Nordlux: The Aryan Imperative

Yeah, yeah. It says it's recording now. Yeah, I just prefer to have a backup just in case something might happen, you know.

Yeah, I just think that you can tell a lot about someone's authenticity by what they promote and that sort of thing. Yeah. And unfortunately, a lot of people get heated whenever anyone questions their own worldview.

Yeah. Like I was talking today to a couple, I'm in this Telegram chat. I might just ditch Telegram entirely because I'm not sure if I really trust anybody now.

But like, I linked this article that I think it was Kyle Hunt did today on Varg saying that he's shilling for, you know, the muzzles, the masks, Varg Vikernes. Oh, Varg Vikernes. Yeah.

Yeah. And Kyle Hunt did a video, not a video of an article on it. And and he was like, oh, I could read the I could actually read it.

Where is it? You said you said you suspected this guy was an operative before, but he said Varg Vikernes. No, the this green dragon guy. I don't know if you remember him, but you're in this group chat with us.

OK. And you get some I remember you said you thought he was an agent. And his response was like more kike media.

Nothing Varg has said in any of these linked tweets is factually incorrect. The only questionable bit is that he says that the second and third wave are going to be more deadly, which is pure speculation. I don't think that will be the case unless governments find another way to inflate numbers.

These guys are just shitting on Borg because he leads people toward truth. And guys still want that. Right.

Obviously, Varg Vikernes is just some type of operative because his whole agenda throughout is pushing this sort of fear porn, you know, this naturalistic paganism. We're just going to hide in the woods and be this, you know, bearskin wearing pagan, you know, just sort of like what Varg pushes is similar to like the whole siege types or it's just, you know, you know, gloom and doom. The system's going to collapse and, you know, go and live in the woods.

And, you know, obviously that's the worst strategy you could possibly adopt because then you could be a target for drone strikes or something like that once they start, you know, characterizing white nationalists, which they've more or less already done as terrorists. Then they can just bring out all the weapons they did like that podcast with what's his name there, Augusto Invictus. Oh, yeah, I pointed out that he was a shill.

This was about I think this is about a year ago. I said that to David Duke on Twitter and he blocked me instantly. I pointed out that he committed, you know, he has like mestizo children and he also appears to be a Freemason because he did the pose where.

Well, I'm familiar with all of those facts. I think that was covered fairly well by Sinead on Renegade Broadcasting about him, you know, pointing out all those obvious all obvious aspects of his his, you know, affiliation to the cabal. Yeah, I originally didn't like I originally just thought she was somebody looking to start drama with people.

But she's really the only person that's talked about Stephen Flowers and Michael Aquino. And, you know, I don't see anybody else talking about these people. And even though they push a sort of vegan, primitivist sort of agenda, it's a little destructive.

Pushing the sort of doom and gloom paganism is what I call it. Yeah. And that's sort of what even Arctos is pushing that, you know, with Penti Linkola and even publishing, I think they might publish Kaczynski's books, who is obviously an Ashkenazi Jew who, you know, was put in that role to play the role of the domestic terrorist right around the time of McVeigh when they were trying to really ramp up the psyop of white terror, Jewish psyop type thing.

I keep trying to throw that at Renegade to get them to put up that article, but they never do because. Yeah, what's weird is I approved your comment, you know, to link it and they removed it again. So I don't know, maybe they think you're fed.

Well, if that were true, what am I saying? That's undesirable. The only reason is that I remember, I remember Sinead making a comment saying like people who have all caps on everything, she thinks are feds. It's it's kind of silly, but.

Pretty much. I don't know. That's some sort of alleged signal or something like that, that she is trying to claim that the operatives are making or something like that.

Yeah, I wouldn't want to get too close to them because I feel like that they would probably because you notice how many contributors have left that site. Yeah, it probably shows you that maybe they aren't very trustworthy. But my speculation about Renegade is that they are pretty much an operative themselves, potentially, because Kyle Hunt, you know, if you look at his face, he looks pretty Jewish.

He's got a sort of the wiener face and the pasty skin and, you know, sort of weird looking colored blonde hair. It's not really Aryan or, you know, stereotypically white or Germanic. It's more just like a sort of faded look, like a faded color of blonde.

And that's often what Jews have, those who are blonde Jews. And of course, he claimed that he worked for Google and stuff like that, too. So, you know, that obviously shows a connection with the, you know, the complex or the cabal at a high level, probably.

So I wouldn't trust them, but I still derive some benefit from their shows, just like I derive benefit from anybody who's got at least something to offer. But yeah, I will credit them one thing. They are probably some of the only people that actually go out of their way to name shills.

But the only thing about that is that they personally have some flaws themselves. Yeah, they're picking out the motes in the eyes of others when they've got beans jutting from their own eyes, pretty much. Yeah, pretty clear, because, you know, their whole agenda is pushing veganism.

Anybody pushing veganism has got to be affiliated with the cabal because that diet does not work. And anybody who claims it does work for them is a liar because it simply doesn't work over long term. I tried that for three years myself, doing everything that was recommended by the mainstream, you know, alleged vegan gurus like Dr. Gregor the Jew or Dr. John McDougal, the alleged Christian probable Freemason who's always affiliated with Jews.

And I actually went on the most famous anti-vegan radio show on YouTube. I did an interview with a guy named Sveria from Germany and discussing my personal experiences about that. And he, you know, it's quite clear that the longer you're on that diet, the more your body physically degenerates because you don't have the essential amino acids to maintain the body's tissues.

And over time, you're just falling apart. So anybody pushing that agenda is got to be an operative, especially if they've done it. They claim to have done it long term because that's counterfactual.

You can't do it long term. It just doesn't work. So it doesn't really matter.

Do you suspect that Ben Klassen might have been an operative? Yeah. If you listen to the interview that I just did or the I don't know if you want to call the podcast or a discussion, just a couple of days stalking with the with the guy. Oh, Rare Audiobooks.

Rare Audiobooks. We discussed that quite a lot because I speculated I had done research into Klassen trying to find out to ascertain whether that was true or not, partly based upon the fact that he he pushed a vegan diet, you know. And so what did I gather? I basically gathered that anybody who has led out of the Ukraine from one source I heard at the time that his parents and him emigrated to the to Canada from the Ukraine, they were Jews.

The only people allowed out of there were Jews, because that's what they were doing to allow the Jews to escape before they killed all the people in the Bolshevik revolutions. And so that would imply that Klassen was a Jew, if that fact is factual, you know, because

I know my and I spoke of this myself to actually gang stalking. I think it I think it was actually him just yesterday, because my father's parent, father's father's parents, my great grandparents on my father's side, also emigrated to Canada to the same region, you know, just like a few hours away in another province in Manitoba, as opposed to Saskatchewan.

And that was at the same time. And the way my father, so-called father, behaves is like a psychopath, basically. Basically, he behaves exactly like a Jew does, sort of a manipulative, false, hypocritical, lying, sneak, backstabber, race traitor, basically a communist.

So, yeah, you know, I speculated that he his father could have been a Jew, although the pictures of his father don't really look like it. He looks like sort of a potato nose slab. But, you know, there's there might be possible admixture there at that point.

So that would guess that you're from looking at you, I would guess that you're probably Nordic. Yeah, my mother was born in Denmark and came here in 1967, because their family couldn't have any work after the Jews created the Second World War. There's massive unemployment and stuff.

And then on my father's side, his mother was of Icelandic clergy. Her parents came from Iceland and around the same time that his father's father, his parents came from Ukraine, and they both settled in around the same region. So, you know, it's questionable if there's some type of admixture there in the background.

But I can definitely say through my personal experience, unfortunately, in recent years with my psychopathic father, I could go into like hour long discourses about what he's done to me, to my brother and my mother, you know, squandering his parents inheritance, keeping his own biological offspring in absolute poverty from birth and, you know, just manipulating them through circumstances, manipulating them with money that he got from his parents and stuff. You know, just a lot of really sinister, underhanded little games. So all that suggests to me, which I spoke of yesterday with that gang stalking guy, you know, that that's Jewish behavior in a nutshell, the sort of narcissistic, he calls it malignant narcissism.

And that's basically what I would, I would absolutely agree with that description of myself. Well, that could also be attained through generations of brainwashing. You know, like my father is sort of, you know, passive aggressive at times.

And, you know, it's really, I would say that probably post maybe the, probably if they're born like after the 1910s, they're probably, they probably got some brainwashing for sure, in some form or another. Well, yeah, they received brainwashing ever since the Jews created Christianity to mind control people. But especially during the baby boomer generation, that was really, you know, childish, degenerate generation of pure selfishness, basically.

I would say my generation is probably, you know, they act like, oh, it's the most, you know, quote unquote, conservative generation since World War II. I disagree. I think it's probably the most like, full blown cultural Marxist, maybe the most radical, because there are also some who are, you know, aligned with, you know, our side of things, but it's obviously a small number of them compared to.

Yeah. But again, they want to act like everything's fine when, I don't know, go on. I was just going to say, whoever's saying that, usually it's like Catholics and stuff.

They're probably just saying that to get people into that movement. Yeah, like you see that with like Vince James and, you know, the whole America First crowd, you know, that whole glow, they kind of glow a bit. They seem like they're another alt-right sort of movement where it's just kind of pushed to lead people back into basically resurrect Christianity.

And because it is sort of a, it has sort of been dying for the last couple of decades, but it seems like an attempt to, yeah, sort of, it's sort of like a corpse, but they're trying to still, what do you call those machines where they press? Yeah, it's like resuscitating a corpse. External defibrillator machine that kind of shock people. Yeah, that's basically what it is.

That'd be a good meme, actually, if you had one of those shock machines and then you showed like a face of a Jew or a priest on one side and, you know, Christianity. Christianity as the body. Yeah, pretty much.

That's like a David Dees type meme or something like that. What's your opinion of, do you think that Michael Aquino is actually dead? Yeah, I'm not too sure you can ever really tell with those people because they've always got. It's weird that his own Wikipedia page doesn't say so, but their site says that he did die, but I don't know.

It's odd to me. Right. Well, who can tell what sort of little game they're playing? They're always, they've always got some sort of thing to amuse themselves at the expense of others by.

That's usually the way they get off on, you know, get off on manipulating other people for the most part. Through, you know, they know certain things and other people don't. Therefore, they're better because they have to know certain particular facts, just like a lot of the spoiled class, these liberal types and even Christians, too.

They think that they're better people just because they have things that other people don't because they're born into certain conditions. So that makes them superior in their mind. So obviously, that's the sort of arrogance that a lot of people or most people perhaps accrue or have when they are just sort of like gifted with that, you know, like, especially, you know, the snob appeal of that of classes and in a demonic sense of the so-called spirituality of Freemasonry and so forth.

Basically, these people get off on lording it over others, having a higher degree than other people and so forth. That's their, you know, their, the big draw is to be an elitist, to be a psychopath that's beyond good and evil. But in reality, you know, they're just deliberately practicing things that are obviously conventionally looked upon as evil.

So does that make you beyond good and evil or does that just make you evil, right? Or, you know, have a negative, hostile intent towards others. Do you consider yourself a moral relativist at all? I would say morality is basically, like I spoke of in that discussion with that raw guy on Aryan practical idealism, this show, we can call it that, that basically survival is the only morality for individuals and groups and you can't survive by yourself. And as an individual, you know, you survive as a group, as a collective, because you're a part of it, part of a collective consciousness.

So, you know, the 23 words of the creativity movement apply. What is good for the white race is of the highest virtue. What is bad for the white race is the ultimate sin for a white person.

And for other people, whatever, you know, whatever floats their boat, that's their issue. But if it stands in the way of the 23 words, then that's obviously a problem. So just a question of whatever suits your purposes, basically.

You would say that probably most of what Classen would write about was correct, just minus the naturalistic elements of it. Yeah. Even though I had suspected, because he's pushing naturalism in that sense and sort of denying any sort of higher spiritual reality, that looks like we got a, I'll just finish my point and then you guys can talk.

It looks like Gosling showed up there. Okay. It's sort of like Revelo P. Oliver, you know, Revelo P. Oliver wrote Origins Christianity, but I believe he was an atheist.

Yeah, apparently that's what he claims. Anyway, of course, on that website, you referred me to that blog or WordPress site exposing, I forget what it was called. Do you remember the name of that? It was called Contra Jewish Correspondent.blogspot.com or something.

Yeah. And it claims that Revelo P. Oliver was a shill. That claimed that just about everybody you could possibly think of was a shill.

He doesn't look Jewish though. If you look at his face, he's got slanty eyes, lip lips, straight black hair, which is an Oriental trait. He's got somewhat pasty face.

You know, he's got a lengthy body. He's been photographed with Jews at high levels. He was, you know, at a major university right outside of Chicago, which is like the Chicagoland, the hotbed of Jewish crime with Al Capone and Meyer Olansky and whatever others were situated there.

So, you know, obviously with this, most of these people, they probably were Jews or are Jews. So it begs the question as to whether, you know, this naturalism is what they're pushing as the means of dragging down the white man's consciousness, you know, into this Donic Tellurian, purely materialistic worldview to try to lower the consciousness of whites from a more spiritual state of being toward a more earthly mundane thing. And then Renegade Broadcasting are doing that too, and Varg Vikernes is doing that too.

So, you know, it always, it suggests that that may very well be their agenda. And I've speculated that way many times before as well, that they're doing that as a sort of dialectic, like on the one hand you have naturalism, on the other hand, and then they destroy any sort of authentic spirituality of the whites based on their authentic traditions, like ancient Rome or ancient Greece or ancient Egypt. That's inappropriate.

Since we are talking about spirituality, I was just listening to your, well, at least some of it, your last talk with Gosling here. And in the beginning, you were talking about the legitimacy of the joy of Satan. Yeah, it's questionable.

I've thought both ways back and forth quite a lot. I've heard some refer to them as having some Kabbalistic, you know, elements to it. Like, how do you really know who, who are these high priest, you know? I think it's just basically hermetic alchemy and there's nothing wrong with that.

But nevertheless, you know, it might be, they're just trying to import the faith, they're trying to shift people away from the authentic tradition of whites, but it's confusing. So it's not really clear how exactly. We're just sort of wondering who the high priests really are because their screen names.

Yeah. According to that raw guy in that discussion I had with him, he says that he knew, knew a lot about that. Later in the discussion, I think it's like around the fourth hour or so he discusses that we discussed the joy of Satan.

And he was saying that there are fags and so forth, that most of them were faggots. And so I heard that they promote or at least support like homosexuality and stuff like that. Well, they basically try to remain, the whole site tries to remain neutral about those things because it's mainly focused on just using spiritual practices to empower the self and then to strike against Jews and magic.

But yeah, I don't personally care for that myself. But you know, if all the faggots in the world could employ black magic against Jews, and that's still better than, you know, than nothing, right? So if they want. A bunch of Greg Johnson's practicing joy of Satan.

Well, they can do that's still beneficial to white people, though. Anything that's against the Jews is on the side. I guess according to the 23 words.

Yeah. Yeah. See, so whatever they want to do, they can do.

I'm not I'm not too interested in policing other people's behavior, because if there's a white society, like Alex Linder said once, you know, all that stuff doesn't really matter because it can be straightened out later. You know, you don't waste your time focusing on systemic issues that exist in terms of the Christian morals of this system, this current system, because, you know, we just want this system to fall and to survive it and then, you know, rebuild or, you know, do what we can in the meantime to ensure our own survival. That's basically my take.

Yeah, I was speaking to Gosling here a couple of days ago, and we were talking about how, you know, Linder does a lot of broadcasts with Jan Lamprecht. Look, have you seen a picture of Jan Lamprecht? He looks pretty Jewish. Yeah, definitely.

That's how I first saw him, because I googled him up on Google Images because I like to, you know, use that sort of visual test to see if people have Jewish features. And, you know, when I saw his 50 Years of Race, War and South Africa presentation, he also looked a little bit Jewish. Then he had another presentation on YouTube, I think it was, about Hollow Planets, and he looked a little bit Jewish there, too.

But, yeah. I thought the same thing about Linder. Yeah.

How about you guys go and talk? Because I'm going to go take a little bit of a break going somewhere for like five minutes. Sure, sure. Yeah, you really ruined Lamprecht for me there, didn't you? You never saw, yeah, a lot of these people you listen to, and I did the same thing.

Linder, people were saying they didn't know what he really looked like, but when I showed them what he looked like, they were like, oh, man. Yeah, yeah, no, Linder's Jewish. He's got to be.

I write him off. Yesterday I was Googling, imaging people, everybody like, you know, like William Pierce and stuff, and having a look at people. Do you think Pierce was, you think so? He easily could be.

I don't know. I mean, I have a mix. No white person's going to stand up for their own race, so the Jew's got to have to do it, you know? I think that he was very influential, but like the terror stuff and also Cosmotheism, how it kind of would universalize stuff.

Yeah, I don't know. I mean, I don't know. I think Rockwell was legit, but.

Yeah, definitely. Are you familiar with Francis Parker Yawkey? No, no. Oh, well, he wrote the book Imperium.

He was killed too. Oh, is that is that a long time ago? Yeah, he wrote this book in 1948.

Oh, OK.

Yeah, I noticed you're talking about Revelo P. Oliver before. Yeah, what's your name? The name. It is a weird name.

It's weird. Yeah. Like, did he make that name up for himself or? Apparently, it was a family name that was passed down for generations or something.

See, that's weird. Oh, well, I don't know. Very odd name.

Yeah, a reversal of his last name. Yeah. Yeah, pretty, pretty weird.

So familiar with Ben Clarson? Not really. I know who he is. Yeah, yeah.

I also googled him as well. Yeah. As even the younger ones, he could definitely be a Jew because like you were saying yesterday, that his his father or I think his father came from Ukraine at a time when only Jews were being allowed to leave the country.

What's your opinion of Tom Metzger? I think like he's going on in his appearance, I would probably say he's a Jew because he really does look, you know, he's got that Germany sort of last name. But, you know, he doesn't really look like, you know, Germanic. He looks more Italian or something, you know.

He could be. I don't know. I mean, I interviewed him.

I don't know. I mean, I don't really know what to say. But considering his past with the Klan, he might be a Freemason.

I don't know. I know that he was friends with Pastor Butler and I know that he was a Freemason. So I don't know.

I don't know. Well, I've heard that said before about him, too, so. Who, Tom Metzger or Butler? Yeah, about Tom Metzger being a Mason.

Yeah, he could be a Mason. That's why I didn't ask him about it in the interview, because I didn't want, you know, you know, like, you know, you're on to me or whatever. I didn't want to make him uncomfortable by asking him if he was a Mason or not.

Yeah. Yeah. No.

Well, yeah. Well, it wouldn't be bad to to ask him if you have another chance. Well, I sent him an email asking him about like, what do you think of people who think World War Two was staged? And he didn't respond to that one.

Oh, OK. What do you mean by staged? Like people who think it's a psyop, that it was controlled, that like they were all actors and that it was just a big PR stunt. God, wouldn't that be good? That means no one would have died.

No, I mean, like as if like as if like a Third Reich and all that were controlled just so that they could get the state of Israel and that sort of thing. Some people actually think that. Yeah.

Well, I'd have to look. Firstly, I'd have to look more into it. I'm not trying to, you know, for those listening out there, I'm not trying to be subversive.

I'm just I'm just considering opinions, you know, my position. And if there are any counterpoints to it. Well, nothing would surprise me, you know, with the whole thing.

So because I have always been suspicious of people who act like, you know, he's the worst man that ever lived or, you know, that sort of thing. Yeah. Yeah.

You know, like I just look at it these days and I just think, you know, nothing would surprise me. Nothing really surprises me anymore. I agree.

You look at like so Hitler's he's obviously got built up the arms of the country to, you know, as like, you know, so as a measure, because he knew that people were going to want to attack him for not going along with, you know, everybody else and just looking after Germany for a change. And so he's building up the arms of the country for that, you know, as a defense, you know, to stop people from doing anything. But, you know, but then on the other hand, like, was he actually expecting war and all that? I don't know.

Yeah. What's your opinion of what do you call it? Who do you think is the most enigmatic, mysterious figure? Like, can you think of anybody that's comparable to Epstein that nobody talks about? No, Epstein. I would say that Michael Aquino guy is pretty suspicious, but supposedly just died recently.

But I don't know. Michael Aquino. Are you familiar with him? No, I don't know him.

You know, that Stephen Flowers guy. Do you? Yeah. Well, Stephen Flowers.

No, I was actually gossiping if he knew who Stephen Flowers was. No, I don't know the name. Continue your point then.

Basically, that's the real name allegedly of the Edward, what is his name? Edward Thorson, the guy who writes a lot of pseudo-Nordicist literature, you know, trying to tie it in with the left-hand path. He wrote the book Lords of the Left-Hand Path, and he's trying to associate Wotanism with Satanism, basically, in the Jewish sense. Anyway, this guy, I tried to get him to translate Georg Lambs von Leibenfeld's Theo's, his Oстера.

And he was, he was mocking that and saying that it's all ignorance and so forth. And then he wanted like $250,000 to delegate it, the task to his translators. Like he's got personal translators to translate from that Fraktur script, that old Germanic script.

Did you ask him if he was a pedophile? Yeah, I didn't know that at the time, but that was a pretty convincing presentation by Sinead McCarthy. I think it was on True Truth Tube or True TV or whatever it was, on Bitchute. Truth Gone Viral, I think is the channel.

Yeah, that's the first one. Do you think that Nicholas Schreck and Zena Schreck, do you think that they were possible pedos? Yeah, they're almost certainly that. Anybody have seen them? They were in the Temple of Set at one point.

Yeah, that's Michael Aquino's organization that he created. Oh, that's like in Carden. Michael Aquino, I think, is probably as mysterious as Epstein in terms of just being this enigmatic figure that has so many connections that no one really talks about the guy.

I saw nobody reporting his supposed death recently, for the most part. Yeah, you can never really tell if these people, they're always manipulating and playing their little games, because that's what happens when you have a monopoly on knowledge. You can just tell people whatever you want, and people will just be forced to believe whatever you tell them, because they don't have critical distance or the facts, because you conceal it from them, so they can't possibly know.

We don't know anything, really, do we? Most in general, I think, don't know how to critically think. Yeah, that's why I think I had said to, I don't know if it was on that discussion with Ra or somebody, I think it might have been with him, everybody out there should equate themselves with basic argumentation theory, basic logical fallacies, and try to train themselves to think more rationally, in terms of basic sound logical reasoning, because if you don't have that basic grasp, you're just putty in the hands of these people, because you don't know what follows from what in terms of sound reasoning, and they can just use their semantical manipulation and their emotional manipulation to basically get you to believe whatever, and they can just basically lead you astray. That's pretty much liberals, as well, are basically experts at employing sort of logical fallacies to try to muddy the waters and shift your attention away from things.

So do you think that the expose on the pro-white pervert, do you think that he saw it, or is it kind of unknown, no real way to know? Talking about that Mufashi bookshelf guy? Yeah, yeah. I'm not too sure, you can check his channel if you want, maybe he'll say something on his channel about it. Yeah, I don't know.

Supposedly he hasn't done a video in a month or so. They're obsessed with that guy. Yeah, because he's harassed so many people, it was, I don't know, it's just, I'm glad that that's out there though.

Yeah, but even the name and the whole concept of the bookshelf thing, he's making fun of people who have a bookshelf behind them, like how Ramsey Paul used to have the bookshelf behind him. Ramsey Paul, I've heard stuff about him being a fed, because he was walking through a federal building. And he also did a video with Harold Covington, I don't know if you ever saw that one.

No, I didn't. But yeah, Ramsey Paul was walking around with Richard Spencer in a federal building one time, so that's pretty weird. I don't know, I would have liked to see the one with him speaking to Harold Covington.

It's on my channel, actually. Oh, okay. Remember when he first came, he seemed pretty anxious, like when he first started.

Ramsey Paul. Yeah, and he would be drunk every time he did, he kind of seemed to be wiping himself out every Friday night. He completely cucked later on.

Now he's like, he's now just like a boring kind of conservative type that doesn't really say anything that's too controversial. I think now he does videos with Sticks and Hammer. They're probably trying to lead things to that point where they just pretended that it was edgy at first with Donald Trump, and now they're mocking people who got sucked into that Trump train track, and that Trump train is just being let off a cliff at this point in time.

You see people like Sticks and Hammer that still act like it's legit, or Vince James, or Fuentes, any of these people, they still act like he's legit when anyone who really pays attention knows that none of these people are legit. Yeah, it's just basically theater. That's all it is.

All these people are just paid operatives. I don't think there really is a single person out there who can actually, you can only just get some people and try to add your own inferences and conclusions on top of that, based on that you know, internet data, because you can't deal with them in real life in most cases. So you're only just looking through a glass darkly and trying to draw conclusions.

Have you seen a scanner, that movie, A Scanner Darkly? I've heard of it, though. Is that by that Philip K. Dick guy? Yeah, yeah. They made it into a movie, and Alex Jones actually has a cameo in the movie where he's he has a megaphone on the street, and then this van drives by with like federal agents, and they knock him out, and they drag him into the van and drive away.

Right. So that's sort of predictive programming, saying this is what we're doing to you, or what we're going to do to you. Pretty much.

Have you been reading the synthesis of the doctrine of race at all? I just got about an hour in today. That's just when I began it. It's pretty good, actually, in terms of its critique of just similar to the myth of the blood.

Yeah, they actually wrote that, I think, in the introduction, that it was basically following the myth of the blood. Yeah, this is his positivism, basically. It's like a positivist version of the myth of the blood.

In other words, what he poses as his particular worldview, his doctrine of race. So it's not purely critical. It's, you know, affirmative.

It affirms whatever particular propositions related to race in a spiritual sense. So they're the tripartite conception of race, spirit, soul, body. I wonder if Arctos will ever publish this one.

What one? Oh, you mean the synthesis of the doctors. Yeah, I don't think they can. They'd have to have it translated by somebody else because it would be copyrighted.

Obviously, as you might have seen with the copyright, the Professor Carey guy puts like a skull and crossbone on it. So anybody trying to, you know, copy it and sell it or something or distribute it around, uploading it on the net, they'll potentially get people to come after you or something. It's probably just a way to scare people.

I'm sure there's no real way for them to know. Well, I wouldn't personally chance it myself. But I wouldn't do it.

Yeah, the sad thing is, you know, I was the one, or at least I believe I may have been, probably was the one who initiated the translation of that right around the fall of last year. And then I go on the forum asking various questions about things. And then they just kicked me off like three times.

I used three different IPs, three different emails, three different accounts. And, you know, they're just booting me right off. Maybe he's sort of like a SROM, you know, trying to withhold this information from people.

I imagine if it somehow goes out of print on Lulu, like gets taken off or something, and then it becomes a really scarce work. And then he still goes after people trying to distribute an out of print work or something. I know he got pretty angered on his EbolaAsHels.WordPress.com forum.

Last I got access to it because after that I was just said you were banned. But last I checked, he basically was very pissed off with people from years ago, publishing or taking and publishing the heathen imperialism. Oh, Jason Tompkins, he was pissed at him? Some other guy, some guy in Bulgaria or something like that.

He said, and he showed his name and everything else. So, yeah, I told, I said on there that I had got a copy of heathen imperialism just as a sort of tongue in cheek joke. Like I got it off the net for free.

And then he he got like an extremely angered response and so forth. One of the people on there. So but they're they're pretty hostile people, those ones.

Yeah, I wonder why a lot of people. I mean, Joe Severson was sort of hostile towards you as well. Yeah, I don't know why.

The thing is, you ask them questions and they don't like to answer unless it leads to their getting some money out of it eventually. Although not necessarily because he did give me for free his Vinlanders book in PDF. Oh, PDF.

OK. So that was nice enough. But, you know, you can be a testy fellow.

Most of these people are, you know, they're pretty snobbish. So it's pretty hard to actually deal with them because, you know, you have to be at their level, I guess, or affiliated with them in their organizations or they'll look upon you as beneath them. So, yeah, but you don't get much play with these people because I've been trying to deal with people like this, trying to throw my hat in the ring for like the entire time I've been active, involved in this activism type of thing, at least since maybe 2016, 17.

And with respect to these types of people, you know, you don't really get much out of them. Sometimes you get some things, but it's usually only if they think that there's going to be money involved potentially or some sort of, you know, connection where they can publicize themselves. So it becomes egotism in large part, not entirely, but in large part.

I think it's disappointing that he couldn't create a better cover for the book because it just looks sort of like a, it just sort of looks like a textbook or something. It's just very dull and bland cover. Yeah, that's, and I had proposed, you know, I'll volunteer to do covers and you can approve of them if you want.

But then they said, oh, it's already been done. We'd have to redo it all over again. But, you know, that could easily be done if they wanted.

All you have to do is just upload another book on Lulu. It takes maybe half an hour, not even. Well, what I would recommend that they do is first I recommended that they make a book of all of Ebola's Dada paintings, you know, like glossy coffee table book.

That would be a pretty good seller. I think those were sort of a sort of a modernist style to them. Yeah, but at the same time, it'd be interesting to gain insight into his, you know, his form of art.

Sinead keeps saying that, like, Ebola is a degenerate and like, you know, calling his art degenerate art and that sort of thing. Right. I mean, you can argue for that.

But once again, it's an interesting perspective. Because not everything is just sort of classical art, you know, like pictures of coliseums and so forth or the Parthenon. But yeah, for for Ebola's work, I think that it would be good to have it done in with a better title page and a rear cover page with with his Dada art, because that way it sort of, you know, attracts more people.

If you just look at it on there, it looks sort of bland and boring. So yeah, that would be weird if sometime in the future he became more known as an artist than as a philosopher, I guess you want to call him that. Yeah, I doubt it.

I would say he's pretty much the most significant in terms of esotericism and philosophy as a, you know, a source of authentic traditions and his critique and sort of encyclopedic presentation of authentic traditions, although he errors in some points in some cases. But overall, I would say it's quite well done. And there really is no one source beyond that that could be as trustworthy as that.

Right. People like Serrano, you know, they speak a lot about the particulars of of history and so forth, especially in recent years and the Hyperborean tradition. But it's written in sort of a nebulous green language, and it doesn't really go into over much detail about what to do and how to do it.

So it becomes sort of, you know, more like reading poetry than it does anything else. Yeah, reading fiction. Yeah, sci-fi.

Yeah, I mean, the whole, you know, speaking of that fiction and Serrano, uh, I just got a hold of the Kindle version of Carl Jung's Ghostland book, which for some reason he didn't want to distribute to us. Yeah. And then I. Oh, go ahead.

What was that? I was just gonna say, I'll let you go first and I'll just jump in after. Oh, and then I, was the scan I sent you readable at all, or? I actually checked it and I actually forgot about that, too. Oh, OK, because it was copyright.

It seemed to be copyright locked. So I just screenshot the pages and turn them into a PDF and send it to you. If you use ilovepdf.com, I think you can convert PDFs into images or into Word documents.

And then you can just convert those Word documents back into PDF and that might release the lock on it. Yeah, that's what I did is I went in and I made it full screen each page and I just screenshot each page and took each image and took all the images and made them into a PDF as it was. I think it might be easier if you use that ilovepdf.com. I tried and it didn't seem to work.

It seemed to have some sort of cap on it, but I don't know. I used some other site to do it, but hopefully it's somewhat readable. Yeah, I'm not too sure.

But yeah, when he, I spoke to him trying to get an interview with him because I, you know, I'm curious to find out his claims that World War II was just a myth and that it never actually happened. And so, you know, I had a brief exchange with him and he said he wanted to do it. And then all of a sudden he says he doesn't want to do it after that.

And, you know, from there he says, oh, that's just sort of like the end of the conversation. He, yeah, I don't even remember what he said from that point. He said something along the lines to me like, oh, it doesn't need to be explained.

It's not a relevant issue. Yeah, just a lot of nebulous babble. I've actually had quite a few exchanges with him over the last couple of years, ever since I first ordered from that Hermitage Helm press in like 2017.

And basically it's the same sort of bullshit. Same with Tompkins. They always speak in this sort of ridiculous, you know, elusive language where they're always trying to, you know, talk around things in this as if it's a joke or something like they're mocking you, you know? So maybe that's in their mind, that's their sort of elitistic way of thumbing their nose at you or something like that.

I don't really know, but, you know, to try to imply that you're merely a profane person and they're elite and beyond you. And that may be true to whatever extent, but yeah, obviously it doesn't answer the question. And just like Serrano's works, it never really answers the questions at all about how do you do all these particular rituals and or things, you know, just talks about in a very indirect, abstract way in most cases that you can easily get from joyofsatan.com more or less immediately.

And Evola's works also, more or less, you can get all that through more explicit instructions. So that's why I don't really think, you know, Serrano's good as a sort of general discourse about what's going on, but it doesn't really speak to it. Yeah.

This joyofsatan, do they actually say that they're against Jews on that? Yeah. And they're talking about using their type of magic against Jews? Yeah, basically. All right.

Okay. If you go on their website, I think it's joyofsatan.com, basically that will, you know, it'll probably convince you that they're at least, you know, it's pretty likely that they're, at least they believe that they are, you know, doing what they can against Jews. Maybe so.

So, and when you were doing those reversal kind of spells, you're saying that the Jews were scowling at you, you don't think they got very down in the mouth because of that? Yeah. After I began doing the reverse Torah ritual, I would just be around town or something. And then the Jews looked at me, some of them with fear or with this sort of hostility.

