti-matter. It is this great explosive fusion that resulted in the release of the energy of creation that is responsible for the birth of Ymir.

SEXUAL ENERGY AS THE UNIVERSAL CREATIVE FORCE OF GENERATION by Robert Blumetti

There are three universal urges that are prevalent in all living creatures in their quest for survival: Protection or avoidance from danger, the acquisition of nourishment for continuous and the need to reproduce. The third urge is often referred to as the "sexual urge." We have only to look about us and we find the sexual urge to be pervasive everywhere in society. It can manifest itself in many forms: From overt displaces of sex to question about morality. Sexual energy is a powerful force within the human psyche and can be a determining factor is almost all human behavior. In this essay on Runic Physics, I want to explore the runic principle behind sexual energy and its role in creation.

In our training program (The Yggdrasill Training Program) we explore the relationship between the male and female natures that are the underlying principle behind all creation on every level of existence within the cosmos, in both the physical and esoteric realms of realities. The two principles are the masculine Force and the feminine Form. It is the union of these two elemental forces that give rise to creation and powers the evolutionary process that is fundamental to the continuous of life on both the tiniest organic level and on the grandest macrocosmic levels. The every existence of the universe, and the multiverse, owes its existence to the male/female principle of reproduction. Thus fact must be understood and accepted if we are to have any understanding of the role of sexual energy in the existence of the universe and its continuance.

Let's begin with the Rune of sexual energy, Kenaz (K). Kenaz is the Rune of controlled fire, unlike Fehu (F) which is uncontrolled fire. By uncontrolled we do not mean destructive, but rather, energy that is expelled in all directions, much like the sun which generates energy and sends it out in all directions at once. Kenaz is closer to the blacksmith's forge, where fire is controlled and used for a specific purpose—to shape and create new things. This has relevance on the mechanical level, meaning technology, and on the human or esoteric level, sexual energy. Thus, Fehu is a Rune that can be used to generate what is referred to as "animal magnetism," or "charisma," which is an aura of sexual power that people feel when in the presence of someone who has "strong presence." People are drawn to such individuals, not necessarily in a sexual matter. Such individuals use their sexual energies to win friends, convince people to do as they wish and are natural-born leaders. But if one seeks to seduce another individual for the purpose of sexual intercourse, one needs to concentrate their sexual energies for such a goal, and kenaz is the Rune of controlled fire. The very shape of Kenaz is like that of light being sent in a certain direction, similar to light given off by a modern-day flashlight.

Just as sexual energy is a fundamental force universally, we can see it as a powerful force within almost all the Runes of the Elder Futhark. By examining all twenty-four Runes we will discover that the Kenaz shape can be found in every Rune with the exception of Isa (eternal ice of Niflheim). Some even have two, three or four or more Kenaz Runes within their shape.

Fehu 2	Uruz 1	Thurisaz 1	Ansuz 2	Raidho 2	Kenaz 1	Gebo 4	Wunjo 1
Hagalaz 2	Nauthiz 2	Isa 0	Jera 2	Eihwaz 2	Perthro 4	Elhaz 1	Sowilo 2
Tiwaz 1	Berkano 2	Ehwaz 3	Mannaz 4	Laguz 1	Ingwaz 4	Dagaz 4	Othala 5
Kenaz found in other Runes

We can see the number of Kenaz Runes in each of the Runes of the Elder Futhark, and will explore each Rune and the nature of the runic energy of controlled fire in each Rune. Of all Rune, Isa, the Rune of Eternal Ice of Niflheim, and is the only Rune without controlled fire within its shape, and Kenaz, of course, is the only Rune that has a single controlled fire shape within its form. Both of these Runes are an expression of the principles of sexual energy—Male or controlled sexual energy used to send the potency of reproduction, and Female, the passive sexual energy that is fertilized and is receptive.

Let's now examine each Rune for the kenaz force found within its shape.

Fehu: There are two Kenaz runes within Fehu, foun within the two arms representing fire rising upward and outward, uncontrolled. This is the runic energy that provides Luck or animal magnetism which is manifested by computating the power of kenaz to the second power..

Uruz: Uruz has only one Kenaz within its form, facing down, representing Vril energy fertilizing the earth. This also represents Vril energy being sent into a person for healing purposes.

Thurisaz: Thurisaz has a single reverse facing Kenaz facing a staff that can be represented as Isa. Here we have the eternal creative process of fire and ice that gave birth to the universe. Fire being directed towards ice. There are two other possible Kenaz runes being directed down and up into each other, which might explain the explosive fusion power that exist within this powerful Rune that represents Thor's hammer and its power to destroy and create at once.

