

Nordlux: Contra Judaeus

A new podcast with Zygarde. Hello, Zygarde. Hello there, how are you today? I'm fine and I hope that you're fine.

Doing pretty well. I'm happy to have you on my show. We will talk about the psychology of our enemies and a lot of different topics.

This is my thing that we are not speaking only for one topic. Maybe this is a weakness, but I think that this makes the conversation more natural. And also, I'm not a natural English speaker, so at some point I cannot remember what is the phrase and things like that.

This makes the conversation quite long and complicated for me. It adds a lot of interesting subjects anyway. Yes, yes, yes.

And also, talking with intelligent people is pleasurable and I hope it is the same for the listeners. Hopefully, the listeners can spread this information around instead of just looking at it as entertainment because it's very serious in the situation we're in right now. Yes, yes.

This is one of the problems that we are mentioning almost in every podcast. We need to move from talking on the internet to something that is serious. And by serious, I don't mean illegal.

You know that I'm living in the European Union and I cannot share a lot of my beliefs and things like that. Not in illegal, we're talking about making connections, making business connections, making, exchanging knowledge, exchanging experience, making, I don't know, gyms. We can build even sport programs.

We can build communities, homesteads, whatever. I mean, we're talking about, I'd say, positive nationalism, so to say. Also, creating a database of different books and videos and movies and music and art that is pro-white, nationalistic, things like that.

But it looks like a lot of the people, they just prefer to listen and to be passive. And because they... A lot of them are probably watching their hentai porn while they listen to this in the background or something. It's terrible.

Can you imagine? Can you imagine people were... No, I hope... I had several people that contacted me that I think are okay, wanted to sound serious. But a lot of people don't realize the deepness of the situation and they don't realize how the enemy minds works. Yeah, and that's the thing.

It's all based on deception, like the Mossad motto. By deception, we will wage war. You have to understand that the Jews, they create false appearances and they get people to believe in those false appearances.

And then when people believe in that, then they become complacent or they fall into whatever trap the Jews have laid for them. And that's the whole gimmick of the Jew is just deception, false appearances, false associations, posing as a friend, working as a spy. There's one book that I would like to talk about, too, that I discovered on the internet, which maybe you can link below if you want, called Contra-Judas, Exposing Jewish Psycho-Politics.

And that definitely covers a fair range of these topics of the psycho-pathology of the Jews there. I think the idea is like Jan Lamprecht's book that, what is it called? Government by Deception, Communist Psycho-Politics. Yes, yes, yes.

Yeah, so it's a similar concept, only it's more particularly related to Jews in their deceptive techniques. But you must see one of the reasons that I advise people not to trust, and this will sound quite contradictory because I'm from Eastern Europe, but to be a little bit more sceptical about people from ex-Soviet Union, especially Russians, Belorussians. Now about Ukrainians, I don't know what to tell about Ukrainians.

Ukrainians as a whole, they're not bad people, at least from my experience, what I can say. But there could be some infiltration there. Also, this is a thing that I've warned them back in the time because they were quite open-hearted, if this is a word, for Russians, Russian nationalist renegades that were running from the Putin's regime, and they were eager to join the nationalists in Ukraine.

And I've warned them not to be very, what is the word, naïve, not to be naïve and to check the background if it's possible these people that are coming from Russia to join them because they're not very happy with the Bolsheviks, or I must say neo-Bolsheviks politics of Putin. And as they find lately, I mean, after a few years, they find that several of these people, not all, but several of these people were something like agents. So this also must be taken in mind that the Russians, especially the Russians are having these old traditions since, I don't know, since the 20s, most likely, to infiltrate Western society, especially to target America.

This is the archenemy of the USSR. This is the archenemy of the neo-USSR of Putin. And the Russians, I believe they, by Russians, I mean Russian Jews, but also average Russians that seek revenge for the, I mean, not average, average.

Average operatives. Yes, average operative Russians. They could be.

GRU, KGB. Yes, yes, yes. They could be just operative.

It's not like every Russian is a Jew. But a lot of these people, for example, what we talk, the ex-wife of Richard Spencer, for example, she's from, supposedly, she's Georgian. And I've joked that she looks like a first cousin of Stalin or something like that.

Jew Gashvili. Jew Gashvili, yeah. And I've talked with, because a lot of people don't agree with me, which is okay in that case, because I'm also not 100% sure that he was a Jew.

But I've talked with a guy, his nickname four years ago, I believe his nickname that he used was Georgian, like Georgian from the country Georgia. Georgian national socialist or Georgian nationalist. And he was 100% sure, based on sources, that Jew Gashvili came from a region that was inhabited by descendants, Christianized descendants of the cousins.

That's what the Jews do. They have safe spaces that they hide away in. They always take over certain regions, like this parasitical colonization tactic.

Not spoken of in that book, that contra-Judeous book, one of their tactics. Yeah. Infiltration, assimilation, and then they try to hoard it all for themselves.

And then they gradually push out the indigenous population from their own territory through the dialectical process, through the corruption of the upper class, and then the riling up of the lower class against the upper class in like Spartacus revolutions and stuff like that. Absolutely. I think it's a brilliant analysis because basically this happened in the Khazar empire.

The Khazars were, of course, a lot of people will say that they were Turkic tribe and maybe they spoke some kind of Turkic dialect, but the anthropological depictions of the higher upper class, the warrior castes of the Khazars shows that there were Europeans, and I will say a quite strong redhead gene was spread amongst the Khazars because, I will repeat that again, in several sources, Arab sources, I believe Byzantium sources, they describe like red hair with blue eyes and beautiful bodies, which suggests that they're tall, fair-skinned, things like that. They have a Celtic type of quality. More likely Scythian.

Okay. More likely Scythian. So that came, but did that not come from the north though, around where Ireland is today, like when it was Atlantis and Hyperborea? Basically, of course, the Irish, the Celts, and the Scythians had the same origin, and it is known that the Yamnaya people most of the times were brunettes with latent, latent is maybe not the correct word, with... Mediterranean? No, I mean, if I say Mediterranean or Nordic, it won't be exactly true because... Do you mean like the pontid people? No.

Part of them look like a pontid or proto-pontid, I would say. Part of them look like a proto-Nordic. This is several thousand years before they split in the sub-races, so they were much closer together.

So it's not very clear what kind of features are clearly Nordic features, clearly. I would say that the closest, according to the geneticists at least, the closest genes to the Yamnaya people are part of the Finnish people. But also this is kind of weird because part of the Finnish people had a mixture of Asiatic elements.

So it's kind of weird. They had genes from other side that are very close to the original Aryans from Yamnaya. From the other side, they had a mixture of non-Aryan elements, which of course it's... I honestly, I'm not a very... For the 100% purity, I mean, they could have something like one to, I don't know, 5% Asiatic, but 5% is quite high.

But let's say that most of the Finnish people are from Scandinavian descent. They're quite obviously European. Right.

They're technically considered one of the Scandinavians of the five Scandinavian countries. Yes, yes, yes. The same that I could say for Danish people, obviously, the original Vikings, as they call them, at least I'm a little bit biased because I had, I mean, I have friends in Denmark and I'm convinced by their theory that all these Viking families actually originated from Denmark at some point.

But this, of course, could be some kind of local legend that they're older than the Swedes and the Norwegians. That's also more or less the same sort of, what is it called? Latitude. The same latitude as the Frisian people where that Orlinda book was allegedly from.