Wow. Interesting. Well, they've always given sort of a piercing glare to anyone that seems to be suspicious of them.

Like there was this time in high school. I don't know if I, I don't know if I mentioned this on a call with both of you or not, but there was this. What was that? It might've been the eight hour one we had.

Oh, well, there was this guy where I went to high school with, and it wasn't the Mel Gibson. I think I've mentioned that a few times, but there was this guy where, you know, he's an Israeli dude or whatever. And I asked him, this was back in, you know, a couple of years ago in high school where, you know, is it true that Israel is, you know, what they would call and, you know, an ethno state or some sort of ethnically based, you know, immigration there.

And then, and then I asked him another question that was like, you know, are you an Ashkenazi or Sephardic or whatever? And then he was sort of thinking, like, I could tell he looked, kind of looked back at me, like, how does he know this stuff? You know? And then whenever I would see him, whenever I would pass by him, he would just give me this kind of like stare that like, yeah, Goyim no, or whatever. Like, just, just that kind of look that like, yeah, you know, it's like, you know, that movie fight club where it's like, they would give each other these looks that they would, it's like they know something that everybody else doesn't. Ever watched the movie? Oh, it's kind of an overrated movie, but it's that similar kind of thing where it's like, you know, first rule fight club is don't talk about fight club.

It's, it's like a secret. Right. Society sort of thing where only they really seem to know about it, them and their critics at least.

Yeah, the same thing happened to me when I was in high school. Sorry, go on. I'll just quickly say that when I was in high school in the last year, I went to this private school that was affiliated with the university and the motto of the university was, what was it? Lux Veritas Florian.

So in other words, the eternal, no, the flowering of the true light, which is like Lucifer. So when I was there, there's a lot of Jews there and a lot of Jewish teachers. And then I said to one Jew, because I didn't know anything really about Jews, whose name was like Starlater, Sean Starlater.

And I asked him, I said to him, sure are a lot of Jews here. And then he gets like all uncomfortable and stuff like that. You know, and then, you know, you get that sort of look like you were speaking of Travis just before about, you know, they look at you like, you know, you're potentially an enemy.

And how can I deal with this goy? How can I, you know, relate to them to the advantage of Jews to, you know, so that they don't know about me or so that they don't, you know, threaten us or whatever, whatever their paranoid projection may be. And then the last call I had with Gosling here, I mentioned another case where it was in, I was on this camping trip in the fourth grade. And over the course of time, there would be this angry blonde Jewish kid named his name was Eli Jarvis.

And basically he would I still remember his name even now. And there was this German kid where he would always get mad at him and physically attack him, this kid. And he was kind of an odd guy, but he had this seemingly irrational hatred towards him for whatever reason.

And then there was another case where he was kind of beating him up. And he said, yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. And then the Jews look back at me and said, like, you know, he was like, help me.

And I was like, no, this is wrong. Why are you beating this poor kid up? And at that point, I didn't know about that stuff at all. Yeah.

And then eventually he ended up getting expelled. The Jew got expelled because he was fighting him and there was we were on this camping trip and there was a tree and they were all in this group of kids were stuck in a tree. And then he was basically beating him up in the tree and shouting at him and berating this kid.

And then they just decided to expel him right then and there. Yeah, well, at least at that time, the Jews had some checks and balances against them. Now, those checks and balances are basically being torn away.

So they could pretty much have the double standard, which I just wrote out recently on that Creator Concepts channel that, you know, their channel is whatever that particular video, you know, double standards, the Jews can do white, white God or you have a lot of channels, white philosophy, concepts of creator concepts. Yeah. Because you were referencing an earlier video, I think.

Yeah. This one is Jewish double standards. So it says the Jewish occupation government mandates, number one, Jewish supremacism, i.e. no criticism of Jews.

And then eventually, gradualistically, the veneration of Jews. Number two, anti-white advocacy. First, no pro-white discourse.

And then from there, gradualistically over time, once they built to it, anti-white antagonism leading to genocide. That's the sort of double standard hypocrisy that goes on, that the Jews, you know, they can do what they want. They can use their police to shut you down, shut you up.

And you can't even defend yourself, basically. Yeah. Yeah.

Yeah. That's interesting, Travis, about that guy that you're telling that story again about that kid in your school. It just seems like they've got this sort of pathology about them where they can't damage someone enough, can they, when they decide someone is, you know, in some way wrong, you know, to their existence or whatever.

They have to, they just can't. He wanted to get you against the guy, wanted to, you know, he just couldn't get the guy enough, could he? You know, he just couldn't stop fixating on him. That's just pretty much the whole Jewish thing.

Once they just fixate, you know, it's like you can see it. Kind of like, you know, a really good programming that kind of shows a similar kind of scenario is where, I don't know if you've ever seen the movie Revenge of the Sith, where, and I know reference, I know that Star Wars is totally like, you know, propaganda, but there was a scene where Anakin Skywalker or whatever has Count Dooku. Looks like there's a lot of noise there, a lot of background noise.

Yeah, what's going on back there? Is it me? Yeah, it's Sam. Yeah, it is. Well, what's it, I'll just mute it.

I don't know what it is. I don't know what I'm doing, but I'll just turn it off. Could be interference.

Okay, I'll just, I'll mute it, so. Anyway, as I was saying, basically, he has the two, I guess, lightsabers or whatever, like at his neck, and then Palpatine says, do it. You know, it's that similar kind of thing where they want you to do stuff for them.

And then that was basically what this kid was doing, where he was beating this guy up. And then he said to me, you know, finish him or do it. It's like, they always want you to do stuff for them and never do it themselves.

It's kind of like how these white terror advocates always would talk about inciting violence, but they would never actually do it themselves. That's why, you know, the crypto lender always says that, you know, time to kill. It's that same kind of thing where it's, go on.

Yeah, yeah. Hurry up and kill the boy. That way you can put him in prison and then have no precedence to get rid of you.

Yeah, that's with the gang stalking. They always try and get people against you. You know, like they'll tell people something about you, and then they'll get that person to be nasty to you.

They want people like that. They don't actually do anything themselves. They just they just order people around.

They got the goyem next door to assault me. Right. And it's the same way.

As many as they can. They don't. It doesn't matter if they had a million people on you, they'd want more.

You know, that's just doing Jewish masters. I remember there's this one meme that portrays looks like you're getting some problems there again, Gosling. This one meme that portrays, you know, this thug, this white thug.

And then the Jew is behind them with a club in his hand. You know, one of those cheesy type of memes that are like poorly drawn deliberately. Mm hmm.

You've got a Wyatt man's got that that meme of the Jew point. Get it. You know, the U.S. Boogus.

Yeah. Even though he's a Jew, but yeah, that. Yeah.

He was tied into that same crowd, that church of Satan crowd. He would always be around, you know, Anton LeVay. And it's not the same.

Oh, yeah. Church of Satan. OK.

I thought you said joy of Satan. No, no. I said church of Satan and Nick Boogus or, you know, a lot of people don't know that he is a white man.

And he was tied into that same crowd with Metzger. And Metzger basically looks like a Jew to me. I know God about Metzger is Metzger was telling me that he didn't know that, you know, Nicholas Shrek was that, you know, he didn't know that.

Well, you can kind of it's not very hard to tell. Well, the appearance as well. Obviously, Shrek is affiliated with Anton LeVay.

That should be a red flag right there. Well, he's affiliated with that. And then later the temple is set.

And also Charles, also Charles Manson. There was this about four years ago. I still hadn't really clicked on how big this gang stalking was.

Like I was only still really I did. I didn't know exactly. But anyway, I went to this this share accommodation thing.

You might think I'm a bit of a loser at my age looking for that. But I am a homeless person. And yeah, like this guy, he said he was a Jew.

Like so they put up an ad. It was in a thing called Gumtree. It's like our Craigslist here.

So it was an accommodation in our thing called Gumtree, which is owned by eBay, which is owned by Jews. So it's owned by Jews. And and even if it wasn't, they still tend to mob things if they know you're looking into it.

And if they can see into my device and see if I'm using Gumtree, then they can they all can they can put up ads to trap you into it, which they do. There's another little snippet about stalking. How Jews mob you and everything you do.

But yeah, anyway, so he was a Jew. I didn't really get it at the time, but he was South African. And, you know, he tried to start up something about how, you know, it's not a place for white people anymore and all this sort of thing to validate because, you know, because I'm Hitler.

And so like, yeah, but he was terrible, really obnoxious, really just a crazy guy with a really twisted up Jew. And and he told me it was just interesting about the bullying thing. He told me when he was in like I think it was in primary school in South Africa when he was a kid and he used to beat up on the guy next to him.

So he had and he ruined this guy's entire year. He was saying like, you know, he wasn't bragging. He was just saying, yeah, I don't know.

He must he didn't have a really good year or whatever. And he just said he just couldn't settle down when he was a kid. He was just like that.

And he was just really he couldn't help beating his kid up all the time. So obviously they had some the kid next to him was someone who was too gentle and just didn't really know how to deal with that. Didn't just never got to the point where I hit back kind of thing.

So, you know, this poor kid, I could just imagine you'd be scarred for life from that kind of thing. You know, like I I have no idea why. Once it was brought to violence, it's at some point you wouldn't hit back like.

But it's very strange. So this is another thing of a typical aggressive Jew, you know. So there's I think they're they're cowardly, but they're very aggressive and will become physically physically aggressive when they think they can get away with it.

Yeah. Well, just look at the Soviet regime. What they did there.

I just finished reading the Colt War by Anna Molenski. And that. Oh, the Colt War by Molenski.

Yeah. Yeah. Actually, in Synthesis of the Doctrine of Race, he references that book.

Yeah. Yeah. Evola basically put a commentary report that did a lot of whatever you want to call it.

Notes for the work because it was written by a Christian. So it's sort of Christian biased for the most part. Is it worth reading at all or? Basically, just more of a historical work than anything.

You basically get it's not a very long work, but you can get Evola's essay on it, which is itself short enough. But something I'm interested in reading is are you familiar with Dignitarian Way by Anton Brown? No. That basically is a work that, you know, refutes.

It was published at around like 1960 and it refutes like, you know, Judaism and Christianity and that sort of thing. And it's kind of an obscure work. Like, I only see there's like one copy on Amazon, I see, and it's like 60 bucks.

And I don't really see any PDFs of it around. Bateman was telling me that he had the book. But yeah, there's not really much that seems to be known about it.

But it looks interesting. Have you got in touch with Bateman about maybe getting an interview for yourself with him or something? Because he kept promising me that and then he never really got around. He told me that he would interview us.

But he has he's been sort of backlogged and he just had on James Mason. Yeah, I know. I saw.

Were you watching his stream at all? No, I don't really. I'm not really too able to follow what's going on in the alt right or whatever that they want to call that particular facet of this movement, because I could never really tell what to follow or what sources to even see. You know, it just it seems to be like a bit of an echo chamber, a very restrictive thing that I don't really even know about, actually.

Like, I only I only discovered him, his particular account through through your referencing it. But I had been on his show in like 2017 long ago. So, yeah, basically, yeah, I'm not too sure.

I discussed that guy with Raw, the pseudonym of Rare Audiobooks on my interview with him just a couple of days ago. And he said the same thing that he was being given, you know, a promise of an interview and stuff like that. But no, not nothing.

He's a geologist, that guy. I looked into his comments, Rare Audiobooks. He's a geologist.

I just started saying, you know, talking. There's a comment on, you know, I looked at his comments on your videos. Yeah, I saw that he basically was saying that, like, naming shows doesn't matter and that sort of thing.

That sounds pretty subversive. Yeah, he was saying something about Jews not being all like this and it's not all Jews. It's not just Jews.

You know, it was just another Jew thing. It is all Jews. You know, it's it's all Jews and it's every single Jew.

And also, you know, everyone who is a subversive is a Jew. So, yeah. Well, I think there are other ones who are not Jews who are subversives.

But yeah, most of them are, even though they look like white people, you know, crypto Jews like Spencer and people of that sort. They're still Jewish, but either that or they're, you know, one of the Freemasons or they're a Christian because the Christians are basically the puppets of the Jews, just like I've seen around here through personal experience. They basically are even more intense in their hostility toward those who criticize Jews than the Jews themselves.

I guess that way they can try to virtue signal and prove that they are against their own people or whatever, against evil racism. What's funny is people like, you know, George Bush and, you know, there's a there's a picture of George Bush with Ellen DeGeneres. And don't they both look kind of crypto-ish? Yeah, well, yeah.

George Bush obviously has got a reptilian sort of look to him. George Bush is definitely a Jew from the look of his face, though. I can see.

Ellen DeGeneres kind of looks like a bit too, because there's this clip of this kid writing a script. And he was like, you know, the Jewish are controlling the world. And they probably just put that there as a joke.

But then Ellen looks back at the kid and tears the script up. What morality. That was good.

Yeah, I just, the way I see white people, where they are in life in terms of this whole thing, they're not, they're not, they're not in the game. Like there's no, like white people can't even be, you know, aren't even up to getting on and advocating for white rights or any of that. Everyone on the Internet is a, you know, is not, turns out to be a Jew.

We've like looked at, you know, all these people, these personalities throughout the decades, like Linda and stuff like that. They're all Jews. You can't get a white person doing that.

So I don't know why you would get a white person, you know, being on the other side of things. You know, so if you've got like comments, like rare audio books coming on and being an apologist for Jews, why would a white person even do that? Because the motive for them would be basically Freemasonic blood oaths. Yeah, I suppose I see some people around that, they get people against me, but that seems to be different.

It's not like, I don't think they really get anyone against me for having any national socialist inclinations or whatever, you know, you know, they just tell them other stuff, you know, like if they, but I, I just think the problem is they're not, they're not on either side. You know, you don't see them being pro-white on the internet because they just turn out to be Jews. I really think the other way around as well.

I don't think that they're, they're coming in on the other side either. I think that's just always a Jew. Yeah, I think that's not the case.

Okay. Most of the ones who go along with the Jew do so for personal profit and benefit, and they have no problems selling their own people out for personal advantage because they believe that that will make them safe and that will ensure their ability to have a comfortable life. If they go along in a virtue signal, you know, like I spoke to you about yesterday, actually, about that, that that's my position about, you know, the Shabazz Goy, because that's how Jews infiltrate and corrupt society is by, you know, hooking in the Shabazz Goyim so that they can get them to screw their own people over.

That is basically the main motivation. Have you read the book, Battle for the Mind by William Sargent? I've heard of it. Well, there's parts of it where, you know, basically, I actually have it right here.

It's from 1957. I don't know if it was ever reprinted or not, but apparently Pierce really was influenced by this book, and he excluded it from the National Vanguard catalog because he thought it was too powerful. And there's parts of techniques of religious conversion and applications of religious techniques and brainwashing in religion and politics, brainwashing in ancient times.

And basically, things like, you know, Christianity are kind of used as a psychological weapon to control the masses. That's always been my perspective ever since I came to realize or to come to the conclusion that Christianity is basically just creation of Jews to, you know, make people weak. Yeah.

Submissive. Yeah, universalistic. You know, that's my critique of, like, cosmotheism and, you know, creativity is kind of universalistic as well, in a way.

It's more relativistic naturalism because, you know, it says just take your own side. And, you know, that's not necessarily a bad thing, I would say. But what's your opinion of cosmotheism? Well, basically, it's tied in with, what's his name, Ludwig Klages, who was a philosopher around the time of the Third Reich, who was actually banned by them because he was pushing a sort of as Alfred Rosenberg critique.

You can get the critique of that on Kevin Alfred Strom's, I think it's white biocentrism, or it might be ludwigklages.com or something. I forget exactly the website, but Strom put up a website that put an article by Alfred Rosenberg that critiqued Ludwig Klages, his biocentric worldview, which is basically whatever I would call sonic tellurism, a sort of soulish irrationalism, I guess, you know. And that's what they're pushing now.

The Jew world order is pushing that primitive naturalism, basically trying to dumb people down and get them to worship Gaia, the Earth Mother, you know, and just be a pacifist, you know, eating a bowl of vegan food at most every day and so forth. Yeah. So I would say basically that cosmotheism is related to that, and that might very well be why Kevin Alfred Strom was allegedly and possibly probably involved in pedophilia, because that's part of their religion, you know, their trauma-based mind control and or deriving the energy, which is called lush, I think, from, you know, children and so forth, doing their pedophile rituals.

So basically, that is what they're tied into this sort of, I don't know if that would be called Luciferian, you know, sex magic and whatever the case. Yeah, and Nicholas and Zena Shrek wrote a book about that. And I think it also, I'm really suspicious of anyone who pushes Crowley.

Yeah, exactly. And I think that there were also some references to Crowley. I never read it, but I think in the description, it would reference Crowley, you know, rituals and that sort of thing.

And I think that actually Harold Covington, you know, he wrote a book entitled The Black Flame. And isn't that sort of that kind of symbology? Because if you look in the, also in the original, I have it right here, the inner notes of Siege, it says that he thanks Anton LaVey and the Black Flame as one of the, do you know much about what the Black Flame is? Not really, no, but it might have something to do with the Black Sun or something like that. It's sort of like maybe the night side of the light, you know, what they consider to be the true light, which is just, you know, perceived through, you know, different forms of perception that are available only to people who do certain rituals and so forth, have a certain consciousness.

I'm looking up right now on Google Images, there's a book called The Bible of the Divine Black Flame by Magus something or other, Ortax and Magister or whatever. So it's just sort of like left hand path, you know, Jewish left hand path, black magic. I think it's to do with like the light within as opposed to, you know, basically a luminism.

Oh, the Black Flame was actually, coincidentally, that was the name of the magazine of the Church of Satan. Yeah. Coincidentally.

Obviously, that's nothing. And that was also a it was a reference to doing some digging here. Well, yeah, right here, it says the Black Flame International Forum of the Church of Satan.

Yeah, so also there was I'm just on their website, Infernal Resonances, some article here. Weird. Yeah, but what's interesting is I looked up.

Yeah, I don't know, maybe it's something that traces back to Crowley or something like that. Still there. Yeah, according to Joy of Satan, Crowley was actually just a Christian who was trying to deliberately do all sorts of perverted things to push people away from, you know, legitimate.

That's the red light there, Loki, because Crowley is a Jew, was a Jew and even visibly Jewish. So, you know, it seems like they were promoting him. Yeah, says that he was a Christian.

That's a strange thing to say, because we know Crowley is the evil that they're all Jewish and evil. The thing is what what they were saying is that Crowley was basically playing a role to besmirch the spiritual traditions of whites by affiliating them with all sorts of Jewish and that way it basically pushes people into the Christian church through fear porn, through that fear-mongering type of mentality. And that makes sense to me.

I wrote about that in that white terrorist article, which basically says that, you know, the Jews create terror and stuff, you know, this sort of theater, theater of the real, of evil Satan. That way they can push people into the church and say, oh, my goodness, Satan. But well, yeah, and that's why they want chaos and want, you know, to paint, you know, push the siege stuff to make people look like terrorists.

And that's really what they want. This headphones of mine really interferes with Loki's speech or, you know. Yeah, I think it's weird.

It keeps making this buffering sound. It's it. It stuffs up his speech like his, you know, stuffs up his sound.

But it even even on the recording, his sound comes out like it affects it. So on my end, I can hear it. I was going to ask.

I'm going to have to improve like what I've got. Yes. Oh, OK.

He is still on the call. I was what's going on. Oh, nothing.

Nothing. I have a chapter about me. No, no, no.

I have a chapter I want to read to you guys from that. I can't. What's Berg's National Socialism book? I he said he would do an interview, but he's never gotten back to me for some odd reason.

And it's called National Socialism is opposed to white nationalism. So-called white nationalism is either an intentional hoax or an organic conglomeration of the absolute dumbest members of the Aryan species. In either case, white nationalism is a farce and a failure, just like its actual proponents who happen to also be predominantly American.

White nationalism or dumb movement, as it is referred to by these beer gutted, drug abusing, low cultured, mentally ill, often inbred Jerry Springer rejects, is but a mirror image of Jew fomented black nationalism, a la the 1960s and 70s. And like its Negro counterpart, white nationalism is utterly incapable of either bearing or propagating a high political platform, even less is it able to carry the torch of high culture. White nationalists are those who often promote the theory of a spontaneous white rolled imperium, yet without the most fundamental prerequisite, first being in place, German national preeminence.

White nationalists are therefore directly at odds with genuine national socialism as they deliberately seek to expunge the very essence of national socialism. The principle of I invoke on Reich I'm fewer white nationalists can thus be classified as deceivers who via racial jingoism appeal to the sentiment of the racially conscious, yet without drafting a clear plan of thought upon which a subsequent plan of action can then be formulated. Certainly it is all well and good, and it is and certainly gives one a warm and fuzzy feeling to call for spontaneous union of Aryan peoples worldwide, as the venerable Colin Jordan so often did in his works.

But without a singular autocratic and authentic national socialism to rally around, Aryans will continue buying into the lie of white nationalists, universalism, and thus ridiculous myth of a future world union based on the equal rights of all white nations, regardless of each nation's particular value. Sorry? I was just going to, if I could just interject. Sure, sure.

He is, Evola basically critiques that in even in the beginning of the synthesis of race and in other works, I think notes on the Third Reich basically saying that, you know, that basically puts the part over the whole by positing a German hegemony over everything. And so why would that be the goal, German hegemony? If you're not Germanic, then that's not authentic spirituality or a political manifestation of that spiritual form. So that is basically just German hegemony, which is not at all inclusive of whites as a more collective group.

And so for that reason is, you know, basically exactly what Julius Evola said about that, that that's particularism, basically. And that exclusivist, particularist perspective is exactly what he warned against and what others have said, warning against, that it just leads to sectarian nationalism. And Evola's work posits beyond nationalism to imperialism, imperium rather, heathen imperialism.

So that is what I would go with because national socialism isn't the standard, in my opinion, because it's too particularistic and too naturalistic as well. It's not at a high enough level spiritually in terms of the consciousness of the Aryan. It doesn't pick them up to a higher level.

It drags them down. And according to Immanuel Malinsky in the Occult War, he said the same thing, only he's posing Christianity instead of heathen imperialism. He's posing Christianity as a unifier of Europe and stating that, you know, that the nationalism is part of the world subversion, part of the world conspiracy to drag things down toward a more naturalistic, particularistic, you know, form of consciousness, which is inadequate spiritually and not devolves to a sort of what Trotsky had said.

I just remember the quote from Evola's synthesis Trotsky had said is like zoological materialism or something, you know, it reduces things to a purely materialistic level, which is not really adequate. But yeah, right. It actually goes on, you know, I read further and it actually elaborates on that.

Basically, regardless of each nation's particular value in each individual Aryan's rightful merit, National Socialism is thus clearly against the quantitative white nationalist vision of utopia. Strictly qualitative, National Socialism argues in favor of an Aryan world power that's dominated and ruled by the iron fist of the German nation alone. This is a vital tenet of National Socialism, which most post-war sympathizers, including perhaps Colin Jordan and George Lincoln Rockwell, failed to either accept or realize.

Ever since the 1967 assassination of George Lincoln Rockwell, who is more of an American white nationalist than a National Socialist or Nazi, as they labeled himself, white nationalism has been defined by an unlimited number of defeats coupled with an overall reputation that is simply irredeemable. In fact, the mainstream media portrayal of white nationalists is actually one of the very few things when the propaganda organs of the corrupt system actually get right. This is because the white nationalists themselves, be they KKK members, brown shirt Nazis, excel in providing the media and thus the Jew adversary with entire arsenals of ammunition to use against them.

Essentially, their own low-life image condemns them. So, who do these white nationalists have to blame for their portrayal of not themselves? Can they rightfully blame the Jews? That is not intellectually honest. Then again, not too many white nationalists can be described as intellectual.

The fact is they're simplistic, if not solipsistic, pro-white worldview is incapable with any remotely hierarchical racial, cultural, political, social schema. And so, this naturally bars them from ever being able to comprehend even the bare essentials of National Socialism. It prohibits white nationalists from being able to understand any kind of remotely sophisticated political philosophy.

Economically, white nationalists are unabashed capitalists. It is here that their Anglo-American roots are easiest to discern. Consequently, it is no mere coincidence that a good number of white nationalists are identity Christians inheriting their views from 19th century British Israelism, a scam religion invented at the height of the Disraeli Victorian age for the sole purpose of justifying Britain's Judeo-capitalistic subjugation of one-fourth of the Earth's total land area.

Indeed, capitalism and the money-lending religion of Yahweh have gone hand-in-hand since the desert demon's first appearance in the historical record. True National Socialists have always been known that capitalism, like Christianity, has always been inimical to the interests of true Nationalism. This is what led Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, the greatest National Socialist philosopher, second only to Hitler, to assert the following, whoever wishes to be a Nationalist today must also be a Socialist.

And while we are on the subject, what about the Nationalist aspect of white Nationalism?

What exactly is Nationalist about this botched attempt at a racialist ideology? Well, in actuality, white Nationalists are anything but legitimate Nationalists. There are a number of reasons for this, subsequent to the ones already mentioned. First of all, one needs to only visit their most popular internet website, Stormfront, to see that white Nationalists comprise a dysgenic community of predominantly American social misfits, who on the whole possess an average IQ somewhere within the vicinity of 72.

Misogynistic views of women and the crude hate-filled rhetoric epitomize a typical keyboard commando of this sort. This type is someone who takes every opportunity to post news stories of black and white crime, deriving some kind of perverse pessimistic pleasure out of shocking as many of his e-friends as possible. Conversely, National Socialists already understand that blacks commit an inordinate amount of crime, but instead of uselessly dwelling on each individual case, to wit on the mere effect of black crime, which once the crime is committed, is impossible to reverse, National Socialists endeavor to get to the root cause of the problem and thus eliminate black criminality before it occurs.

White Nationalists, on the other hand, have never conclusively demonstrated a strong desire to permanently eradicate the root cause of any problem, let alone black crime. Their specialty only lies in the realm of incessant whining and moaning, like their hero David Duke, aka Dr. Fox, and most other ideological slave moralists. Now such folks wish to build their own community that is their business, however it cannot be considered anything but non-Aryan.

There's a few more pages. He actually mentions Klassen here. But yeah, I can understand that he's making a fair amount of good points, but still, you know, that refutes white nationalism in that sort of, you know, Protestant, Christian, Christian identity sense.

And that's basically all Stormfront is. Stormfront epitomizes that sort of, you know, what we know. Yeah, I was always surprised.

I was always surprised and frustrated with the whole American right-wing thing because it was always, they had that, like what it said about capitalism in that. And, you know, it was just like, how can, you know, this capitalist thing, it just seemed like this sort of center-right, 50s, you know, anti-communist thing. Let's go get Ronald Reagan.

You know, it's like, that's basically their mentality, you know, like, let's have Ronald Reagan back. Yeah, yeah. They had these stupid sort of, this sort of, and, you know, particularly too, like it was a lot of them were kind of, you know, didn't even really work and didn't have careers or anything like that.

And I'm thinking, you're not, stop saying, stop touting all this right-wing stuff. You can't, you know, it looks bad because you're not, you don't even have a job, you know, and things like that, you know. But even when you see if, you know, when an institution is nationalized, like, you know, like what health is in, you know, Australia and America and Canada, it's not socialized.

It's still not called that. It's still called nationalized, though no one uses the word. They avoid it.

But that nationalism, when countries were more nationalized, the state owned everything, you know, it can't really work any other way, you know. So, and, you know, a lot of that, a lot of that stuff too is just, yeah. I would subscribe to basically what Evola speaks of is basically sort of a feudal system in the sense of guild system, where each individual guild has its own control over itself.

It's like an autonomous, self-regulating thing, which, you know, is proficient in its own realm and then has its own vote and its own say in society. Guilds can be very prejudiced, very boys club-ish. The issue of the whole, like, pan-European idea is it sort of eliminates any of the distinctions between each.

That's not what Evola says at all. He says that, you know, that's the way to preserve the distinctions. It's just at a higher unity, higher level of unity.

So it's like the inverse of the EU. It's, you know. Yeah, yeah.

It's like a proper union, basically. Differentiated order, basically, is more, you know, it's preserving the particular form of the individual groups and it's trying to elevate the best of that group, giving them the best advantages instead of, in this society, like, dysgenically giving the worst of the multiracial collective the most and then giving those who are the best the least, which obviously leads to destruction, whereas his leads to elevation to a higher plane of existence. So I would go with that.

I would say that National Socialism is too materialistic and too Donnick Tellurian, too maternal, matriarchal, you know, even though it's, you know, apparently very masculine. Well, I think your argument of the, you know, the best of the best, basically getting the short end of the stick and the weak being elevated, that's sort of similar to what Francis Parker Yawkey wrote about in Imperium. Yeah, well, once again, Evola came before, so Yawkey.

Well, Imperium was written in 1948. Are you talking about revolt against the modern world? Well, most of, no, heathen imperialism, that was like 19, I think 1928 was pagan imperialism and then heathen was 1933 or 34 or 32, something like that. But yeah, I mean, the general conception should be a hierarchically structured, organically based society where, which has more or less largely autonomous self-regulating guilds that have their vote based upon their guild system like fascist Italy did.

And we're everyone working toward, you know, elevating themselves at their level in their own particular function in society. I've heard that reports that Mussolini was an agent of MI6 or something like that. Do you know much about that? Not really, but I know that Mussolini, you know, he has a double headed eagle symbolism on his hat, and that's obviously Scottish Rite Freemasonry.

But apparently there was some sort of like schism, he was opposed to it, but he was somehow related to it somehow. I forget exactly the details, but yeah, I'm not too sure entirely. It's all very cloudy to be able to really understand these things unless you're an insider.

You can only just look from without and try to, for instance. But as to Kanwitzburg's conceptions there, you know, his criticism is somewhat similar to Mason and Siegfried of the right wing movement itself. And of David Lane and his criticism of the CRAP, C-R-A-P, Christian Right Wing American Patriots, and Deceived, Damned and Defiant, where he critiques that.

That's pretty obvious that America is basically the inheritor of a sort of, what is it? Puritanical Protestant mercantilism, which is a result of, what's his name there? John Calvin and Calvinism. John Calvin's real name was Cohen, his real last name. So it's basically overemphasis on a sort of materialistic, you know, obsession with money, basically.

So obviously that's not a very desirable thing. But at the same time, you know, America has its points. But yeah.

It actually talks about classism in the next page. By all means, go ahead and let's have a listen to it. Oh, sure.

Secondly, white nationalism totally lacks any kind of serious ideological underpinning, which is to say it is an intellectually deserted non-philosophy. In place of true quality of substance, therefore white nationalists have no other recourse than to lay claim to an ever-increasing assortment of rival skinhead groups. In reality, little more than nigger gangs, which are led by an endless number of freak show carnival barkers, all pretending to be leaders in the movement.

The sad fact, however, is there is no movement. There are no leaders, and there never will be. This is because white nationalism is a sideshow attraction rather than a legitimate subject of intellectual study.

The closest white nationalism comes to a legitimate ideology is so-called creativity, or what I refer to as classinism, after its late founder, Ben Classen. Unfortunately, everything this pseudo-religious group holds dear in the way of ideology was hijacked from National Socialism and subsequently bastardized to fit a white universalist worldview, one which Classen's followers ironically and just as erroneously describe as being racist. Pure comedy.

Thirdly, as a consequence of this second point, white nationalists have no clue as to what true nationalism or nationality actually is. No doubt this is due to the fact that their United States is an artificial meddler of mixed races and ethnicities, neither a nation nor a republic, but a liberal federal empire. The so-called nationalist aspect of their limited belief system is thus an obvious distortion of reality.

As stated earlier in the 14th chapter of this work, nationality is defined by history, tradition, folklore, the realm of ideas, racial habitat, and blood. It is this total concept of nationality, yet not in the petty sense of the word, which is the progenitor of true racialism. For example, National Socialists fully comprehend that it is only the nation, i.e. the manifestation of a homogenous race and culture as a collective unit, which possesses the necessary metaphysical primacy and therefore ability, via the nation-bearing stratum, to generate the political state.

Conversely, white nationalists believe that a loosely defined ethnic state of more or less whiteness, constructed no less by tattooed, drug-addicted skinheads, can somehow yield a puritable white nation. There is an inorganic pipe dream which places the proverbial cart before the horse. Also, in the citation notes, he said a little bit more about creativity.

He said, Honestly, there is nothing creative about so-called creativity or classinism, a thoroughly materialist creed. Classinism explicitly rejects both spirituality and Aryanism. Thus, it denies the innate sanctity of the Aryan race as well as the ultimate source of the very creativity the classinites claim to represent.

The only redeeming aspect of classinism is its alleged repudiation of Christianity. Even so, this should not be taken with a proverbial grain of salt, since it is rather peculiar that the classinites have willfully chosen to name their organizational assemblies, churches, and double leaders, reverends. Well, of course they did that deliberately as a means of sort of negating Christianity and opposing their churches in such a way that they could legitimate themselves as a religion according to the law of America.

And then they can also, through that means, basically invert Christianity in that way. So it's sort of a deliberate thumbing of the nose at Christianity. They didn't do that because they were ignorant of the fact, obviously.

But, yeah, obviously creativity is a very basic thing, but that doesn't mean that it isn't valuable as a sort of very basic, you know, constellation of ideas. Of course, it's not the be-all and end-all at all. It's just, you know, something to draw on in terms of, you know, general conceptions.