Ansuz: There are two Kenaz runes within Ansuz, with a opposite configuration to Fehu. The two downward facing arms of Ansuz form two Kenaz runes sending energy downward into the folk community, filling it with the runic energies of Ansuz, and as in Fehu, this energy is Vril to the second power.

Raidho: Raidho has two, possibly five Kenaz runes within its configuration. The two primary represent opposite powers of the creative fire under control. One is directed into the staff, which is an Isa rune. The other is directed outward. The two Kenaz are integrated by the lower arm of the upper Kenaz and the upper arm of the lower Kenaz. The two secondary Kenaz runes are directing their power into each other. Thus, like Thurisaz, we have fusion, but this is release of power is sent in opposite directions, creating a plane of existence or dimension. This plane is the right road traveled. But there is a fifth possible Kenaz facing downward. This fifth kenaz is very mysterious. Its energy is directed downward. Kenaz 3, 4 and 5 could represent the reproductive power of copulation that produced new life. Kenaz 3 and 4 copulate creating new sexual energy in the form of new life, Kenaz # 5. With Raidho we can discover the pure and natural essence of sexual energy, which is reproduction. That the essence of sex is to create human pairing for the purpose of repr0ducing. This would make sense since Raidho represents the the correct road or right path, meaning the natural and correct nature of something.

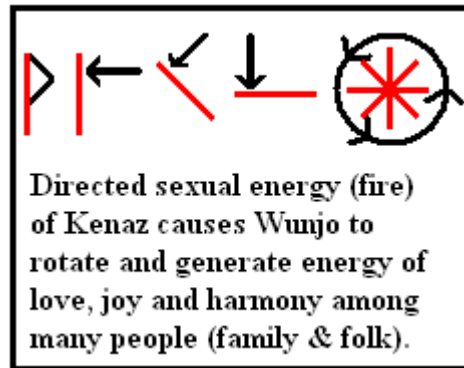

Kenaz: The shape of Kenaz is the purity of the power of controlled fire or sexual energies that is produced in Musspellheim. Sexual energy might be the most powerful force in human behavior, as well as in all forms of life. We can see how the urge to reproduce is greater than that of the survival and protection instincts. Males will fight each other for the right to reproduce, even at the price of their own lives. Salmon will exhaust themselves to swim upstream against the river current for chance to reproduce, even though they will not eat and finally exhaust themselves so much that they will die once the act of sexual copulation is achieved.

Gebo: Gebo has four Kenaz Runes, representing power expanding under controlled in all directions. This is connected to the Gebo principle of exchanging gifts. Two individuals will exchange gifts, which might be material gifts or sexual intercourse, for the purpose of bonding, establishing partnerships and family units which brings with it great power. Gebo also represents the exchange of gifts between mortals and the Gods.

Wunjo: There is one Kenaz within the Wunjo form. It looks similar to Thurisaz, but its effect on the Isa staff is very different. Kenaz is situated at the top of the Isa staff and its energy propels it around the axis point of the Isa staff. Directed sexual energy or fire of Kenaz causes Wunjo to rotate and thus, create runic energy of love, joy and harmony among the members of the family and folk, thus creating a stable, harmonious environment.

Hagalaz: Hagalaz has two Kenaz Runes, one face down, representing the falling hail that lays waste to the earth, destructive and crushing. The second Kenaz is facing upward, representing the fertilizing power of rebirth that the melting waters of hail provides as it nourishes the ground, causing new life to be born and grow. Sexual magic is used to cause one to evolve into a being possessing higher consciousness. Hagalaz is the Rune of death and rebirth, the initiation a new member of the many esoteric group undergoes, representing the death of the old self and its replacement by the new knowledge.

Nauthiz: There are two Kenaz Runes within the form of Nauthiz. What is interesting is that they are similar to Hagalaz. We can see the need-fire energy of Nauthiz within the Hagalaz process.

Isa: Isa is the one Rune in which Kenaz does not exist. It is the opposite of both Kenaz (controlled fire or sexual energy and uncontrolled fire of sexual energy). Isa is the pure ice of Niflheim. It is static and can be used to cause impotency within a individual, a whole race or people and cause a venture to come to a grinding halt.

Jera: Jera is Kenaz to the second power in its most purest and powerful form. It is two Kenaz Runes rotating around each other, but this rotating moving is a spiraling motion that causes upward movement and thus evolution. This is after all the purpose of sex and sexual energy.

Eihwaz: Eihwaz represents the Yggdrasill. This cosmic construct of the Vril-filled cosmos is charged with upward and downward motion that feeds on itself, like the squirrel Ratatosk, running up and down the trunk of the Yggdrasill tree, between the corrosive power of the dragon Nidhogg, gnawing on the roots of the tree and the Godly force of the Eagle (Odin) perched in the upper-most branches of the tree. This is why Eihwaz is the Rune of Kundalini (Vril) Fire.