And that's one of the most ancient of the races of the Nordic or the Hyperborean type from that region. Mm hmm. Take in mind that the Hyperborean type, at least how the modern science claim, which I open the brackets, I'm not absolutely sure that you know my opinion about the sciences a little bit.

We must have our own science at some point and we must research the things with the scientific method and with well-prepared scientists with racial views. But what the modern science said that basically they claim that these ancient Hyperboreans, their forefathers of the European Yamnaya from one part, but also their forefathers of these Asiatic types that migrated to North America. So to the... Yeah, interestingly enough, if I could just interject about the, according to Blavatsky and the Secret Doctrine, the Redskins came from the southern Atlantis.

There's apparently two separate sections of Atlantis, like maybe even different islands. And the one in the south was the Ramalhals and the Turanian type. And they're what are called the Redskins or North Americans today.

Of course, others came from the Siberian Plateau from Asia. But before that time, they probably came from Atlantis. And according to Blavatsky, she says that their extinction is a karmic necessity in the Secret Doctrine.

And the reason is probably because of all their rapine of the white population, that that's their karmic backlash. That and the fact that they're just an obsolete race now because they're too, according to her, because it's like the process of evolution has passed them by now. So now they don't have a place in this world, according to her.

The Redskins who currently live there, that incorporates Mexicans too. Yeah, I've noticed this kind of underlined racialism in some of the works of Blavatsky. But the other hand, I don't know what she thinks about her.

Right. Yeah, she can't be trusted. She is an agent of the Rothschilds, I heard.

But at that time, you know, the white people were still very racially conscious. So I guess they had to, you know, try to appeal to them in that way in order for it to be acceptable to them. So it's just part of their dialectic, working it toward the present day over the last 150 years of propaganda, or more than that, probably.

And now they don't need the white population so much. So now they're turning on them. That's a typical Jewish backstab tactic that they always use.

You know, they use you and exploit you and then make you think you're a superstar. And then from there, they cast you down into the pit. Yes.

And that's their understanding of this sort of, I don't know, bizarre logic of theirs, what they consider to be your sins because you, you know, exalted yourself. But they're the best and they're humble before the magic Lord Jehovah. So the fact that you put yourself on a pedestal, you thought you were special because it enabled you to be special.

And then they cast you off the pedestal. And then that's their way of claiming that they're beyond you and so forth. It's their black magic.

Tactic. And they do that with the Negroes too. Absolutely.

I missed some of the words maybe because of the connection. Can you repeat? Well, I was going to say that that's the, I don't know what you would call that specifically, the technique of where they make you a hero and then they cast you down from your pedestal. But they do that with the Negroes too, like Israel Cohen's racial program of the 20th century.

You know, we will seek to elevate the Negroes, you know, in sports and entertainment so that they will be eligible to be interbred with the white females. But then you can see right now that once they elevate the Negro to the highest levels, then they start, you know, turning on them. They turn the knife on them afterwards.

So that's what they're going to be doing. I'm almost certain that for the Negroes that once, if the Jews can get to where they want to go, they'll probably just kill them because that's what it says in the Harold Rosenthal's The Hidden Tyranny. It says, you know, direct quote, we'll probably just kill the Negroes when we're done with them.

Interestingly enough, I think that instinctively, at least the healthy white females, they are don't like Negroes. Yeah, on the instinctive level, I have communication with several,

I would say, well, they are racist. Most of them, I mean, they had some basic understanding of what is race, even though I don't claim that they understand national socialism or deep analytics of info or something like that.

But on a racial, on an instinctive level, they are healthy enough to understand. I think most white women are like that implicitly, that they're just not wanting to be explicit because obviously they don't want a stigma socially. Yeah, socially.

You're right. You're absolutely right. So I have this understanding that they don't like, but we're talking about normal white women.

They don't like Negroes on the instinctive level. Yeah, but you can see that in their sort of aversive behavior. And for example, a lady that was a member of the Bulgarian National Alliance, it happened to be, to live in a building with a Negro living block.

So, and because the elevator is only one, and it happened that the Negro live in the same, on the same, what's the term? Floor. Yeah. It happened that she refused several times to enter the elevator with him.

And I even gifted her a mace, I suppose, for self-defense. You can make your own capsaicin oil, pepper spray. And the Negro was quite outraged.

He even threatened her with some kind of court case or something like that. But what's a Negro doing in Bulgaria in the first place is a question. It's a question, but she's living in the capital and the capital is cesspool.

I mean, I'm lucky enough to live in the other side of Bulgaria, which is, my city is quite famous with a conservative, maybe a little bit, how to say, a little bit conservative, a little bit back, what's the term? Backwater, beliefs of the most of the people there, always voting for some kind of conservative party. But they're all communists, so it doesn't matter. Right, they can't see beyond the veil of appearances.

Yeah, yeah. But here there was several interviews and, how to say, polls made. And most of the, if, basically, if Donald Trump, with his fake conservatism and nationalism, was a candidate, they could vote for him.

You can imagine what kind of stupid people living here. But anyway. Better than a bunch of intellectual degenerates who don't understand, you know, healthy instincts.

Yes, they just cannot analyze deeper. This is the problem with them. But on the other hand, I must say a couple of good words for my, for some of the citizens, because the guys that organized the first original refugees back in 2016 were from Burgas.

And I know some of them, and that's why I visited the border in 2016 with them. But this was the original group. After that, a lot of people joined because it became popular.

Right, you had to get a power trip. Yes, it was basically some kind of, what is the term, some kind of popularity stunt or some kind of media stunt. And also there was groups that were created openly for infiltration.

Like there was a group of gypsies, basically. Gypsies that were created by a communist party. I mean, they were not a communist party, a Bulgarian socialist party, but they're basically descendants of the communist party.

So they organized gypsies, Christian gypsies, to hunt down Arabs. Right, it's always that false dialectic between Christians and Islam, or Christians and liberals. Yes, this basically was used to legitimize the gypsies like Bulgarians, that want to protect Bulgaria from these invaders.

Just as it's also used, those sorts of dialectics to delegitimize real white people who belong in their countries, you know, real nationalists, by claiming, oh, we're going to unite, you know, let's unite against these evil racists or the evil, they're terrorists or something, to shift attention away from the actual real terrorists who are the jihadists or the Mossad agents or whatever else. And because the topic was Jewish psychology, actually, we are enemy psychology, it doesn't matter, we know for whom we're talking about. They become Judaized Gentiles, all these Christians and stuff like that.

And even liberals, they all become sort of Judaized in terms of their mendacious consciousness. They have a very false mind. And for that reason, you know, they adopt the behavior of the Jews.

They delight in lying and manipulating. Yeah, yeah. This is one of the things that the Jews are very good at.

They understand the psychology of our psychology quite well. And they are pretending that they are our friends, things like that. And even in societies that they're rejected on the racial basis, they're trying to pretend that they are, if it's possible for them, that they're not Jews or they're the Jews.

It's very, very, very difficult to, how to say, to find what is the truth about them. Right, you have to basically, you have to have experience, real life experience of Jews and their behavior in order to really understand them. And even then, you can only understand them from your finite perspective, you know, through your own lens.

You can't know them unless you are them. And that's almost, of course, that would be impossible. They have endless, endless little games and techniques that they utilize.

One of them that you just mentioned, you know, that they always pretend to be your friend. That's one of the chapters in the book written by a Jew, The 48 Laws of Power, called Pose as a Friend, Work as a Spy. That's one of the chapter titles.

