

The falsity of Psychoanalysis.

POSTED ON 3 NOVEMBER 2009 BY ADMINISTRATOR

By M. I. García Vives

Psychoanalysis, like Marxism and other religions, is part of the global synarchy and the age-old conspiracy against the Spirit.

Psychoanalysis proclaims that it is necessary to "make the unconscious conscious", so that the individual can be fulfilled and happy (a similar postulate is held by scientology). Freud was once asked what a man should do to be fulfilled and happy, to which he replied "love and work". Now that was a good one, just the kind of man that would please the demiurge and a synarchic world government. The happy animal-man-slave. The best slave is the one who doesn't know who is a slave. The idiot who believes that work and sex are all that matter in life. The exploited servile who thinks he is free. The bludgeoned and content cuckold. That is what the synarchy wants for the false and decadent man of our time. The slave must always be deceived in a thousand ways, so that he never knows who he really is or who his masters are. The idiot zombies who believe themselves to be free, the golems walking down the street. What alcohol, drugs and religions cannot achieve, Marxism and psychoanalysis will have to do.

"Love and work", what a tip. Have a wife, children, family, have good sex and good orgasms and be successful at work. All this seems to be the only thing psychoanalysis claims for man. To do what a dog or a cat does naturally, man would have to spend years of onerous and boring psychoanalytic treatment.

Work as well as sex and family are proper to the soul and the body (hormones, instincts, affections). But man is more than a soul and a body. Man is more than a cat or a dog. Man also possesses a Spirit, which it is not good to betray. They pretend to satisfy the needs of the animal, and know nothing of the needs of the Spirit.

Of course, Freud and his gang, inventors of this fraud (fraud, fraudism, Freudianism), were either born without a spirit, or they had it almost dead, or worse, they knowingly concocted this trap called psychoanalysis.

Psychoanalysis, like scientology, divides men into psychoanalysed and unpsychoanalysed, normal and perverse. Psychoanalysts have never agreed on what a sexual perversion is. For Freud it is one thing, for Reich another, and so on. Each one interprets it in his own way, that is to say, every pervert calls those who are not like him perverse. He is healthy, he is normal.

When death comes to a human-animal, its body is destroyed and its soul is taken over by the demiurge, only his untouchable and eternal Spirit remains safe. When death comes, both body and soul are taken and emptied by the demiurge, no matter whether they are "psychoanalysed" or not. As the saying goes: "he who neither drinks nor smokes tobacco, the devil takes him for another buraco". We know that the devil is the demiurge.

Likewise, when a Spirit succeeds in freeing itself and taking control of its microcosm by wresting it from the demiurge, it matters little how much "realisation" or "happiness" the soul and body have achieved. The Spirit will take them for itself using them as tools, whether they are "psychoanalysed" or not. Whether it is a "normal" man or a "perverse" one, the false contents of the body and soul will be erased, reduced to dust, and then filled and transformed by the Spirit.

While psychoanalysts do not know what the perverse is, we do. The demiurge, his creations and his laws are the perverse. To deny the existence of the Eternal Spirit is evil. To prevent men from awakening and liberation is evil. The losses of the seminal energies during the "good sex" is what is evil. The sexual mutilations of children, the ritual paedophilia, the millions of abortions per year offered to the demiurge Jehovah, that, all that is what is perverse.

Don't be fooled by the trap of psychoanalysis and the like. Do not seek the happiness of dogs and cats. Seek the happiness of warriors after duty done. Do not waste time trying to "perfect" the soul and the body. The soul and the body do not belong to you, they are your own. mortals, they are not eternal. Those are things of the demiurge. Do not do favours to the demiurge. The body is destroyed in every incarnation and the soul is destroyed when it merges with the demiurge or in the pralaya. Dedicate yourselves to the only thing that belongs to you: the Spirit. The only thing you possess is the Spirit. Only the Spirit is eternal. Spend the time to free it from the demiurge. Do not let the demiurge that one continue to chain and use Spirits to his advantage. The only worthwhile and worthy task for a man in his life is to seek the liberation of his Spirit caged by the demiurge. Waste no time, waste no opportunity to be incarnated in the hell of the demiurge.

Do not be deceived by the demons of the synarchy either. Dedicate your life to achieving things imperishable, important things, things that last for eternity. Don't dedicate yourselves to the ephemeral. Don't dedicate y o u r s e l v e s t o shit.