Perthro: Perthro has four Kenaz Runes, two face up and two facing down. Its form is Kenaz to the fourth power. This causes a warping of time and space and is the hidden power of the mind to harness Vril so that you can discover how to use it to create your own Wyrd. What is interesting is that the left side of the Perthro form is closed while the right side is open. This means that by utilizing the subconsciousness part of your mind within the right-side of the brain, the possibilities open for you are limitless.

Sowilo: There are two variations of Sowilo and both are made up of two Kenaz Runes. The Kenaz Runes are linked together but are directed in opposite directions. Though Sowilo represents the sun, it also represents lightning. The two Kenaz Runes are like lightning rather than the sun. Lightning strikes the earth and then shoots back upward into space. We can see the energy doing just this within either Sowilo form.

Elhaz: There is one Kenaz Rune within the shape of Elhaz. We will examine Elhaz and Tiwaz later in greater detail, but for now it represents the male penis having penetrated the female vagina or womb. This is the sexual act of copulation completed. Elhaz is known as the Life Force Rune. In sexual magic, a man and a woman can reach levels of higher consciousness during orgasm. The Gods live within a realm of higher consciousness, and Elhaz is also the Rune of the Valkyrie, the messengers of the Gods.

Tiwaz: Similar to Elhaz, the Kenaz within the Twiaz shape is at the top, facing downward. It also represents the vagina or womb. The Isa staff also represents the male penis, erect and ready to penetrate the womb. This is the force that drives man and woman to engage in sexual pleasure. Tiwaz is the Rune of the God Tyr. Tyr represents social stability. The Rune Tiwaz, representing the sexual drive between man and woman is the principle of social stability in any society. It is the foundation for the survival of the Folk.

Berkano: There are two Kenaz, side by side facing the Isa Rune. They represent the woman's breasts. Breasts are both symbols of nourishment and sexuality.

Ehwaz: Looks like the letter "M." It has three Kenaz Runes. Here you have a Kenaz Rune holding two Isa Runes together. Where they are joined, two additional Kenaz Runes are formed. Through sexual magic, one can forge a relationship with his Fetch, which is represented as an animal. Ehwaz is symbolic of a horse and his rider taking a spiritual journey toward higher consciousness (other realms of the Yggdrasil).

Mannaz: There are at least four Kenaz Runes and possibly eight within Mannaz. This is the Rune of the perfected human and made from two Wunjo Runes facing each other, as if kissing. It represents the human who has been able to get in touch with their opposite gender self, thus creating a balance within one self that assures he or she is true to his or her gender. Once an individual has achieved this state, he or she can feel a true and pure love for the member of the opposite sex. This love lacks the desire to possess, control or change, but accepts the other unconditionally. It is the highest form of love between a man and a woman.

Laguz: Laguz has one Kenaz. The fire is aimed downward, along the Isa staff. This represents Ice melting under the direction of controlled fire (sexual energy), turn ice into water, the Life Force (Vril).

Ingwaz: Ingwaz is two or four Kenaz all aimed inward.. Ingwaz is the Earth God, and represent gestation before sudden release of power. The four Kenaz Runes create an incubation chamber or womb. We can see the fusion of four Kenaz Runes that eventually explode in great burst of energy. This is the sex drive released after a long period of containment.

Dagaz: Dagaz has four primary Kenaz Runes with energy being directed outward in all directions, but two directions are cut off by two Isa staffs. Dagaz represents daylight or enlightenment. Knowledge and the power that comes with it must be contained (the two Isa Runes) so that it can be used properly. This force of creation that is the sexual energy must also be channeled through proper use or it can cause the destruction of the family or Folk.

Othala: Othala is an Ingwaz Rune balance on the point of expansion of another Kenaz aimed downward. Othala represents the genetic link of the ancestral stream of the family and the Folk. Here we see the same principle of sexual energy that we reviewed with Ingwaz, but this force of gestation and sudden released is balanced on the force of downward movement through our past. We need to reach back through the ancestral stream, our genetic heritage, to bring force great power for survival.

The Rune, Elhaz Z and Tiwaz t, are Runes of fornication and reproduction, the sexual act copulation. Tiwaz is the erect penis (a Isa staff) entering the vagina (represented as Kenaz). What is interesting is that the male testicles, which provide sperm for the penis to release into the womb, is cooler than the rest of the human body. The lower temperature is needed to manufacture sperm. The male penis is represented by Isa, symbolic of ice.