That's all I look upon it as. You know, I don't look upon that as like that's all there is, even though that's allegedly what classin had put into that. I'm pretty sure that classin, if he wasn't a Jew, you know, at least he was an occultist of some sort, could be a pro-white occultist in some form or other.

I'm just interested in the red, black, and white symbology of a lot of this. That's just hermetic alchemy, basically. That's what I'm using right now.

Right now I'm making a title page for this show, and I'm using that as part of the to connote that, you know, alchemical transmutation through these ideas. That's basically the whole point of it, of all this stuff. Practical idealism.

You know, it's not about being some sort of, you know, mental masturbator or something, unless it leads to action. Like he says, classin thought without action is sterile. That's basically all that you need.

You know, you don't need to complicate things needlessly with all sorts of, you know, nebulous concepts and ideas unless it actually, you know, manifests in the actual physical reality. So I basically try to combine all these different similar ideologies, if you want to call them that, together into a workable system, ethically, practically, spiritually. But of course, classin denies spirituality altogether.

And that's the whole premise of that so-called religion, which is mainly just probably mainly just created for, you know, as a means of facilitating the white cause, because, you know, it gives you legal protection, at least that that street did. Right. The rest of the chapter basically just says that, I don't really think it's, I think it's kind of pointless to read the rest of it in its entirety, but basically it just says that a lot of white nationalists are anti-Nordicist, which I haven't seen that too much.

But there also are a lot of, you know, quantity over quality. That was another point he made about how they would rather have high numbers of lowbred trash as opposed to low numbers of the highest forms of Nordic Aryan life. And then how some white nationalists are, you know, anti-national socialist.

And then that's mainly basically the rest of it is the last part is basically the problem with the word white and how basically true Aryans should not call themselves white as white. You could also call Turks white, you call Jews white, you could call Mongols white, you know, it's basically just skin color. Yeah, that's obviously true enough.

But at the same time, you know, even Avala speaks about the Germanic Aryan, or I think it was a Nordic Aryan in the synthesis of racial doctrine. So he doesn't, you know, eschew, that's more like geographical and spiritual terms. But yeah, obviously that overrides the sort of, what would it be called? The, you know, the mere appearance of things, which is just a concrete manifestation of in the physical realm.

So obviously that's true enough. But the thing is, though, you can call it Aryan, yes, but in my opinion, you know, it's only partially what exists at this time that, yeah, they may be Aryan in the sense of being the inheritors of that tradition, you know, being a sort of fallen, corrupted group, white, those who are white at this time. But, you know, they're Aryan in their origins.

So I guess in that sense, it could be considered legitimate because we're still the inheritors of that. We still possess that blood memory as a spiritual quality. So, yeah, we were basically like Aryans, but corrupted and fallen.

So I would go along with that to that extent. Generations of brainwashing. That's why I sort of disagree with the whole idea of pathological altruism that like you'd see Kevin McDonald and Jared Taylor promote quite a bit.

Well, I would basically say with respect to the white and Aryan thing, you know, we're basically, by virtue of our fallen state, we are not, you know, Aryan in its pure form or in the form that it could be. In character, basically. No, no, in spiritual form.

We can develop into that through various proper spiritual exercises and interiorizing that sort of self-concept or understanding. But, you know, it's still fallen. And at the same time, the outer is the inner and the inner is the outer.

So by self-identifying as white, then people understand that much better. Whereas if they say you're an Aryan, they could just say, well, that just means noble in Sanskrit. And then it, of course, refers to what they would call a myth of the Aryan race, which is obviously true.

You know, the mythos of Aryanism about the Hyperborean origins and the fall from the higher consciousness from the devias, I would look upon that as true. So it's obviously, you know, a problem, you know, with this. Is it white? Is it Aryan ambiguity of the meaning of what is best? So, yeah, I don't know.

It depends on what your point of view is. If you think that, obviously, no matter what you say, there'll be problems. If you call yourself white, then they'll say, oh, that's just a skin color.

That's just an appearance. And if you call yourself Aryan, then they'll say, oh, that's just nebulous mythology or meaningless terms, which itself is good in a way because you're embracing, you know, a mythos. I think, unfortunately, the term Aryan has a negative, you know, to the normies out there.

They would just think if you call yourself that they would think like, oh, you must be some kind of, you know, Nazi or whatever, even though that was the term that they would use, you know, like as recent as maybe 100 years ago. I heard Johnny McDonald actually referred to something to do with that. That was a guy, one of the people who had been, you know, significant in creating Canada, but he used the term Aryan as well.

So, yeah, like this book I have from 1917, you know, it has chapters called the Aryans of the Religion and, you know, the Holy Aryan Empire and the Aryan Dispersion, you know. Yeah. So, yeah, pretty much good enough a term, but obviously there's ambiguity always.

Yeah. And I think a good point that's made here is the, you know, quantity over quality and how, you know, that kind of ties into the white natality sigh off, as you pointed out earlier, where, you know, just go out and. And says some, one of the alt-right guys, guess we better get to hoping.

Yeah. Okay. That'll solve your problems.

Yeah. Yeah. And do that instead of, you know, activism or what have you.

Exactly. All white people just live their lives. That's exactly what most white people do right now.

They just live for thrills, amusements. I've got a family. I don't have an obligation.

Yeah, hedonism. Yeah. It's like that.

As long as I work, do whatever I want, I can. Yeah. It's like an excuse to order people around and it's like, oh, I have kids.

So therefore I'm exempt from doing this. That's just basically what the conclusion that I came to. It's just, you know, making excuses to avoid responsibility toward your own race as a particular biological group.

Yeah. If you just live for that, then you're just basically copping out and removing yourself from that. If you have the means to do that, you know, by all means, I guess.

But in my opinion, it's just not really too feasible at this point in time. Just given the situation of this world and the nature of everything in it, you know, you're up against everything on earth against you. And, you know, the best thing to do, in my opinion, is just to focus on activism and spiritual self-cultivation because you could never be sure how long you're going to be alive for anyway.

Right. So you might be dead tomorrow, for all you know. So why not live every day at a higher level of spirituality instead of just, you know, fornicating and propagating like an animal? Because that's zoological materialism, as Evola spoke of it, in the synthesis of racial doctrine.

Or actually, that was a quote from Trotsky that he put forth. And even though it's Trotsky, obviously a communist Jew and Freemason, you know, it's still true enough that that is a limited conception and that there's more to the human, as Evola would say, than merely the sort of crude, materialistic forms of life. That's inadequate, basically.

And I think that the way that he closes one of the last sentences of this chapter is pretty colorful. For just as Walt Disney's famous Cinderella Castle is an Americanized parody of European civilization, so too is white nationalism, a burlesque, a caricature, a pathetic mimicry of legitimate national socialism. Yeah, and that's true enough to some extent.

But at the same time, you could equally, as per Evola, you could equally critique national socialism from Evola's perspective, from the notes from the Third Reich and various other of his writings. That is, you know, a caricature of the authentic tradition of the Aryan, because it was never, you know, based on skull measurements or, you know, sort of Darwinian, Ernst Haeckel anthropology. Evola wasn't exactly a proponent.

He wasn't exactly a proponent of national socialism specifically. No, he said it was too low, it's too crude and thonic-Tellurian. And again, Immanuel Malinsky in his The Occult War said, you know, that it was just part of the agenda of the subversives to reduce everything to nationalism.

And Christian Kanwensberg here, or Christoph rather, he was stating that Germany had to be like the, you know, the one and the only one, the one on top early on in your reading. Yeah, yeah, he actually said that in the, you know, Germany was the last and only Aryan nation to be free of Jewish control. Well, what about Iceland? Right, I think Iceland up until recently, I think even now it's still fairly closed off, but of course, you know, it obviously must have some control by now.

Yeah, well, apparently the Icelanders kicked the bankers out. So, obviously, you can't exactly claim that Germany is that, but once again, all this operates on the basis of occultism, in my opinion, or so far as I understand. And basically, it'll be probably Germany karmically to first kick the Jews out or something like that and initiate things, maybe.

Who is to say? Yeah, I've heard pretty much nothing but good things about Iceland. I've heard that, you know, people would say that it's basically the closest thing to, you know, Thule in the literal sense of being furthest north. Yeah, I've noticed that myself, especially reading Serrano and his discussions about Hyperborea and the Hollow Earth, you know, that's Iceland's right near there.

There's a book called The Smoky God, which is about a bunch of people who had gone in a boat and they wound up inside the Hollow Earth out from Iceland or something. Serrano interviewed Evola, actually, I believe. He wrote in The Ultimate Avatar.

But I think that I'm not too sure what exactly transpired there or what, if much, because, yeah, who is to say, right? It does seem a bit like Serrano is sort of like one of those guys who just goes around and visits old dying men on their deathbeds and says, like, I knew this guy, I knew that guy. Well, it would have been helpful if maybe there was a, you know, one of those, most books tend to have a, you know, a bibliography at the end of them. That would have been helpful.

Perhaps they, you know, the Hermitage Home Corpus or, you know, whoever or 55 Club, if they had like either an annotated bibliography, some form of citations, you know, because Serrano would just sort of throw around these references quite a bit like, you know, that New Age magazine, which supposedly is extremely, you know, like most of the copies were destroyed or something like that. Yeah, yeah, I know that Jörg Landsvang-Liebenthal's Ostra magazine, you know, is not translated. Like I said, I tried to get Stephen Flowery to translate it, but he wanted $250,000 to do that for his translators to do it.

So, yeah, obviously, it's pretty hard to gather all the bits and pieces of history when you're pretty much an outsider who's just reading a book here and there. Unless you're somehow able to travel the world like these people, you know, visit the Dalai Lama and so forth, then you're not going to be able to really get too much out of it in terms of particular facts about what they actually did and so on. Do you think it's possible that Serrano might have been a Mason? Um, I don't think so.

But then again, you know, you can never tell what their role is specifically. I don't think he was a Mason, though, because everything he says doesn't suggest that sort of a sleazy rhetoric of Masons. If you've ever read any books by Masons, you get that sort of impression.

Do you think Jung had a sleazy rhetoric? I've never actually read any of his works, because I always looked upon it as a bunch of silliness, you know, like psychology. I always looked at psychology as just... Oh, that was what him and Ebola disagreed with in Ultimate Avatar. Serrano said that him and Ebola disagreed on their views of psychoanalysis.

And Ebola said that he thought it was, you know, a bunch of, you know, Jewish propaganda. While Serrano disagreed on that and thought it was probably due... He might have been biased because he was friends with Jung, I guess, but I don't know. Yeah, I know Ebola refutes psychoanalysis in Ride the Tiger.

Yeah, he does. And I would agree with his reputation so far as I can remember. It's sort of like... That was one of his last works, I think.

I think he wrote it in 1961. Ride the Tiger? No, I think Ride the Tiger was earlier than that. Let's see.

I have it right here. Sure, though. But yeah, he was saying something about psychoanalysis being sort of like... Yeah, 1961.

Go ahead. Oh, yeah. Yeah, he was saying that psychoanalysis, I can't really remember too clearly, but was like an inversion of reality, you know, saying that the infernal elements are the ones that are causal, as opposed to the spiritual elements, which are causal.

So it drags down your consciousness and drags you down into states of materialism and so forth. Sure. And probably opens you up to all sorts of demonic possession or who knows what.

And that it's just like a projection of the Jewish consciousness onto others. Yeah. I'm going to use the bathroom quickly.

You keep talking. Is Gosling still there? Yeah, Gosling. Yeah, I'm here.

Yeah, I'm just driving. So yeah, I'm just driving a lot. I've got that headphone in again.

Yeah, yesterday we discussed a lot about psychoanalysis and Jews and how they're basically malignant narcissists and psychopaths. And that to me basically was a perfect synopsis of who they are and what they are in the details that we discussed. Yeah, I've been thinking about that Joy of Satan thing and how the Jews were getting all scowling and everything like that.

We've all seen that before. When they're not feeling as though they're when they feel threatened or whatever. Maybe it could be a rival demon.

You know, I don't know. Like, you know, like their demiurge, their demon, you know, is their demon. Maybe Joy of Satan is a different, like a rival one.

And they don't like the rival one. They're threatened by the rival one, but it's still, you know, it would still be obviously a terrible folly on your part to get involved with the rival demon, you know, because then you're going to end up like the Jews, possessed by something. Yeah, it's always a question.

I've questioned that myself, because it seems like Joy of Satan is sort of, as Abel said, and as I said before, reiterating him, sort of a more chthonic talisman, sort of, you know, focusing on, I think he wrote about this in The Mask and Face of Contemporary Spiritualism, where he speaks about how all these yogic practices sort of, you know, cultivate the more soulish aspect of your consciousness and suppress or override your more spiritual aspects to your consciousness. You know, when you involve yourself in this, it creates a more lowering of your consciousness to that more soul-oriented or emotional based mode. Inner Traditions is planning on publishing that.

It said it's going to be released in April 2021, and they retitled it The Fall of Spirituality, the Corruptionist Tradition in the Mong World. Yeah, it's obviously a deliberate corruption of the title, because they're trying to say that— The original title was, I think, Mask and Face of Contemporary Spiritualism. The distinction there is that Ebola was saying that there's a mask, you know, that's the fake necessarily, and then, you know, the reality is something totally different.

Whereas what they're saying, oh, it's just fallen a little bit, that way it redeems in the minds of some people or creates confusion about absolute and, you know, just a sort of change, you know, but not wrong, right? It's just sort of fallen, so we can pick it up and go back to, like, theosophy or bullshit of that kind. So it's sort of, what is the word, it's like an apologetic, you know, it's sort of salvaging what Ebola critiques in that title by using that sort of change of title, in my opinion. Yeah, inner traditions, you know, as we mentioned before, we obviously know who founded that and how they also published Frank Cohen, and I don't know, there seems to be an agenda behind them, but so does Arctos, so I don't know, it wouldn't surprise me if Arctos tried to buy this translation from Carew, you know, for profit or whatever.

Right, yeah, I'm not too sure, but it seems like that Carew guy operates pretty autonomously, like he doesn't want to be involved with others, and he, as per Thompson, he seems to be more oriented toward authentic understanding of Ebola. That's why he's got the WordPress site, EbolaAsHels.wordpress, because, you know, people like Arctos and stuff have distorted Ebola's works, basically, to make it into more, tying it into their alt-right bullshit, which is just a combination for Christianity and Duganism. They've got a lot of truck companies in on this, Loki, this bit that I pull in, too, they've got a semi-trailer, like a rig, whatever they're called in America, it just parked across this entrance to this sort of white area by the side of the road that I park at, where you see me filming those birds and stuff.

They just blocked it with a big truck there in the way, so I had to drive around it. You know, I had just these constant little sorts of things, but it doesn't bother me, I don't know why I care about that. That's the way it is, for the most part.

You're living your life now, basically, under a magnifying glass, or even in a rifle, basically, you're targeted in a rifle scope. Yeah, yeah, yeah, they're very, you know, just scrutinizing every little thing about you, you know, it's just despicable, predatory behavior. Yeah, I've checked out on Stormfront, the guy's saying that that's what they used in the DDR, the USSR, that they're using the same methods there.

Yeah, I think it's just, it's a reflection of their character, their cycle, that's just, I think they've always done it, you know, it's just a matter of whether they've gotten themselves into a position where they can organize it and get state funding for it, and, you know, for more people to know about it, but I think it's part of their culture, I think they've always, you know, focused, just predatorized people, you know, and they've done that for hundreds of years. And their own population as well, they do that probably, like you had mentioned before, about that girl with the blonde wig, that she went through, they still spied on her of their own kind? Yeah, and they still managed to get to her, I don't know how it works, but, you know, the way it works with anything is really that they just don't stop, that it just persists, none of it matters, but just the persistence of it is what works, and, like, I always think, like, how can they do it to one of their own like that, because one of their own knows what it is, you know, if you knew, if back when I was young, I knew that there was this huge crypto community of people, you know, if I had, say, if I had been one of them, then you would be aware of it, you know, and I think, like, well, how could you get gang-stalked if you already know about it, you know, that's, it would still be a massive, you know, you know, you'd be 99% of the way there, and, you know, so it would be, you know, it's way less bad to be a Jew and targeted than someone who doesn't know about it and targeted, because, you know, you know, you know what it is, like, it took me, you know, it took me, you know, 25 years to work it out. At the same time, if you're a Jew, if you're a Jew and they're targeting you, and you're, you know, you're what they call a Din Rodeth, which is a pursuer, some Jew who, you know, turns against their own kind, then they'll probably be much more harsh on you than they would one of the Goliaths.

I don't think so. I don't think so. But, like, it just goes to show they can get to even their own, even people who know about it completely.

But for me, I would have known, I would prefer to have known about it, you know, rather, because then at least you just know. But, you know, for what, however they do it, they could, they still manage to get to her. And the, they, where I remember, like, about five years ago, I was, you know, this, you know, that I was, yeah, they, they, they, well, the thing is, they seem to have this attitude that they can do it to anyone, they can get to anyone.

So I, and theoretically, I suppose they can. But, you know, I think there's, they normally go after more vulnerable people, but I have no idea how they, how they got to her, you know, what, what, what that really was, you know. They'll know just through their community because they're all spying on each other.

Yeah, yeah. They're all spying on each other and gossiping and all this sort of thing. Like, you know, it'll be a, like, you can see why they get worked up into this mentality that what they're doing is normal.

You know, they think that it's okay to stalk people and it's not stalking and it's not gang activity, but it is gang activity and stalking. It's just that they don't know anything else because they've grown up with it. So they've always, you know.

Nobody else will know that and nobody else can prove that really, unless they have a lot of intimate acquaintance with Jews and what they do. So that's the problem. Yeah, well, yeah, some people could know it.

Some people know it. And you'd have to be a real inspector plod to be part of the police force these days and not, not know it. It's particularly since I've gone to such lengths to point it out to the fucking assholes, you know, but, you know, there is a lot of, you know, very dull-witted white people around.

So, yeah, especially Christians. Like what you're saying, it's not an easy thing to get onto, even if you are, even if you are perceptive. Like, yeah, exactly.

Yeah, because I've always, like, like we discussed yesterday, both you and I had always been sort of having a sensation of being washed and persecuted in our lives. I can recall. Yeah, that was always there.

And the stuff they did when I was young, very young in school, like in primary school and that, and, you know, people coming up and saying stuff. I remember stuff. They've always been fixated on me.

So anyone ever, you know, ever thinks that gang stalking is being done for something you did, you know, well, whatever, if it was even for something I did, you know, could it have been that bad, you know, if I was a kid? They just flat out say that, you know, it doesn't exist. Well, the same thing about the white genocide agenda. They say that they don't exist, too, don't they? That's the thing.

They say that white people don't exist, that white genocide doesn't exist. Whatever doesn't serve their purposes, they deny the reality of. And whatever does serve the purposes that they have, then they affirm the reality, like the holy hoax and various other pogrooms that they make up, you know, to portray themselves as victims, captive in Babylon, persecuted in Egypt, all these sort of claims.

All of a sudden, they're the underdog. Like, you know, when the Antifa guy assaulted me and I, you know, handily saw him off, you know, just they're all of a sudden the underdog. And even that he dared assault Goliath was, you know, was just a victory in itself.

Suddenly, you know, suddenly they're the underdog. It's just ridiculous. It's just all argumentative and litigious.

You know, anything is just all argumentative. And I say I've actually shamed him lately. I just call them all cowards, you know, because I keep saying there is nothing you can do to make gang stalking not cowardly.

It just is. All of it is. The only way you can be not a coward is to stop doing it.

And because the whole thing is cowardly, you know, it's just like you're crazy nature of it. You know, if you buy someone up and, you know, and wear them down and all this sort of thing and come at them from all angles all the time, that's cowardly. You know, there's no way there's nothing they can do to redeem themselves from that.

You know, there's no nothing at this point. There's nothing they can do. You know, I mean, if I if they didn't ruin my life, you know, I would probably be in a better position to defend myself in all sorts of ways.

And it probably would have subsided and gone away. You know, they would have found someone more vulnerable, you know, because that's the thing. It's cowardly.

That's the whole thing. It is what it is. They'll mob you just like a bunch of monkeys in the jungle will mob you in a group.

And then if you attack them, they'll just scatter away or scurry away. Yeah. Yeah.

And then they come up with excuses why they did it. And, you know, it's like that phrase, you know, they they they scream really loudly as you strike them. It's like it's like in a wizard of Oz where the witch is like, you know, it's the same kind of thing where they completely blow it out of proportion.

Yeah. Oh, yeah. You know, it's terrible.

You know, the way they the way they act like victims, you know, like so like I assaulted a Jew a few years ago. Like he was about my age. Yeah.

Like he you know, I beat the shit out of this guy, you know, in an honorable way. I punched him once and then stood back and gave him a chance, you know. But he was you know, I didn't just I didn't hit hit often and hit only like an antifa thug or anything like that.

You know, I gave him a chance, but he was bullying me mercilessly and stalking me. And, you know, so it doesn't really matter what I did to him. Wouldn't matter if I if I took, you know, a sharp edged weapon to him, because that would be understandable and natural and normal and righteous because of what he's done to me.

But oh, no, he was he went to the psychology people and, you know, suffering trauma and all this sort of thing. And, you know, all this all this stuff. And the guy was running around trying to stir up infinite, infinite amount of trouble for me, you know, like I know, I mean, infinite and exponential harm towards me, you know, not this is not a game, you know.

And and he was just like death staring me and everything. But for a week, you know, and I don't even know the guy. I've had no interaction with him.

And, you know, it's just you know, it was normal. It was absolutely normal for me to to strike this guy, you know, and no, no. But then, you know, they were arguing with me for months that that that guy's really weak and everything.

And I'm some big, tough, you know, some big, tough Goliath that I'm a bully and all this sort of thing. And they probably try to make it typical of the whole bullies, isn't it? They always call the victim the bully. When you punch the bully in the nose, they always try and project it around on you.

It's just classic bullying. Well, yeah, it's like that same thing where it was like, you know, you betrayed an underdog or the hero or something. And they will argue about this and that and and all this.

But the whole thing is cowardly. The guy was a coward. The Antifa guy was a coward.

The Goyam built like a brick shit out Goyam next door who fucking assaulted me was a coward. You know, the whole thing is cowardly. I'm not doing anything.

I'm just trying to live my life. Whatever the Jews put in their brains, they'll do because they're programmed to think they're sort of high moral principles when the reality is the only thing that they're doing is basically, you know, deliberately violating all of the principles of natural law and basically undermining their own existence because, you know, you're not going to be able to live your life all by yourself as an individual, contrary to their individual egalitarian creeds. You're part of a collective group.

If you don't work with their collective group towards its survival, then you're basically bringing upon it harm. And so, you know, take your with what I know that the amount over the centuries and, you know, even longer, the amount of good and creative people who could have invented things, you know, and and the amount of people that they've destroyed, just ruined through the centuries, from my point of view, because I can see that this is something which they do to people. You imagine how much, like, goodness has gone out of the world, how much potential is destroyed.

And not only people that are directly targeting like me, but just casually destroying, ripping people off and tearing, taking away from anyone who's, you know, from people around the place. Because like we've discussed before, the reason why white people invented everything was because we have altruism and we leave each other the fuck alone enough for us to be able to do these things. I'd say it's because we're just a creative, inventive group.

Yeah. And having this secret parasite among us, this predatory gang, you know, of predators, you know, it's just like, how much have they taken away from us? I just think it just must be gargantuan. From my point of view, if you listen to my story, you know, it just shows it.

Francis Parker Yawkey would refer to them as the international manipulators and culture destroyers. I couldn't have put better, couldn't have put it better myself. Yeah.

Yeah. Well, it's very sad we have them among us. It's like definitely like a, you know, something like having Sauron come and live with you in Lord of the Rings.

Like, you know, he came and lived among those Numenoreans or those elves. Gang stalking is like the Nazgul, you know, those black riders and the Nazgul. Yes.

And they, isn't it funny, like how they, they hate at the start when their power's still growing, they, they hate being around light and happiness, that in it bring, you know, Aragorn says they hate being around people like their power is less when there's, you know, when there's people and life and happiness around. And that's exactly the same with gang stalking. If you're isolated, they, they, they have, they come, they come in at you.

But if you have a strong family support and you, you have got a great relationship with your parents and, you know, if you have a spouse, which is, is not an annoying type, one of these people that, you know, want to create trouble, but someone who's just with you, you know, and things like that, you know, if you have all that sort of thing and, and a job and a career, anything like that, they, you know, that, that will back them off. I've always heard that about gang stalking from the, from the, you know, they don't mention the Jews, but you know, what they, the stuff you read about targeted individuals and that the kind of people who get targeted in that. So it's exactly the same.

What would make them back off? I having people around you, it's just like, did you ever read Lord of the Rings? We were talking about the, at the end, you know, brief and he's saying, you know, they won't, they won't come in and attack while everybody's awake and having a nice time in the end. There's people there for some reason. And that is exactly what they're like.

If you have strong family support and people around you, they won't, they won't tie even you won't get targeted, you know, like definitely being in the black sheet in my family would was definitely one of the reasons why they, you know, honed in on me when I was a kid, you know, as that was, you know, definitely, you know, one of the things. So it's all about having people around you. So if you want to name the Jew, Travis, you're not, you don't really seem fixated or too obsessed with, with Jews.

So maybe, maybe they're not as interested in you, but for whatever reason, you know, get, have a career, get onto that. You won't be able to do anything artsy or anything like that, you know, go and do engineering or something and get straight onto it and get people around you and don't be reclusive, even if that's your nature to do it, you know? So if you can, that's the way you want to, you have to be that way. And anybody else who listens to it, that's the way you have to be.

If you want to be of any use to, you know, white people, you have to kind of try to be a chameleon in some ways. You have to kind of try to blend in a bit. Yeah.

You have to keep keeping your head down. People low, just, just don't, because I think if we're alone, you probably stand out more. Like if you're a guy that's out off in the corner while everybody else is in some kind of crowd or what have you, that tends to make you noticed a bit more.

And that's probably why, you know, Loki's mentioned before about, you know, lone wolf being a psyop. Yeah. No, I think, I think the lone wolf can be real.

I think it's a better approach than joining these public organizations and because all these organizations are infiltrated and basically traps. Well, I think all the lone wolves you really hear about are fake. So that, because I think with the lone wolf is that they're, they're very coy and they're not really going to strike.

You know, the, the thing is about the lone wolf is more sort of keeping distance before they, you know, Jews are right to be threatened by lone wolves because they're really the only people that can really do anything. But, yeah, I think that's maybe a basis for where guerrilla militias will start from really. I mean, it's not, the ones you hear about like forever can probably all fake.

They might not be, I don't know. They're all, they're all basically psyop because they all have like a numerology involved, Kabbalistic numerology. That's why I think it's important for us.

Yeah. It's a signal to the Jews. Yeah.

To say he's there with us. Yeah. But yeah, as to the lone wolf thing, you know, obviously, like I said, with this other guy that I spoke to called Ra, who is just suddenly just disappeared, you know, there's a light side and there's a dark side.

The dark side is the, you know, terrorist element, which is just a psyop in large part, if not entirely. And then the light side is just like the gray man strategy. Just, you know, blend in with the collective and then just try to survive and spread the message to the extent you can clandestinely so that you're not known and then you won't be as susceptible to being targeted.

But you'll probably still be, you know, given the surveillance state that we live in now, you're probably going to be setting yourself up somehow for being targeted. Yeah, yeah, yeah. You've got to have people around you and stuff like that.

Like, yeah, the problem is, Loki, you're in a position where you've already got yourself targeted before you're established. So, you know, even if you've got some small business, you get mobbed by them, all your customers, all your clients would be Jews. So, you know.

Basically, I tried to reach out to everybody I could in Canada in this movement, and I have no relocate. But there's basically nobody in Canada almost at all. So, pretty much.

Yeah, I remember even that was said on the Brian Roos show that there, that, you know, in Canada, there really isn't anything. There is some nationalists in Australia that, but I don't really know how to get in contact with them, but they do exist here. So, you know, so there's that.

But yeah, it does look like Canada just doesn't really have it, you know, at all. Sort of like one of the least on the ball countries in the whole world for whites. Yeah, yeah.

So far as I can tell, I mean, if I'm not involved, I can't exactly speak of it. I'm sure there are some somewhere. But yeah, I don't even know.

I reached out. Yeah. Throughout the years, I reached out to like, what is it called? The Vinland Hammer skins.

And then they just sort of insulted me and, you know, long ago. And then I reached out to what was a creativity movement group in Calgary before a couple of years ago, and, you know, never got anything out of that. Nothing really positive.

Well, they're like, they're meant to be a prison gang or something, the creativity group. Seems to be what it became, basically. Yeah, it became that.

That those skins, that's very suspicious that they would just write you off and rubbish you. That's just, I mean, I don't know, that just to me now, after, you know, being racially aware now for like 12 years and looking at this kind of thing, you know, that to me is just very suspicious and just puts up a red light. Because why on earth would, you know, it's someone else there.

Why would you, you know, I've not seen anything about you where I just, you know, completely write you off and ridicule you and chase you away. Yeah. You know, like, you seem okay.

Like I don't see any need to do that. What's odd, I think, is because they're pushing an agenda. And what I was putting forth potentially exposed that agenda, maybe.

Yeah, I just think. I was critiquing Christianity quite a lot with, you know, around and then from there, you know, you get nothing in response. But I think it's largely these, the figures in this movement are just operatives.

And they just don't care because they, you know, you're not in the limelight, they don't really want you there, because it doesn't accord with their agenda. Their agenda is to push Christianity. Travis, looks like you're a little bit faded.

Yeah, you're really quiet, Travis. It was really easy for us to talk over you at the moment. I was just going to throw something in there.

It says a lot about Canada when a radical person, Jordan Peterson, is considered radical.

Like, I would see these headlines, you know, two or three years ago, that would be like, radical professor Jordan Peterson. You know, it's just like, it says a lot about Canada where, you know, someone who just goes around and tells people to clean their rooms is considered a radical.

Yeah, pretty much. That's maybe they even did that as a sort of thumbing of their nose at Canadians, you know, because obviously, Jordan Peterson is either a Jew or it's, you know, he's a Jew. So, yeah, obviously, that's not something trustworthy.

It's probably just a thumbing of the nose that Canadians try to, you know, insult and mock them for their... This skinhead talk reminds me of some skinheads that I was aware of. There were, I remember, see, when I was very, very, very young in primary school, there was some different, there were skinheads around. They existed at that point, you know, like older, you know.

But then later on, I knew some sort of almost by proxy. I didn't really know them. But these people, I knew this really nice guy, right? And he was, his grandfather was German and actually got caught in Stalingrad and had to walk back to Germany through all the snow.

He was one of those ones. And so he was, but he was a skinhead when we were kids, like he was like a neo-Nazi. And he, I remember when I was 18, he started saying, oh, you know, this multiculturalism, we are, we were having a go at him, you know, we were making fun of him.

And he said, you know, that multiculturalism never work, it will end up like America and Australia. And, you know, but we just rubbished him because we, we didn't, I didn't understand. I was, you know, not actively anti-racist, but, you know, basically just liberal person who was, you know, would just rubbish something like that, you know.

But he ended up getting beaten up by these other skinheads, like, so in a group, you know, a gang of them beat him up. They didn't like him. And looking back now, I can see that at least these skinheads were probably crypto Jews as well, because there was absolutely no reason for them to beat this guy up.

It doesn't make any sense. None of this stuff makes any sense. Why would they just behave like that? Well, a lot of them are just animalistic.

Yeah, but they can't, they can't have been, you know, I mean, it just doesn't make any sense. I think I wrote about that in that How to Detect Agents document about, and this is from the advice of that Kalan Campbell guy from Australia, who's the head of the creator, CreativityAlliance.com movement. He was basically saying that anyone who's a skinhead, you can't trust because of that, because of the criminal, so forth.

And basically, that's my understanding of things that most of them are potentially like ex-cons that are given a reduced sentence if they play a role, like that's that's their acting. You know, they're acting as a white nationalist to try to hook people into whatever sort of honey trap and then set them up and, you know, potentially do, you know, get them put in jail or whatever the case or, you know, take down whatever sort of legitimate groups exist. So, in other words, they play a role as a sort of COINTELPRO or whatever you want to call it, just a fed, an informant, I guess, is the word that I was looking for there.

Yeah, these people with, you know, covered with tattoos and that sort of thing, where they just look too stereotypical, I would stay away from. Also, why is Campbell, you know, why are they really anti Matt Hale? Yeah, I know. I noticed that as well.

And basically, according to their story, the slander about Matt Hale is basically that he was a skinhead. He tried to take over the movement and he, you know, did a lot of things like with his judge that he allegedly had their children executed and so forth, or whatever it was specifically, the event that had gotten him incarcerated, that this was basically just, you know, an example of his thuggery for the most part. Yeah, you're still coming in quiet.

But yeah, you said, yeah, you go quiet again. Yeah, Ben Smith, all that stuff. Admittedly, it looks a little bit like a psyop to me.

I mean, even Matt Hale is pushing his, you know, vegan diet, his salubrious living diet. He's got a sort of a, you know, duper smirk on his face quite a lot. He's very well oratorically trained, I guess you could say that he's very groomed in his speech and so forth.

But then again, anybody could be that. So yeah, I don't know. It's just, I agree with the ideas of the creativity movement to whatever extent, but it's not the be all and the end all.