One of the laws, she says, The 48 Laws of Power, according to him. Yeah. And by the way, when I start to research, because I thought already many times, if I managed to collect enough data and to read the books, I want to debunk the claims against Adolf Hitler being a Bolshevik, but he's not the only one.

But I think that Bjorknes is one of the most literate Jews or Mischlings, I must say. That's how their psyops work. You know, they have that appearance of authority.

Yes. And then whenever they make themselves look like they're an authoritative figure, and they often do that to themselves, you know, reflecting like a bunch of mirrors that are in their false light. Like one of them will give another one a Nobel Peace Prize, and then the other one will, you know, say, Oh, my distinguished colleague is a professor of whatever, sociology at the local university or something.

So it's all reciprocal back scrubbing. And that way they self-legitimize themselves. They make themselves look like they're legitimate to the average person who venerates external authorities or those who call themselves authorities when their authority is just a false mantle of authority, obviously.

The same thing was if you, the listeners, look deeper in the establishment of psychology and the study of the mental health that was side by side. These, most of the famous psychologists, as most of the people know, they were coming from the so-called Austrian, or I must say, Viennese, Viennese from Vienna, yeah, Viennese school. And they are on 80% they were Jewish.

And these people were basically, one Jew was writing a book and another Jew was saying, Oh, yeah, yeah, this is a great book. And the other, the previous was like, yes, my venerated colleague, he was so great in the analysis of my book. And his book is even, even, even better.

And you must look at this and they're basically writing one and the same thing. Yeah, it's called reciprocal back scrubbing. Yeah, yeah.

And the people will say, Oh, if these two, three or 50 people were saying one and the same thing, it must be right. So yeah, that's a fallacious, fallacious argument from authority. And the same thing with, with people like, with Freud, for example, Freud was known that he being a pervert and degenerate, like cocaine addict, and cocaine addict, like most of the Jews, his theory, for example, that the complex of Electra, for example, what the fuck is this? This is bullshit.

I mean, Edipus complex, and so forth. Yeah, yeah. And that's why he was preparing, because even physically, these people, they know that the inferior, I mean, maybe they still know that the inferior, but because of the modern age, they broke the differences by degeneration, race mixing, propaganda, things like that between the white master race and the inferior races.

Yeah, because if you look even 100 years ago, they had a very degenerated form comparatively. Yes, yes. Freud, Freud was very unattractive to women.

This is a known fact. This, a lot of his complexes, actually, he's describing himself with all his problems. Yeah, I think it was also a description of other of his Viennese Jews who were friends of his or something that he wrote about.

Also, he had chosen Jung to be his, to be a quote, I believe it was exactly Freud that said that you, Jung, you are the Aryan Jesus of psychoanalysis. So they chose a German type, Swiss, German actually, to be the Jesus, the Messiah of the new religion of psychoanalysis. Right.

Now, religion did, that was another like, very significant Jewish psyop on the white population with psychology and psychoanalysis. Yeah, as a discipline, poison for the more intelligent white population. Yeah, and you can see how that created huge amounts of chaos amidst the nuclear family of the West, so-called Western society.

The women were, you know, were transformed into these, you know, power tripping feminist ball cutter women and the men were basically transformed into these hedonistic self-server you know, dickless types. Yeah, yeah, exactly. And this thing with, what was my thought? So basically, Jung answered that don't, so Freud that told Jung that he will be the Aryan Messiah, basically, but Jung answered, don't forget that I'm Teutonic, so I'm German.

So there was some kind of racial pride on Jung. I mean, I don't claim that he was racially, he's a national socialist, he wrote an article about, but these intelligent types, they're quite contradictive. Yeah, that's the problem.

They're too intellectual. So what Alfred Rosenberg said, intellect is adversary of the soul. But he wrote an article about Adolf Hitler being the vessel of the archetype of Odin.

But later, after the Second World War, he renounced that and things like that. So, yeah, he's not exactly, but things that he wrote are interesting. And also another thing is that, you know, that I, and for Serrano, I must also open the brackets.

I like Serrano. I don't accept everything that he wrote. Yeah, much of it's thoughtful.

Yeah, because he was a fetishist towards Adolf Hitler from a guy, Bulgarian guy that is quite, with quite good connections in the national socialist circles. And he knows people that going back into the Odin types, to the original national socialist, he claims that Miguel Serrano was basically trying to buy any kind of stuff that was touched by Adolf Hitler. Yeah, it's interesting about that in Canada, in the, what is it called? The War Museum in Ottawa.

They have Adolf Hitler's limousine there. Yeah, I got to touch that too. So that's interesting, you know, irony there.

So, so basically he wanted to, for example, to drink a water from a glass of water that, from a glass that supposedly Adolf Hitler drank. Of course, there are such a thing as magical effects too, but at the same time. Yes, he wanted to feel the power of the avatar.

Of course, Serrano also said that Carl Jung was a Freemason and that that was, you know, the nature of Carl Jung. I think he wrote about this in Man and His Symbols for the Man to Come, Serrano did, stating that, you know, he had betrayed, betrayed the white race through making those sorts of statements. And Jung was also bound up with a Jewish secretary.

So you can see how the intellectual whites are often, you know, corrupted by Jews through the mind. Yeah. Like Heidegger also was, his girlfriend was Hannah Arendt, who was the person who wrote the totalitarian personality.

She was a Jew. And then Nietzsche was involved with Lou Andreas Solomay, who was like a Russian Jew. And he was also involved with Paul Rhee and various others.

So you can see how it's sort of like maybe there's some strange affinities going on. There are some inclinations or attractions to them in some way. Yes, this is one of the things that we must take in mind in the next rising of the nationalism in the wild countries.

This is what I can say, because I cannot say more than that in European Union. Yeah, because basically intellectuals and people who are, you know, like initiates or part of secret societies or initiatic organizations. Their interests mainly lie within, at least so far as I can tell, are more egotistical, at least within the context of the current modern world of degeneracy.

You know, they're interested in mental masturbation or becoming a living god. They're not really interested in white people as a collective group, except as a subordinate issue, maybe. Yes.

And look, this is a problem that we must discuss. On the one hand, we have simpletons that on the instinctive level, they don't like the Jews, right? When I started this week, I started to read more about the different factions that formed in the East and Central Europe after the First World War. And it is an amazing story.

It's very complicated, with basically all people fighting against each other. And this is one of the things that I'm trying to tell all Americans mostly. This is not a topic, at least in Europe.

Pan-Europeanism won't work. Just leave the people in the ethnic states and allied against the racial enemies. Right, exactly.

People will just form alliances based upon the contingencies of history. You know, when they live in a certain area, there's certain enemies coming in. And, you know, sometimes their previous enemies are not as much of a threat.

And so they'll side with them against the common enemy and so on. It's really not something you can determine in advance or mathematically. It's just something that organically follows from the circumstances of the world.

And take into account that it will be enough if one leading country in Europe turns to be a National Socialist. Most likely Germany, but in Germany it will be quite hard because of the history that they have. But if Germany turns back to National Socialism and to Racialism, they will trigger the domino effect in Europe.

Because Germany is the most developed country and most culturally, at least it was leading in the area of culture. So it will affect whole Europe. And that's why they're trying to destroy Germany and to replace Germany, the economical base of Germany and to transport the economy of Germany and the factories of Germany in China, for example, or in Poland or in, I don't know where, Turkey, in Turkey.

I'm thinking that that's another tactic of the Jews for their black magic is basically they realize that the heart of Europe is Germany. And if they strike at the heart, then they can try to kill the spirit of Europe in a more, in the sense of like a Francis Parker Yaqui, the soul racial collective consciousness. And that's probably why they're doing that through the demoralization tactics that they impose on the Germans and have since the Second World War, or even who knows when.