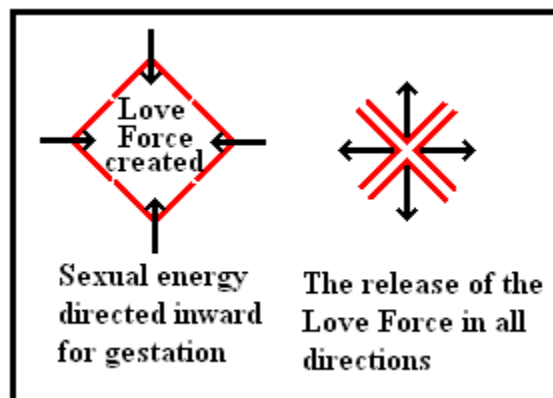

It is the sexual act between a man and a woman. Tiwaz represents the God Tyr, who was willing to sacrifice his hand to fetter Fenrir, the wolf representing chaos. He symbolizes the masculine will to control one's sex drive and never permit the sexual urge to control his actions. If he fails to maintain control, he becomes a rapist and will engage in sexual activities that are detrimental to the advancement of the family and the Folk.

The completed act of copulation is represented by Elhaz. In sexual magick, the man and woman reach an ecstatic state that is believed to be a plain of existence of higher consciousness where the Gods dwell (Asgard and Vanaheim). Thus, the sexual act between a man and woman, is symbolic of the Valkyrie, who is the messenger of the Gods (both Odin and Freyja—male and female). One is able to communicate with the Gods through Elhaz. For a man and woman to achieve the highest expression of the ecstatic state of higher consciousness, they both need to achieve a state of perfect balance of their male and female inner parts. This will create a psyche that is completely at ease with a member of the opposite sex and thus willing to one completely to the other partner in the sexual act. It is this mental state of total giving and lack of selfishness that creates a perfect sexual union that permits the spirit to join in the archetype of the original God, Buri, who was androgynous, containing both the Male-Force and Female-Form within itself.

Gebo is another Rune dealing with sexual energy. Its meaning is the exchanging of gifts. What greater gifts to exchange between a man and a woman than sexual union? Gebo is actually four Kenaz Runes and represents the unleashing of runic energy in all directions from the act of sexual union. This energy is Vrill-powered Love-Force that is the essence of Balder Rising within one. The opposite of this runic configuration is Ingwaz, Four Kenaz Runes facing each other, and thus fusing the sexual runic energy inward for incubation and gestation. Four Kenaz Runes draws the two individuals to each other according to the laws of sexual attraction. The romance begins and a relationship develops, culminating in the sex act of fornication. Sexual energy is released. When this is performed in magical ritual, the man and woman develop a deep and personal relationship of trust through the development of the state of Mannaz (perfected human) within each other. When they then perform fornication, they reach a state of the highest level of consciousness together and thus enter a Valkyrian State of Consciousness with the ability to communicate with the Gods.

WHY VRIL?

Many within the Odinst/Asatru movement have asked why we use the term Vrill to describe the Life Force of the Gods. If you examine the many different organizations, especially those that explore both Galder and Seither magick, they will touch on the subject of this Life Force, but few ever really get into a deep examination of just what it is. Some groups will refer to it as the "Odic" force, a term used by Karl von Reichenbach. Some simply refer to it as ond, the vital breath of Odin. But whatever name these groups refer to it as, they only touch on it in passing. This is a vital mistake for the understanding of what this force is and its nature and role in the cosmology of the Elder Tradition.

Other traditions have referred to it by many different names. The Chinese refer to it as chi, the Hindi as prana, the Japanese as reiki, the Romans referred to it as Rhea Kybele, which means "the rolling astral light."

The Church of Vrilology uses the term "Vril" because it's very name has deep, runic magick that I will reveal in the principles of Runic Physics. Vril has used as a term to describe this Life Force by the Rosicrucians, a Germanic esoteric society, related to the masons and eventually made it a popular term during the 19th century, when the Rosicrucian, Edward George Bulwer-Lytton wrote his novel, Vril: The Power of the Coming Race.

In The Coming Race, Bulwer-Lytton explains that the Vril-ya (a race of super beings who learn to master Vril) speaks an "original language." They are described as descended from the ancient Aryans.

The author of the novel was an initiate of the most sacred occult learning, so I find the word Vril, an interesting occult name. The V, which is an inverted hieroglyph for a pyramid, is the symbol of the supreme being. We see this symbolism on the American dollar bill. But if we take the word Vril and break it down further, we have ri and l. The ri refers to the ruling principle that can be found in such words as regal, the l is symbolic of the word El, which means God. So the word Vril, is actually symbolic of the power source of God, or the Gods. Madame Helena Blavatsky referred to the Vril as Fahot, and claimed that the Atlanteans called it Mash-Mak. In the Tibetan language it means chi or life force, but it can simply mean vibration. In ancient Sumeria, the word Vri means "God," and Il means "to be like." Thus, Vril means, "to be Godlike."