And whether they're operatives or they're not, I still agree with, you know, the ideas of it. So that's how far I would take it. And I would push it as a sort of vehicle of, you know, putting forth very basic ideas to appeal to white people on that basis, as a means of hooking people in.

Are you guys still there? Have you muted yourselves? No, no, I'm here. Yeah. The amount of rubbish, you know, fake stuff is just, you know, I mean, it's clear now why you go into somewhere like Stormfront and it's just cartoonish, you know, just like what Travis was reading before those paragraphs.

It's just, it's just like bloody hell, these people for real, like they seem really, really stupid people. Yeah, real stereotype, very, very stupid and very primal sort of people, you know, really, you know, just reactive is what I would characterize them as. They're probably playing a role as well, right? Especially this one guy who always tries to cover up my post with his ridiculous comments, this Sinistrari guy.

Yeah, the tactic of Jews is to say something after you say it, to change what you said, to twist it into, you know, react as though you said something different than what you did. And for your average person, that kind of works, I've noticed, the average people. Travis, you're quiet again, you're quiet again.

For your average person, looking on to that, it works, it fools them. They don't say, hang on, the first guy didn't actually say that, you know, but they don't, your average person doesn't seem to be able to, it fools them very easily. Yeah, they don't have a sufficient understanding of this so-called movement.

Yeah, all the minutiae involved and they just see the mask, but they don't see the face of so-called white activism they associated with the Stormfront idiots and Dylann Roof. Yeah, I've seen a lot of people on that Stormfront, there was people who, you know, there was a thread where you'd show, you'd have a photo of yourself, like I never did it, but people would have a photo of themselves. Now, I don't know if you ever saw that or if that's stopped now or whatever, but there was, I saw on another website, they'd screenshot it all, this or something like that to make fun of them all, because on this other website, these guys are very like, you know, blue collar, just kind of redneck type of guys, just genuine, genuinely like that.

And so they showed these photos of these people that are, you know, describing themselves as white nationalists on Stormfront and they all had, you know, they all look like they came from a liberal kind of, all the people who put their photos up, I'm sure they would have gotten targeted from this and that they would actually, I'm saying these people were genuine. They had, you know, blue mohawks and, you know, tattoos and stuff like that. I actually, I wouldn't know what the story is with any of them, but I'd have to look at those photos again to see if I could see any Jewish features and things like that.

But, you know, it's possible that there's a lot of people, you know, they had the, I mean, a lot of people got earrings and tattoos in the 2000s decade and stuff like that. That's when these pictures would have gone up there, but yeah, it's sort of like these people didn't really come from a, you know, they weren't rednecks or anything like that. So, you know, it's possible, you know, that just a lot of people from, like I said, in the 2000s, it was almost pretty much mainstream almost to get tattoos and piercings.

They didn't seem like total skinhead type of people, but they didn't seem like sort of more conservative people or, you know, conservative redneck type people or anything like that. You know, they just seemed very liberal, you know, so I'm pretty sure a lot of them would have got targeted from revealing themselves on that site. But I remember they were making fun of them over on this more redneck-y site.

But these rednecks are not, that I'm talking about, I'm calling them rednecks, but not in an insulting way. They're good blokes, you know, like I know them and they're genuine people, you know, but they just, yeah, it's good when you sort of, you know, find places on the internet where you can go there and you know that everyone on there is genuine, you know, and they seem to just have this really great screening system that just works with their natural, like, way of getting on with each other. They just rubbish anyone.

No one laughs there if they're not genuine, you know. What do you think about the Creativity Alliance organization? Apparently Kaelin Campbule lives around in Australia, so I'm just wondering what your opinion of that would be. What's that? The Creativity Alliance.

There's someone, what's his name? Kaelin Campbule. Is he Australian? Yeah, I think it's just pronounced Campbell, I'm not too sure. Campbell, Kaelin, and he's Australian.

Yeah, and he's the head of the CreativityAlliance.com thing, or at least he looks. And this is an Australian organization, is it? It's affiliated with Will Williams of the National Alliance. So he lives in Australia.

Yeah. He lives in Australia, Loki, and he's an Australian and he's the head of this worldwide Creativity Alliance. Yeah.

All right. No, I haven't heard of him. I'll google him, but I'm sure he'd be another waste of time.

CreativityAlliance.com. Doesn't the white biocentrism forum promote that stuff? Yeah, well, white biocentrism is just the Kevin Alfred Strom's Ludwig Clagge's oriented cosmotheist forum, basically. I got kicked off there like three times, at least, because I was criticizing baby boomers, especially. And they couldn't tolerate that.

And then I was trying to give my own content, and then they just totally ignored, you know, totally ignored everything I said and said that I wasn't permitted to do that. And then I actually tried to apply to the National Alliance, but then they said that I wasn't to be accepted because of the case. So that was nice.

But I guess it's probably better not to apply to them anyway, because they'd probably submit their information to the feds or something. I heard that Strom's under surveillance because of his case. I heard that he's under surveillance for like another few years.

It's pretty creepy how he follows me on Twitter. I might want to block him or something. Kevin Alfred Strom follows you on Twitter.

Yeah, yeah. Yeah, I might want to block him because I don't know if he's like, I've heard he's under surveillance. Don't block him.

Everyone's under surveillance. Don't block him. You know, the thing is, what I am most suspicious about him is his appearance.

He's this little twerpy guy. What was his kiddie porn case? I don't know. I'm not fussed about it.

That's the standard Jewish thing. That's what they do. It might have been a setup, but there was this audio of him like admitting to it or whatever.

But that and he also just has a creepy sort of look to him. And yeah, his voice is like, yeah, he's very good. Dissident voices.

I haven't heard Strom. Those recordings, that thing what he came up with about the Jews are this social parasite. I don't know if it was his idea originally, but I was just really sold on that.

And so to find out that he's, you know, when you see him and all this and it just doesn't match up with, I was really impressed, you know, and that's the thing why I don't write him off completely. Well, to learn who rules over you, quote, that was actually from him and not Voltaire. Not many people know that.

Oh, okay. Yeah, there's a lot of lies about quotes. So lots of quote means that are just made up on the internet, isn't there? A lot of stuff like that.

So there's a thing called the Adelaide Institute in Australia, in Adelaide, and they are a Holocaust denying institute. They call themselves the Adelaide Institute. I think it's just one guy and the original guy who was ran it was had died recently.

And he's just the most Jewish looking guy you've ever seen. And like Brian Roo actually interviewed him a week or so before he died recently. He probably didn't die.

He's probably just sitting on the Mediterranean, you know, in Israel right now, you know, listening to Brian Roo interviewed. He interviewed a valley on and she turned out to be like a turncoat. She's a Jew.

She's a Jew. She's too small. Yeah.

And this Adelaide Institute, this guy, some other idiot has taken over it now. And there's another Jew. He's like four foot tall.

You know, it's just I just see it was just Jewish. And they run this thing or he runs it probably just completely on his own. And it's called the Adelaide Institute.

And they're denying the Holocaust like Jim Rizzoli. So there's obviously some thing among the Jews where there's some movement among them of people that want to do away with this Holocaust thing, you know, either maybe because of embarrassment of thinking that the Germans got that many killed that many of them or or some other reason that I don't know. But, you know, they're 100 percent Jewish.

If you have a look at it and you see the pictures of these two guys, you don't need to go any further than that. You know, just idiots. So that's another thing.

And like what I reckon if I like if I looked at the Creativity Alliance, you know, that guy, like I reckon I reckon it'd be just another Jew. You know, it's just so much of it. I think nationalists have a lot of Jews in there.

So I don't know. You know, I have to reign in my personality of of being, you know, not really understanding the social thing of going, you know, of just wanting to say, what's this person involved here? You know, that's where I need to reign in that personality that I have, where I just, you know, if I if I see someone's a Jew or whatever or, you know, I don't worry about trying to get on with people, you know, so I need to reign that in a bit more. But, you know, can you blame me? Like, look at, you know, everything you see that's meant to be anti-Jewish, like Ben Klasson.

And, you know, he looks Jewish as all hell to me, you know, and Kevin Kamak and Linda, the Adelaide Institute, Jim Rizzoli doing this other thing. Yeah. Most of these gurus are basically just Jews, either that or the operatives of the Jews, like I said, Freemasons or Christians for the most part.

Yeah, yeah. It's like Brian Rood on his channel is pushing more aliens created everything, our religions and control system. Yeah, like the aliens are in control of the Jews over the top of them and it's all just giving them an excuse, you know, like for their behavior.

That brings up an interesting point where Michael Aquino, if you look him up on YouTube, he has a channel with no videos and his playlists are, he has one on Atlantis and then another on David Irving and then another on, I think, UFOs and 9-11. So I find that kind of interesting because he worked on military psyops. Yeah, well, that's what was the plan.

I think I forget exactly who it was who formulated it, but they were saying that they're going to plan a staged alien invasion to try to unify so-called humanity against the alien threat. That's what they're building. For the Christians, they'll just say it was Christ or something so that they can hook them all in through creating catastrophes and then saying, oh, look at the saviors come.

Christ is here now. This whole COVID thing is just crazy. Like they really, like there was the premier of New South, no, no, what is it, Victoria, like he really like bought, there's a video of it, I should try and point it out somewhere, but on the news and he really brought, you know, they brought in some really strict, more strict things that you have to, well, you don't have, I don't know if it's legal, but they're trying to make it appear as though it's a law that even if you're in a household, say in a family, if you want to go out shopping, you have to do it on your own.

So one person going out on their own, so you're not in a group with anyone you know. The only thing that they're doing is basically just enforcing surveillance. They're just enforcing trauma-based mind control on the populace so that they could standardize their hive mind and get them to worship the government as their master.

But what are they, like they're basically preparing for anything, aren't they? They could, like from this, this is like more like a wartime kind of, you know, who knows, but it's just, you know, whatever it is, it's a serious thing that could be used for anything. I don't know if there's World War III coming up or what, but something's going on. It's spiritual, psychological warfare on the part of the Jews, using their media to manipulate people's consciousness and basically getting them to do whatever they want.

And then they just go along with it because they have no critical distance and they don't understand that who actually is in control of society above, so they can be easily manipulated. But obviously there are still, in my opinion, forces at higher levels for the whites too, who are aware of what's going on and hopefully they'll at least do something. But you know, you have to do whatever you can do yourself, obviously.

Yeah. For whatever the rest of the population are doing or brainwashed to do, best thing to do is just to keep your distance from them and don't bother sticking out too much because otherwise you're just going to be subjected to what we're subjected to, which is just persecution and gang stalking. And then who knows from there, try to kill us all or something of that kind.

Because I know that that rare audiobooks guy that I talked to, you know, for some reason he just seemed to have disappeared. And then, you know, the last activity he had was when he had the interview with me, just like the day afterwards. And what was uploaded on his channel was this book called Fry the Brain, The Art of Urban Sniping and Its Role in Modern Guerrilla Warfare.

Oh, see, there you go. Guiltbot, he's trying to associate himself with you then. It was an apologist.

I just write people off like that. If someone comes into a chat and says it's not all Jews, it's all these other things. And, you know, it's just obvious at that point, you know, it's all Jews.

Well, he's also pushing Ted Kaczynski's Industrial Society and the Future. He's pushing the Turner Diaries on here, too. Gorillas in the Mist and the sense of the urban guerrilla warfare.

Who are you talking about? That rare audiobooks guy. Oh, right. Yeah, I got up to use the bathroom.

Yeah. My first impression of him, you know, when I when I went on his channel and I also remember him a while ago asking to do an interview. And I found that a little suspicious because I didn't know who he was.

And then the other thing was when I went on his channel, he was pushing like sort of remember that. I thought it was interesting how he uploaded this relatively obscure, you know, show that was on Resist Dotcom from 10 years ago called Ghost Wolf Radio, which is basically about lone wolf activity. And I asked him about it, like I thought it was kind of strange that he really knew about that sort of thing or because it's such an obscure broadcast.

But anyway, when I went on the rest of his channel, he was pushing like I think he had audiobooks of like David Duke and Covington. And he was saying in the discussion that I had with him that he was in the military, like a couple hours into the thing that he was asking me if I was in the military because I used I used the phonetic alphabet, I think, or something or military time. I forget what it was.

The Green Dragon guy also, you know, he was also ex-military. And the weird thing is he puts his name out there, which I think is kind of weird to put your name out there anyway. Well, when you Google his name, he actually was in like, I think, Iraq or something.

But his name was his actual name. His name, his real name is like William Zach. You should see if you can dox him, if you can make another Renegade article about this guy and then try to pick out the aspects of why you think he's this or what evidence you can gather.

I'll try to basically put forth some argumentation and evidence to prove that that is the case as a template or a guide sort of for other people to do the same thing. This guy, you know, is very obscure. Like, I think I don't even think he has a hundred subscribers or anything.

Does he mention Jews? Is he or is he just is he racist? He's just sort of like an like a primitivist, like Baroque type of guy where he lives in the woods and he's on welfare. And he just doesn't he doesn't mention anything about Jews or anything like that. I think some.

What's his thing? Like, what's his thing? What's his thing? But I just. What's his thing on the internet? Yeah, but what's his thing? Is he a nationalist or a racist? Like, what's his thing? Why is he hanging around in these circles? Right. But he yeah, he hangs out.

He watches nationalist type videos and stuff. Obviously, the Jews understand that the so-called white movement is the biggest threat to their power because we're the most intelligent people. And so they do whatever they can to stick all these people against us.

They don't really care too much about the other savages because they're just their stupid cannon fodder. We're the only ones who are intelligent enough to really threaten their tyranny over the earth. So that's why they're always.

Someone who lives on welfare, ex-military and all that, the way you described him, wants to do his own thing. That is prime gang stalking material. They would definitely be stalking that guy.

So if he, you know, it's very suspicious, you know. He's suspicious because I remember when Loki was in our chat. To mention to, you know, be involved with anything anti-Jewish or nationalist.

If they want to survive, they have to be very formidable. They'll come after them. When he was in our chat, you know, Loki was saying right away because he was saying stuff about extermination, you know, kind of like Fed posting, you know, like time to kill.

Maybe he's just really angry for being, I don't know. He could be, but like he said that and then Loki was like, I don't know, this guy sounds like an agent, you know. Yeah, what we need to do is basically make a more comprehensive document with lots of examples, contemporary examples of all these skills and what people can use as a template to detect agents like that smaller document that I had done.

Only it could be amplified and added to so that it would be used by other people to serve as a, you know, as like a practical handbook that they could use to pick people out, give them basic criteria and then amplify it with lots of examples or use it itself to achieve that purpose of exposing like you had done with that Mufashi guy. Well, what's interesting about that is that he interviewed this green dragon guy several months ago, which I thought was, I saw an image of that. Ah, did you get a look at him or was it just audio? No, it is a face, it was like a video kind of call.

Yeah, well, I don't know, it's probably fake if that Mufashi bookshelf guy associated with him. Yeah, everybody else, everybody who's legitimate, he took down their videos, like the one with me, the one with the guy that he was calling Paul for several days. That's so true.

Everybody he took down, everybody who exposed him, he took down. Yeah, that Mufashi bookshelf has a fantastic hairline on him, eh? I don't know if the one with Billy Roper is still up because Billy Roper also like pointed out that like, I don't want, because he asked him again if he could interview him again, but Roper turned him down because he said that, you know, my friends really don't like you, so I'm not going to do an interview with you again. So he might have taken that one down.

I don't know. I haven't looked. The thing about Billy Roper is that he's obviously pushing Christian identity.

And Balkanization too. And that's what, that's exactly what Jews want, because that way they can chew apart society. But the thing is beyond that for Roper, his shield walled organization has got the delta sign, you know, like delta force.

Yeah, it's basically the upward pointing triangle for spirit over matter. It's, you know, a balance, equilateral triangle, balance of the thoughts, emotions and actions. So obviously that's clearly Freemasonic.

And Roper looks a little bit Jew-y himself, in my opinion. And he also pushes white terror kind of stuff, even though he's very against siege. He thinks James Mason's a pedophile.

He claims that anyway. That way it sort of, it presents sort of like more, more options, you know, more fake options, where you have like the siege of Mason, then you have a sort of splinter of that in the form of Roper that can hook in the Christians and, you know, stuff like that. So that's their technique, basically, is just to refine things and create endless splinter groups so that they can keep on dividing and conquering.

And then you're basically, you know, you're... Yeah, the drama that goes on through all this stuff makes no sense. It's just ridiculous. You know, why people just turning on each other.

It's ridiculous. The same thing happens here in Australia with those nationals, patriot type people. It's just so bullshit.

You know, it's just so desperate. The whole thing is so desperate. There's so few people who are willing to give anything and go.

And they get all mobbed by, they get mobbed by a bunch of Jews and stuff. And then these Jews create problems and nobody knows who's what and what's who. And all this stupid drama happens that just wouldn't happen.

You know, like it just doesn't make any sense. You know, it's, you know, if people were genuine, there's not going to be a whole lot of drama like that, is there? You know, all of a sudden, all these little splinter ideologies occur. Like, you know, there's a white Sharia, there's MGTOW, there's whatever it is, single seed line Christian identity.

There's trad or whatever. You know, it goes on and on and on with these splinters and, you know, soap opera individuals where, you know, this star comes out of nowhere and suddenly he's leading some movement for no reason. You know, Tom Kosinski of Maine or, you know, Augusto Invictus or something.

These people. Oh, God, that guy's a freak and a half. Yeah, they basically just show up out of nowhere and then suddenly they're the hero.

Yeah, that's like what they did with Richard Spencer. Richard Spencer, they just pushed him forward and said, here's your leader. And, you know, then they had that, you know, psyop of Charlottesville.

Yeah, and they did that, obviously, dialectically so that they could create chaos so that they could impose their order afterwards, setting a bunch of silly legal precedents and stuff like that, which is obviously what their intention is, just to... What's your opinion of Dr. Michael Hill? Does he seem like an agent or... Because he's affiliated with Christagenia, right? I think so. He's like one of those like Southern nationalist guys. I know that Michael Hill, Billy Roper, Tom Kosinski and Harold Covington, they all did a stream on the topic of balkanization a couple of years ago.

I don't know if you listened to that, but... I think I looked at it. I glanced at it. But obviously, I could tell right away that the very fact that they're all united together implies that they're all, you know, by association, that they are all operatives affiliated with one another.

So if you know that one of them is an operator, then there's a high probability that the other ones are also operatives. So that's just, you know, common sense logic that, you know, the company you keep, you know, suggests what sort of personality you have or what sort of background you have. Yeah.

I just hope I'm not on some kill list or something. Well, same with me. I mean, if these cops and these Jews are tailing after you all the time, you know, that's like they're mocking you before they kill you, just like in Israel, what they do to the Palestinians and stuff like that.

They, you know, persecute and harass them and then they just kill them eventually. I'm sure that's what their intention is anyway. Just too bad all the stupid upper class white people who have a little bit of power don't realize that you're not going to be kept around at all if you are, you know, turning against your own people and siding with the Jews.

You're not... That's right. That's like a floor. It's like everybody's in a cell and the floor is moving out from underneath this and there's people falling off the edge and people are edging to the back of the, you know, back of the room.

You know, it's going to get to them. It will get to them. Yeah, the Jews slip away at the lower class first because they have no power.

And then eventually they start turning the lower class against the upper class so that they can get rid of them. That's what they did in the Soviet regime. And then eventually... You don't have to be steeped in vision to see where this is all going.

You know? Yeah, it's basically you can infer by the rhetoric of the genocide that they're putting forth in their media that that's what their intention is. That obviously they're looking just to set us up for the kill for the most part. Do you want to call this the Aryan imperative? I thought Aryan practical idealism was better because... Oh no, I meant like the name of the podcast or whatever.

Yeah, I guess we could do that. But yeah, I guess that's a good idea to have a title for every one of the podcasts. And then we'll just say, you know, these are the topics discussed.

But if you guys want to put it up on your channels, that'll be much better because that way it'll spread it even more. Otherwise, it becomes way more restrictive, right? Because it could get... Yeah, I can put it on my one. Just have to download it and that... Well, let me know what you want to call it, you know? Well, basically, the only thing though is the green dragon guy who watches my channel.

That's the only thing that's like kind of... I don't know. There's a lot of people watching your channel. Who knows who they are.

They're still coming up on Bitchute anyway, you know? All these videos because when they're... Don't worry about it, Travis. I talk about you and Loki. So, you know, I don't care.

Don't be offended. Online, everybody's ripping into each other anyway and comments and all that. What do you mean talk about me and Loki? I talk about... I talk about... We chatted the other day.

We mentioned Loki, but it's nothing I wouldn't have said to his face, you know? Yeah, as long as it's kept civil and it's based on reason. You don't worry about these dramas online. Everybody says stuff.

I don't even... You know, when you first get on the internet, it's quite confronting, but it's just the internet. That's the way it is, you know? Don't worry about this green... So, you're worried about this green dragon guy because you've mentioned him and that you're worried that you've mentioned him now and he might be watching. Is that what you're saying? It's probably already on you anyway, so you might as well just go all out, right? Like Gangstox said... Don't worry about anyone.

Like Gosling said, you know, either you go out and you assert yourself or you'll just... If you try to escape, then you'll just be like a lion that's wounded, that's being hunted down by hyenas and they'll just... and vultures and they'll just peck you and peck you. Well, a similar case is where... I was in this group chat. This was by that Assyrian guy and someone got into the chat named Combat Assault and he had a Dylann Roof profile picture and that's kind of a red flag in itself.

And basically, he came in there and said... Beforehand, I saw him in the comments say like, Wow, I really like your content. I could see you... He was saying this to me. He was saying I could see him... Well, no, no, no.

What it was, was the Assyrian guy did a video about me praising... He said that I'm the next Earth Sundal. That's what the guy said, the Assyrian guy. Oh my gosh.

You are pretty tough to be the next Earth Sundal. Yeah, I know. I was like, wow, that's a really bold thing.

I was like, that's a really bold thing to say. And then this Combat Assault guy in the comments said like, Yeah, I really like that guy. You know, he's very intelligent and he reminds me... I could see him... He reminds me of Richard Spencer or something.

And then I'm like, uh-oh. And then he's like, So, I would love to give you guys money in some way. I'm suspicious of anyone who says that.

Like, I want to give you some money in some way. Some way to support you. That way they can't trap you because you've accepted potentially stolen funds or something.

Yeah, and then the guy goes and he enters his chat. And then he says, Yeah, Glenn Miller was a hero. And I'm like, okay, this guy has got to be a plant or just crazy.

And then he kicked him out of the chat because he was raising too many red flags. Yeah, the thing with these people though, so long as you're not actually stating anything that, you know, implicates you, then it's really not that big a deal. If you just, you know, just expose them and say, okay, you're just saying this because of this, because of this.

You're just trying to foment, you know, whatever. You're trying to bring about, you know, you're trying to associate me with terrorism or something. Whatever, something like that.

Just refute them pretty easily. Be explicit and just, you know, call them out. Yeah, that's what I did in that... When I uploaded the latest Murdoch, Murdoch AMA, I left Robert Sturgeson's server because I felt that that server, it was full of all this siege posting and people like seemingly wanting to incite violence.

And I was like, okay, I'm out of this. And then this guy, if you look in the chat of the Murdoch AMA I uploaded, he was like, you know, where'd you go? And I'm like, I replied to him and I said, you know, that server looks like it's just looking to paint people as terrorists. And then I got this other account that looked like a plant.

It was like, it was called like Swastiki or something. It looked like a troll account or a plant or something. And it was like, you know, you're a cuck because you don't want to be around people inciting violence.

And then I said, no, I don't think, you know, being careful who you talk to on the internet makes you a cuck. It's just called like not being stupid, basically, not being an idiot on the internet. Yeah, if someone's taunting you, it's very Jewish to taunt someone, you know, I mean, it's just silly.

Don't go on bitch that much, because it's just there's so many of these commenters that are, they're just insane. Like they just leave these stupid comments like that. Yeah, yeah.

I do, I either block them or else I'll just, you know, refute them quickly and, you know, and then maybe block them afterwards. That's what I usually do, pretty much. Like I remember earlier on, I would occasionally get comments that will like, you know, tell me to kill myself and stuff like that.

That, you know, I'm sure you've gotten these kind of comments before. Yeah, they do. They do all that.

Have you ever gotten comments like that? That are like, you know, you should kill yourself. I know, I know when I was on Brian Aru's show, I was getting a bunch of Antifa who had stated that. Yeah, you got death threats, right? Yeah, even though they're allegedly, you know, not necessarily explicit.

They're just sort of like implied and quite a lot of implied death threats. You know, obviously that could be potentially incriminating or suggestive that that might be something they might actually wish to do or bring about. Or, you know, that they're sort of like a mouthpiece.

They're a mouthpiece of people who control them, who have the ability to bring that about. Because these people don't threaten me. These particular people don't threaten me.

What threatens me potentially or makes me aware is all the gang stalking and everything else that's going on around me. And then I can infer that that may very well be the case that they would want to do that. I get threatened in real life.

I get hints of threat, you know. So it's actually criminal assault to menace people in this way. Serious threats, you know.

Serious threats of really, really serious threats. I won't say what they are, but they give me these hints all the time, you know. So, yeah, real serious stuff, you know.

It's quite scary, my life, you know, living out here in a car with these crazy people. In Australia, you're not allowed to have any weapons, right? No, there's plenty of weapons. Anything can be a weapon.

Yeah, but I mean, like in terms of firearms, you're not allowed to have any of those in Australia. Yeah, yeah, well, that's so I need a defensive weapon like that. You know, the Simpsons.

I don't have a defensive weapon, but there's plenty of offensive weapons, you know, around that they can use against me, so. Gosling, are you familiar with that episode of The Simpsons where they go to Australia and there's this Australian guy that jokes about like, that's not a knife, this is a knife. Then he pulls up a spoon and it's kind of like, it's kind of a joke about how you can't defend yourself in Australia.

Oh, right, yeah. That's not a knife, this is a knife. It just holds up a spoon.

No, yeah, you can even get in trouble if you defend yourself in your own house, you know. The plastic spoon. And now we know why.

You get arrested for having a plastic spoon. Yeah, basically what they're doing is setting up the conditions for genocide. They disempower whites and they disarm them.

And then they have criminals and violent people. It's psychotic, it's completely psychotic. Yeah, that's why in my way, I would just, you know, go and involve myself with some sort of people for protection in the States where you could actually have firearms.

Then you might have at least a fighting chance. But in this country, you're just sitting duck. Even though in Canada, it's not as bad as Australia so far as I know for weapons.

Now that I have a weapons ban and everything like that, I'm not allowed to really have any means of defending myself against these people. So they can basically, you know, just do whatever they want to me for the most part. Yeah, yeah.

Seems to be the Jewish way is to disarm people. You know, you can see the way they try and do it with their jujitsu as well. Kind of make you feel as though you're going to get in trouble if you defend yourself.

You know, it's part of putting you on the back foot. It's just an interesting thing, just a bit of trivia. Just what you said before about the spoon.

If you buy plastic, you know, those picnic plastic stuff, like the disposable things. Like if you get the knives, they're just butter knives, but they've got the little saw edge on them. I think they're the ones with the little saw edge on them.

If you go through the self-service checkout in the supermarket, when you put one of those through, it stops and the light goes on and you have to wait for the staff member to come over and put a little code in to carry on with that, because that's seen as something which could be a potential weapon. Plastic disposable knives. That always happens if you buy them.

Yeah, yeah, it becomes ridiculous. Once they make you a criminal, no matter what you do, then you are basically a criminal. So you may as well be a criminal.

You don't have a choice. Yeah, yeah. Well, that's the thing, you know, like I'm basically some kind of an outlaw because I'm targeted by the Jews.

So it just makes you an outlaw. So, I mean, I'm constantly surveilled by police, harassed by police. I've got no rights.

You know, it's just I'm just treated like an outlaw for no reason. I'm not a criminal like you, Loki. I'm just someone who just wants to live really quietly, you know, like.

And that, admittedly, that has kept me free and kept me safe for a long time. It did for a long time, but it just doesn't seem to be working as well as it did. So, yeah.

Yeah. Well, where do you guys want to do you want to continue on yourselves or do you want to? Oh, what's your opinion of do you think Maria Orsic really existed? Yeah, I'm not too sure. I can never really be sure.

Who's that? What's her story about? The Brill Society? Ah, that's probably pretty Jewy. I don't know. Yeah, probably wasn't real.

But I don't know. But that does seem a little bit like a Jewish psyop, according to that blog that you referenced. Yeah, yeah.

It probably wasn't real. And if that's the case, that discredits Serrano, basically. And he was an operative.

So you can never really be sure. Oh, yeah. We already talked about S.A. I feel like we're kind of repeating ourselves here.

Yeah, I've had a few Coomers stalking me. I get Coomers stalking me. I get a lot of Coomers stalking me.

Coomers stalking you? Yeah, yeah. You know Coomers, you know that. Well, that's his name, Siegfried Adolf Coomer.

That was actually the guy. Yeah, basically, anyway, to address that point. Most of that Arminist stuff that came out around the Tindesichl in Germany prior to the Second World War.

Maybe they brought that out deliberately so that they could serve the Germans up as a sacrifice, you know, because they're creating a Völkisch naturalistic Weltanschwang. And that enabled. Maybe it's Freemasonic, because I know that in Ultimate Avatar, you know, he writes a lot about, you know, initiation and, you know, Jungian.

Well, that doesn't mean that that's Freemasonry and that they have an exclusive monopoly on that, because that's just secret societies. Yeah, sure. Yeah, that's kind of a blanket thing to say.

It's difficult to understand all this speculation about, you know, I've been over it many times myself. Some people say that Savannah was an operative because he was on Chilean TV and, you know, and so on. But who can say, right? I mean, obviously what they're saying in terms of their doctrine, like Ebola, that seems quite legitimate.

Serrano's doctrine, you know, it also seems legitimate enough, what he had said. So I can never really be sure one way or the other. All very complicated and difficult to understand.

And then you end up being like Carl Jung, assuming he's not an operative or a plant himself. You know, you just sort of cease to participate in that because you can't really either you've come to your conclusions that it's fake or else maybe you don't know. And so you you can't know.

And then you just, you know, just don't bother involving. Yeah, I'm going to I'm going to definitely read his book and see what his arguments are. It's not a very long book.

Which you can do if you want later. We can do another podcast and you can just sort of review it like a critical review. Yeah, and we can discuss that maybe if you want.

Yeah, hopefully the PDF that I sent you, you could read. Yeah, I've got other stuff, though, that I want to get it, want to be digging into, like the synthesis of racial. That's what I'm reading right now.

Maybe once I'm done reading that, I'll get to the Ghostland book. Yeah, well, basically. What else are you reading besides? Well, because of all these all these podcasts, I've had almost no time because I've got to do my writings and stuff, too.

That's what I've been doing. So, yeah, it's pretty hard to squeeze in the time to do more reading. I've only been getting like an hour a day or something like that at most.

But yeah, there's still it's good. It's important to get all this sort of content out because it's you know, it helps us to understand what's going on and also to, you know, present this information for other people, especially related to, you know, straightening out the white man's thinking in the in that area and practical idealism sense, implementing, you know, thought without action is sterile, implementing the ideas and then specifically analyzing the Jews and their behavior in terms of the gang stalking, which could be which is like a separate thing, of course. So, you know, it's all it's all very important to get out because most people, if they're if they're legitimate at all, they're not dealing with these issues with the minutiae of Jewish psychopathology, if you want to call it that, or psycho demonology is what I call it.

So I think that's pretty essential to get out. I think the reaction to what to what I've been doing, obviously, the Jews are spying on me all the time. You know, the reaction to what I've been doing indicates that it's obviously valuable enough.

Otherwise, they wouldn't react the way they do. So that, to me, suggests that it's something, you know, that should be continued to whatever extent possible. Yeah.

Watch out for the kumis, Loki, as well. Have you got any? Because I had the one who assaulted the Antifa guy was a kuma and then another one a few weeks ago. I picked these stalked me, you know, all right across the state.

And yeah, when I was last speaking, I went to have a fight and all this sort of stuff. And the other the landlord, the kuma, he's a fag kuma. So, you know, and I've heard that about him, too.

He's just very, very, very lonely fag. So and that's why he's trying to rob me for the bond money. So, yeah, the last time I got to watch out for these type of guys.

You were talking about that guy on the toilet you were dealing with. The guy on the toilet. What was this? The last call I had with you, you had that guy.

Oh, I was dealing with that guy on the on the whatever. The other just the other day, the toilet, another toilet. Yeah.

Yeah. It's just come come there hanging around in the car park. And I was yelling at him and he was yelling back at me trying to act as though, you know, he wasn't a Jew and he wasn't involved.

You caught him backing off. No, no. How do you know that he's a kuma? That guy wasn't.

No, no, it's it's kind of obvious with the one that stalked me and tried to pick a fight with me when I stayed in the car that day. It's it's obvious. I don't have to really go into the I don't really want to go into the details.

This guy is very, very, yeah, not not able to you know, he was bald and he was unable pretty young. I don't know, 30 or something. But, yeah, seriously, this guy has serious women troubles and that the bag, the bald landlord, this is aggressive kumas I've got after me.

And, you know, these guys, I mean, they're just, you know, just just stereotypical. You know, they couldn't get a woman to save their lives and they don't have anything else to do. But, you know, stalk someone and, you know, and all that.