Maybe from the beginning of its unification, even before the First World War, they were trying to introduce degeneracy and so forth. I think that they're trying to infiltrate the enemies of Rome since the fall of Rome, maybe even before that. That's basically the thing with the Jew.

It's a bio-spiritual, if you want to call it that, or bio-demonic nature of theirs. They don't have a choice. They necessarily will behave in a certain way, given a certain environment.

And it's always a sort of stereotypical behavioral tactics that they use over and over and over again. So it becomes a recognizable pattern that people can understand and then use that to counter what they're trying to do. That's why, as you're saying, Germany is obviously most significant in terms of waking up the population there.

But I also must remind the people that back in the time before German unification and Frankish unification, there were other targets that they were targeting. Usually they're calling their victims or their targets Amalek. And I have Bulgarian sources that I'll try to find to quote something.

I know that Christopher John Bjorknes was saying that about the Jews, that they looked upon the whites as Amalek. Exactly. That derives itself from the Amalekites in the Bible.

Ah, I found that. So basically, it was a conversation between Bulgarian ruler called Umurtag, also known like Murtagom, and captured, well, we'll call him Byzantine prisoner, but it's basically they call themselves Romans. So Sinamon, Sinamon is the name of the captured Roman, they started the conversation about, basically Sinamon tried to convince Bulgarians that they're not worshipping the right gods, that only the gods of the Romans matter and things like that.

But very interesting how they turned the thing. So if you price the sun and the moon as a god, say Sinamon to Murtag, and make me wonder at their magnificence, and I do wonder, I still find them, this is a translation from old Bulgarian, so it's a little bit, I still find them creations and servants, not only to gods, but also to us, the human beings. And this is the continuum of the speech of Sinamon, and you will be crushed by the wrath of the only god, because you are Amalek, to which Kana Sumurtag answer, do not abuse our gods, their power is great, and you can judge about it from the fact that we, who pay homage to them, conquered the whole want of the Romans.

And your god, god with small letters, makes you weak. So this was part of the conversation. They are discussing other things like that the Romans were made cowardly by their god, Sinamon claims that this is a punishment from God, while Bulgarians think that their god is weak, and they make the souls of the Romans weak and corrupt and things like that.

So you can see back in the time, this is 1200 years ago, this is the different mentality between the pagans and the Christians. So that was when Christianity was instituted in Rome? It is in the 4th century. Yeah, so you can see how Rome was basically the United States of America, the ancient world, and the Jews infiltrated that, and then they transformed it into their cloaca gentium, their sewer of the nations, using it as their bully or golem to just go around the world, killing people and taking their land and property.

Destroying their culture and trying to impose their artificially created psyop, which is probably Christianity what it is. It's just a psyop, a mind control mechanism, like Nietzsche called it a religion of women and slaves. It's a mind control psyop to manipulate people's consciousness, to get them to transfer their thought energy to the archetypes of the Jews, the saviour figure, and then their god, their fictional god they made up.

That way it empowers the Jews. Yeah, and also, going in the direction of Christianity, there is also a thing that is material proofs who were the first Christianizers of Europe. The first icons of the apostles and the martyrs and the saints, so-called saints, a lot of them were drawn in the very early period of time.

It is quite strange because a lot of these fanatical Jews actually rejected this form of art. But maybe the propaganda for the goyim, the needs of propaganda took up ahead than the beliefs of the Jews. So these drawings, the original icons were drawn, especially in the Byzantine Empire, they were drawn like copies of original descriptions of the original apostles and things like that.

And when you look at these icons that are known as the originals, you can see that, for example, Rabbi Yeshu is with strikingly Semitic features, like strikingly the skin is brownish but also yellowish. The nose is hooked, the hair is curly, not very attractive-looking savior, so to say. And also a lot of the saints are actually looking non-white.

Yeah, I've got a good meme I'll send to you. I've got a meme of all the paintings of the early Christians and every one of them looks like a typical Jew. Yeah, exactly, exactly, exactly.

And even darker, believe me, the first Yeshua, Bar Yosef and the Yaakov Bar Zaveh, they look kind of European. The rest, they're not even as dark as I can show you some of the icons. I mean, for example, one of my favorite descriptions is in Bulgaria.

It's called Isus Pantocrator. Pantocrator basically means the ruler of the world, which is also... Supremacist claim there. Yes, yes.

It's also quite interesting. Trying to find the original description. Yes, this is the thing that I was looking for.

Maybe I will use it for the background of the conversation. Look at this. Just a very typical, very typical, very typical, typical, typical Jew.

But also you can look at this. This is in Bujana Church. And Bujana Church was a personal church of a high-ranking Bulgarian aristocrat.

So they were these people that could afford to hire a good painter and to basically send the painter to look at some of these icons that they claimed were very ancient. They were drawn by description of some of the people that know Rabbi Yeshu and the apostles. Look at this, for example.

This is also quite a Jew, especially the nose, the pigmentation of the skin. Looks like a real sneaky type of guy. Yep.

And also if you can find, if you can find, look at the Saint Morris. Saint Morris? Yes. This is another thing.

I believe it's a part of the Jewish mentality. So we can mention that. Yeah, basically their goal is to make gods in their own image, that they are God incarnate according to them.

Yes. According to what I've heard about Christianity, is that it's basically just the religion that they invented for basically imposing upon others to make them into their slaves. Obviously, no Jew really looks upon Christianity as real or even a legitimate religion.

They just look upon their own as the legitimate, the Kabbalah, even though they ripped it off the Aryans for the most part. Look at Saint Morris or the Moor or the Negro. It is sometimes depicted like Moor or like Negro, but he was not white, obviously.

And also the description of the canonization. It'd be funny if somebody made a meme of that saying something like, What's up? What's up, pops? Something like that to the Pope. So Saint Morris or also Saint Moritz, Moritz, quite a Jewish-sounding name.

But anyway, Coptic, I cannot pronounce that, was the leader of the legendary Roman Theban Legion. Theban Legion in the 3rd century, a little bit before the official Christianization. And one of the favorite, most widely venerated saints of that group.

He was patron of several professions, locals and... Profession of pimping is probably what his most famous profession was. His name is Saint Morris, boy. He's also a revered saint of the Coptic Orthodox Church of Alexandria and the Church of Oriental Orthodoxy.

According to the hagiographical material, Morris was Egyptian, born in 250 AD in Tebis and an ancient city in Upper Egypt. A captain of the new Egyptian kingdom and was brought to the region of Tebis, Luxor. He became a soldier in the Roman army.

He was gradually promoted until he became commander of the Theban Legion. Theban Legion is very interesting because they were known as the martyrs of Agaunum. And they are supposedly to the Roman tradition.

There were 6666 and they were martyred together in 286, according to the hagiographies of Saint Morris. Their feast day is held on September 22nd. So basically they took over pagan celebration.

You're right, exactly. That's the Christian and Jewish way. It's basically assimilation.

We could call it assimilationism, where they assimilate the culture of the Gentile, the non-Jew, and then they distort it and let it be used for their own purposes, which is basically maximizing their own personal profit and then simultaneously harming to the greatest extent possible the non-Jew as a means of defiling the culture of that which is not Jewish. Yeah. Yeah.

There's another quote I could also quote called first we destroy your culture, then we destroy you. That's a quote from some Jew. I don't know what the source of it is, but I remember reading that somewhere.