In the early part of the 20th century the Vrilgesellschaft (Vril Society) was founded, whose members believed they were in contact with the Gods, who transmitted runic formulas for them to use to harness Vril energy mechanically. It is reputed that they used this knowledge to construct an anti-gravity flying ship in the shape of a disc commonly known as a flying saucer. The Vril Society was disbanded and its operations were taken over by the Nazis when they came to power in Germany.

In the last decade, the term Vril has been demonized by the establishment because the Nazis tried to master this source of energy and use it for their dark plans of conquest and genocide.

But the name Vril cannot be discarded any more can the Runes themselves be discarded because the Nazis used them for their own diabolic purposes. Within the name "Vril" there is real runic power, and I will now proceed to prove this fact through Runic Physics.

Let us begin with the spelling of Vril and translate the letters into Runes of the Elder Futhark.

The first letter is "V." There is no letter V in the Futhark, but two Runes can be substituted depending on whether it is the hard V or soft V sound. If you use the soft U as in Nevada, or very, you can use Uruz U for its U sound. But when we need to use the hard V sound, we can use Fehu F for the F sound. "R" is the Rune Raidho R, "I" is Isa i, and "L" is Laguz L.

So the spelling of Vril would be f R I L.

Fehu is the Rune of fire and is the sending Rune. This Rune represents the realm of fire, Muspellheim. This Rune represents the realm of fire, Muspellheim. In the Icelandic Rune poem we read:

*Wealth source of discord
among kinsmen
and fire of the sea
and path of the serpent*

We are concern with the line, "fire of the sea." Remeber, the Elder Futhark was the gift of the Gods to their children who lived along the coast of the Black Sea before 5600 B.C., and they used the Runes to harness Vril energy to create a civilization more advance then our present civilization. They understood that the "sea' is made up of "water" and the formula for water is H₂O. The "O" represents one molecule of oxygen and the H₂ represents two molecules of hydrogen. When you fuse two molecule of hydrogen together you unleash enormous fire in the form of a nuclear fusion—fire of the sea.

The second letter is the Rune Raidho, which is the Rune of choosing the right road for the right results. It represent Divine Order and Patterning. Thus, Raidho channels the fire of Fehu along the right path of Divine order toward the runic energy of the third letter of the name Vril, which is "I," or the Rune Isa. Isa represents ice. This is the eternal ice of the realm of Niflheim. Isa represents concentration. It take the heat and energy of Fheu's fire and concentrates it along the Divine Order of Raidho, causing the ice of Niflehim to melt, transforming it into the third last letter of the word, Vril, "L" or Laguz, which represents water. Water is what we get when we put ice under the heating energy fire. It melts into water. Thus, by sending the fire of Fehu along the right path to ice, we create water. Laguz, which represents water, is also the Rune of the Life-Force—Vril!

Vril fills the universe and multiverse of Yggdrasill, just as the waters of the world fills the oceans. It is also why we refer to Vril and its movements in terms that describe water, such as "currents of Vril." Water is a life force for from water life on earth that life first appeared. Physically, we are almost entirely made up of water, just as energy-wise we are almost entirely made up of Vril.

If we were to make a bindrune from the four Runes that make up the word Vril, we have a very interesting image. The firs three runic letters can be connected easily, as if they symbolically assimilate their energies into a single force, while the fourth runic letter cannot be connected and must stand alone. Thus we have $f + r + i = l$.

Thus, we have fire melting ice is the Divine path for creation of the Life Force, Vril that gave rise to the first form of life, Ymir, who represented Vril energy in a disharmonic form, chaos, and it would take Odin, Vili and Ve to transform chaos into order by harnessing Vril and transforming it with the use of the Runes. This process is fundamentally rooted in the male/female principle of Force/Form process of creation. We have the Force of the fire of Musspellheim, impregnating the ice of Niflheim, causing it to melt and thus transform into water, or Vril, the Life Force.

RUSSIAN SCIENTISTS' BREAKTHROUGH IN METHODS USED IN VRIOLOGY

Because of the collapse of the Ur-civilization that was created by our ancestors, the knowledge that was taught to them by the Gods has degenerated and diversified over the millenniums. Today in the West we refer to this ability as mere "intuition." But we too can regain full use of it. And this is exactly what Vriology teaches. One of the principles of understanding how Galdor magic works is the three-fold nature of each Rune: shape, sound, and esoteric meaning. Each Rune harnesses the life force, Vril, and shapes it in accordance with its form, changes the frequency of Vril energy with the sound of its name, and thus impregnates the currents of Vril with its esoteric meanings. Through our training program, we in the Folk faith teach our members how to use each Rune to harness and shape Vril through meditating on its form, and then by chanting its sound, causing change by the frequency of its vibrational nature.