There are fag kumas, people don't understand. There are faggot kumas too. Maybe that sort of behavior on their part serves as like a sexual substitute or something like that.

That's how they get there. Well, you know, there's obviously some massive frustrations, but I just know they've got a lot of kumas after me. You know, that sort of play acting and that sort of, you know, teasing and creeping and, you know, because there's an element of danger in it.

So when when there's a possibility of they're getting caught or something, then they seem to derive some sort of sexual excitation. Yeah, well, there's a lot of sexual sexualness about the Jewish gang stalking. It's very perverted.

You know, the whole thing is it's, you know, with Jews, they're dirty Jews. You know, they're dirty Jews. Everybody knows that, call them that, they're dirty Jews, they fight dirty, but they're also sexually dirty.

Freudianism is basically their their mentality in a nutshell. That's the whole behaviorism and sex magic. And yeah, and they get off.

They get off on torturing people and harming people as well. That's sexual to them. Same with pedophilia.

You know, it's in their religion to be a pedophile. It's part of their religion. It's in their mind.

It's in their mind. Their religion is basically an extrapolation of their mind. Same with the Muslim religion, which was created by Jews, apparently also.

Yeah. Yeah. The race race defines race, defines religion and culture.

You know, it's not just something you can't just take. You can't just say if someone hasn't isn't religiously Jewish for a couple of generations, they're still going to be the same because that's where it comes from. You know, so that's what they are.

You know, they're a bunch of pedo, torturing, genocidal, you know, gangsters. The way they always have been. Everything they do.

They're the mob, you know, in those old mob movies and still today. They're the Soviets. They're the Israelis.

They're the Zionists. They're, you know, everything. They make the stuff that snuff rings where they want to kill some child.

They kidnap children and kill the child. They're notorious for their Jewish ritual. And it's real.

It's real. You know, people like to go around and pretend this stuff is just some isolated incident. And, you know, it could be it could be your next door neighbor who did it.

When the reality is, obviously, it is your next door neighbor. Well, what I'm saying, what I'm saying is that the Jews create that sort of psyop where they think they get the populace to think to spy on one another, thinking that, you know, it's a creepy white guy there. But obviously, it's them institutionally as their natural location.

So they project what they do on others so that they can curse others and set them up and frame them and then, you know, exculpate themselves somehow in their mind that that makes them or something. Yeah. Just put it on to someone.

It's scapegoating. That's another mentality of theirs. It's scapegoat.

They can put their sins in their religion. They can put their sins on some poor guy and drive it off into the desert. And then they got there absolved.

They're fine. And they haven't committed any sins now. It's all gone.

I mean, it's just ridiculous. The poor goat. Pretty sure karma doesn't work that way.

It's very specific. It attaches to what you do. You know, bends back around in consequence, causally to you.

Jews want to do a bad deed before they die. They want to make sure they harm people and do as much bad deeds when they've got a terminal illness, all that, you know, want to fuck people over more. And that's what they want to do, because they're trying to oppress their God, which is the evil force, you know, and that's what they do.

Whereas a white person will think, oh, I've got to do something good before I die, you know, and just be genuinely good. That Fair Audiobooks guy. He said that the Jews were like the embodiment of entropy or chaos.

OK, maybe he's saying that. That's probably a good thing. But they seem to be always trying to make everybody confused, don't they? So they can run around sort of, you know, knifing people in the dark.

And what that Fair Audiobooks guy was saying, too, he was saying that, you know, all this spiritual stuff is a waste of time. And he was putting forth his spiritual, his so-called spirituality, which was basically like some type of scientism slash sort of a Abrahamic type thing with a trinity or something like that. He called it process triumphism.

So that, to me, suggested that he was somewhat of, you know, a religious type, like a Catholic or something, maybe a Jesuit or something. But yeah, yeah, that's some dubious behavior. What's your opinion of what Murdoch Murdoch actually mentioned in their latest AMA? I think that they're legit, but I could be wrong.

But they were talking about like how most of these so-called readers and figureheads or turn out to basically be FBI shills. And one of the things they mentioned was that. Do you agree that there is kind of this perception that we're sort of like an Apollonian movement while to start something like, I guess, what, you know, Hitler did or what have you.

It took some kind of romantic Dionysian, you know, passion to really infuse. What's your opinion on their perspective on that? Oh, well, basically, I think that you just have to be a standard yourself to draw people to you because people are, you know, gravitate toward power like a magnet, like Bill Rise. You got Am I just right? Power Hour said, you know, little rise still alive or around.

Well, I've I've occasionally messaged him on Gab and stuff. He's that discriminator guy. But I didn't know he was still around.

But yeah, he he's probably just an operative himself. But, you know, he said lemmings gravitate to power. So that's basically the thing.

If you want people to be attracted to you, you have to radiate power. And that's the result of spiritual self-cultivation. But you don't you don't want to have these lemmings.

You don't want to have that because then every second of every moment trying to nature basically able to your will, the law of nature is that, you know, the stronger force overcomes a weaker force. So the more powerful you are in a in a in the sense of Evelah, basically power in the sense of sort of a magnetic force. I'd like not like just a sort of, you know, cartoonish way than all that.

I'm telling you, it's just bullshit. You don't the Jews are better at that than anyone else. They can manipulate all those lemmings.

I'm not talking about, you know, it's only a matter of time before. I'm saying in general, anybody, every sentient being gravitates toward a higher power than themselves. So you have to be that power yourself, basically.

And however, that may be specifically in your situation, obviously, you know. Yeah. Oh, you've got it.

You've got to like. Yeah, I see what you're saying. I'm not really very good on all that sort of thing.

Obviously, you don't want to attract lemmings. And, you know, obviously, most people fall into the trap of, you know, being attracted to people who are superficial and extroverted types. And most of those guys are the like the feds and stuff that hook people into their system, to whatever honey trap organization.

I'm just trying to go back to my natural snobbery and get back to my what I really am is just a really snobby person. Well, it's better than being in the bar, drinking the liquor down and shouting and screaming because. Yeah, I do that at home.

I do that at home on Skype. On Skype stuff. No.

Yeah, that's the unfortunate thing with this movement that, you know, obviously, because people from the blue collar class have more of a, you know, are more instinctive minded, they're more collectivized. So in order to actually reach people in general who are more oriented toward these sorts of issues, then you you'll get more who are from the blue collar class. And those not to say, though, those from that class are all, you know, degenerates or whatever the case, but as a general rule, they're more prone to like alcoholism and so forth than others from my experience.

So it's not very, you know. You know, I reckon there's a demographic that are often alcoholics is psychiatrists, like not psychologists, just the psychiatrists. Like I went to some nut case once and all he did was talk at me the whole time.

Long time ago that my parents got just the most like incompatible sort of dude like to be talking to me. But he he was you could tell he was a drinker. You could just tell the way he's hot.

You could see it, you know, that he was hung over often and stuff like that. You'd see it was a heavy drinker. But I just can't.

I don't know how those people can do it like in like physical work. I could go hung over. But being you know, he was older than 50.

And, you know, being able to, you know, drink heavily like it was clear to me that he did and then go into an office every day and, you know, get on a perch to to people about, you know, a psych about, you know, psychiatric stuff. You know, no wonder he didn't want to listen. Like, no wonder he only wanted to talk at you.

So, you know, but that's I've just noticed that's also another demographic that drink heavily. I reckon the doctors who that just general medical practitioners. I think that.

Yeah, yeah, yeah. No, that's cool. I think they they use what drugs are available to them and stuff a bit, you know, because there's if you wouldn't and you can do it quite safely, I think, with a lot of stuff, you know.

Yeah, I personally wouldn't want to take any of their medications. I just wrote about that today. I just did a discourse on that today called Mentally Ill.

And it's how the Jewish occupation government uses the hegemonic discourse of psychiatry and mental health. Echo, echo, echo to legitimate incarceration and poisoning of dissidents. That's basically their technique, you know, is to try to justify getting rid of you according to the prevailing discourse of what constitutes truth or probability, you know, science, scientific verification, allegedly.

It seems like what they're doing right now with the whole, you know, COVID vaccine or whatever, uh, how they probably are going to try to push that so you could travel anywhere. Yeah, just make it mandatory in order to do this, this, this. And then eventually it'll be, oh, looks like it's getting worse.

Everyone. Oh, panic, everybody. Make sure you get your death vaccine.

Now it's mandatory. And some of the Jews will be getting the vaccine. They'll just say, oh, we got it.

It's on paper. Right. And then all their doctors will, will sign off on the paper and say that they've got the vaccine and then everybody else will be poisoned and so forth.

Yeah, that they say that a lot of Jews don't get, don't get the vaccines that we've been getting in our lives. They hide behind religious exemption or else they'll just find a Jewish doctor to. Yeah, they like, believe me, trust me, there's all these crypto Jews that live among us and there's a vast amount of them.

They, every doctor, all the doctors are in on all this stuff. They can go to their doctors and they, you know, it's all, they're this in-group in society. Like, trust me, you got, you know, this, you wouldn't even, people just don't even know about it.

Like you would, you don't even know, you know, 1% of like what's going on. Trust me, these people, it's effortless. It's not as though they have to, you know, seek out some Jewish doctor and get some religious exemption.

They work around it. They just work around it. It's not, they don't need to get anything on paper and say a religious exemption or anything like that.

They don't, they don't need to do that. You know, it's just, they work around it. Yeah.

Pretty much all doctors now are Jews anyway. Either that or. Yeah, they always have been.

Yeah. There's always. No, they are.

It's on the, it's on the, I've said it before. It's on that, there's two Goebbels documentaries and one of them says that in the Weimar Republic, just did that. It's got nothing to do with the, well, don't get caught up in the Weimar Republic, but you know, at that time, 49% of the doctors were Jewish, verifiably Jewish.

These are normal general practitioners. We call them here in Australia. There's a different name in America, I think.

Like, and they're all that 49% then at that time. So why aren't they now? And I've discovered they are as well. So, you know, beware of conservatives.

Doctors are very conservative and there's all these liars and idiots and people who want to get on a certain train of thought throughout anything Jew wise or white nationalists on the internet and everywhere where they want to talk about leftists and all that sort of thing. Beware of conservative people. It's got nothing to do with some lesbian with a Mohawk in a gay pride parade.

You're not, that's just one little thing of it all. That's just one thing. Yeah, yeah, I did see that.

I would agree with that. Alex Linder goes on about how the conservatives are the big problem. And he's right.

They are worse because people despise loony lefties. They are loathed. You know, there's no way that they are the biggest problem because everyone hates them.

The mainstream hate them. You know, like the very fact that there is a mainstream that's oppositional to that obviously implies that they're, you know, just a dialectic. It's not really anything else.

But if I could just mention that I wrote another little discourse called fourfold propaganda strategy for white nationalists. And one, I put like Hitler and Mussolini did appeal to the blood memory of the folk, which appeals to the majority of the average people. Then number two, attack the conservatives as per Alex Linder.

Number three, appeal to the white elites as per Greg Johnson, although I obviously am not a fan of his. And number four, convert hippies to Nazis as per George Lincoln Rockwell. So just like Rockwell did, you know, appeal to the leftists who are genuinely concerned, you know, like environmentalists and stuff, people who actually care about, you know, decent issues and are good people there because they'd obviously be deterred by all the money grubbing Bible banging idiots in the conservative camp, which is all the conservatives are for the most part.

Yeah, well, I don't know, you know, I mean, the whole thing of trying to appeal to people, you know, I'm like really blackmailed on that whole thing. You know, I just I can't see any point in trying to either people will seek it out if they want to. And, you know, I think I think that there is an enormous amount of people, particularly working class people who will, you know, sit in their lounge rooms and bitch about the I'm very isolated.

But from the little I know, there's a lot of people who care about stuff. But I don't I think you don't need to really appeal to them that much like that. If you either do or you don't, it just doesn't make any difference at the end.

And a lot of them like that. Cronulla riots, in my opinion, and it's generally it's the general, you know, thing is that it just happened on its own from text messaging, maybe maybe even Facebook. I don't know.

But it actually reputedly worked from complete word of mouth. So and it just spread and it just happened like it was actually a genuine thing. And these people were not the people there.

These were not sort of people who are white nationalists or, you know, get on Skype like us or say anything like this that they weren't. You know, these are not people who are, you know, involved in white nationalist groups or patriots or anything like that. These are just people who are pissed off about it.

So, you know. Yeah. Once things get chaotic enough, then a lot of people will be doing that.

But at the same at the same time, you don't want to be having said that again. You don't want the Jews to control the opposition, to lead it to their agenda, too. So obviously, just keep pushing out as much in the way of content as possible and reach people through clandestine means.

Well, they need to learn. And it's just that the misinformation is a thing. So that's the thing what I see about just as an example, the BitTube thing.

You know, it's like when you go somewhere and, you know, to some sort of when you're looking for answers on the Internet or something like that, you know, you do need to learn this stuff somewhere. Like it took me so long to work out that cultural Marxism was the same as communism. Right.

Because I was brainwashed my whole life thinking that communism is just an economic thing. And that's all it has to do with anything. And that was my learning of how to connect that was severely hampered by these stupid right wing white nationalists who, you know, because I'd see they were going on just back to what we were talking about before.

They would go on about how capitalism is great, you know, and and then because they were going on about that, capitalism is so great. And I'm just like going, oh, you know, and I would even look at national socialism. Go there.

They're against capitalism. Hitler always talks about he's always against capitalism and communism. And, you know, so I would look at that and that really hampered my it took me years.

And I looked at this stuff every day and it actually took me years to work out how the proper link between communism and cultural Marxism and these people were always saying, you know, to me, like, you know, it's the same thing, man, it's the same thing and all this sort of thing. But it took me so long to work it out because I was so brainwashed by the economic thing and also these these people touting capitalism. And that got me confused.

And then, you know, God, it took a long time. I mean, I can't even really explain how much. But now I just look at it and go, oh, yeah, that's what it is.

You know, you have to get it out of your mind that it was just an economic thing. You know, that's just one little thing of it. In fact, I still don't really understand it.

You know, like why they make people dependent on the state by making them. You know, we've seen it happening right now with the covid thing. All these people are out of work and they doubled the doll in Australia.

At least they doubled the unemployment thing. Right. So and that's a big step up.

You know, you can live on double doll, you know, and they didn't do that to me. Like, you know, they've just made it happen. It's everything in my life told me that we were going away from being a welfare state.

And we were that was we had more of a welfare state, like more of that really in the 70s. And it's I've seen it progressively go away. Now, boom, it's suddenly back.

It's very, very strange. You know, I don't know. I don't really understand it all.

Trying to make sure that people are bound to the government and look upon the government as their. Yeah. And then you're dependent and then they can.

Yeah, because that's what I am first place. But they don't understand that because they're gullible. Right.

So they just believe whatever the false dialectic is put forth. You know, this right wing, left wing type stuff. So they can't find that paradigm.

It's like the information is so much misinformation out there on the Internet. There's constant sort of things where it's difficult to find the right info if you're looking for it. And you can get fooled for a long, long time by by nonsense, you know.

So, you know, it's just and then when I look at it now and like I look back now and see all of these white nationalist people throughout the American sort of history of these ones, you know, they're all Jews. And, you know, and you see I look at Kevin McDonald stuff. I see it's disinformation.

It's got a lot of good stuff. And then and then there's the case thing that people go on about. And, you know, just it's just all this stuff over and over and over, you know, about all these this things that mislead people, even with gang stalking.

When you first look into that, I was I wasted about two years and probably had a lot of harm done to me through. I first heard about gang stalking this guy, Morris, who is a Jew who lives in some sort of Asian country and talks about Zionism. And it's a YouTube thing.

And he mentioned he had a video on gang stalking and it was on some web forum. And that's how I got on. But that sounds like what's going on to me.

I looked into it and then I had all this misinformation and then sort of ended up wasting a couple of years before I could nail it that I had it that this was definitely happening to me. So that misinformation works and it's fucking up people trying to find their information on the Jewish problem and white nationalism and how it works. You know, it's basically why I'm always trying to attack Christianity and the right wing now.

I don't waste my time. You know, a couple of years ago, I would critique a lot about liberalism and things of that sort because I was influenced by the alt right to some extent. But yeah, then you pretty quickly come to understand that, you know, it's just obviously they're deliberately shifting attention away from real issues about the right wing bullshit as a fake, you know, hope, false hope.

You know, all you have to do is just vote and, you know, you can vote your way out of the problems of this society and so forth. Well, it's kind of like what you see, like Vince James do this quite a bit where, you know, like, yeah, the Republican Party just vote GOP, you know, and oh, Tucker Carlson is our guy. And, you know, they're acting like Tucker Carlson is like Saul from Hunter, you know, like he's that guy who's telling the truth that they can't stop or whatever.

Right. Yeah. Yeah.

Obviously, that's bullshit. Yeah. Yeah.

Yeah. Yeah. You can see it all now.

It's all coming out. I mean, I see so many videos. There's some some Jew harassing some female cop on the border.

Like I think he was I don't know where he was going out of South Australia or something. And it's just some just, you know, like all this COVID stuff. And you see these people come forward.

I've seen on other channels where they have like a COVID protest or whatever. And there's just some Jew standing up there with a microphone, you know, and you just look at it. And I just know whatever they're putting in place now with this police state, this step up of the whole thing, it's not going to go away because of a bit of token resistance.

You know, all it is is just another just a little steam valve, you know, so people can look at it and go, oh, look, you know, this is what it is. And they never stopped with mass immigration, did they? They never stopped. If people were having miserable in the 50s and 60s in Britain, you know, these people were just crushed, you know, by this this happening to their country.

And, you know, but it never stopped. Never stop. You know, none of these things stop.

And that was the most shocking thing I've ever heard happen to anyone ever from their own government. White people withdrawing from the system, totally trying to form their own communities and then opposing the system to whatever extent possible, ideally from within and their own communities in the sense of not, you know, trying to hide away like the Branch Dravidians or Ruby Ridge, because then you're a target for drone strikes or whatever else. But just associate organizations in in wherever, whatever region you're a part of.

That was a great spot up there on the ridge there and for their house, wasn't it? In Ruby Ridge. That was a cool, cool spot up there. But that bit of land, I don't know what road access they had to drive up to it.

But I suppose it was probably up a ridge. There's nowhere you can hide unless there's some sort of passage to the hollow earth where you're protected by some type of. Yeah, they're right up there.

Yeah. But it's just I just thought it was pretty cool spot. What I'm saying is that there's nowhere on the earth you can go to escape because they've got all the sorts of technology to come after you anyway.

So yeah, unless you can go into the hollow earth and sort of, you know, magically escape or whatever, then there's no way you're going to be able to get away. So you may as well just plug yourself into society as a ghost, ghost wolf in the light side sense of lone wolf activism, and then just do what you can. Yeah.

I don't know what to do about this, this stalking stuff, because, you know, like, you know, you just have to kind of try and stand the ground in some way. But then just sort of be very careful, you know, because it just seems to be like they, you know, like to sort of get you trapped up in all sorts of things. And, you know, it doesn't seem to be any good solution for what you meant, you know, how you meant to deal with it.

So, you know, I don't I haven't really dealt with it very well. But that's because I'm very isolated. I think that has been a lot of the reason why I haven't been able to deal with it very well.

So I think I deal with it better now, though. Well, maybe we should just end it now, because it's like three hours and fifty five minutes. Yeah.

Yeah, OK, cool. Gets a little bit, get a little bit burnt out after a while talking like that. Since the microphone for me is so quiet, I have to, like, shout into it, basically.

Yeah, we need to get better equipment, don't we, to do it properly. But I think it just it's really good to talk. And, you know, just if we just keep talking, things will become more clear.

Like, I think we'll get there. To refine our position more and more to come. Yeah, yeah.

And there's no the worst thing is being isolated. You need to actually have contact with people. It's just necessary.

So even if it doesn't feel like we're getting much done, it doesn't mean we are still like no matter what, as long as we're just, you know, discussing it. Yep. Well, I guess I'll go now.

So all right. Yeah, I'll see you both. Very insightful.

Yeah. Have a good rest of your nights, I guess. Yeah.

Thanks, Travis. Yep. See you later.

Nordlux: The Fall of Man

that the white man, the honorable descendants of the Atlanteans, of the Hippoborean race, is ruled by merchant parasites from the Middle East. So, what do you think, Zygarde? Well, I think that that's exactly, definitely a sort of mystery, one might say, the mysterious origins of the white race is the issue for this, and the fall of man. As you said, the white race being the only men, because in Sanskrit, man means mind, manas, and that obviously suggests a connection to what may be called the divine mind, or mind with a capital M, that, you know, those who have that mind, who have the mind of God, if you want to call it that, or a higher consciousness, who are tied in with a higher states of being, or reality, higher dimensions, you know, if you want to call that a god man, or a heavenly man, as it's called in Taoism, we are really the only men in that sense.

So, what is our origin, why do we, why have we fallen to this depth at this time in history? That is basically the topic of the show, is the fall of man, and why we are where we are. And, of course, there's all sorts of subject matter discussed by so many occultists, and, you know, it becomes very confusing what sources to consult, and what can be trusted, and what is biased by the Jewish falsifiers of history, especially the Freemasons, a lot of the Freemason operatives of theirs have deliberately distorted things, so that they portrayed the origin of man, so-called, as this, you know, magic alien being, or as a non-white, and suddenly white people just are, you know, either a defective mutant, or they are some sort of Atlantean black magician who goes around, you know, harming the innocent Negroes, and destroying their wonderful, peaceful societies. Those are basically the two interpretive stories, or narratives, that they contrive to get to the point where they get to today, and then simultaneously putting themselves on a pedestal as a sort of chosen superior being, such as in Zachariah Sitchin, that comes from some sort of wonderful world, or whatever the case.

So, the question is, what can be trusted in all this occult lore? I don't know about you, what sources have you consulted that you deem, you know, trustworthy and untrustworthy? I personally, in my, well, every, like a young man, obviously, I started to read history, very interesting history, since my high school years. I had a very good teacher of history, a friend of my family, and he had a very interesting way to present the history. He even was dressed with old Bulgarian armor and clothes, and this actually raised the interest to the subject of his history, Bulgarian history.

What I found is that most of the books are written by a biased so-called scientist, that in many cases are directly or indirectly influenced by the Jews, or the Communists, which is mostly the same, like Jews, or Masons, which is mostly the same, like Jews. Mostly, right? Maybe there were some Masons that were maybe a little bit less influenced by Jews, but mostly they are Judaic. So, I started to look at the sources, like first of all, who are pro-racialist sources? Then, what is the material that they're working with? Are there any material evidences, like archaeological evidences? Are these evidences proven, but something else? Because in some cases, the material evidences are also falsified.

Are there any genetical evidences, for example, trustworthy geneticists that are making, and this is also quite debatable, about the genetics and different companies that could collect genetical data, this is also a thing. A lot of Jews are interested in genetic research, which is also rather suspicious. The third source, of course, is literature.

Are there any authentic sources? And I must tell you, a lot of the historical sources are not authentic. You can read them and say, oh, they meant, for example, the Romans wrote something about the Celts, or something about the Jews, or something about the Germans. But if you read deeply, you'll find that this source is either rare written much later, so this means that the source could be falsified, or it is written by a biased people that are not trustworthy.

For example, Giordanis, the author of the Gothic history, in his writings he admits two things, that he is not a historian, and that he is writing one of his other less known works, that he worked on behalf of the Roman emperor, Byzantine emperor, if you wish. So he was like a paid shill propagandist? Yes, he was a politician with his political agenda, so he twisted a lot of history. That's why, for example, a lot of modern Romanians, mostly because the Romanians also wanted to be part of this ancient history, they claimed that they are descendants of the Dacians.

That's what Padre Anio claims. Yeah, but if you look at, I mean, it depends how you look at the history, right? Because Romanians, generally speaking, they are very close to Bulgarians, and looking at historical perspective, they won't like it, they won't like it, but for a very long period of time, they were in the Bulgarian empire, and also part of the great old Bulgaria that was not called by Bulgarians great old Bulgaria, in the modern day Ukraine, and also in the Karpatos mountains that were part of Romania. So, from my perspective, the two nations are quite close together historically, which I don't claim that they're Bulgarians, obviously, but genetically speaking, quite close together.

Actually, closer together than, for example, Bulgarians and Serbs. So, which, by the way, Bulgarians and Serbs are also not so distant, but anyway, I mean, a lot of Romanians, this was my thought, a lot of Romanians actually pointed out that the history of Jordanes is actually the history not of the Goths, but of the Geths, which are much older Thracian tribe, northern Thracians. So, he mixed knowingly, unknowingly, the history together, and also Jordanes fucked up the Hunnish history, and there is a reason for that.

The Romans at that point, and maybe the Jews behind them, they played a very, I would say, brutal political game against the Hunnic alliance that destroyed the Western Roman Empire, and if you research what happened after the battles with the Huns, you'll find that Attila was poisoned, most likely, that a lot of his allies and fellows were poisoned, that the people that fought against the Huns, the Western Goths, for example, and the Franks, a lot of their rulers were poisoned or killed, or the Romans in some way or another used different intrigues against them, and my general feeling is that there was a lot of political trickery. Basically, the Romans tried to divide their enemies, including on the racial basis, and you can see, for example, late 18th or 19th century descriptions, for example, the Vandals. Vandals, and this Italian basically propaganda pictures, quite beautiful, by the way, pictures, drawings of the Vandals that were paid by the Vatican, and you will see that the Vandals, that European tribe, some people think that they're Germanic, some people claim that they're Celtic, Eastern Celts, some people claim that they're Slavic, whatever, they're Europeans, so they must look like Eastern Europeans, let's say.

I will suppose that there are some depictions of the Vandals being quite tall and quite handsome, but they, in these 18th, 19th century drawings of the Vandals, they're described like Negroes, like Northern Africans. So, who is it described by in the 18th and 19th century? Was that Freemasonic historians or Jews or something? No, no, no, there are drawings that I'll try to find that are describing the Vandals fighting the Romans. Of course, the explanation was that these Vandals, they came from the town of Cartagena for the old Carthage, yeah.

Right, which is Northern Africa, which is basically where Morocco is now, I think. Yeah, and they try to say that the Vandals mixed there, which is not true. So, this is the thing with the Vatican, the Romans, the Jews, they're mocking their enemies on the racial basis.

Right, just like now, just like today. The same thing we can see in the First World War propaganda against the Germans, the Huns, how they're described. Prussian militarism.

With almost animalistic features, eating babies, the same with the Bulgarian soldiers in the First World War. So, this is what I think historians must always take in mind, that in the ancient times there was also racial slurs, there was also black propaganda, and of course, the Jews. The Jews are also part of this process, especially in a very fertile ground like Rome.

Late Rome was not Aryan, or at least it was heavily influenced by the Semitic spirit. Late Rome was basically like America today. It's full of tenements, and the Jews owned all the tenements, and people were living there like, you know, ten to a room, and the tenements were falling apart and so forth, and then they allowed all these Near Eastern traders to come in throughout the couple hundred years before it fell apart, and the Romans tolerated all those cults, which are the equivalent of today's, you know, crazy ideologies that are tolerated in America.

I think that also we underestimate the role of Christianity. I think that the Northeast Germanic tribes that were never conquered, the Sarmatians that were never conquered, the Northern Thracians that at that point must be mixed with the Sarmatian tribes, which are modern-day Romania, they were more or less never conquered, or conquered for a very short period of time. All these people knew that Rome is a very dangerous enemy, and they decided to avoid it, but of course there was an inner division.

It was not a peaceful process, so that's why Rome was so surprised, and maybe there were some mercenaries on the side of this alliance, maybe Great Scythia or something like that, because there is the name Great Scythia, this confederation of Scythian Aryan tribes that was enormously big. It's from modern-day Northern Bulgaria to Central Asia somewhere, most likely modern Kazakhstan to the South, it was reaching India, and of course India until maybe the 5th century was from this era, the upper caste at least were predominantly white Aryan, even though some people said that the race mixing and the even Jewish infiltration started a lot earlier, so maybe there was even Jewish infiltration since the start of the new era. Right, new era with the Christian dominion, when they just swished the pagan to the Christian as a means of more effectively unifying all the disparate so-called races together as part of their plan for the melting pot, just like in today's society with the melting pot ideology of America, only now it's not so much Christian, it's more liberal and communistic, but they're the same sort of value system, which is egalitarianism, and the Jews use all this sort of propaganda, this falsification of history, not only to attack their enemies and portray them in a negative light, slandering and smearing, but also as a means of encouraging people to embrace that which is other to themselves, so-called humanity as a whole, when in reality it is just a ragbag of diverse species of beings that are forcibly intermixed and have the capacity to interbreed with one another, just like a lion and a tiger, they have a capacity to breed together, or a horse and a donkey, but their offspring are invariably sterile over the generations.

You, I think, explain it quite well. I think that this melting pot is helping the Jew, the natural process of degeneration, so to say, or I must say it's not natural in the nature, because the nature is helping the racially pure and the healthy and the strong, but it's natural in the weak, degenerative civilization, like it's the Roman type. It's a necessary condition of destroying Aryan society, is disintegration.

Ebola called that the ferment of disintegration, so that's what the Jews are, they're the ferment, in other words, like the yeast that causes the disintegration to accelerate. They're the germs in society, the bacilli or the virus that replicates itself and spreads outward, just like cancer in a body, for the most part, and it rots it from within. That's their technique to destroy other people as individuals, as well as whole nations and so forth, just to decompose the enemy.

One of the major elements of that, so we must look at from two different perspectives, the fall of man. One is the written history, so to say, the other is the mythological history. We know, for example, from mythological history that Atlanteans, according to Plato, they lost their godly essence.

Their bloodline, the lineage of the gods, they started to mix with the human line, and this caused degradation in civilization and eventually the fall of civilization. I think that's also in the Bhagavad Gita in India, where they speak of the devias, who are blue bloods and actually blue, and then they interbreed with them and that creates a degradation or the fall of man from a higher spiritual state, which would be called the first estate in Christian identity. Is it possible the blue bloods to be just the white man, which veins you can... Maybe.

Because, for example, I can see my veins, but if you look at some, I don't know, turk or some gypsy, they definitely cannot see their veins. No, that's the thing. So it's debatable whether they actually have any blue blood, because so far as I've heard, once you cut yourself and blood comes out of your body, according to some source, blood is actually a gas, and when it mixes with oxygen, then it liquefies and solidifies and it turns red because of the heme, the iron in blood, and the iron, you know, it takes on oxygen and then that becomes red, whereas it's blue in the veins.

I am kind of skeptical of that, but it is possible because some people really claim that they're very rare type of people with blue blood, which the main element of most of the people is the iron, and in their blood you have copper. Right. Now, this is a claim I'm not absolutely sure because I've read it in one quite vague scientific magazine that there was some very rare types of people, Europeans by the way, that really with blue blood, and there were some strange claims that, for example, the warriors of the areas of the first day wore bronze or copper armor and that's why their blood became blue, but this is quite a stupid claim.

There's always materialistic claims that they make to try to shift people's attention away from the spiritual reality. I heard that actually the blood cell, the heme portion, is actually copper in some of these people, those who are derived from the gods, and that might be correlated with rhesus negative blood to whatever extent, which means that you're not related to the simians or those who are the different species of being, which is rhesus positive. I was kind of interested in the negative type of blood, which was because my mother is a negative or a minus, and for a very long period of time I thought that I'm a negative, but it looks like I'm a positive, like my father.

So this partially debunked the myth that you basically must be that the negative and positive could not breed together. But also I must point out that the A blood type overall was connected with the Kurgans or with the Arians. Is that the pontid blood type? The Sarmatian blood type, and I believe a lot of these early Kurgans or, I must say, Yamnaya people had the same.

Yeah, they talk a lot about rhesus O negative blood being one of the so-called god blood types. I had a girlfriend that was O negative. She had some interesting things, at least I found quite sensitive.

She had some kind of sixth sense, which by the way, the women in general have more than men. I can say that the women don't have much of male logic, obviously, but about sensing things, predicting things, the women are much better. Right.

That's why they're used as mediums throughout history. Yes, and she definitely had the gift in that. So like psychic powers? Kind of.

I even at some point tried to encourage her to start to train her gift because everything that you have like a gift naturally could be developed. But she was kind of afraid. Right, too afraid of demons or something? Not exactly demons.

She was afraid of predicting future because she had these bad experiences with her past of predicting some bad events. More so because that would be useful even in the most crude way of gambling or something to amass money for yourself, betting on sports or whatever. So about the zero negative, there is something about that.

But honestly, I had quite a lot of friends, if you think about it, with negative blood type, even though on average, I believe in Bulgaria, the negative blood type is not. I mean, I saw that on average, it's more or less like in Denmark, but there were some countries with higher negative. Yeah, I think there's the Basque, the Basque people in Spain and then in Ireland, too.

Apparently, there's a lot of high percentage of that bloodline there. And of course, if you look at the Irish people, even though they so far as I know, don't look like Basque people too much, you know, they have very sort of Nordic hyperborean features, red hair and, you know, very pale skin, blue blood skin where you can see the veins. Yeah, but the Basques on average don't look like that.

Yeah, I mean, they're white people, definitely, but they're not Nordic looking. So I think with this, maybe there were also some cast of Atlantis, maybe from this, or maybe they lived, they had these genes from the start of their ethno-genesis or genesis. And they were, because they lived in the mountains, and of course, they, different people with very specific language from the Celts and from the Goths and from the later Spaniards, they formed themselves in that secluded area, and they preserved the specific blood type.