So basically they refused to worship Roman deities and supposedly Emperor Maximian ordered them to harass some local Christians. They refused ordering the units to be punished. Maximian.

This is all Christian bullshit, most likely, because harassing Christians is not the... It's basically no Roman Emperor will use some Roman legionaries to harass Christians. I mean, there were other ways to deal with them. Anyway, ordering the unit to be... Well, they basically just threw them to the lions and threw them in the gladiatorial arena, I believe.

I believe that most of the historians that I've read, they're skeptical to the stories that they're thrown to the lions. Most likely, they're thrown a little bit like the Jews, which, by the way, a lot of the first Christians were Jews. Jews by what I mean.

They were thrown to the lions because of other crimes. Right. Typical, just like the communists, right? It's the same thing.

Christians and communists always work together. The same thing like concentration camps. They were not sent many times.

They were not sent in concentration camps only because they're Jews. They were sent because they're Jews, but very often because they're homosexuals, communists, they're infiltrators, masons, you name it. There were a lot of things.

Because they're wearing these pink triangles for being homosexuals, and the yellow star. Sometimes it was quite a complicated story what to wear at the concentration camp. Pretty soon, they're going to be wearing a whole clown outfit with all these badges on it.

Badges of vice. That reminds me of that book, The Jew as Criminal by Karl Kellner and Hans Andersen. That was written around, I think, the Third Reich's time.

Yeah. It's The Jew as Criminal. They know that they were considered degenerates by the other people.

That's why they try to spread degeneracy to be so-called normal amongst the degenerates. Right. Maybe that's just an instinctive tendency on the part of Jews is to try to normalize their own abnormalities so that they can feel good about their own defective nature or something.

That, in addition to the schadenfreude, the desire to just destroy and attack that which is better. Like in that Snow White fairy tale, Mirror, Mirror on the Wall. Yeah.

Yeah. Interesting that you mentioned Snow White because there is some connections there with this poisonous apple that they're giving to us. Well, they poison everything, basically, the food, the water supply.

Every single thing you need, even in terms of psychic pollution. That's basically the whole idea. The Jews are pollution, basically.

They pollute the environment and they seek to harm people through that means. Yeah, yeah, you're right. And, of course, what was my thought? And, of course, the elements of the poisonous apple, the element of the black magic through this evil queen, and, of course, the dwarves.

Of course, in the fairy tale, the dwarves are the good guys, but I believe in the original story, it was a little bit different. And, of course, in many cultures, the dwarves are connected with the Jews. Right, Tolkien as well.

Yeah. So very interesting, very interesting connections could be drawn only from the fairy tales. That's why I'm trying to convince some ladies from all around Europe to read one or two stories from their favorite national myths, because traditionally the preservation of myths and fairy tales is the responsibility of the women.

That's why the tradition says that the old grandma is reading her stories to the kids, because this was their duty. So I'll try, I mean, I think that they will read one or two stories before they are changed, because I found that reading fairy tales to the nephews of my girlfriend, I found that they are changed. I mean, the stories are not the same as I remember them.

Yeah, I remember there's this one book that I had read to me as a child called The Ukrainian Folk Tales, and it was about one of the stories, and it was where this lazy son is just sitting up on his stove, and he's just sifting millet through his fingers, and then his family kicks him out, and he's got to go and make his fortune. And then he eventually finds this weird guy in a hollow stump in the forest or something, and goes down into this crazy world or whatever the case. And yeah, there's this other one where he goes, this young son goes and fights against this dragon with his iron cudgel.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. I guess that's similar to some of the Bulgarian myths, actually. I could actually scan that book and send it to you if you want.

Yes, it will be very interesting for me. Because there's no Ukrainian folk tales anywhere on the internet that I've looked. I haven't seen any of them there.

Bulgarian fairy tales, or at least the original versions of the Bulgarian fairy tales are also very hard to find, because this was one of the things I tried to talk with a Bulgarian girl about, reading a Bulgarian fairy tale. And she said that there were very few good fairy tales that translated to English. Yeah, we need some of the more hardcore ones too, not the sort of corny ones, because the ones that are really available are the ones that are more effeminate.

We need to have ones that are more like powerful tales that can, you know, awaken the white boys so that they will become white men instead of white females. Exactly. Most of the good Bulgarian fairy tales are quite many.

They're usually three brothers fighting a dragon, or they're showing different moral qualities like discipline and honour and keeping their promises, things like that. They're interesting. They're interesting.

And also there are some metaphysics, if you know some of the symbology. Very difficult to understand unless you have a background in that sort of thing. I know there's one folk tale, I think it's called Ilya Muromets and Nightingale the Robber.

That's the one where he goes off into the woods and he falls down into, or he goes down into this stump. He helps this old man to get his beard out of the crack of this stump, and then the old man brings him down into this like underground world and so forth. And at the end of it, he basically, he's fighting against like this boyar in the castle who's like a Jew, and then he fights him on the field.

And then the more the boyar tries to push his body into the soil, the more strong he becomes because he absorbs the power from the land. This basically, this Ilya Muromets, this is like a repeating of the story. If you remember what I told you about Bulgarian myths, the fight between Tanager or Tundur with Yaha, basically it's the same.

Because Yaha was this powerful Demiurge deity that could be defeated only through bravery, but also with cunningness. And there was another, it was a little bit Christianized version of two born twins, Bulgarian twins that were going in the Under Kingdom. So Under Kingdom is the kingdom under the earth to fight Yudinsar.

Yudinsar is this giant man, but also he's called Zmei, and Zmei is a dragon. So there was something reptilian there. Yeah, and once again, it's always a theme of they're going underground, and they're always fighting with reptilians.

So doesn't that suggest that there may very well be some type of real reptilian genetic basis for Jews, that they might very well be that? Yes, that there is something there that we are missing, because, well, there are a lot of things that we must consider. The Neanderthal DNA. Some people claim that, of course, they're possessed by demons, which we discussed already.

And I think it's a quite good description. I mean, they're really quite unpleasant people. Also, the possibility of us being extraterrestrials.

Right, exactly. But this is also a thing that... The Anunnaki. Yes.

The possibility of them being extraterrestrials also. I think it's both. That's what Joy of Satan says, is that they're both basically extraterrestrials.

This is interesting. This is interesting. This could be used.

And as a whole, I think that we must look at the different aspects of the Jews. We, as people, we don't analyze them and they're analyzing us. So... Well, they're going so far as even to try to gather our DNA through DNA tests.

Yes. So they can actually use bioweapons on us specifically. Yeah.

Yeah. And this was one of my concerns about getting ancestral tests that most of the companies in one way or another were connected with Jews. I think it's Sergey Brin's wife, the guy who runs Google, who's like a geneticist, who's involved in that.

Yes, there was a story, by the way. There was a story that the Jews... I mean, the Google... The Jews, yeah, Google. They are interested in genetic research.

And it's kind of weird because they could combine basically what you prefer, like apps and internet searches, with your genetics. So they could make a full profile of your psyche based on the Google searches. And they could compare your Google searches with your genetical data, which is quite a frightening possibility if you think about it.

That only goes so far, though. That's the thing. They always operate on the basis of false information, where they think that they can just program everything, and they can somehow map human consciousness.

But there's no way they can really get a 100% grasp on anything. Really, it's not really possible to do that. From what I get is that they definitely... Maybe this so-called virus is also a thing.

I think that it's very possible that this virus, so to say, was racially developed to attack a certain group of people. Right. It definitely seems to be because it's made in Israel.