That our bodies are programmable by language, words, sound and thought has been known for millenniums. The Folk Faith believes that this science was taught to our ancestors over seven thousand years ago by the Gods, who then used this knowledge to transform themselves and their environment. The Gods gave them the Runes as tools for this. Everything in Nature vibrates. Vril energy makes up 99.9999... percent of all atoms. Thus everything is made of Vrilic energy. The number of electrons rotating around its nucleus creates unique frequency for each atom, which collectively create the form and substance of whatever the atoms are part of. Thus, everything in nature has a unique frequency. By chanting the Runes individually or in combination, we can change the frequency of Vrilic currents and thus transform reality. This ability to transform reality is applied to the world around us, the objective and subjective, externally and internally. "Internally" means we have the potential to transform ourselves by changing and shaping the frequency of atoms that make up our own DNA. People have scoffed at this concept, but now we hear that there has been extensive research into this field. The results can only be described as truly revolutionary! Now, scientists in Russia, as well as other countries, including the United States, are discovering the nature of this phenomenon.

Conventional thinking has been that we use only 10 percent of our DNA, which is used for building proteins. It is this 10 percent that is of chief interest to the Human Genome Project and other research programs. The other 90 percent of the DNA is referred to by western scientists as "junk DNA" and considered useless. However, research in Russia into this "junk DNA" has led to the discovery that human DNA is a type of biological Internet, but far superior to it in many aspects. According to them, besides the blueprint for the construction of our bodies rooted in the 10 percent of our DNA, the remaining 90 percent serves for data storage and communication. By comparing the rules of syntax (the way we put words together to form phrases and sentences), semantics (the study of meaning in language forms), and the basic rules of grammar, Russian linguists discovered that the same regular grammar rules all our human languages embody are also followed by the sequence of bases in DNA, especially by the 90 percent of "useless" DNA. They conclude that human languages reflect our inherent DNA and are not coincidental.

Russian biophysicist and molecular biologist Pjotr Garjajev and his colleagues performed extensive research into vibrational behavior of the DNA. They modulated certain frequency patterns onto a laser ray and used them to influence the DNA frequency and thus the genetic information itself, observing: "Living chromosomes function just like solitonic/holographic computers using the endogenous DNA laser radiation." Since the basic structure of language and the structure of DNA-alkaline pairs and of language are similar, DNA decoding was not necessary. They were able to achieve the same results through the use of words and sentences of the human language! Their experiments showed that DNA substance in living tissue will always react to language-modulated laser rays and even to radio waves, if the proper frequencies are being used. They claimed that it is entirely normal and natural for our DNA to react to language.

Garjajev's research group used their method to repair chromosomes experimentally damaged by X-rays. They were even able to reprogram the cells to another genome, by retrieving information patterns of a specific DNA and then transmitting it onto another. Frog embryos were transformed into salamander embryos simply by transmitting the DNA information patterns! Normally cutting out and re-introducing single genes from one piece of DNA to another produces harmful side effects; the Russian method avoided such disharmonies. By simply applying vibration and language instead of the archaic cutting-out procedure, they achieved a sensational and revolutionary breakthrough in genetic engineering. Their experiments and research reveals the immense power of wave genetics, which has a greater influence on the formation of organisms than the biochemical processes operating on base sequences.

This research has shown that such phenomena as clairvoyance, intuition, spontaneous and remote acts of healing, self healing, affirmation techniques, unusual light/auras around certain people (namely spiritual masters), the mind's influence on weather patterns, and much more can be explained directly or indirectly by the effects of changing the frequencies of our DNA. The work provides a scientific explanation why affirmations, autogenous training, hypnosis and the like can have such strong effects on the human mind and physical body.

Instead of cutting single genes from DNA strands as western researchers do, the Russians enthusiastically worked on devices that can influence the cellular metabolism through suitable modulated radio and light frequencies and thus repair genetic defects. This had led the Russian scientists to conclude that a whole new type of medicine is possible, in which DNA can be influenced and reprogrammed by words and frequencies without cutting out and replacing single genes.

There is still a long way to go before we can perfect the method, for frequency has to be correct if we are to effect the desired transformation. This lack of fully understanding the science is why not everybody is equally successful or can do it always with the same strength. It takes a great deal of hard work, dedication and maturity in order to establish a conscious communication with the DNA. The Russian researchers are working on a method that is not dependent on these factors but will always work, provided one uses the correct frequency.