Maybe, maybe, this is also an interesting conversation. But overall, overall, there are some myths about the blood types, the negative and positive, and I think that in the present day, it's very hard to determine who is who on the basis of the blood type. Right, yeah, it's not a very good index.

Also, there are a lot of Jews, mostly Ashkenazi, which are European Jews, especially this means Scythian Jews, if you want, even though they were Semitized, they mixed, obviously, with the Semites. Yeah, you can hear them bragging about that in a lot of their propaganda. A lot of these conspiracy theorists are the Ashkenazi Jews, and they're using that as a means of trying to affirm their superiority, their relationship to the gods, like Sitchin.

They're basically trying to tap into that whole mythos of being derived from some sort of higher beings through the sort of Zachariah Sitchin angle of the origins of man in the form of aliens coming to the earth who are somehow good, you know, as spoken of in the Bible with the Nephilim, and that's racist negative origin, which may be true, but they've tried to appropriate that for themselves and take that from whites, but my thought is that basically white people probably were that. I think that there was a specific type of genes that you can find in the white people, but it doesn't mean that all white people had these genes. This is the same with Buddhism.

In Buddhism, you can find, for example, quite a lot of feminists in Bulgaria being brunettes, they have blonde kids. Right, recessive genes that they have. Yeah, yeah, and this is one of the explanations of these Scythian Kurgans that you can find, Kordid, Nordids, and Pontids, basically, side by side, because basically, the sexual selection in the upper caste, you can have the more, and they were polygamic, right? But anyway, so they could select the best looking blonde women and have reproduced these genes.

So, overall, that was my argument about the Nordic Varg, that he's trying to isolate people on the basis of primitive colorism, and the things are much more complicated, and he could basically sacrifice blonde genes in the brunette people that otherwise could, and of course, it depends, there were all different types of brunettes, the same, there is a different type of blonde people. There are also, and a lot of people don't realize that, but there are Nordic types that are not Aryan types. For example, in the north of Russia, and in the north of Scandinavia, there are Laplandic types, yeah, they're blondish and with blue eyes, but with obvious Mongolian features.

So... That might have been a result of a mixture, of course, between the Mongoloids. And the Varangians, I think that's where the Varangians came from originally, wasn't it? That was like in northern, sort of, northwestern Russia. Yeah, yeah, but I don't think that the first generation of Varangians actually mixed with them.

But there was a very interesting thing about the Varangians, there was some kind of like, I mean, the Russian Vikings and the Volga Bulgarians, actually, it looks like they like each other for some reason. And there was a lot of mixed marriages between the two sides. I believe that the Varangian Chieftain, or as you want, took a Bulgarian princess and vice versa.

There was a lot of mixing there. And I spoke with a guy from Russia, a historian back in the time, and he claimed that this was on the basis of a very strong network connection between the Swedish Rus and the Volga Bulgarians. They had very strong trading connections.

And he proved that with these, basically, these famous Viking swords that were produced, or at least the materials for them were produced in Volga Bulgaria. I don't remember the name of the sword, but this was very popular in the Vikings. It was the, I would say, the original sword that, according to some people, Excalibur was based on that sword.

Excalibur, the sword? Excalibur, yeah. It was based on that because for its time, it was a very strong sword, almost unbreakable. And some people thought it was produced from Damascus steel, something like that.

So this was his explanation. I think that, in general, these people mixed because they were not so different from the get-go. Yeah, maybe.

Usually, all these explanations for foreign invaders, for example, Turkey, according to the modern explanation, what is Turkey, and Hunnic, and all these, and their forming states, and they're mixing together. This is modern bullshit history. The Mongols never managed to establish a stable culture, for example.

Even though they controlled quite vast territories, they never built strong culture, never built institutions, never built cities. The Mongol elite, even though a lot of them were mixed, they were afraid to sleep in the cities. So at some point, they were forced by harsh punishments to sleep in the cities.

Because if you're a Mongol Khan, you need administration, you need nobility, you need people that are living in the cities and control the cities. And when your people actually are sleeping under the open sky, because they're afraid to sleep in the cities. Superstition.

Yes, it doesn't work. The savages are always very superstitious creatures, just like with the KKK, the Negroes were always thinking that they were ghosts and so forth, and would always run away and so on. So that's definitely something to take into consideration, that if you're going to be fighting against these people, these beings, and you want to understand their psychology, that they can be easily manipulated through all sorts of crazy ideas or appearances, that they're very easily manipulated by appearances.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, absolutely. I mean, the first stable non-white state or Turkic state, as is the modern understanding of Turkey, is basically modern Turks, which is not exactly right, as well as the modern Turkic-speaking people, which is also quite a vast, different type of people speaking Turkic languages, including there are some Aryan, maybe Aryan Kolkhoz looking people. Yeah, you see a lot of those blue-eyed, green-eyed Turks.

Yeah, yeah. And also there are some Mongols that must be the original Turkic people, but it looks like, from my research, that the original Turks, the name Turk most likely came from Tur, which was one of the gods of the Scythians, and the original, especially the upper caste, were Scythians and they were Aryans. Yeah, that's basically the fall of man in a way.

There's another good source, I think it's called James, what is his name here, I'll try to find it. He wrote a book that explained why Egypt and various other of the ancient civilizations of Aryans fell apart through race mixing and citing quite a lot of detail about that specifically. And in Egypt, yeah, his name is James Denson Sayers, Can the White Race Survive, is a book that he wrote.

And that book basically explains in quite a lot of detail about Egypt and how it fell apart mainly through white males intermixing with Negro slaves, whereas the white females were not as keen on intermixing. Yes, this is, by the way, the same process happened with the Scythians in the Far East. It looks like, at least I think it's a very obvious process, that the lower-ranking warriors, because the Scythians were polygamic, and the lower-ranking warriors, there was not enough women for them, at least from what I've got, they started to intermix with the Asiatics.

And when I say Asiatics, they most likely mixed with the Northern-type Chinese. And in the Chinese sources, there are also some very interesting things about some of the emperors. Some of the emperors are supposedly coming from the sky, they're white dragons with blue eyes.

I actually heard that the Yellow Emperor was white. Yeah. That's like the most famous of the Chinese, the most ancient and famous of the Chinese emperors.

The story is quite strange how his mother was kidnapped by a storm, and then she was returned pregnant with her, and she described that the father is a white dragon. Now, first of all, the symbol of the dragon, most of the listeners could recognize the dragon like a Roman symbol, but actually the dragon was used like a standard, like a symbol from the Scythians. From the Scythians and from the Sarmatians, which is the late variation of the Scythians.

So they used the dragon. And the question is, where does that come from originally? Why did they conceive of that exactly? Is that because there's some sort of paleo-origin of a different devia or different species, like Edward Bulwer-Lytton's, the Vrilias? I think that there is something with the lost mythos of the Aryans, because the dragons were also used by the Celts. And they were not always negative force.

It could refer to the Kundalini too. Yes, yes. There were negative dragons, like in Bulgarian mythology, but there's one good dragon in Bulgarian mythology that actually it is the white dragon Barj, which is a little bit like a Christian message there, but he sacrificed himself because there was a prophecy that this monster, this black Hava, if you get the connection, this dragon-like creature that is most likely the son of Yaha, this Demiurge, or the Yaha himself.

That's similar to Fenrir. Yes. The son of Loki.

He could be killed only if a white dragon, basically the horse, the smith warrior, horseman, he found this prophecy from his wife, if I remember one of the white goddesses, and she had this leap and she said that the great evil is coming and all the gods will die unless horse defending the fortress of the white gods and things like that. And the only way is to forge an axe with his godly powers and to quench, I believe quench is the term in English, to quench the axe in the blood of the white dragon. And he was quite shocked because the white dragon basically was part of the godly unions of these good dragons.

And Barj, when he found, he listened, basically he decided to sacrifice himself. And his blood was used to forge, to quench the axe called Vila. Yeah, that's not the right term.

The word would be maybe just like buried, if you're burying the axe in somebody. Yeah. So the axe Vila, which means will, that at the end of the Bulgarian mythological cycle actually killed this black monstrous entity and this caused the total rout of the Yugi, these demonic forces that are around him.

I think that might be alchemical symbolism, like hermetic symbolism for when you're overcoming their base drives and that you elevate your consciousness through somehow harnessing the forces of that dragon, the white dragon into yourself. And then that helps you to recognize the dark forces and then overcome them maybe somehow. Yes, this could be kind of Jungian if you think about the archetypes because you're finding this power in you and you recognize the power and you're not afraid like the Christianity is trying to suppress that power and basically to leave you weak and pathetic.

But in the pagan myths, you are finding this power, using the power. And even a sacrifice for your folk is not like the passivity of the Christian sacrifice. It's just totally different.

The sacrifice of a warrior, Aryan warriors, has nothing to do with the Christian understanding of sacrifice. That's why the Christians think that self-sacrifice was almost not known for the pagan Aryans before the wonder of Christianity came to Europe, which is total bullshit. So basically, this was the story about considering the mythos of Bulgaria.

But you can find very similar stories in the Norse mythology. I'm pretty sure that you can find a very similar story in the Celtic mythology, because as I found out, the Celts had even closer for some reason, very close mythos to the Bulgarians, very close, including some names. There must be, maybe because of the different waves of Aryans, one was going to the East and some to the West.

Maybe there was some family connections back in the time, or maybe there was Celts, and I know that there was a Celts moving to the East and vice versa. Yeah, there's a lot of cross-pollination at the Aryan migration throughout the history. But my question to you Sigurd is, do you think that the first sign of degradation is the spiritual degradation? I think so.

I think basically, I know in Blavatsky's work, the second volume of The Secret Doctrine, Anthropogenesis, she speaks about how these beings were just like a spirit being and then they sort of crystallized into matter, became more and more materially dense. And then from there, they became vivaparously, whatever, capable of vivaparous breeding. And then from there, the sexes split from an androgen or a dyad, which was like a double-sexed entity.

And then from there, they started interbreeding. So the initial source was more a spirit being, according to her and her perspectives, which are obviously Jewish-funded. Theosophy.

But still, there's probably some occult tradition that she just borrowed from. So we are on the same page here, because I think that first and everything comes from the spirit. And then the spirit, if you have a weak spirit, it's represented in some way in the material sense.

And if you have a strong spirit, it's represented in the same thing in the material sense. And those who neglect the spirit will become physically weaker over time. Yes, yes.

I even found that, and you know my opinion about Christianity in different forms, but honestly, people that are honest in their belief and their faith, they are much more deserving of respect than a lot of these fake pagans and atheists that you have today. Of course, I don't endorse worshipping a demiurge deity, but you know the naivety of our people, and they think that the good Rabbi Yesu and the good Jehovah are basically Aryan gods, or protectors of the Aryan people, which obviously is not true. But some people really, honestly believe in that.

And for me personally, they deserve at least some kind of respect, because they are feeling this need of spiritual connection and this urge to have some kind of... Yeah, it's basically just a confusion of the letter of the law versus the spirit of the law. They have the spirit of the law within them, but they don't really understand because of the convoluted nature of the false historical narratives that Jews have made up and the distortion of their mythology. Everything has become very confused, which is of course deliberate on the part of Jews to obscure people's spiritual traditions so that they don't have the capacity to tie themselves into the ancestral forces or whatever higher forces that are bound up with the Aryan, and then use those or work with them to overthrow the Jews' power.

That's my understanding of it, that they understand that, as you had said, as above so below, what happens in the spiritual concretizes in the material, and that when you sever the connection between the spiritual and the material, then that is basically like cutting off a fruit from the tree, so it just rots because it has no connection to its life force, which is a higher spiritual source. Yes, yes. I mean, I cannot add anything to your description.

My suggestion is that the Jews, I mean, what they know and how they obtain the knowledge, this is also an interesting question. I think that, first of all, there was an incursion in the Middle East of descendants of the Atlanteans. Right, that was in the Gobi Desert.

Yes, but these Atlanteans could be descendants of the cult that brought down Atlanteans. Some people call them Black Atlanteans, which doesn't refer to the skin color, by the way, just saying. Right, the Black Magicians.

Black Magicians, but also, or maybe they started to contact Yahweh, or whatever is the name, which by the way continues to these days. All these Semitic Abrahamic religions, they are high priests, they are wearing black robes, most of them. The Orthodox, the Rabbis, the low tier priests in the Catholic faith, and I believe some of the early pastors, they wear black robes, not to mention the Masons, they're obvious there.

Right, and judges too, in courts, they wear black robes, which is a symbol, I guess, of a Saturnian priest. And also professors in the universities. Right, when you graduate and so on.

Yeah, yeah. So, these, how to say, these Black Magicians, they were mentioned according to this very fishy figure, Melipho, the people of Oannes, and they started to spread the knowledge in the Middle East. Now, at that point, the Middle East looks like it was inhabited by, at one hand, the descendants of the Cro-Magnons, at the other hand, the beasts of the fields, or aka the descendants of the Neanderthals.

And later, it looks like these priests there, they started to encourage race mixing, maybe because they needed some kind of slave class. And also, at some point, someone brought the Negroes, or the descendants of the Homo Erectus, or mixed with Homo Erectus, which most likely were brought in the bigger cities, and they were encouraged to create the modern Semites, because the Semites are mixed race people, obviously. Which region was this? Was that like Catalhoyuk or something, or Anatolia? It was the Arabian Peninsula.

Not exactly in the Middle East. In the Middle East, historically, I believe, you can observe quite strong Aryan upper class in a lot of so-called Semitic cultures there. Obviously, you can find even Nordic-looking individuals in Egypt.

Sumeria, too? Yes. And Babylon, also. I think some of the Ba release are very white-looking in appearance.

Yeah. And they all have similar statuary, too. It's very well carved.

All the statues of animal forms and so forth, they're very lifelike. The other interesting theory that I found is that actually these dark-looking individuals were brought not from Central Africa, but they were brought from India. Some people think that there was a very ancient trade, and there was some evidence for that, including archaeological evidences, that there was an ancient trading route between Middle East and India, which sounds quite logical because they're relatively close.

They're not exactly close, but they're relatively close. There's a Silk Road, as well. Yeah, but we're talking about the age of theory.

I'm just saying that if there's a Silk Road, then it's reasonable to infer that there's going to be other trade routes throughout history prior to that point. The lecture that I've heard many years ago, I don't even remember, but let's say 10 years ago, a Bulgarian lecturer claimed that, for example, Abraham was a descendant of these Indians, let's say, that lived still dominated by white upper-class Ur. He was expelled from there, maybe for racial reasons, maybe for religious reasons, as they claim.

This was the beginning of the rise of the Semites. Basically, they have their vengeance of being expelled. I heard that the Sumeria was invaded by the Akkadians, the two A2Ks, A-K-K-A-D-I-A-N-S, and that they eventually just took over that region for whatever length of time, and then it became what is called Assyria after that.

Yeah, there was some interesting things about these Semites. You can see in some of the names like Arap or Assyria, there was obviously some Aryan influence in the upper class, but I don't believe that it was very, but obviously, it's not a very high influx of Aryan votes there, maybe with the exclusion of the Syrians. Some of the Syrians were quite white.

Yeah, Bashar al-Assad looks quite white, even today, and that's thousands of years later, so obviously, that's what Assyria is now, is Syria. Take in mind that I know a Syrian guy. He lived in Sofia at some point.

He was blondish, quite pale-skinned, with quite normal European-looking features, and when I asked him, because he was Muslim and things like that, he was not really very religious Muslim. He was just like the average Christian in this society. Yeah, just he was eating pork, and actually, he was not liking being Muslim, honestly, but he said that, according to him, these were the indigenous Syrians before the Southern Arab invasion there.

So, this says that the indigenous Syrians, or Assyrians, according to him, were white people. Yeah, like you had said before in one of your discussions, that's the way it always is in all nations, that the white always goes to the top, not only because they're the most intelligent, but because they instinctively gravitate toward their own kind and deliberately or instinctively avoid that which is other to themselves in most cases. I think, really, the only the key to the degeneracy after the fall of man, or maybe at whatever time, is basically, as Georg Lanz von Liebenfeld says in Theozoology, that it's mainly the lust of the white for the non-white.

When they allow themselves to be overcome by their passions, then it leads downwards to that gradual mixing and so forth, and from there, it just leads to the destruction of society totally. So, if you behave like an animal, you will mix with the animals, and your descendants will become animals. Negrified America.

Yes, yes, yes, yes. Unfortunately, the situation in Europe is also going in that direction, but the problem with Europe is not so much race mixing that Europe is an old continent, really, an old world. Europeans, in general, don't have enough kids.

There are reasons for that. There are psychological, social, and yes, bias in hiring. Genetically, because if the people feel somehow that they are suppressed, and they're living in small spaces in these apartments, not enough resources, always attacked by different factors, like stress on work, stress in their homes.

Then there's feminism, where women are devoted to their career, and men are cut out of employment because of a biased legislation against them. I'm not too sure what it's like in Europe, but I know in North America, they have that legislation there. I will tell you something.

I'm quite open in that. Let's say I'm a man of taste, and I like the women to be nice looking, but also intelligent. I think this is important for the selection.

Most of the intelligentsia, this is the curse of the higher IQ in the women, they are more prone to Jewish influences. They don't call it feminism, but actually, this was to have career and high income and things like that. They're measuring themselves with the men, and they don't want to stay at home and be mothers and be happy.

If I had that choice, I personally would do that because then I could just devote my life to learning instead and propagandizing people. If there was some woman who wanted to pay my bills, I'd take it. Assuming you could ever trust a woman, of course, which would be not.

You are intelligent and logical men, but you know that the women are a little bit different. They are quite... Irrational. Yeah, irrational.

Anyway, stopping bashing the women, but overall, the overall more intelligent women, more, I would say, easily tricked by the Jewish tricks. Right. They are susceptible of emotional propaganda.

Yes, yes. Even though they definitely had the IQ, intelligence, they even understand to some extent the Jewish problem and what is wrong with it. They cannot understand that we must work together to fight this problem.

The best way that women could fight the enemy is to support, in any sense, their boyfriend or husband. So anyway, this is another reason of the fall of men. The division between the sexes in Aryan or white countries.

Another thing is, of course, a lack of enough spiritual food. If you don't have a spiritual basis for society, if the society is purely materialistic or artistic, you definitely have a degradation. It leads to basically individualism, to possessive individualism, where your goal is just to consume products and then stimulate yourself like an animal.

Yes, exactly. Just like that song that says, you and me baby ain't nothing but animals, so we'll do it like they do on the Discovery Channel. Yes, created by a disgusting Jew, by the way.

Probably. Not probably, look at who created the song and what is his ethnicity. This song was popular in the early 2000s, if I remember.

I think it was the late 90s, I don't really know. Something like that. When I pointed out to my schoolmates that they're Jewish and that's why they behave like that, they start to laugh at me.

But then one of the guys checked their background in the good old days, the internet was quite open for that, and he said, fuck you, you're right. They're Jews. And that's what the Jew wants.

The Jew is like the tempter. He wants to bring everybody down to the lower states of consciousness so he can corrupt them and destroy them. Yes, yes.

And also, if I remember correctly, the video clip of this of this song was quite... Yeah, I think they were dressed up in monkey suits or something like that. Yes, I believe there was a bunch of quite nice looking French ladies there. And of course, they were object of the monkeys, which most likely are the Negroes.

So yeah, this is obviously the reason for the fall of man. Lack of racial awareness, lack of spirituality, and lack of connection with your ancestors and with the gods, which is more as they say. And this will, of course, if you're very materialistic, it doesn't matter what you're doing this life.

And you can mix with the non-whites, you can be the Gerard, you can do whatever you like, like the Jews want. Right, just be a self-server and live your life for your personal self. Exactly, exactly.

And that, again, leads to the present time in history, which is a total bottom of the Kali Yuga. The fall of man basically becoming more or less an animalized sub-man or an untermensch. Exactly.

And this is more or less in the philosophy of Nietzsche, because you mentioned the untermensch. He talks about the last man and the ubermensch to come. So basically, in these days, when we see how the old civilization is crumbling, we must be this counter, how to say, opposition to the Jews.

Counter-current? Yes, counter-current. That's why the leftward swastika is working in a counter-clockwise direction, which is against the demiurge. Yeah, returning to the basis.

But on the other hand, the right swastika, or the male swastika, is the swastika of the sun god. So maybe we must combine them together. We must look at it from the two perspectives.

If you combine them together, I think they make like, what is that called, that cross that Jörg Lanz von Leibenfels uses, that sort of cross. I don't remember what that's called exactly. Temple cross or something.

No, it's something, I think it's called a cross potent, actually. It's an equal arm cross, which has like, ends that are going in both directions, right there. Yeah, yeah.

That was used by the Austrian fatherland front, the fascist party during Hitler's time. Yeah, but the fascist party was kind of, I believe there were a lot of masonic connections there. They were also Catholic too.

Yeah. I will argue that Leibenfels was Christian and some of his ideas, I just... Well, he was a Cistercian monk, and then he quit the Catholic church and created Austria. Yeah, but he obviously was influenced to a degree.

Right, yeah. But anyway, I have a collection of his original magazines, but some good German guy must help me with the translations. You could definitely, that would definitely be something people would want.

I've been trying to contact people to translate that for actually a couple of years. I have the whole collection of it on that whitelibrary.org site. People can get that off there.

It's like, I think a thousand pages. I had almost deal with the translation. I mean, there was a guy that wanted to, I mean, not wanted exactly, but he said, oh, I could help you.

But then he found out that Leibenfels denounced Fuhrer after the Second World War. So, he refused to deal with this traitor, things like that. But for the interest of information and things like that, it's not a bad thing to have these sources translated, because otherwise you can lose the sources.

Yeah, he had quite a lot of valuable occult information that I've never been able to find on Areosopic astrology and various other works of that nature. But his magazine specifically is more like a paleohistory and discusses the ancient history of things. He's quite a knowledgeable scholar, too.

If you read Theozology, that's a pretty commonly available document, then that will give a lot of insight. And that basically discusses the fall of man and encapsulates it. And it's all based upon the lust of the, in large part, the white female, he claims.

But I would also claim the white male and their unwillingness to just segregate themselves from the anthropoids and live their own lives. I think that the guilt of the first race mixing is not on the white females. I think it's on the white males.

Just because we were conquerors and we conquered and subjugated other races, I must say, other species. And for the top-notch elite castes, there were white women. This is known because we can find these dominating Arian features for a very long period of time.

Period of time that we're talking about thousands of years that these features must be eradicated by race mixing. For example, the Arabs claim that these Turks that are besieging our capital or whatever, they had fierce nature, blue eyes and reddish beards. Some other scholars claim that in general, the Turks were with fair skin.

He said that they could be with brunette hair and things like that, but with fair skin and tall in their bodies and things like that, which are totally different from the general perception of the Turks, especially today. Right. Now, they're definitely a representative of the fall of man.

Yeah, especially if you see these documents of Turks walking on four legs. I call them D-men, D-E hyphen men, because they're devolved men. They're no longer men.

But as I said, the Turks and all these generally non-white nations are dangerous because they had still brainwashed white elite. They're infiltrated by Jews, which are even more dangerous, and they had numbers. And numbers these days are very, very important, unfortunately.

They're also advanced weapons too, so it's not necessarily just a boots on the ground clash. Yeah, yeah, yeah. But I'm talking about economy and logistics and things like that.

Turkey is a very strong country, even though it's a clash of obviously two cultures, the European part and the Asiatic part. So Turkey is basically a perfect representation of that, the fall of man itself as a nation, which is basically the Aryans being, through whatever means, through their own weaknesses in most cases, having a willingness to have dealings for economic means, for slavery, for sexual means, to involve themselves with the non-white. And then from there it leads to that, which just creates chaos.

And so that creates basically a heavenly world, a spiritual world into a satanic world, if we want to use Christian terms. Exactly what we were talking about, how the spiritual decadence is leading to race mixing and destruction of material world. Turkey is created by Abrahamic religion of Islam.

And that's why I remember one of my, I would say, classmates in the university, I remember a girl, we studied together, she was Turkish. But actually, if we put her in Sweden, you cannot recognize that she's Turkish at all. Very beautiful girl, really blonde, very nice.

But she refused in any way possible to refer to the flirting, so to say, of students that are not Turkish or Muslim. First, because she obviously had some patriarchal background, which is good for her, because this gives some basis for good marriage in the future. But also she thought that we are different by the means of origin, even though her Turkish friends, they were really representative of the most of Turks.

So basically small, dark, right. Some of them with obviously Mongolian features, so slightly Mongolian features. So I asked her how the fuck she thinks that they, these orcs and her, are the same, from the same race.

And she said, oh, we have the same fate. Yeah, that's the nature of it. The thing is, with most white women, they're very specious in their reasoning.

They don't want to deal with controversial realities. So they just go along with whatever is popular so that they can not be rejected from the crowd. But instinctively, they gravitate toward their own kind, no matter what.

Although, unless the brainwashing is so severe, like in today's society, where they are brainwashed to hate themselves and to make it look upon as a virtue to betray their own race, like so many, or not so many, but a fair amount. So this is one of the reasons, spiritual decadence, I believe. This is the reason.

And of course, for spiritual decadence. And also another theory that I heard, this was also an interesting theory, that maybe there was in the past some racial... Well, we cannot be sure, because a lot of the teachings of the old Aryan pagan religions were kind of secret, and they were only for the elite. But definitely in the ancient religion, there were racial aspects that were later lost.

So maybe the priesthood, the priest class were also kind of guardians of these, I would say, and creators of these caste systems that prevented race mixing, or at least slowed down the race mixing. Well, you could say that those caste systems just organically developed, because that's the nature of the order of the universe. Things are always hierarchically self-organized.

This is another point of view, because some people said, oh no, this is not because of racial or religious reasons. This is because empirically... But this is also contradictory, because empirically the Vedic areas, for example, but the caste system is not typical only for the areas in India. The caste system was typical for basically all Aryan people.

Because this is natural. Some people are good for fieldwork, some are great warriors, and some are good with reading, observing the stars, and things like that. I think that's called proper nature in Thomas Aquinas, the medieval Catholic philosopher.

I think he called that the proper nature of the thing. That's also what Ebola calls... He always uses the phrase suam quique, which means to each their own in Latin. Yes.

Yes, exactly. This was also the philosophy of the National Socialism. This is that there must be to each their own.

I mean, my mentor back in the time said that for the peasants, you have the protections, and that they are not squished by the Jewish bankers. Through the working class, you have the stability of income and social benefits. For the bourgeoisie, you have the nationalism.

Without a middle class that is nationalistic, you cannot have a healthy society. For the elite, you have the futuristic, how to say, plans and connection with the gods. Right.

Because the modern-day elite are soulless Jewish golems. Yeah, most of them are. I don't think all of them are.

I think that just most of them are. Most of them are basically what we could call dark occultists who are just self-serving black magicians that utilize occult forces to serve themselves and to harm their own people, either intentionally, like in so many of them, either left-wing or right-wing, have a malevolent hostility toward white people who are poor, or else just because they're a total self-server and they don't care about others, so whatever the consequences may be of their actions for other people doesn't really matter to them. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

Exactly. So that's why they tie themselves into the Jewish occultism because, you know, they don't really care one way or the other whether it's authentic or inauthentic, so long as it pays them money and power. I think that, well, of course, this was kind of shocking, but when I talked with Patrick, he told me that basically the rich people, the upper-class Americans prefer the company of poor Negroes than of their fellow poor white men.

Yeah, you see that all the time. They walk around the streets on, you know, the days that they go to church or whatever trying to virtue signal. They bring the nigger to a department store and buy them a pair of shoes or an iPhone or something.

This is so mind-blowing and so disgusting. Yeah, that's how they virtue signal because it's considered popular to be a traitor to your race so that you can deny the existence of race and claim that it's all equal. That's the sort of implication through those sorts of gestures.

That's why they do that because they know it's considered bound up with social capital. I don't know. I mean, obviously, the white upper-class, they're not only traitors, they're enemies, open enemies of the other white people.

And also, I would say that these upper-class white traitors, they somehow identify themselves with the Jews. Or in some cases, they're mixed with the Jews. Right.

That's always been the case throughout history, it seems, no matter where you go. Like the British nobility are a good recent example of that. According to Arnold Lise, in one of his works, they've been interbreeding with the upper-class British nobility, the Jews, since like a thousand years.

I would be interested to see his evidence and examples because I found that aristocrats, with rats at the end, they very often mix with the Jews. On the other hand, there was another group of warrior nobility that they opposed the race mixing most of the time. And of course, they're the people, which are few, that let their own folk against the Jewish incursions.

I must remind you that during the French Revolution, there are a lot of lower-tier nobility that led the peasant rebellions against the Jew-led, or Masonic-led French Revolutionary. The example is the war in Vendée, or Vendée, whatever is the French pronunciation, that almost broke the neck of the French Revolution. The people there rebelled, and they smashed, even though they were not well armed, but because of their faith, they were Christians, obviously, but because of their faith and because they were shocked by the brutality of the revolution, they were shocked by the Masonic degeneracy, they smashed the opposing well-trained and well-equipped professional French armies.

And Napoleon Bonaparte even wrote that if the peasants were a little bit better organized, this would be the end of the revolution. Right. So, need organizers, I guess, is the solution there.

Otherwise, the inevitable consequence or fate would be the fall of man into the grave at this point in time, that if people don't smarten up and develop a greater spiritual consciousness and have a connection with their true self as a member of their collective, then they're not going to have a future at all. But if they do that, then they'll have more interest in unifying with their own people regardless of their class. Just to continue with the French Revolution, I will say that there was a racial aspect of that.

Obviously, the people that rebelled in support of the Bon Roi, the good king, and the traditionalist France were from Northern France. The people that supported the revolution were from Southern France. Right.

Those are the ones who are more mixed with the North Africans, probably. Most likely, it's not so much the North Africans, it's most likely the Jews. There were incursions into Europe from the Arab nations through slave trading, with the abducting white women for the slave trade.

Yeah, but I believe that the mixing was in the direction of the Arabs, not so much in the direction of the French or the Europeans as a whole. Maybe in Southern parts of Italy, where the Arabs actually lived for, I don't know, several hundred years. There could be in Southern France.

Well, this is debatable, actually. I must research the history deeper. But I'm pretty sure that in Southern France, there was a region called French Judea.

In that area, by the way, there was a big medieval period when there were cutters there. It looks like how the inner crusade against the cutters were North of France against South of France, and North of France won. In that occasion, in the French Revolution, South of France won.

And they were hunting down people on the basis of having blue eyes and blonde hair, because they, according to the modern authors, were making connections between the blue eyes and blonde hair and the nobility. So there was a racial authors. And again, the other thing is, a lot of people don't recognize that the anthem of France was called Marseillaise.

So it's coming from the Southern city of Marseille. And there, there was a big Jewish diaspora there. And when these bastards, mixed race bastards, were marching to deal with the French aristocrats and the old regime, which, by the way, just saying the old regime was also corrupt.

Right. It became corrupted through sexuality, especially. Yes, exactly.

The court of Louis XIV, the so-called Sun King and Marie Antoinette. Yes, yes. There was a situation there.

And there was also a lot of rumors against Marie Antoinette that I think that they were not right. They were spread by Masonic Lodges, by the way. Masonic Lodges in France, definitely there was something there.

Some people claimed that the Masonic Lodges wanted on their hands to have vengeance against the bloodline of the French kings because they claimed that the Masons were founded by the Templars. And the Templars, of course, were destroyed by the French king. So this is another theory.

But where was I? So basically, these people that were marching from the South of France, from Marseille, they were singing the song in their dialect that in reality includes words that are from Semitic languages. And the Northern French didn't understand them. So when you heard the Marseillaise or whatever is the French anthem, it was spoken in a dialect or language that is not exactly French back in the time.

It's interesting. Right around that time, I think that's when a lot of the French migrated from France to North America, to Louisiana and then to Quebec around that time. And a place called, well, a place on the West, on the East Coast of Canada, which is where there is a group of people who are Jews from France called the Acadians, A-C-A-D-I-A-N-S.

And that, the Acadian, that refers to Akkad, which is what took over Sumeria. Interesting. These Acadians are not Quebecers.

They're not French-Canadian in that sense. They're just Jews. And they also have them in the Northwest Territories also because of the diamond.

What's that? Arab to Jews. Yeah, they are. And there's also this other region of Canada called the Northwest Territories, which is in the very North.

And there's, that's where all the diamond mines are. And that's where the Jews are. They control that whole area.

Very interesting. The French Acadians. Very, very interesting.

So, this is a thing to look at the alternative history, basically, to have this revision of history in a racial way and to understand who is who and who is Jew. This is very important because otherwise you cannot have a racist view of history. At some point, you reach, basically, this is the goal of the Jews.

You can see this destruction of culture and history. And this is the consequences of the fall, the spiritual fall of the white men. I would say Aryan men that fell to the state of the white man and from white went to the goy.

And now we have, we have a very hard uphill battle, very hard task to rise the goyim to the level of the white men because they really don't want to be white anymore. They want to degenerate. Right.

They want to be race, race, mix and die. Yes, basically Jews. Exactly.

They want to copy the Jews. They want money. They want to be lazy.

They want to be cunning. Many of them, they cannot, they don't know how to be a white man. They don't have any sense of duty to others, just duty to themselves.