And with that, I can see that, just like Alex Jones said about something along those lines before, I heard somebody saying that they'll give the placebo virus to the ones they want to keep around, and then they'll give the death virus to the ones they want to get rid of. Yes, exactly. And this is kind of a frightening possibility, if you think about it.

Right, exactly, because then they could just deny reality like they always do. They operate on the basis of a lie, of an assumed false premise that the vaccine is necessary, or that it's good, or that the virus exists, and use that to justify forcing it on you. And because the people are so stupid, they'll just believe whatever they're told by those who claim to be authority.

Then they can get away with doing that to exceptional cases, because they've got the through the democratic process, using democracy to basically legitimate their corruption. What do you think about the possibility, the own weapon of the Jews to be turned against them? Well, that would be a nice thing. After all, they're trying to do that to us, and karma dictates that they should be the ones to get the vaccines first.

That they're implementing this thing with the vaccine. I mean, it's quite obvious that they're pushing. They implemented the first vaccination passport.

So obviously, and the European Union is copying the example. So you mean the state of Israel did the vaccination passports? Yes, they implemented the first passport, supposedly. They could track you, and they were the first that implemented these telephone apps that were tracking you.

So yeah, yeah, definitely very, very, very fishy, and the state of Israel is basically trailblazers in that. Right, yeah, trailblazers in their architecture of destruction, their matrix. Yeah, but some people don't believe that the elite Jews are ready to sacrifice the lower type of Jews.

I had this conversation with some people, and they said, no, these Jews, the Jews themselves won't attack the other Jews with this virus. Well, first of all, as I said, I think that the virus was made not to attack the Jews. Now, I don't know how successful it was.

Second of all, I believe that most of the virus pandemic was bullshit. Not to say all of them was bullshit. Right, exactly.

I think most of them was exaggeration and propaganda and misinterpretation of facts and open lies. Someone I talked to said that it was morgellons that they're trying to inject into people's body, if you know what that is. What is that? It's basically like some sort of nanofibers that are alive that they replicate within your body called morgellons.

Rents.com's got a lot of stuff on that topic, but I'm not too sure if it's really a reality or not. Um, this is like a different, I think that I've met these morgellons. They basically claim that they're dumped out of the chemtrails and that the people breathe them up into their body and that they absorb these morgellons and that they they're like worms or something that are like sort of microscopic or nano uh, uh, sentient entities that replicate themselves inside your body.

In the Jewish Wikipedia, it is written that morgellons is purely understood, but the general medical consensus is that it's a form of delusional, delusional parasitoids. So they're, they're denying the existence in which individuals have some form of skin condition, which source that, uh, that they believe contain fibers, uh, fibers. It's, it's presentation is very similar to the delusional parasitosis, which addition that people with a condition believe that they're inanimate objects in their skin lesions.

Active online community supports the notion that it is infectious disease disputes that is psychological and proposes an association with, uh, a live disease. Okay. Okay.

Yeah. It's difficult to tell whether that's actually a reality or not, but rents.com has got a lot of stuff on that. Of course, he's got a lot of stuff.

That's obviously conspiracy garbage, but it's might be true to some extent. This is also another aspect of the enemy they're proposing. They're proposing different absolutely ridiculous conspiracy theories to their legitimate, uh, legitimate ties, uh, a real conspiracy theories.

So what do you think of that? Yeah, that's obviously just another tactic for derailing opposition or neutralizing opposition. If you want to call it that controlling the opposition says that in the protocols of the elders of Zion, that, you know, we don't need to fear opposition. We'll be controlling it ourselves.

Obviously most of the conspiracy theories are generated by themselves and are just 90% truth, 10% lies. So what of, what will be, uh, how the people will detect that there's such as such, uh, things, this is, uh, this is a thing, uh, that we, uh, we must, uh, uh, look. Um, so maybe instinctive understanding is, is good as well as knowledge.

Obtaining knowledge is good. I mean, one of the things that we discussed previously was about the corruption, uh, the corruption of the intellectual elite of the people. Right.

You can see how more or less today, all of those who are intellectuals are associated with the Marxist ideology for the most part, even though they don't call it that they call it democracy. So even the, most of the lower class look upon anybody who's intelligent as an enemy for the most part. From what I've get because I've mentioned that, but I don't remember if I, uh, continued my, uh, the theories that, so basically you have a understanding of antisemitism from the from the lower, less intellectual types of people.

But maybe it's instinctive type of, of, of antisemitism without understanding the whole aspects of, of the, uh, Jewish problem. And then you have the middle class that it depends on the society back in the time. A lot of people in the middle class, they understood, uh, to some extent the, uh, the, uh, the Jews, but they were antisemitic more because it was acceptable to be antisemitic.

There was a culture of antisemitism, uh, and then you have the intellectuals as we know, and we discussed the intellectuals in many cases, they are walking, and this is the problem. They're walking the, uh, they're walking the, uh, spirit. And in most cases, they have the intellect, but they're walking the instinctive understanding of the Jewish problem.

Right. They're too divorced from their instinctive mind or the collective consciousness. So maybe that's even something more, uh, beyond the instinctive mind.

It's more a spiritual, uh, disconnect that they become disconnected because their mind is, uh, basically, you know, overly intellectualized and the contents of their consciousness is basically Jewish. I, I think this is, this is, uh, a good understanding of the, of the situation with, uh, with the Jews, maybe because a lot of these intellectuals, they sympathize with the Jews, uh, including on the, uh, they have some connections. Uh, we mentioned the different, uh, for example, lawful relations between some of the, uh, brilliant minds, including Nietzsche.

I was, uh, honestly, uh, especially in the early years in my teenage years, I was a big fan of Nietzsche. Yeah. Likewise.

Yeah. I really like, and I still like Nietzsche. I mean, those, uh, uh, what will be in English? Zarathustra.

So basically those, uh, uh, uh, set Zarathustra, I suppose. Uh, I've read several times and, uh, very, uh, for, for my young psychology, it was a very, uh, impactful book. Very, very influential in my philosophy was, uh, and also in the philosophy of Adolf Hitler, for example.

But unfortunately, Nietzsche was also influenced by the Jews in some way. Yeah. And it's the thing with the intellectual type that they become too, uh, they don't have a sufficiently healthy mind, basically.

It always reminds me of that, uh, Tarzan book of Edgar Rice Burroughs, like Tarzan is like this Aryan, uh, you know, leader in the jungle. And then he gets taken out of the jungle and puts into, uh, you know, the high society of London because he's, uh, the Earl of Greystoke, you know, like a long lost child of, uh, aristocrats in the jungle. And so, you know, the polite society basically corrupts him to some extent, but then he eventually just wants to go back, you know, to the jungle, you know, in his more healthy environment.

Then that's sort of the nature of the so-called civilization in the sense of, uh, what is called modernity, this intellectualized rationalized, uh, robotic society. Then it becomes excessively divorced from the healthy instincts or the healthier forms of spirituality or spiritual expression. And then you become easily deceived and basically corrupted through the intellect because you can see how a lot of the intellectuals, they're all very self-serving people to them.

It's just mental masturbation. They want to, you know, play around with clever ideas. They want to dominate other intellectuals to show that they're more dominant and better, they're more intelligent, blah, blah.

And so it becomes egotism basically. And so that's one of the ties to Jewry also is that the Jews are more or less situated in their lower ego in that, uh, self-serving dualistic consciousness, me versus you. I'm the best, uh, type of mentality in that most intellectuals have that mentality also because they are, you know, their whole consciousness is situated in that sort of, that principle of their consciousness, or I guess their will is concentrated in that aspect of their nature, you know, pure intellect, and they have no, no attachment to any other forms of existence.