The development of mechanical instruments that can cause such transformations is truly revolutionary. But we are not restricted to such devices. The higher developed consciousness is able to cause such transformation with the power of his mind. Vrilology is working on teaching its students to achieve this state of higher consciousness using the methods taught to our ancestors by the Gods as described in the myths, when Heimdall descended to Midgard and taught the sons of Jarl the use of Runes and Galdor magick, But the Folk Faith is also excited about the possibility of using mechanical instruments to achieve the same goal. Once the principles of this phenomenon are revealed by science, there will no longer be any doubt about the validity of Vrilology.

But it doesn't end there. The Russian scientists also discovered that our DNA can cause disturbance patterns in the vacuum, thus producing magnetized worm holes! Worm holes are the microscopic equivalents of the so-called Einstein-Rosen bridges in the vicinity of black holes (left by burned-out stars). Worm holes are believed to be tunnels that connect different point throughout the universe. Their range is limitless and might even span time as well as space. Thus, through these holes in space and time, information can be transmitted outside of the restrictions of space and time. It is through these worm holes that our DNA fetches these bits of information and passes them on to our consciousness. This process of hyper-communication is most effective once the individual enters a state of relaxation. Stress, worries or a hyperactive intellect prevent successful hyper-communication or can completely distort the data, rendering it useless. In the myths, this hyper-communication is symbolized by Mimir's Well. Odin surrendered his left eye, which is connected to the right brain, the seat of higher consciousness, so that he could drink from the well, and thus access limitless information and knowledge.

We can observe many examples of hyper-communication in Nature. For instance, when a queen ant is spatially separated from her colony, the colony continues to function fervently without any disruption. But if the queen ant is killed, there is massive disruption in the colony. The colony is unable to function normally because the queen ant is the instrument by which the colony is organized; the colony then seems to tap into its own hyper-communication and, as if as one entity, every ant works together to produce a new queen. With humans, hyper-communication is most often encountered when one suddenly gains access to information that is outside one's knowledge base.

There are many recorded incidences of hyper-communication throughout history. These incidents are usually referred to as inspiration or intuition. Whenever Thomas Edison was stumped by a problem, he would retreat to the privacy of his office. There he would sit on a chair with a bucket of water between his feet, and place a brick on his knees. He would then take a nap. When he entered REM or deep sleep, his body would go completely limp and his knees would separate, causing the brick to fall into the bucket and splash water on him, waking him up out of deep sleep. When he woke, he usually had the solution to his problem. The reason for this is that when we enter deep or REM sleep, we enter the delta state of consciousness, which is the highest trance state that we can reach, and thus its boundaries are limitless. It can retrieve whatever data it needs from Mimir's limitless well.

Another example of hyper-communication is the Italian composer Giuseppe Tartini. He once dreamed that a devil sat at his bedside playing the violin. He woke out of REM or deep sleep and could remember the entire piece that the devil was playing, and immediately wrote it down exactly. He called it the Devil's Trill Sonata.

A peculiar phenomenon takes place in the DNA when hyper-communication occurs. When the Russian scientists irradiated DNA samples with laser light, a typical wave pattern was formed on a screen. The wave pattern did not disappear when they removed the DNA sample. This phenomenon occurred repeatedly over numerous controlled experiments. The pattern continued to emanate from the removed sample after the experiments were stopped. Apparently the energy field remained after the laser light was turned off. This effect is now called phantom DNA effect.

The Russian scientists think that a form of universal energy that transcends time and space (and that we in Balder Rising refer to as Vril) continues to flow through the activated worm holes long after the DNA is removed. This results in the appearance of an electromagnetic field in the vicinity of the person concerned.

Electronic devices that come into contact with the electromagnetic fields cease to function for hours. The devices function normally once the electromagnetic field slowly dissipates. This effect has been known to occur among healers and psychics. In their book Vernetzte Intelligenz (Networked Intelligence), Grazyna Gosar and Franz Bludorf explore the phenomenon in depth. They quote sources presuming that in earlier times humanity possessed advanced ability in hyper-communication, lending credibility to Vrilology's claim that our ancestors had such powers due to the intervention of the Gods.

Today, we are re-discovering this ability that lies dormant within us. The United States government once ran a program known as Star Gate, in which people with psychic ability learned to develop and use powers that came to be referred to as remote viewing, remote healing, and remote sensing. What the program operators discovered that is interesting is that while there are certain individuals that seemed to possess a natural and highly developed ability, everyone had this ability and could be taught to develop and use it.

The Folk Faith of Balder Rising teaches its students Vrilology, which seeks to develop a new form of group consciousness by which we attain access to all information via our DNA, by tapping into what the myths refer to as Mimir's Well. This ability works just like the Internet. Through our DNA, we can access information and even establish contact with other participants in the network. Just as pets know from afar when their owners plan to return home, we too can become sensitive to the whereabouts of other people. This too can be explained via the concepts of group consciousness and hyper-communication.