Yes, this is the level of the Aryan men. This is higher level than the white men. The white men, the basic level is to recognize himself like a white and to start to struggle against the system.

And when find moral strength and physical strength to overcome the system, to be a hero, this is the Aryan men. This is the Aryans. This is the hero.

And of course, there is a level even above the Aryan men, let's call them uber-Aryans or super Aryans. You can call them devias too, from the Bhagavad Gita terminology. Yeah, this is, this is the way of the Godhood.

I think that might also be, we could also call that son and mensch. Yeah, this is also good. Yeah.

And above that, there is other levels, achieving the Godhood and restoring, restoring the Aryan, I must say, uber-Aryan golden age. This is, this is how I see the things, how we must restore the spirituality, restore from the spiritual to material sense. How the people that are awakened must try to find people, other, other going to restore to the, to the level of the white men.

And there, united, we can unite and find a way to restore the Aryan spirit and Aryan mind and body. A good, a good source book for that is Julius Evola's The Elements of Racial Education. He gives a lot of concrete advice about what to do or what should be implemented as a way of readjusting yourself.

And of course, of course, I will recommend to lots of people, if you, if you don't, if you're a racist, but in one way or another, you don't fit in the, in the ideal model of the Aryan man. First of all, personal effort to improve yourself in all way, intellectual, spiritual, physical, and so on and so on. If you're still working, if you are still out of shape and you don't, spiritually, intellectually strong, help other people.

This is also a thing. You must help other people to become like that because... Especially if they're younger. Yeah.

Because most of the older generation, especially, are very much, you know, too far gone in their ways and they're irredeemable in large part. Yeah, that way there's more like spiritual problem with these people. If they cannot, this is the basis as our conversation make, made clear.

The problem is the mind and from the mind is the physical degradation. If these, the older generation, they don't see the problems in themselves. Yeah.

And that's, that's also what causes aging is a spiritual degradation. Yeah. Yeah.

Whereas if you're very spiritually developed, then that retards the aging process and might even reverse it if you're like a super spiritual adept. Yeah. Yeah, exactly.

And that's why you have a senile elderly people because they don't have... And this is another thing. The brain is like a muscle. You must feed the brain and also you must meditate and also you must try to connect to your forefathers, which means you must find some kind of spirituality and ritual practices, which by the way, just saying, some people practicing without any knowledge, they're using mushrooms and some other... They're using the spirits that come from a bottle.

Yeah. Also, this is the thing. Even if this was practiced in the past, this is also debatable.

Even if this was practiced in the past, it was practiced by a cast of educated and knowledgeable men, shamans, priests, and things like that. Most of you that are practicing these things, you're not knowledgeable enough. So my advice is practice simple rituals without any kind of drugs and things like that.

Practice meditation, practice self-development, of course, exercise, sports, learn to fight for self-defense. I mean, you, I must underline that we're talking only about self-defense here, right? Learn things that will build yourself above the masses. Right.

You can learn especially things that are used to this movement, like computer skills, maybe, or different languages or something of that kind. Yes. This was one of my messages, and I will repeat that thing, because we need the high-tech on our side.

Aryans were always high-tech people. When they were conquering Europe and Asia and the Middle East, they had chariots and bronze weapons. And they had the light bulb in Egypt in its origin also.

Yeah. And they used kinematics to build the pyramids, you know, levitation, sound waves. They had knowledge of all the occult sciences that the Jews destroyed with their Library of Alexandria that they destroyed, so they could bring us into the Dark Age.

So we need smart people. We need knowledgeable people. We need spiritually high people.

And we need people that are healthy, not degenerates, because in this movement, there were a lot of degenerates. Maybe not so much to the leftists, but still people that are not capable enough and not smart enough, not to mention. And they fall into Christian identity and things like that.

Yeah, yeah, yeah. But this is more like a spiritual problem, I think. Right.

So any last words? I think pretty much we covered it. I would recommend people check out whitelibrary.org for a lot of these documents that can be used to help you learn and develop yourself. So I said, exercise, meditate, practice the rituals of your forefathers.

Try to get out in nature, too, to the extent you can. Yes, yes. If not, live there, ideally.

Start to find people that you know, personally, and be careful with traitors. And I think that this connection with the gods, this high, how to say, spirituality combined with the typical martial prowess of the Aryans will bring us victory. Which, after the victory, will deal with the enemies.

And with these words, because I cannot say more, of course, I wish you a successful and very, how to say, I wish you a very successful life. Maybe this is the correct word. Very close to the standards of your Aryan ancestors.

So, Hail Victory! Hail Victory!

Nordlux: Siegeman & Sigurd on Spirituality & Praxis stick to this idea to the white nation that will be formed at some point. Even though I am not a proponent of pan-Europeanism and imperialism as you know, but most likely if they really pressed us we will form a single nation. This is because we were in touch with the Jews.

This is the simple explanation. All these Islamic invasions, the Khazars, the infiltration from the leftovers from the Roman Empire, all these Jewish, how to say, leftovers, all these early attempts of the Jews to infiltrate and they are very successful in some cases. Like in the case of the Bulgarian Empire, we had Tsaritsa, which basically is the wife of the of the Tsar.

The last, the mother of the last Tsar of the Bulgarian, second Bulgarian Empire was Mishlink. She was a real, not Byzantium, a Venetian Jew. Now, the story is that Tsar Alexander Shishman, he saw her while she was swimming in the river Yantra, that is a river passing through the capital called Ternograd.

Tern means throne and this is the seal of the emperor. And he fell in love with all this bullshit. Now, in reality, this Tsar was not exactly a legitimate Tsar.

Bulgarians were known that they followed the tradition of the sacred line of duo. And these people, Shishman, were very, very, very distant offshoots of duo, maybe not even a direct offshoots of duo. Are you recording? I'm not recording.

Okay, let's start recording. Okay, I will start recording maybe. Maybe we can just switch the topic and bend around back to that when we talk about Emil Antonov first, right off the bat.

Okay, okay. So, I will start recording, you will start recording, it doesn't matter for me. Go ahead.

So, start recording. So, Shishman and Sigurd with different topics, a free chat between friends. Yes.

So, we were talking before that about Bulgarian history, Eastern Europeans and different philosophical movements, proto-fascistic movements and things like that. So, most likely this will be the topic of the conversation. I'm open for questions and if you have ideas for that.

And of course, perhaps you'll be sorry for my shitty English, but it is what it is. Let me just open this up and say that I'm rather impressed by the heightened perception that many people in Eastern Europe have for the sort of Semitic undercurrent. Not saying that's been in European society.

They can sort of, you know, I would say spot the Semitic influence better than anybody in Western or Northern Europe. And that's even under draconian conditions, such as communism. Maybe that's part of it.

And that may be because America's Jewified to such an extent that the Americans have become Jews spiritually. Yes, I think so. I think that Protestantism, capitalism, individualism, materialism.

I think from its inception, America was kind of had a Semitic, had a lot of Semitic undertones to its culture. Go ahead. Through Christianity and Masonry.

Yeah, Masonry and Christianity. But it was the brand of Christianity also that sort of heightened the Semitic influence, such as the Puritanism and the Calvinism. And John Calvin's real name was actually John Cohen.

I don't want to venture out there. I don't know if that's true or not. It could be.

It could be. I don't want to be as speculative as to say that. I find most of the time, yes, the Jew does act on our society, but a lot of times it is the ablers and the abettors that we should watch out for, more so than the Jews, because they allow the Jews free reign in our society and utilize them in many cases against the other white people, the other white people.

They use them as kind of a wedge. Especially the Zionist Christians and the Freemasons. Which leads me to talk about the elites in Europe.

One of the fascinating things that I've seen is the research of, what's his name, Apollonian Germ talks about how some of the elites have Semitic influence, how Semites have weaseled their way into elite circles. And they have utilized, the elites have utilized these Jews to sort of control the populace. So that's why the Jews often show disdain for peasants.

They don't like peasant movements. They don't like the commoners, and they disdain any kind of chauvinistic tendencies. I want to say chauvinism, I mean nationalism, in the commoner population, in the peasants.

I believe that the Jews actually hate the peasants, hate the warriors, hate the manly behavior, and hate what will be the fair maidens, so to say. They like merchants, they like homosexuals, they like race mixers, they like mulattoes, gypsies, they like all kinds of deviants, they like aristocrats, which is basically want aristocrats that are dependent on the Jews, and they mix with them. And yeah, this is what they want.

And they like whores and other LGBTs. And that's what we see presently in the form of democracy. That's why democracy, I think we can make that allegorically to how snitches and informants even in the FBI work.

They scout out these sort of immoral people, and they utilize them and weaponize them, and give them a platform. I've researched these various different national movements, why they fail. And that's what I've discovered.

I've discovered they fail because they prey upon unscrupulous people, and they're able to utilize these people to their fullest extent. And this seems to be a reoccurring theme. It just goes on and on.

One generation is born, they maybe become older and wiser to this, but then the new generation comes in, and everything else is just eradicated and wiped away. Right. And it leads to things like Adam Woffin.

Yes, exactly. Things such as that. And things such as the base and all these different things to delegitimize legitimate nationalist movements.

That's sort of the crisis we're facing here in Nord is that every time we gain some legitimacy, they always tout out these immoral people, and they put them to the forefront to stifle any progress that is made for legitimate people that are advocating for their people and for white sovereignty. It's creating false associations so that they can associate that which is good and pure with that which is deviant and perverse and vicious. That's a typically Jewish mentality, as Evola speaks of quite a lot in his works.

This sort of subterranean lunar feminine consciousness that Jews have. This sort of sneaky, underhanded... Which by the way, this was pointed out by a Jew himself who Hitler spoke about named Otto Weininger. Right.

In his book, Sex and Character. You guys heard of Otto Weininger? Yeah. Yeah.

Well, he likened... Go ahead. He basically admitted that the Jews are feminine in nature. This is what they're... It's obvious.

I mean, they're dealing with their enemies in a very feminine way. Poisoning them and so forth. Yeah.

That's why they hate the warriors, the Aryan warriors. And I suppose what Blackstone media said that basically their manliness is some kind of projected through the Negroid dominance. Yes, that's correct.

I agree with that. I've made that point as well, that that's why you see in American culture now why the Negro is held up as the most manliness standard because they live vicariously through the Negro. Right.

The Negro is sort of like this macho simpleton basically who just goes around and attacks without any rational thought or self control. Just this posturing, swaggering. And the Jews lack this.

They lack this. They lack even the semblance of masculine culture because they're all about scribal books and knowledge and information. There's no... Their caste system is inverted on itself.

They don't really have the caste system that Europeans do. Europeans have a healthy European society, I should say, has a real regulated caste system, which you have the Brahmin and you have the Kshatriya and you have the Sutras. You have the various different components to one another and they feed off one another and they complement one another.

And the Kshatriya caste was always involved with the Brahmin caste. They were always sort of melded together. And when the society was healthy and pure, the leadership was always a warrior-priest caste.

A warrior-poet-priest-scribe. Jews don't have that. Like Cornelio Codriano to some extent.

Jews don't have that. Jews don't have that in their caste system. It's just simply the man on top is the scribe.

And this is why they come up with so many abstractions and argue with one another about laws and try to find loopholes to defy their God. And they project this upon us Europeans. They project this upon us because fundamentally the modern world is a creation of the Jews.

The morals and standards are a creation of the Jews, especially America. The way it's formulated, it is a creation of the Jews. It is not a creation of the European.

That's something we need to take note. You can look at these things symbolically. When you go to church, it doesn't matter if it's Catholic or Orthodox.

You can see, especially in the Orthodox, I believe. I'm not absolutely sure that the Catholics get the same symbolism, even though a lot of things are similar. But you can see the holy halo around Jehovah is triangular, a static triangle.

And you can compare that with the symbols of the Aryan people, like triskel in the Celts, like the triple swastika, the spiral symbol. Valknut in the Norse tradition, the black sun or the green sun, because as I said before, we're not absolutely sure if the sun is black. It is most likely green, not black.

And also the different symbols of movement, of progression, of development. Also, you can transport this thing into society. The triangle symbol is a very static symbol.

It's a pyramid. While these symbols in the Aryan symbols, they are very dynamic symbols. They represent always the natural cycle of nature.

That's why the Jews hate nature. They're anti-natural by their nature, of course, because they're degenerates. They hate the life.

They hate the nature. And their symbols are also static. Their static triangle of power with the all-seeing eye, their static cube of power, which is not natural.

It represents the death of the natural world. It's static, cubical. Yeah, there are no square shapes in nature.

Yeah, yeah. So, basically, this is the thing with the Jews. They're anti-natural.

And this is, unfortunately, the curse of the modern world. Now, I've talked about this thing with Dugard, but I will repeat myself that every European tribe had a tree of life in the center of their religious myths. And this tree of life was symbolic of, of course, you can say, family tree, racial tree, but also it's a symbolical of the nature of the all phases of nature through the roots, through the to the branches.

It's representing a very natural look of the life. And of course, because it also represents the, the nerve plexuses of the body, the chakras. Yeah, this is also possible.

There are a lot of things that are represented through one symbol. And of course, we don't know that because the priestly caste was hunted down and exterminated or infiltrated by the Jews. We don't know what the ancient Thracian priests said.

We don't know about the Druids. We don't know about Clovers. We don't know many things.

My question is that how do we reconstruct this epistemologically? How do we reconstruct this sort of these traditions that have been either snuffed out or have, have died out over time? And when also we don't really control sort of the research or study of any of these things. You know, you look at any kind of endologist, Indo-Europeanologist, and they sort of, the way they, the way they interpret it is through, is through the Semitic lens. They don't really interpret it through the Judeo-Christian lens.

There are a fair amount of researchers from around a hundred years ago that were not Christian and not Jewish, but they're largely suppressed. They're obscure now. In France, especially, there's quite a few of them.

But, but they are, their, their works are in their original languages. So they're not translated into English. I would say that we must take in mind the different traditions and reconstruct it with the sources.

Not like in the modern day, when I talk about. You don't want neo-pagan, neo-paganism. No, no, no, no.

Neo-paganism is basically feminism and retardation. And they're, they're, they, I want to, to reconstruct the Aryan religion. Exactly.

The, the people that they call, and this is a mockery, Hindu-European, they have nothing to do with India. I just use that for formalized for people. Yeah.

Well, maybe it should be called Hyperborean tradition. Maybe Hyperborean is also, but take in mind that if we are looking at the present days and I say, I'll take this with a grain of salt. They claim that the, when the Indo-Europeans forms Aryans, Arios, maybe Arios is the correct term.

I think Aristos. What? In Greece, it was Aristos, which refers to aristocrats, which is, you know, like the Aryan, the noble area in Sanskrit area. In, in ancient, and one other, the other name is Asir or Asir or Asier, which is also meaning basically Aryan.

So that's why a lot of these Sarmatian tribes, called Asi, which could refer to the whole Asian continent were, were named after that. So basically this is like Asir in the Norse mythology or Os, which means, Os, which maybe this is. What about the Ur? What about Ur? As, as in like Ur, you are.

Evola was trying to do, he did some, he had some group back in the, back in the days trying to reconstruct, I think. Yeah. Ur, Ur basically connotes like the origin, like the primary, the primordial.

Yeah. Yeah. Like Arios, basically this is the same.

Arios, her, which means army in German, which means ere, means owner. Basically everything came from Aryan. In Bulgarian, chest, which means, or rat, which means war, offensive war.

It, all these, all, all these words pointing to, to certain tradition, which was militaristic, which was hierarchical, which was, if you want to, I'll speculate what it was national socialist in a way, because it was yes, hierarchical and aristocratic, but also it was kind of social because obviously there are a lot of people involved in the, establishing the, the areas. It was not only a small groups of people like they're trying to present that, oh, a small elite group of warriors moved there. It's a small elite group of warriors moved there.

There was a total population replacement in certain places. And this is connected with these, uh, nature of the Aryan men being descendants of the Cro-Magnon men. Um, oh, actually the Aryan men are basically the Cro-Magnon men.

And those were the Hyperboreans, is it Cro-Magnon? Hyperboreans were very interesting group of people. I mean, official, official science, whatever these Jew word is these days, uh, official science claim that, uh, the ancient Hyperboreans look, well, they said that they look very similar to me, basically fair skin, straight nose, things like that, uh, with a brunette, uh, brunettes mostly quite robust and tall. Uh, but they claim that the Indo-Europeans had partial genes from them, but they also claim that the Asians, uh, had genes from them.

And that's why, that's why some, uh, Indians, American Indians, I mean, uh, had, uh, European features, not because there was a ancient European population on the, uh, in America, which I think that there was ancient European population. Solutreans, but also, yeah, if the Solutreans were the people that were, uh, descended from the felt civilization of Atalanta or Atlantis. Yeah.

Atlantis. There's that book by the 55 club Vinlanders that apparently explains that in copious detail. I, I, this, this, uh, books, I must, uh, find and read because, uh, 55club.net. Yeah.

Yeah. Yeah. I have a pretty good book also, um, on the, uh, uh, the clan as well.

It's a pretty good book. Oh, this, this must be one of the topics by the way. Yeah.

Yeah. Good. So, uh, and when we're talking about, uh, there were a lot of, a lot of, uh, indirect evidences in different cultures, including Bulgarian cultures about, uh, these, uh, proto-Aryan civilization.

Now there was a, I believe it was Pindar that pointed out that the people that lived in Ultima Thule fought with the other giants, giants from, uh, from an Island in the middle of the ocean. So maybe, yeah, maybe this was the reference for the war between Atlantis and the Hippoboros back in the time. Uh, anyway, we can trace back a deal we are going in the, this hypothetical history, of course, but we know that there are a lot of evidences that ancient Indo-Europeans had memories for these, uh, time when their forefathers or they themselves were in the far North.

And the far North was a very different place from what it is now. Bulgarians also had very interesting reference. The, the most noble clan, the founders of Bulgaria were called Tuwo or Tuwo, which refers at, this is also means point of origin.

I think also the Vedas, the Vedic literature, there's like was a Vedic scholar who believed that some of the progenitors of the Vedas was somewhere in the Arctic. It's called the Arctic home in the Vedas by Baldrindigar or whatever, TILAK, T-I-L-A-K. It's his name.

He also wrote another book on the Orion, on the constellation of Orion that I think, uh, shows that we came from there originally. And to Orion is Arion, basically the, the hunter. I think that's where Sirius B is.

Interesting. According to Mormonism, that's called Kolub, K-O-U-L-U-B. And that, uh, that is what Sirius is.

Many people speculate that that's what it means in Mormonism. Kolub refers to Sirius B in the Orion constellation. Apparently that's where white people came from in, in the, uh, Mormon, uh, doctrine.

And we know also that Mormonism borrowed heavily from Masonry. Yeah. Joseph Smith was like into Masonry and into the occult as well.

He was a Kabbalist. Yeah. Well, most Masons, if you are truly a Mason, that is, you are probably a Kabbalist.

That's the spiritual and moral foundations upon Masonry. That's allegorically every single thing in Masonry probably comes from Kabbalah. Are they still into, uh, recruiting specific phenotypes of people? No.

You mean the Mormons? Yeah. No, they're not. Because back in the time there was... There was a split, there was a split in the, in the church.

There was, uh, they used to be so extreme. They used to actually, uh, penalize, uh, race mixers. Wow.

That doesn't exist anymore in the Mormon church. They actually actively recruit in the mainstream Mormon church, South Africans, uh, Polynesians. Like South Africans? You mean African? Well, not white South Africans.

Oh, okay. Black South Africans. Because I've met quite a bit of Mormons that were Polynesians and South Africans.

Yeah, yeah, yeah. Sorry, no, not Africaners, but African, actually Black Africans. Because back in the day, there was a quite strong Mormon mission in Burgos, uh, my, my home city.

And, uh, when I was student, they tried to recruit me. And I found that they're, they're targeting a special type of people, I mean, but they failed. Basically, they, they, they were not, not, not very successful with the white people.

Here's something interesting about them. Now, the Mormons tend to be feeders for the CIA, for the intelligence agencies. Yeah, doesn't, uh, the NSA is not based out of Utah? I don't know about that.

I think the NSA has various different, like, groups, uh, I've heard the major data center is located there. Somewhere around there, somewhere in the North, South, somewhere in the Southwest. And Mormonism is also very centered around Denver, which is like the second seat of government of the United States and has the DARPA in it.

It has a DARPA, the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency. Yeah. That's also where the, the, uh, the Denver airport is.

Right. The mural of the Denver airport. That's often subject of a lot of conspiracy theories.

I'm kind of open for conspiracy theories after 2020. I mean, I am too, but I'm just, I'm just saying that that is like, they actually, when you go to the Denver airport, they actually make fun of that. Uh, they parody that.

They've, uh, they seem like they've embraced it at the Denver airport. When you go through there, they talk about that mural, that whole mural where it has like, uh, all the world together. It shows like, it shows kind of their conception of like a one world type of government.

Because the Mormons, we're talking about them. I mean, they, as I said, they felt with the white Bulgarians, especially when, when they tried to recruit me and my comrades and he basically, uh, opened and showed them, I will show you my gut and he showed my gut. It's interesting though, that the Mormons during the Reich were not persecuted.

A lot of them, a lot of them actually sided with the Reich. But they had some racial ideas, I think. Yeah.

They sided with the Reich. That's, that's interesting. So, but here in America though, they've been pretty much paused out.

I know in David Lane's writings, he says that the original Mormons were white, were pro-white and then they became corrupted. But when I read parts of Mormon doctrine, which was like written in the 1800s by, I forget exactly what his name was. He was like the head of the Mormon church at that time.

It doesn't, it says that the Negroes can convert to white people, like in an incarnation. I actually asked one of those, uh, I actually asked one of those missionaries. They came there, they always, cause I've, I've always lived in bad neighborhoods where there's a lot of non-whites and they seem to like those ghetto areas.

Right. But I asked one of them one time on a bicycle. I said, well, actually two girls.

And what's funny is that they could walk. They were walking all through this ghetto area and they were not really bothered. I told him, I told him, you shouldn't, you shouldn't really be walking around here cause they looked so innocent.

Right. Uh, so, so naive. Pray for the beast.

But, so basically what I asked them, I asked them, I said, well, uh, you know, what about the whole, um, you know, what about the whole restriction on, you know, blacks being priest and, uh, non-whites being, you know, unable to attain priesthood or even allowed in the temple. Um, they told me that what happened was during the sixties that there was a prophet that came along that changed the doctrine of Mormonism and said, that's what they said. They said, like, they, there was a guy who had a vision and said that, uh, they would allow blacks into the Mormon, the Mormon priesthood.

But, uh, they had a very, I mean, I've read, uh, not really deeply the book of Mormon, that's what they are spreading. Yeah, they appeared to the native Jesus Christ appeared to the native Americans. Well, they said that the, uh, they said that the natives were part of Israel, that they were one of the lost tribes.

And that makes sense in the context of Vinlanders that we were here first 12,500 years ago. So that might be what it refers to is actually that we were the original, what have you, uh, the original so-called Indians. Like I've heard that the Mohicans and the Seminoles were actually white and the Cherokees to some extent.

Some of them, some of them. I've read the stories from the Spaniards, from the French, that the French, especially they, uh, the, these, the, uh, Canadian Indians, they said that some of the women, they had very fair skin, very decent behavior, and they were very tall, which for me means that they had some kind of ancient admixture. And of course, they speculated lately that, uh, there was a Vikings there and things like that.

But I think we're talking about very ancient admixture with, with, uh, what was left over or maybe sewage. I don't know. Of course, the modern Jewish science, they said, oh, this is because basically there are Indians that look a little bit, uh, with more, uh, fair skin.

And, uh, uh, this is because of the ancient, uh, origin of the Hyperboreans, uh, these, these genes that somehow mix with the Asiatic genes in the, in the case of the, uh, Indians and things like that. So, yeah. Then they had the answer for everything.

I mean, it's like Corona, Morona bullshit. I tried to ask Mormons once about Jews and they just became sort of uncomfortable, but this one guy I talked to, he said that the Jews were part of Israel and that the Mormons were also Israelites. Even though they're a totally different race and they are just like, uh, totally foreign to us.

Is there any connection, I wonder, of Mormonism to British Israelism? I think there might be. It seems pretty similar in many ways. I haven't seen it.

What about the claim that the Negroes and the Indians, I believe, are punished with a different color? Yeah, that's, that's in there too. I think they call them, uh, I forget what the name of the, they call the Negroes, but it's something like that. That's like a curse or something like that.

And they can convert to, they can become white people in like a next incarnation or in the resurrection or whatever. If they believe or something like that. It's because they sided with Satan.

That's why they had, they had dark skin and they were misshapen. It was like during the time, you know, when the armies were assembling in heaven, the angels, uh, the whites sided with, uh, with God and, and the blacks sided with Satan and they were made misshapen. It sounds logical to me.

Pretty much. That's what they said. I mean, it's, I think it's, it's right.

If you're black, you, you're bad by nature. That's it. Born criminal.

Yeah. You can be, you can be, uh, if you're consistent with the behavior, if you're suppressed and trained and, uh, by a white man in some way, you can suppress this bad nature to some extent, but otherwise. And vice versa.

If you are in bad influence by. I tend to favor kind of evolutionary sort of explanations for racial differences as opposed to theological. I mean, whatever people believe.

Well, it's come on. Come on. Sounds so good.

I'm just discussing the basis of the new religion. I understand. I just said, okay.

Yeah. I can get down with that. And also, yeah.

And if you have a dark skin, especially if you're a gypsy Jew and things like that, you are touched by Satan. And in that case, there is no salvation. I think.

Have you guys ever, have you guys ever read any academic writings on how these people study white nationalism? They're, they're like really funny. You guys ever read any of that? Very superficial. I believe there's like, there's like, I wouldn't say he's the exception.

It's still superficial analysis. There is this Jewish scholar by the name of Jeffrey Kaplan. And he, he wrote this book called the Encyclopedia of White Power.

And he like has all these entries in there from ranging all the way from, I think the 1950s to the modern era. About white power and the Encyclopedia of White Power. And they emphasize that they got, you know, essays in there from Mason.

They got essays in there from Harold Covington and various different people. And his theory is that white nationalism stems from this millenarianism, this, this tendency for Europeans to look forward to the apocalypse. Sounds like something that a Jew thinks like to me.

Yeah, pretty much. Reverse projection. Yeah.

So this is not natural reaction to being prosecuted, exterminated, hunted down. No, it's not. No, it's not.

It's just psychological. It's intrinsic. It sounds psychological.

Got to go get yourself assessed at a psychiatrist. It's still interesting to look at, you know, how they study us. I think it is.

I like to go over it and understand it because a lot of these scholars now are being they're being utilized when they're trying to call white nationalism and white supremacy a eminent sort of terroristic threat in America. These imaginary white nationalists they're going to hunt after. And that's where they're getting all this stuff from.

They're getting these think tanks. They sit around all day and formulate these theories on why people think as such as they do, why there are various different reactions to the society instead of trying to do the right thing, which is acknowledge multicultural democracy is a failure and it will never be a success. They sit there and pontificate about and chase spooks, you know, and then ghost.

That's what I call a priestly caste hegemonic discourse. That's how they justify killing people. Basically, as you know, saying in the name of the law or in the name of humanity, I will now kill the because I'm justified and it's a just war.

That's the sort of rhetoric that they rely upon to legitimate their imposition of force against people. And that's how they started off. They started off with, you know, the demonization of people.

Then they criminalize them and then they overtly slaughter them. So at first they have to work toward the demonization angle, which is what they're doing right now. And they try to say that we have conspiracy theories.

Well, they have conspiracy theories. Their conspiracy theories is stuff like Timothy McVeigh being aligned with Muslims in the Middle East trying to bring down, you know, the Oklahoma City. That's their type of conspiracy theories.

I've read their conspiracies also entail paranoid delusions about the CIA being controlled by Nazis or about the about the FBI being controlled by Nazis when, you know, ironically, the FBI is like going against people they perceive as Nazis or etc. It's just a source of false dialectic they propose in these various different academic circles. Leftists have just as many conspiracy theories as the so-called right-wing extremists.

Well, they basically convince themselves of their own lies. And then that reifies it. That makes it a reality in their mind.

And then in their mind that justifies them in attacking other people who are other to themselves. Paranoid delusion loop. Yeah, they're basically the very hysterical paranoid delusion loop.

They're the pretty much the poster boys of mental illness. All of those types of people for on the on the in the case of the Jews, obviously, first and foremost, are the most mentally ill people of all. True, they have specific alleles to schizophrenia.

Yeah, they have that. What is it called? The DNST3 schizophrenia gene. So they're paranoid schizophrenics genetically.

And Sigmund Freud, of course, is a Jew who invented that crazy discipline of psychology. No, it was actually not Freud who did that. It was Reich, Wilhelm Reich, which is.

Well, no, Sigmund Freud preceded him, but Wilhelm Reich was after him. No, no, no. Wilhelm Reich was before.

No, Wilhelm Reich was in the 50s and 60s. And he was, I think, killed in jail by the FBI or something. I don't think so.

Sigurd is right. Sigurd is right. Reich was a degenerate communist that was actually working with the Jewish Bolsheviks.

And he started to propose theories based on Freud. Authoritarian. Yeah, authoritarian personality is what came to him.

Basically, if you're a fascist, if you're a fascist, you're raised in an authoritarian family. And of course, he started to target children, aka white children, especially boys, because he was a fucking poor Jew. And interestingly enough, he was supposedly kicked out of the communist circles and kicked out to the West, which for me means that he was sent.

He went to America. He was sent to demoralize the people like Asians. Yeah.

Which, by the way, America was a very fertile soil for any kind of Jew infiltrators at that point that was kicked out from Germany. What do you think gave rise to the Frankfurt School? They have a branch of the Frankfurt School that is spreading, what was the term? Marxo-Freudism or something like that. And they want to talk about the origins of MK-Ultra.

The left tries to say MK-Ultra came from Nazis, but that's not true. I mean, they try to say this guy Galen, Reinhard Galen, was the impetus for the CIA. It's true, the CIA and FBI and the alphabet agencies liked the spy ring that the Nazis had, but it doesn't mean they absorbed any of their external influences upon- Well, Jews plagiarize everybody.

Their governing system. Since the Jews can't create anything themselves, they have to plagiarize others? Well, yeah, the State Department took in a lot of these people after the war because they were actually proficient. They were actually very proficient at what they did.

So what they did is, what they don't tell you, however, is the psychological methods that were used in MK-Ultra by Harry A. Murray and people like that, that this is the guy who experimented on the Unabomber in Harvard. What they don't tell you is this came from Jews. This came from the Frankfurt School.

This came from a prominent Jewish scientist by the name of Sidney Godlib. He was the main person that was in charge of MK-Ultra going off throughout the 60s. Was he the guy at the Stanford Research Institute? Yeah, that's part of it, yes.

Sidney, I think his name was Sidney Godlib, actually. Godlib, yes. And he was affiliated with Timothy Leary and the LSD promotion, too.

Yes. And also, he was also affiliated with Henry A. Murray, who was experimenting on the Unabomber. The Unabomber was subjected to MK-Ultra experimentation at Harvard.

I was under the impression that the Unabomber was just an operative himself. I don't know. I don't know much about that.

I don't like to make wild speculations unless I have evidence. I heard he was an Ashkenazi Jew. I don't think that's true, but it could be.

You never know. You never know. What do you think about the role of Aleister Crowley in the predecessors of this? Yes, he has connections to... It's interesting.

Crowley has connections to many different... I don't know of any connections he might have to MK-Ultra, but I wouldn't doubt that the occult is utilized as a tool of deception for the intelligence agencies in America. Well, there's L. Ron Hubbard, the founder of Scientology, who was bound up with Jack Parsons, who was bound up with Crowley and so forth. And I think... Process Church as well.

Yeah, they had quite a lot of attempts to infiltrate the National Socialists with Crowley and his affiliates. And I forget who they were, though. Like one of the people that Crowley was affiliated with that was rounded up... Probably the OTO, right? Yeah, I think it was Perit Schuh, the guy who wrote The Mystery of the Central Sun and various other things.

A lot of the occultists in Germany were rounded up and basically some of them were probably killed. Like Rudolf Steiner, the guy who created Anthroposophy, because he was trying to put forth this sort of individualistic, sort of liberalized worldview that was detached from race to a great extent. And so he was trying to infiltrate that way.

Take in mind that there was still operating Steiner schools, I believe. Yeah, they still operate, yes. They exist in New York.

In Canada, too, they have them. In Switzerland, and I believe even in Bulgaria, they were open after the fall of communism. They're called Waldorf schools.

And take in mind that until recently, until the 80s, well, 80s and not recently, but until the 80s, at some point, they still taught racial subjects, some kind of study for the race. So Steiner definitely was not National Socialist. Definitely, I agree that he was most likely infiltrated in some way or misled in some way.

But still, there was some racial things in his teaching, was, past tense. You mean Rudolf Steiner? Yeah, I think also Theosophy has some weird connection to the UN. They got the Lucius Trust.

Yeah, it's all related. It's sort of strange. The intention is basically just the same thing as a Jew's intention.

The Kalergi plans just to create the global government, so-called democracy with a rainbow nation and so forth, will replace a nation of peoples with a nation of individuals. They're pushing the individualism, basically a sort of more hardline, neoliberal, communitarian, so-called democracy. What we're seeing right now basically unfolding is what their intention is.