Yes, because, yeah, I mean, you analyze it quite well. Uh, I mean, this is the, this is the ego of the intellectuals, so to say, taking over their spirituality. This is, uh, this is, I can, uh, explain, uh, to, to myself the, the whole situation.

Uh, they just don't, they, they, they, uh, lose the spiritual connection through their, as you said, mental masturbation. Um, this is, this is, uh, the whole, and of course that they, they believe that they're better than the rest of the people. So this is another thing that they prefer.

And of course the Jews being, uh, being the seducers, they know how to stroke the, the, the ego of the intelligent people. Right. Uh, and they know that through intelligent people they could obtain a lot of influence.

Uh, that's why, uh, it is important. Uh, and of course to, to some extent we must, uh, understand that, uh, uh, a lot of people back in the time, they didn't recognize the geniuses. Meanwhile, the Jews, especially the women, were trained to recognize the geniuses and to recognize the people with certain qualities.

Right. And also the nobility to, you know, wherever they can put their, uh, their thumb screw into you, basically, if you know that metaphor, the thumb screw, which is it, what enables you to twist people, you know, twist their gears, they'll try to find your weak spot. And then they try to target that.

Yeah. Yeah. So if your weak spot is like sexuality, then they'll put their women on you and, you know, use them to corrupt you that way.

And maybe you, you will, you'll wind up poisoned or killed or something like that in a honey trap operation, or they'll frame you or set you up, or they'll just influence you to try to do something that serves, serves the Jews community. You know, give them citizenship or citizens' rights or, you know, go on some crusade or whatever the case. Yes.

Anything that serves them in, uh, their short or long-term strategy. You can see that, especially with all the Zionists, the Christian Zionists, how they use them to go around killing people all over the earth. And then, uh, you know, whoever the Jew tells them to attack the attack.

Yes. But also we must remember that the, uh, to Christian Zionism has a very deep roots and they're playing with the evil of the people. For example, the God chosenness.

Right. This was one of the things that, uh, aren't pointed out about the God chosenness of the Boers. Now this, um, this was played, uh, against the old, uh, Europeans that accepted, uh, Christianity.

And that's done too, even with Filipinos and with, uh, more or less everyone, the Jews do that. They always try to make them think they're the Israelites to make them feel important. Yes.

Uh, and also, uh, for example, in the Bulgarian empire, the game was basically they, uh, the thing in the, in the, in that sense that there was, uh, at the time of the, uh, at the time of the Tsar Simeon, the Bulgarian Tsar, there was only two significant, uh, countries in the East of Europe. One was, this was even before the rise of the Kievan Rus', uh, one was Bulgarian empire, the first Bulgarian empire, the other was Byzantium. And because he was, he studied in, uh, Constantinople, uh, supposedly he was excellent student in, uh, Magdaur, I don't know how to, how, what is the translation in English, but basically the school, philosophical school of Constantinople, he believed that, uh, to replace the, uh, uh, empire, this, uh, Rome, he must defeat Rome.

Uh, so this cause, uh, serious of war, wars between, uh, Bulgarian empire and the Byzantium empire, quite, quite, uh, how to say, quite, uh, uh, quite bloody wars with a lot of casualties. Uh, I mean, thankfully the Bulgarians kept, uh, the pagan spirit at that point, it was something like, uh, less than a half decade from the time of the, uh, Christianization. And I'm not even sure that the Bulgarians were Christianized even after that.

Uh, and we managed to defeat in serious of battle Byzantium, but the thing was that, uh, Bulgarian, Bulgarian empire, like a population was something like seven, eight times, uh, smaller than Byzantium. So they could renew their, their field armies. Right.

And that's what became Turkey today. And this cause, this, this cause after several, uh, after a few decades of war, even though Bulgaria was technically victorious, this cause a weakening of the, uh, of the, of the Bulgarian empire. Also, uh, Simeon, he chose not his, uh, pagan son, uh, for, uh, uh, heir to the throne.

He chose, uh, his, uh, very Christianized son, uh, Peter. So Simeon is one of the names of the 12 tribes of Israel, right? Mm. So that must be what it, you know, another sign of their adoption or their corruption.

Yeah. Yeah. And, uh, this is also known that, uh, during the Christianization, they, uh, enforcing the Christian as enforcing a typically Jewish names like Vinnie, I mean, for example, they called them Christian names, which are basically what became everybody's names, except in some cases where they've managed to preserve their culture to whatever extent.

So this is, uh, this is also a thing for people to consider. Um, also, also we must look at, we must look at, uh, things like, uh, the, these religious wars in Germany. Uh, the religious, the 30 years wars held, uh, a large percent of the German population was, uh, killed.

I think it was about 30% of them. Yes. Yes.

Uh, if you believe Uwe Topper, which I mentioned, uh, and some even wrote me something about Uwe Topper, that he agrees with, uh, with the descriptions, uh, in his books. Uh, if you believe Uwe Topper, there was actually, uh, this period, a lot of the people were actually pagan. So they were not Christianized at the time.

Right. So that's why they wanted to destroy them. Yes.

Yeah. Um, and I believe this was the situation even in Bulgaria, because we have a very pagan rituals that were described as late as 13th, 14th century. So supposedly 500 years after the Christianization.

And this explains why a lot of the Bulgarian rituals are actually pagan, almost without any, uh, Christianization, just because there was a very clear separation between the Orthodox church and the rituals of the people, contrary to the Catholicism, which, uh, masterfully managed to integrate the, uh, elements in the main religion. And that's why this, uh, this is, uh, the problem with, uh, and I know that you, you like Uwe and he has certain opinion about Catholicism, but... Well, he was against Catholicism. What? He was against Catholicism, but I think he said that, uh, because of the pagan elements in it, that that was the only way to unify Europe, but he never said that Catholicism itself was good though.

Yes, but I believe this is, uh, this is, uh, uh, also a problem because you create a Judaic religion that is acceptable for the people. Uh, meanwhile in the Orthodoxy, at least in the Bulgarian, uh, form, the Orthodoxy, uh, is parallel, uh, to the, to the pagan, uh, traditions. So basically a lot of people practicing the pagan rituals, uh, and the church, in many cases, they didn't have a choice except to, uh, uh, to, to accept the pagan rituals.

I think the joy of Satan is right when in his analysis of Catholicism that it was just used to try to basically de-spiritualize the area and then corrupt and pervert all their traditions. Yes, they, they had this, uh, this, uh, way and a lot of rich, uh, rituals so heavily infiltrated that you cannot recognize the, um, the Aryan, uh, background, so to say. Um, but that's why, that's why I believe that the Orthodoxy failed, but thankfully to the, to the, to the failure of the Orthodoxy, uh, you can recognize the pagan religion.

And it is very funny because to this day, the Orthodox, uh, rejecting most, mostly all traditions. Uh, they managed to Judaize, so to say, only one or two traditions that are connected with, uh, with, uh, Easter, most of the time with some, uh, celebrations of the saints, for example, St. George, quite popular saint in Bulgaria, but it is actually the celebration of the, uh, heroes. So basically the Thracian horsemen or the Scythian Iranian horsemen.

Right. Important figure. So they managed to Judaize to some extent this because most of the people, uh, connecting, uh, uh, St. George with, uh, the Christian saint, but in other cases, the rituals are obviously pagan and the church reject the rituals and they don't take part in the, in that, uh, rituals.