The Russian researchers admit that humans with highly developed consciousness and strong individuality possess a group consciousness that would give them a god-like powers to create, alter and shape things on Earth! It is important to understand that manipulation of this ability can pose a real threat, just like other abilities people have. This is why Balder Rising works to develop highly advanced consciousness among those who practice Vrilology. Only by assuring the individual consciousness of those who practice Vrilology can we prevent exploitation. Any collective consciousness cannot be sensibly used over any period of time without a distinctive individuality. Otherwise we would revert to a primitive herd instinct that is easily manipulated.

We know that children are born with this ability, and in some children these powers are highly developed. But modern society has discouraged children from developing their powers, so their ability eventually degenerates and becomes dormant. In China's Indigo Children, author Paul Dong explores this phenomenon in China, where more and more children are now being encouraged to develop their powers. Some people are encouraging this development in the West as well. Balder Rising via its Folk Faith will be among those to encourage children to develop and use their powers in our future Folk Communities.

There are many cultures in which it is believed that weather can be influenced by people. Myths and sagas tell us that the Runes can be used this way. It might be difficult for an individual to control weather with the power of his mind, even with the help of Runes, but weather might be influenced by a group consciousness. We know weather is strongly influenced by Earth resonance frequencies, the so-called Schumann frequencies. But those same frequencies are also produced in our brains. Thus, when many people synchronize their thinking and focus their thoughts in a laser-like fashion, especially with the assistance of Runes, then, scientifically speaking, it is not at all surprising if they can thus influence weather.

Researchers in group consciousness have formulated a theory of two types of civilization. Type I civilization is one in which humanity has developed a group consciousness to create a unified civilization that uses collective consciousness to control the energies of its home planet, mentally manipulate its environment, and thus eliminate all natural catastrophes. Type II civilization would be one that has developed its collective consciousness to the point of controlling all energies of their entire home galaxy.

Studies have shown when huge amounts of people focus their attention on a single event, especially one that generates high emotional reaction, like the funeral of Lady Diana in England or the final game in soccer's world cup, the mental energy creates a group consciousness that has caused certain random number generators (set up to measure this effect in computers) to deliver ordered numbers instead of the random ones. An ordered group consciousness creates order in its whole surroundings!

Gustav LeBon's book The Crowd explores the nature of the collective mind. LeBon wrote that when people congregate for a specific event, they act collectively and behave very differently from what they would do as individuals; they would do things in a group that they would never contemplate doing individually. There seems to be a melding of the individual consciousness and personality into a collective or group mind that takes over.

DNA acts as an organic superconductor at normal body temperature. This is very different from artificial superconductors, which require extremely low temperatures, between -200 and -140°C, to function. All superconductors are able to store light and thus information. Alexander Graham Bell discovered in the 19th Century that information can be transmitted by light. Manipulation of light is another way of explaining how the DNA can store and send information.

The transmission of data through light is another phenomenon linked to DNA and worm holes. Super small worm holes are highly unstable and are maintained only for the tiniest fractions of a second. They have been produced in superconductors in Switzerland. Under certain conditions stable worm holes can organize themselves into distinctive vacuum domains in which, for example, gravity can transform into electricity. Vacuum domains are self-radiant balls of ionized gas that contain considerable amounts of energy.

Radiant balls of light occur commonly in certain parts of Russia. Because of the public reaction to such orbs, the Russian authorities began an extensive investigation that has resulted in many of the discoveries mentioned above. One of the conclusions that the Russians came up with is that they are vacuum domains, and that these vacuum domains often appear as balls of light that fly from the ground into the sky. But the most amazing discovery by the Russians is that these balls can actually be guided by our thoughts. It is believed that these vacuum domains emit the same kind of waves of low frequency that are produced in our brains. Because of this similarity of waves they are able to react to our thoughts.

The Russians explained that contact with one of these balls of light could cause mutations in our genes due to the immense amounts of energy such balls contain. Such energy orbs have been manifested by psychics through deep meditation or energy work. These energy orbs usually trigger decidedly pleasant feelings and have a positive effect on people. It is believed that the effect the orbs have on a person depends on the quality and provenance of the vacuum domain.

In some cases, the light orbs cannot be seen, but for some reason they appear on photographs taken of a spiritual teacher in a deep meditative state that produces hyper-communication. They have also appeared in photographs of Earth healing sessions.

There is speculation that these phenomena have to do with gravity and anti-gravity forces, and with ever more stable worm holes and hyper-communication, and thus with energies from outside our time and space structure. Earlier generations that got in contact with such hyper-communication experiences and visible vacuum domains were convinced that an angel had appeared before them. Research into this phenomenon is still ongoing, but the Russians have made another giant step toward understanding our reality. Their research lends scientific credibility to what we in Balder Rising teach in our courses on Vrillology.