So you have these contradictions between the, uh, church and the, uh, rituals of the people, which is good, which is good. The only danger is that they're going to try to set up all the so-called pagans as a sacrifice and do away with them. Yes, but you must take in mind that by nature, well, I don't, uh, like the Orthodox, yes, you know, uh, but by nature, the Orthodox, because they're not Christian, they're not centralized.

The Patriarchs are basically individual, uh, priests that are subjugated to the Tsar or to the Emperor. So they're serving the state. Now in that, in our case, they're serving the communists.

If we, you can understand the, the idea, but on a traditional level, the Orthodox, they're not very pro-Jewish. Uh, they don't like the Jews. Well, that's good.

At least there's some, uh, you know, some powerful sources of pushback because the more schism there is and the more anti-Jewish, uh, you know, influence there is in, in anything in Christianity or whatever, then that's obviously to the good, whatever serves that agenda. It's good. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

And this is, this is, uh, the thing with Christianity, uh, with Orthodox Christianity, at least that one good thing that I could say, it is very justified and a lot of infiltration. They're trying to keep these, uh, traditions that are coming directly from the Jews, but on the other hand, they don't like Jews. Like there was, uh, even in the modern Orthodox Christianity, you can, you can feel some tendency.

And of course there are a lot of problems. They, as I said, they're heavily infiltrated by communist agents, the homosexuality in the different monastery race. They're very strong infiltration by, as I said, communist, but also I mustn't, uh, underline the Russians, uh, their retardation as a whole being Christianity.

It's not a spiritual, uh, religion at all, but there are a lot of people that are still traditionalist and being traditionalist, they, uh, they, uh, reject, uh, they reject, uh, Jews. But at the other hand, if the Jew accepts Christianity, Orthodox Christianity, of course, they, uh, they will recognize them like one of us, which is... Right. So if the Jews ever get pushed into a corner, then they can just play the role of the Christian to hide away from the problems they caused.

Yeah. Yeah. Yeah.

So they, they, they have this reserve backdoor, so to say. Yeah. Um, and, uh, yeah, this is, uh, this is the Orthodox Christianity.

That's why I found, uh, quite strange that in a lot of national circles, uh, Orthodox Christianity is like a very popular choice, which I found that this is one of the many, uh, one of the many, uh, ways the, uh, Russian propaganda is, uh, affecting the minds of the nationalists. Yeah. I've noticed that as soon as it came on the scene, I said to myself, why would anybody want to subscribe to, uh, that? It doesn't make any sense.

There's nothing really appealing about it. They, they're making this assumption that, uh, these Orthodox countries being on the east, they preserve their patriarchal, uh, their patriarchal spirit because of the Orthodox Christianity. Right.

So you're going to cling to it as a life preserver or something. Yeah. Yeah.

Yeah. Uh, so they don't make a deeper analysis of the, uh, of the east of Europe that, uh, the people, uh, for example, the Poles being Catholic, they're also kind of conservative, right? Uh, the, the connection here is on the basis of, of, uh, geographical location because being in the east, east of Europe and the southeast of Europe is open for, uh, foreign invasion. And this usually, uh, uh, makes a certain type of mentality.

So you're more, uh, closed, uh, to, to your, uh, only, uh, closed towards, uh, foreign invaders, foreign influence, including cultural influence. Right. You're more suspicious.

Uh, so this is, this, uh, and as I mentioned before, uh, this, uh, is close to the typical conservative types. That's, uh, that's why I mentioned that a lot of Bulgarians would vote for Trump if he, if he was a Bulgarian, uh, candidate for Bulgarian president. And also this is a very easy way to manipulate.

So the east is not this, uh, magical, uh, magical, uh, place that Rabi issue is ruling. And of course, uh, uh, of course this is, uh, uh, this is a thing to consider. So they basically just gravitate toward it for the most part as, you know, as a means of trying to preserve a tradition by believing in the false association between Christianity and tradition.

Yes. That's sort of the idea. And I think that's the case, obviously in America and places of that kind where they have the Protestant influence that people believe that that is a life preserver for them, or it's going to, you know, save them in some way.

But, uh, obviously it led to the problems that it led to so far. So the only way that that could ever potentially help you is if it's like a dual seed line, Christian identity type of thing for those who are already Christian. Yeah.

But even that thing, we, we already, uh, discussed that, uh, people that believe that have got chosen very often, uh, because they want to believe that they're, uh, something unique, this kind of mentality actually destroys them. Is that because they're just, uh, they have too fatalistic an understanding of things as Siegeman says? Yes, but also they're very prone to, uh, unite to, uh, help the Jews. So, right, I guess.

So except for dual seed line, Christian identity wouldn't be like that, but obviously most Christians aren't going to subscribe to that ever. We must discuss some other time, the dual seed line, uh, about the, you mean the Brotwein of Cain and the Brotwein? Yeah. Uh, we must discuss that.

Yeah. And it seems to have a sort of insidious way of working on people's consciousness, uh, Christianity as like a Psy-op. It's a Psy-op.

I believe you are giving your energy, your spiritual energy to this, uh, Semitic demon. And at the end he's bashing you because you, uh, giving his own power to, to, to Jehovah and his, uh, uh, minions. Yeah.

So maybe we must go to final words. Well, basically have a look at that book. Uh, maybe if you can attach it to the video, uh, it's got a lot of valuable information about the psycho-politics of Jews and what they do and how they do it.

And there really isn't too many other places like I've ever, I've ever seen any of that sort of information before. It's got a lot of minute discussion about, uh, all the particular Psy-ops that they run and so on. I will, uh, I will, uh, share a link for the book.

I will share a link for the book and maybe if someone is interested, I can, um, yes, basically I will share, uh, share a link. There's also another book in case people didn't, haven't encountered that on Jewish biology as well. Those two books, I think are pretty much good enough to really thoroughly understand the Jews at a basic level.

Obviously there's all sorts of other more esoteric dimensions that are far more, uh, even more deep, but you'd have to have quite a lot of understanding of the Kabbalah and so forth. I think in order to understand that more so than I would be able to, uh, put forth, but I don't, I'm not aware of any books that, uh, really go into the minutiae about that. Onlyjoyofsatan.com is the only, uh, site that really goes into the minute details, but I'm not entirely sure I can trust everything that they say.

It doesn't really seem entirely correct in many cases. It's, uh, good. I will try to attach it or to at least to, to put a link in the description and in the comments, maybe the comments is better because description is full of different other links.

So, uh, I believe we were quite, uh, we, we described many of the, uh, aspects of the Jewish psychology, not all, not all. Yeah. They, they had quite a lot of faces, quite a lot of faces there.

The, the Jews are playing, uh, many sides and I believe the, uh, the, the thing that the Jews, uh, uh, is afraid is a racial and a psychological, spiritual rejection of the Jew. So basically to put them in white, uh, to, uh, reject the Jews, and to separate them from the rest of the society, uh, this destroys the connections of the Jews, including the financial connections in many cases, and makes them very open for attacks. So, you know, they want to destroy the blood memory of the white race, basically.

Yes. Yes. That's why they, it's a very good, uh, I'll say environment for them if they live in multicultural, multiracial empires.

Um, so with that being said, I think that we can, uh, end the conversation. Uh, thank you. Thanks for having me on.

Um, and, uh, I'll try to make the series with you about other topics. Actually, we will discuss what, what other topics we can, uh, we can make in the nearest future. So, uh, hail victory.

Hail victory.