What I'm more interested in, I know that we've pointed out pathologies. We've pointed out sort of the pathology of how they function. My question is, though, how can we protect our people and also utilize an effective sort of strategy against them? That's more or less what I'm concerned about.

Like many of the things that we can't discuss here on this, anywhere, unfortunately, at all. But we still have to devise a type of ideology and some type of framework to combat these things. These things as it's being weaponized against us, these ideological... I think a positive Christianity, like in the form of the Third Reich, is a good means of reaching people who are already Christians and not being overly dogmatic, being more open to a more generalized, basically like a creed of a more generalized nature.

So even though Christian identity is obviously not good for people who are pro-white, it still can be used for those who are Christians to hook them in to a more racist viewpoint. Because most Christians are just lukewarm Christians anywhere. They just say that they're Christians or go to their church because it's a place to go and they don't want to drink liquor in bars.

And they want to have something to fill the void of their materialistic lives, basically. So they gravitate... And that's what I see the failure of white nationalism in America is that it has no Weltanschauung. It has no worldview.

It has no external purpose. It's just white people getting together to tell racist jokes and find camaraderie, which is not a bad thing, but in the long run, it needs some kind of deeper purpose. And the problem with many cases in these circles is that it diverts into a type of a cult.

Right, like national alliance? Like what you see with this no white guilt guy. He's turning it into a cult and a profit, sort of a profitable strategy for himself. Well, that should be... Ultimately, it turns into this grift, never ending grift.

Even national alliances like that. Yeah, it's this never ending sort of... Mason even pointed this out. It's never ending sort of groups and meetings and fees and just putting stickers everywhere.

Nobody has like any legitimate purpose. The way that Americans think is they think through the democratic process. They think, you know, we're going to get our party out there and we're going to advocate for our group and we're going to market ourselves because that's what it is.

It's this never ending marketing for white nationalism. That's why I call America the Masonic shopping mall. Unfortunately, it's not only America.

This type of thinking, the democratic type of thinking is spread everywhere. And that's why when you tell the people what they must do, which is authoritarian approach, I'm sorry, they start to be very opposed to you. Yeah, to resistance and so on.

So you must do it almost in the Jewish way to manipulate them. And a lot of people, including me, we are not very strong in the... It feels dirty when you do that, though. Yeah, but unfortunately... That is how you get people, though, unfortunately.

Yeah, and what to do? I mean, if I say to the guy, look, be serious and do what you promise. And I'm not mentioning names, but personally, I'm kind of disappointed right now from a certain guy. And when he changed his mind or maybe he's not stable psychologically or whatever, what's... How to build something with these kinds of people? So a lot of... There are a lot of broken people in America, unfortunately.

That's just the reality. This is everywhere. I told you, in America, you're leading the processes in a good and a bad way.

Unfortunately, this is what it is. In the good way, because the racial doctrines start to be... What is that? Synthesized by thinkers like Dr. William Pierce, by Rockwell, to some extent, you have these interesting ideas because you are surrounded, the white man is surrounded and is in touch with non-whites. While in Europe, until recently, maybe in the last... Let's say after the Second World War, maybe in France it's a little bit... They have Negroes there, maybe since the end of the 19th century.

But this is something new for the Europeans. Even for Bulgarians that are in touch with gypsies and Turks, they don't like gypsies. But when I start to point it out that, for example, the Negroes in America are basically the same, or maybe even worse than the gypsies, they say, oh no, this is racism.

Well, you just said fucking gypsies. That's another component that's never been dealt with properly in America. Speaking of which, the Jews brought Negroes over to America, primarily.

Don't ever fall for the assumption that it was mostly whites who did that. Right, it was 60% of all Jewish families had Negro slaves, and only 4% of the population... Yes, urban Jews in the South were the primary slaveholders. Only 2% of whites in the South held slaves.

And some people, like in Appalachia, never had slaves at all, and were just as poor and destitute. And ill-protected, unlike the Negroes. The Negroes actually had protection, but the poor people in the mines and the poor child workers in the North, they had no protections under the law.

So don't fall for that. Well, my point in saying this is that it's never been properly dealt with here in America, is that all these different people wanted to deal with this. You had Black leaders like Marcus Garvey, you had the Liberian Colonization Society, who wanted to do it during, I think, the 1800s.

Lincoln wanted to send them back, or put them in Latin America, somewhere in Central America. So it's never been properly dealt with. And the closest thing they had was Marcus Garvey.

Marcus Garvey wanted to bring... And he was almost able to do it, but you know what happened? What happened is they found some, during the time of Prohibition, they found some liquor on his ship, and they put this guy in a dungeon, and he died in London in a dungeon somewhere. So that's the dilemma, is that someone is keeping the Blacks here because they want them here. They want them either as a voting base for democracy, or they want them here as a kind of biological weapon.

Well, yeah, if you look at the book by Israel Zangwill, that play, The Melting Pot, that's basically the whole agenda right there, is for the Jewish cooks to just toss in anything into this stew, ship stew that Matt Hale called it. Yeah. My point is that it's unfair to all groups.

It's unfair to all groups. It's not that I particularly care about the other groups. It's just, I think it is unfair.

Inhumane to keep, if you really, if you are a liberal, white liberal, and you do care about other groups, it's inhumane to subject these populations to America because they don't seem to be happy here. They don't seem to be able to compete as a whole. Unless they have everything handed to them.

Yeah, go ahead. Unless they have everything handed to them through affirmative action. Yeah, that's my point.

Even then they fail because all they do is do an incompetent job that a competent white person is then thrown out of their job. Yeah, that's my point, is that you're never going to find any kind of satisfaction from this. Ultimately, what's going to happen is your multicultural society is breaking down like it is now.

It is breaking down. American multicultural society is breaking down and ultimately it will just be re-tribalized. There will be kind of a re-tribal sort of rebirth in America due to the breakdown of democracy.

I'm always reminded of that book by O.T. Gunnarsson, Hear the Cradle Song. The first, the introduction to that book or the preface, it discusses the breakdown of the U.S. and how people have to band together and it fractures along ethnic lines. Same with Civil War, too, with Thomas Chittum.

With Chittum, yeah. That's pretty much inevitable. That's something that has to be dealt with and I don't think people can properly deal with that because it's too late now to really, unless there is a change, to send these populations back.

Even peaceful separation seems unamenable at this time. Most of the non-whites are very greedy and they think that they're going to be able to kill off white people and take their stuff and continue to put their feet up in the office and smoke a cigar. That's a problem.

That's a problem. White traders have always been a problem and that's why I say, sort of like the late Metzger did, the race war is not between the other races, per se. It's between white versus white and the Semites, of course, but the greedy whites versus the white commoner.

Well, it's also ethnic, too, because the other ethnic groups look upon white people as a competitor. Well, I agree, but I don't think they're a formidable opponent, is what I'm trying to say. No, it's basically, you could conceive of it in an image, like the white race trader is sort of this arrogant, pig-headed moron who just stands in the way and won't let you go forward.

Yeah, I don't foresee them as being an obstacle because they're very disorganized, very scattered. They don't have the proper, even like the most wet-brained white has still the organizational patterns that far supersedes, you know, your average ghetto denizen or your average, like the only person I would say is formidable is probably cartels and Hispanics. MS-13 type things in the gangs, Norteños and Sorteños or whatever.

And the thing is, I think in the end, I think they will side more with the whites than they would blacks, but they're still... I think it'll be more or less along the lines of O.T. Gunnarsson's, Hear the Cradle Song, like in California as a microcosm of that. He says that the mestizos will try to take over California and they'll be emboldened by the Jews and so forth. And then they'll just end up being taken over by the Chinese.

And then from there... The Jews control La Raza, so you're probably correct on that. Yeah, so they're basically... The Jews are just basically using the Negroes and the so-called Amerindians or whatever you want to call them as cannon fodder to throw at white people to try to break apart society. And then from there, they can just get rid of them with bioweapons or whatever their intention is afterwards.

So what I'm trying... I agree with that. I think eventually they will replace them either with some kind of weird artificial intelligence or, you know... Chinese slave labor intermittently. Yeah, I don't think China is a big threat like people say it is.

At least, I think people overestimate... The Jews controlled China. There's that book, Chinese Communists, Chinese Jews by Istvan Bakony. Yeah.

That basically proves Jews had been in China for well over a thousand years. They have. They have been.

But I don't know how many internal control they have. I'm still skeptical about that. They're moving large sums of money and capital there.

So I don't think that they will move this type of money in the country that they don't control in one way or another. And the Chinese, like people, they're very unpleasant. But also being oriental, the Jews know that they are kind of passive.

So they are the yellow Jews of the Far East. Some kind of similar to them. But being passive and being obviously more intelligent than the Negro, that they're dangerous.

So they need... The Jews need control of China. And China, being part of the global plan, there'll be no doubt about it. No doubt about it.

I think they're keen, though. I think the Chinese are more keen on the Jews than... No. No.

Okay, fine. My question is, you say that, but why do they say stuff like, for instance, why do they say like in the New York Times, the New York Times is owned by Jews and America is practically owned by Jews? That's something that I believe the Chinese journalist or academic said that about America. Because this is a common thing to smear the enemy.

And at the same time... But it's true, though. Propaganda movies of the 70s and 80s. I understand that.

I understand the purpose of propaganda. So this is basically nothing. I mean, they put the fact, they would say, we are not anti-Semitic, but we are anti-Zionist.

Well, in addition to that, they also pointed out that white genocide was happening in America. I'm not saying that they're on our side. I'm just simply saying they noted that the white birth rates were down in America.

And they were playing upon this in their media. Can you quote, what was the racial component in the people in the book 1984? They don't really, they're not really described. I know that the... They're described.

Goldstein. They're described. I think it was called Eurasia, right? Yes, they were called Eurasia.

But also they're described with mixed features. OK. With mixed Asiatic and... I didn't catch that.

And I haven't read 1984 in a long time. Read it again. You'll see what I mean.

And this is exactly the Tuginis plan. And this is, as we say, Asiatic, who is the most populous country in the world, for good sake. I mean, it's cannot... The people were so retarded that they cannot analyze a simple name.

Like, there cannot be anything called Eurasia. Eurasia, basically Europe, the whole Europe is less numerous than... It's not even the whole Europe. The whole white population is less numerous than single China.

What about India? What about Southeast Asia? What about Mongolia? What about these Turkey countries? Well, my thought is that once they start creating conflagrations all over the world, there's going to be mass die-offs through starvation, disease, and internal war, and civil war between all these different nations and amongst each other, too. All right. Because, you know, in India, they have Pakistan, which is a Muslim country right next to it.

They have Muslims inside of India as well. So that'll neutralize them as a threat. And then in China, I think they have a fair amount of Muslims there also.

And then they've got Japan breathing down their neck, too. And then America to contend with, and then India. And then in Russia, I guess they have internal problems.

The Russians, they're born with internal problems. The whole Russian identity is one internal problem, and they're trying to impose this thing on the other nation. This is the problem of the Russians, that they're created with the imperialistic threat to whole Europe, which the Führer had quotes about that.

And also other people had quotes about that. Even the normal guys that I refer in Russia and Ukraine and Belarus, they had some kind of strange, weird pan-Slavic imperialistic ideas that they don't work, never worked, and never will work in the future. And also, I will say that no pan-anything will work if we are not under the threat of this common enemy.

I mean, unfortunately, this is like that. So that's why I told to Patrick in the past that I'm not pan-Europeanist. I'm more conservative type, preventing any kind of destruction of nation.

Europe is kind of good, like in the present moment. But there needs to be some type of federation in Europe as a self-defense of individual nations. I can accept that.

So guys, it seems like to me that this is the only logical conclusion you can reach about battling our enemies, is that it is indeed a non-materialist war. It is sort of a spiritual war. It does seem to have a kind of spiritual component to it.

Well, it seems to me, given my experience with Zionist Christians, especially, and I guess liberals as well, that they're basically probably under possession or some sort of extreme mental influence that has more or less subordinated them to the Jews and to the whole mentality or Weltanschwing of self-hate that they're not even capable of affirming that they even exist or that white people exist or that they have a right to exist or anything of that sort. To such an extent that they're basically in a state of mental anesthetization that basically puts some type of inhibition on their will, on like a spiritual plane somehow. Well, it's because the rapture-based dispensationalist Christianity is very nihilistic.

It's a very nihilistic sort of worldview. I don't mean like positive nihilism and the means of sort of like Nietzsche was talking about. This is sort of the negative components of nihilism to where you don't live for your life on this earth.

Everything that is reaped is foreseen in the afterlife. So you don't really make any improvements and you don't really have to do any deeds to work for it. That's that Near Eastern fatalist mentality, Semitic mentality that comes out of the Near Eastern.

You kind of accept your fate. Yeah, it leads to passivity and to cowardice and weakness and just sort of escapism. I mean, contrast this with our ancestors' concept of harminga or these concepts that our ancestors or the concept of Vird, which our ancestors believe were not static, that they were forever changing and they were in tune with the moment and as you existed.

And it could change depending on like your deeds and your practices. So it's a definition, a distinction between word and or log or between fate and destiny. White people concern themselves with carving out their own destiny or manifest destiny, like Ben Klassen would say in his books, or the manifest destiny of the winning of the West of America.

That's a sort of Aryan spirit of expansion. Whereas with the Semites, it's just sort of this cowardly fearing and trembling before an external deity in the name. What's your thoughts on this, Nord? I don't know from where to start.

I mean, a lot of people talk about different kinds of spirituality, and I told you many times already, I, being a National Socialist, cannot be atheistic. For me, the idea, it's like a little bit like this slogan, like ein Reich, ein Volk, ein Führer, right? And of course, the idea that above the Führer, there is a God or God. It's a hierarchical type of mentality, which is very typical for the people that are so called fascists or National Socialists.

And for me, there was a struggle of forces. And this is very, how to say, presented Bulgarian means that they were a creation of force and they're destructive, chaotic forces. And I believe in every mythology, not even only in every mythology, but in every mythology is like that there are the forces of order struggling against the forces of chaos.

And the Jewish mentality is very well represent the force of chaos. They're dark, they're chthonic, but they are very, their effort is very strong and concentrated. And if you have respect for the Jews, respect for the enemy, you can say that you have respect for their efforts.

I mean, they really, really have these several thousand years of, how to say, labor. But if you look at the details and I'll go with the esoteric stuff, some people don't like that, but it doesn't matter. I must say, if you look deeper, you cannot think that only the Jews are behind this effort, this gigantic plan of destroying the humanity.

If you're a Christian, the easiest way of thinking is that the Satan, the devil, the evil forces are behind that. And yes, of course, I being a little bit more, let's say, looking at history from different perspectives, with different sources, things like that, I think that unfortunately, and of course, some of the listeners will be scandalized, but whatever the truth will be said. Unfortunately, I look at Polish Christianity like being satanic in a way, because Satan in one of the many meanings, like accuser and things like that, means the enemy.

So being a white man with a hard struggle to become an Aryan, you must start to think that the enemy, being the Jews, are real Satan. But they themselves look at the areas like Satan, because we are their enemies. So if you look at their different literature, you will see in the book of Enoch that they describe the seed of the fallen angels being the white man.

That's a Hyperborean devious. Yeah. In the book of the Giants, which is some kind of related to the book of Enoch, they said that the seed of the fallen angels, of the watchers, is in the land of the Scythians, which is the Urheimat, the land of the Aryans.

And, of course, in the different Talmudic texts, you can see in the Bible, you can see I pointed out about the six fingers, I pointed out about Philistines, I pointed out about the Greeks, I pointed out about the different tribes. Even these ancient so-called Semitic civilizations, like Sumerians, for example, Egyptians, they're not Semitic, actually. They had a very strong Aryan influence in the aristocracy, in the priesthood.

That's why these empires actually existed, because of the Aryan order, this projection of the godly order in the world. Well, if you look at any of those masks and statues in Sumeria, all the statues in Sumeria, they had round eyes and snub noses and bow lips and high foreheads, basically white features. And then you look at Scythian masks, Scythian gold masks on an image search, and they have the same features.

It's a snub nose, it's round eyes, so forth. Yeah, the Scythian, as must be pronounced most likely, masks are the same like the Bulgarian golden masks. They were implemented during the funeral ceremonies, which implement another thing that I've talked a long time ago.

It's about the golden host, the golden army, which all Bulgarians believe. I suppose it's similar to the idea of Einherjar in the Norse mythology, these eternal warriors that will return to fight on the side with the final battle between the forces of order, the forces of chaos, aka the Jews. In the case of Bulgarian mythos, the Jews are even named in the myth.

The evil forces, these snake spirits were called Yudi, which means Yuden, which means the Jews. Entering that snake motif you mentioned. Yeah, and of course the father of these people, a deity that is actually part of the creation.

Is that similar to Jormungandr? The deity that were called in the Bulgarian myth was called Yaha or Yaga, which is very similar to Yahu, which is the name of Yahweh. And of course, this is the proto-genitor of the myth of the Baba Yaga, the evil force spirit, female spirit. Which, by the way, if you look at Yaha, you'll see that in the creation of the myth, there were several deities.

One of them was, I believe, a Semitic feminine deity. And that's why they're talking about Shekinah Glory, right? The feminine glory or whatever. Yes, Shekinah Glory is what the evangelicals say.

Shekinah. Yeah. So, yeah, we're talking about androgynous deity that was turned to be projected over the... That's why a lot of Christians actually like this thing, because it refers to the archetype, going in the direction of Jungian philosophy here.

The archetype of the Sky Father, the idea of Sky Father came with the idea of the Aryans. The other society before the Aryans, even European society, were worshippers of the Mother Goddesses. And the Aryans were these revolutionaries, these warriors that worshipped the Father, the Sky God.

And this is the revolutionary difference between the Aryans that conquered the world and even the pre-Aryan Europeans, which, by the way, racially were not so different from the Aryans. I mean, we're talking about... I don't remember. Maybe I talk with Patrick or maybe I talk with Dungard.

These supposedly pre-Aryan civilizations that were found in the Varna necropolis in Bulgaria, this golden treasure for 7,000 years. The Vinca culture. The Vinca, yeah.

Supposedly, they were pre-Aryan. They were very civilized people. We are talking about very complicated cities, very sophisticated built houses, things like that.

But they were not on the same level like the supposedly less developed Indo-Europeans. And they were slightly shorter than the Indo-Europeans, which is difference, I believe, five centimeters, which is the difference in the diet. The diet is also important.

We have the spirituality. We have the religion, which is hierarchical religion. You have the sky father.

You have the daughter Hesios, Jesus. You have the... which is the morning star, by the way, just saying. Yeah, it even says that in the Bible that he's the morning star or something.

He's the morning star. She was the morning star, which is Venus, which is Hesios, which is Lucifer, which was the bad guy in the Latin Bible, which is mindfuck from the Jews on this. And of course, you have the twin horsemen, which are represented in Bulgarian mythology.

But I also believe it's represented in Norse mythology. You have the deity of the waters. You have the goddess of the waters in some cases.

In Bulgarian mythology, waters are feminine elements, so they're represented by goddesses. And of course, you have a god of fire, Smetik. In Bulgaria, it's a combined mythology of god of war and Smetik.

And of course, there was a god of wisdom and protection. And yeah, most of these archetypes refer to some of the characteristics of the Aryan people. You can find them in some way or form in the Greek mythology.

You can find it in Norse mythology. You can find it in Scythian mythology. You can find it in Celtic mythology.

You can find it in so-called Slavic mythology. Although if you refer to the modern Slavic paganism, it's total bullshit, because it is restoration based on suggestions, based on 19th century Russian propaganda of creating something based on the Vedic scriptures and other fantasies. And of course, you can find it in Iranian mythology, because most of the people forget about the Iranians.

There was the frontier of the Aryan invasion to the Iranian portal and in India, of course, the Vedic portal. Unfortunately, all of these people were wiped out. We're talking about Iranians.

We're talking about Tukharians, killed by the base Chinese, by the way, mercilessly. We're talking about whites, maybe not exactly Aryans in South and North America. They were wiped out by the Indians.

In the case of South America, I believe that the people of Quetzalcoatl were defeated at some point. And they were also killed off during the time that the Spanish conquistadors returned, because Spanish conquistadors were controlled by Jews to the Catholic Church, and they came to South America and they slaughtered the whites who were the priestly caste there. I don't believe that the conquistadors were controlled by the Jews.

That's what Serrano says in his books. I have some things about Serrano. But OK, could be some infiltration, because the Jews are always infiltrating.

Well, yeah, yeah. Well, that's what I mean, that the conquistadors were controlled by Jews. Maybe there was an infiltration.

I can agree on that. But I don't think that every single one of them. No, not every single one.

They're just like today. They're just like the Christians who go around attacking their own people because Jews tell them to because they're naive and stupid. Yeah, yeah.

For example, I know that the church started to protect the Indians. So basically, the Catholic Church is behind what is the racial corporate of South America right now, which is predominantly not white. And I believe if they didn't protect the Indians at some point, we will have more or less white South America.

But this is my suggestion, of course. And of course, South America is not like North America, different climate and different topography and things like that. But yeah, there's a lot of mountains where they could hide in, I guess.

Still, I believe that the Catholic Church played their role. Maybe the Jewish infiltration was there that they saved the non-whites and they prepared the way through the Jesuits for the Masonic Revolution. It's a never ending gap.

And there was a lot of interesting research. I believe we talked with Patrick about that. These Jesuits basically create the Communist Republic for the communists there.

These Masonic networks existed since the 1700s and probably before that, and they were carved out and utilized throughout the different revolutions that happened in Europe, all the way going to the Spanish Civil War. The Masonic lodges served as these spy networks. And it seems also like the 1917 Revolution and October Revolution in Russia as well.

So it does seem like there's a connection there. And how ironic that the same kind of democracy would also, and this egalitarian principles would spring from the same source, such as the French Revolution. I think the American Revolution is sort of a deviation.

It was different than the French Revolution, but the seeds, they're still part of that same milieu. The American Revolution is still part of that same milieu that existed. It's all based on egalitarianism.

Yeah. But it still was kind of a deviation in many regards that they didn't quite take it to the standpoint that the French Revolution did. They still needed enough intelligent white people to build up the country.

Yeah. Which is why I kind of question, I do appreciate some of the tenets that was brought by the American Revolution, such as the Constitution is a good document. There's some good stuff in it, like the freedom of speech, the Second Amendment, of course.

But there's still some problems with the sort of overarching framework that the American Revolution grew out of, which was, whether we like it or not, a kind of anti-authoritarian liberal liberalism, albeit like classical liberalism, which to me is just deleterious. The whole point is basically is to destroy any sort of concentrations of white power. Yeah.

And regardless of whether the early sort of classical liberals saw things through a racist viewpoint is kind of kind of immaterial, considering the fact that it would later lead to what you see in the 1960s and it would be exploited, of course, by the Jews. And most of the people were white in those countries. So they took it for granted that they were just talking about themselves and their own rights.

But of course, behind the scenes, the Jews probably knew that their goal was to import as many non-whites as they could, because even in the Catholic Church, I just discovered there's some papal bulls or whatever from around like the 1400s and stuff where it was prohibiting slavery and stuff like that. And, you know, it was it was talking about non-whites as other humans and so forth. So it was always universalist and egalitarian.

They just called them heathen because they weren't converted to their religion. Now, the Catholic Church is another piece of history I haven't really looked further into. I've looked a little bit into it from, of course, reading the works of like E. Michael Jones.

And there's another guy which I know he's a he's sort of doesn't share the racial views. He's still a pretty decent historian. There's also another guy named Maurice Pinay that wrote a book called, I think it's called The Plot Against the Church, isn't it? Say what? I think it's called The Plot Against the Church.

Yes. The Plot Against the Church, which covers a lot of the ground where subversion happened. That's an interesting look into how the Catholic Church was manipulated.

There's also Viscount Leon de Ponsons wrote Judaism and the Vatican. Yeah, of course, de Ponsons is another good source. He was sort of a French noble.

He was privy to a lot of that. He had a lot of good books on Jews that aren't translated into English. They're just in French.

And then he wrote Freemasonry and Judaism, The Secret Powers Behind World Revolution. That's a pretty good book. It's similar to The Occult War with Immanuel Malinsky, who is another Christian.

It was discussing the same sort of issues of the French Revolution after that. Yeah. So clearly there's always been a plot to undermine Europeans from the Middle Ages to the modern day world.

There's always been these various different vehicles that have been used for these different machinations, whether it be the Catholic Church, Freemasonry, you name it. As far as also about Catholicism is like during the, I believe the 1960s, when Vatican II came about, the CIA was also utilizing intelligence operatives probably to control the church as well, which leads me. Have any of you guys heard of, and I'm sorry if I'm monopolizing this conversation.

I know we wanted to talk about the Bulgarian doctor. Well, we could always do that another time. This conversation is more oriented toward mainstream political issues and then related issues of how spirituality informs it.

Let me introduce another topic that I feel is not discussed more openly in our circles, because it kind of reflects what modern day America is becoming, and I think this will probably prove for Europe as well, is the Italian Years of Lead. You guys familiar with the Italian Years of Lead? Is that Giorgio Freda you're talking about? Giorgio, yeah, Freda, but he wasn't the only person. It was where the communists and the fascists were fighting on the streets, and I think there were neighborhoods from which the Reds couldn't go into, and the journalists would get beat up.

I think that's what we're going to see in America. I think we're going to see the Years of Lead. But what's important to understand about the Years of Lead is the P2 Lodge.

Have you guys heard of the P2 Lodge? Yeah. Okay, what was the major Masonic lodge? Go ahead. Is that called Propaganda Due or something? No.

Is it? Is that the formal name of it? Yeah. And I believe it was established with the claim that it's a fascistic lodge, Masonic lodge. Yeah.

But it was established with the help of CIA agents, and they supposedly must fight the communism. And of course, there was some kind of proxy between the Mafia and the Catholic Church. So, yeah, I know.

There also were the Reds. The Red Brigade also existed in that time, and they were pretty militant. Yeah.

And they were blowing up stuff. And the anarchists, of course, were causing trouble. Well, this wasn't just in Italy.

This was all over Europe at the time. And there's rumors, and this is only rumors, that Column 88 in the UK was established by the same Operation Gladio P2 groups. My point is that the State Department and various different machinations exist too that are all fighting for the Aryan soul.

They're all these people are fighting for control over the Aryan soul and for their own interest. So, I mean, how do you navigate this type of terrain when you have all this at stakes? You know, you have to have some type of spiritual component. At the same time, it has to be aligned in the material world.

You can't just have one without the other. You have to be balanced. Yeah, I mean, if you have, I mean, we discussed the Jews and what they hate.

But basically, they're in this not, I would say, not in the duality, but in dualism. You have a total acceptance of materialism because Judaism is a materialistic religion. They, all their laws and prohibitions, everything is targeting the material world.

It's not any, there is no any high philosophical concept that is coming from Judaism. Well, even their religion, their whole spirituality is not even spirituality. It's just basically pantheistic naturalism.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. Even though it's in the form of monotheism, but it's, as I said, it's a form that is stolen from Aryan people, like Iranian people, like Zoroastrians. And even in Zoroastrianism, there was not, the Zoroastrian religion was not monotheistic because they had at least three deities.

One is, yeah, one is the father of Ahura Mazda, which my name, the name I forgot, but basically is the Iranian type of Deus Peter, the sky god. And then you have Ahriman, the evil deity. And believe it or not, some people worshipped Ahriman, like a Persian version of the Satanists, I suppose, because they believed that Ahriman was this, actually Ahriman was kind of technocrat, if you think about it, this Angra Manu, the spirit of anger.

And of course, this is kind of interesting about the Zoroastrianism, this represents race mixing at that point and degeneration in the minds of the Persians because they start to become a little bit weak, especially in the minds, in the eyes of the Greeks. You think it was subverted? Maybe. According to Reville P. Oliver in his book Origins of Christianity, he says that Zoroastrianism was created by Jews, or he speculates that it was.

I don't think so. What evidence does he have? I don't remember exactly. I don't think it's created by Jews because basically Zoroastrianism was basically a copycat of an even older religion, Zoroaster, they cannot understand when exactly Zoroaster was born.

Even the concept of angels came from Zoroaster. There's a lot of heavy borrowing from Zoroastrianism and Islam and Judaism. Because he was born in a tribe in the north of the Iranian plateau from exactly these Turanians, so basically Aryan tribes.

So, as we say, Turanians, read the history, look at the name Tur, it refers to the god, or in the case of the Iranian hero, Tur, which in the Bulgarian mythology is a god Tur, which refers to the north Tur, or Tir, or Tor, which is the same, which is the original name of the original god of the Aryans, or Tir, like the Thracians were called the sons of Tir, then their original name was actually not Thracians, not Traki, like in Bulgarian, but Tirraki, with Tir. So they were the sons of the god of war, according to the Greeks, that called this god Ares, which is the Aryan god, which is the red bearded, red-haired god. So, yeah, we're going in circles, and that's why your questions actually have an answer.

We can recreate the religion and the spirituality of the ancient areas. So you think it's going to be a Trinitarian religion? It could be a religion for, we have a deity, which is the sky father, which is the archetype of the wise creator. You can have the archetype of the warrior and creator and destructor at the same time.

You have the deity of the mother, basically the matron figure. You have the deity of the trickster, which is another aspect that a lot of people don't like, but actually is part of the way. It creates dynamic tension in the system and enables it to grow and develop itself.

The trickster is not simply a Semitic concept, is it? No, it's not a Semitic concept. Look at the Celtic heroes. Look at the Norse mythology.

Loki was not bad, actually. Because of the thinking of most Americans, they try to equate tricksterism to Semites. This is Christian thinking.

This is basically victimhood thinking, because if you are tricked by the clever guy, you may not like him, but you must understand why he is doing that. And you have to do what you can. You have to carve out your own destiny in relation to what's thrown at you by the fates, not just lay there passively and wait for some external authority to come and save you or whatever the case.

You have to save yourself. So, yeah, I mean, we can recreate the religion. It doesn't matter.

It doesn't matter how you call the deities. You have the deities. You have the god of fire and forging, which is the representative of the archetypical need of the Aryan to create.

You have, as I said, the mother figure, which is a very good archetype that must be how to say. Well, that's like Mother Mary in the Catholic churches derives from M-A-R-I in Sumeria, Mary. Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah.

Most, most likely. And that's Ostara. That they had a black, black Mary, which is also very interesting.

Well, I think that's a metaphysical concept, not like an actual Negro or anything. No, no. It's not the Negro, because if you look at the statue, they have blue eyes, but black skin, which is.

That's my Mother Mary, man. Are you guys talking about like the Black Madonna? Yeah, the Black Madonna. Many of the Negroes here in America try to expropriate white culture.

It's the Earth Mother. It's not. Yes, the Earth Mother, yeah.

Yeah. And some people try to. It's Demeter, Demeter and Core.

And it's, it's those type of archetypical sort of Earth Mothers that we're in. Yeah, yeah. Some people try to connect it with even with the Black Sun, but I won't go in that direction because it's convoluted, let's say.

But it's not a Negress. You can look at the feature and the eyes and the other things. When it's Negro, for example, there is a golden treasure found, let's say, 2600 years.

And they are trying to present some kind of evil spirits and some kind of exotics because it was a gift from. It's interesting you said evil spirits, because in the grimoires, from what I've read, they also present the evil spirits as Black. They present them as monsters or Black or.

Yeah, yeah. This is written in also like early Christian texts as well. But this is normal if you think about it.

And I spoke this already. Gaijin, what is Jin? Jin is like gentlemen, like goi, like white people. You're talking about the Japanese.

Well, the Japanese also have a concept in Buddhism where they talk about this dormant sort of spirit that doesn't have any spirit, any soul. And they equate that with the Jews. Many of the people like some of the Zen Buddhists equated that with the Jews.

And this was a common motif even in Japanese. It's interesting when you mentioned that about Jews not having souls. If you're around Jews, they have a sort of weird vampiric resonance to them.

Like they're trying to drain your energy. And of course, they've got a pasty body and pasty skin color. And their eyes are always like beady Black eyes and so forth.

Although some have colored eyes. I think the name of the Japanese name I was thinking of is Domoyo, which is like... I'm probably butchering it, you know, probably butchering it. But that's sort of their concept where they... And this is documented in a book called The Jews and the Japanese Mind.

This is documented in that book. And they even go further on to talk about people like Aum Shinrikyo and their so-called anti-Semitism. So they have a lot of primary sources in that book? Yeah.

I guess it was written by a Jew, probably? Probably. I mean, most, unfortunately, most of our academic text about Jews are written about Jews. But I think many of them are pretty good because Jews, as much as they try to cover up for their race, they do a very poor job of it.

Because their conclusion of anti-Semitism is always, woe is me. You know, everyone just ganged up on us. For no reason.

We did no... We did nothing wrong, you know. They were jealous of us. They just wanted to get our money.

So that's the conclusion of most of academic text when they study anti-Semitism. Even the one wrote by Abbie Foxman, you know, the guy who, I think, led the ADL for a long time. I think it's Abe Foxman.

Yeah, okay, Abe Foxman. When he led the ADL for so long, he even came up with the conclusion. It's the same conclusion no matter what.

But my point in illustrating that is that this is pretty much cross-cultural amongst all groups, including non-white groups like the Japanese. Right. I remember one time I was working in this job and this guy was like a Somalian who was like a military officer in Somalia.

And he said that the Jews were devils. He was a Muslim. So even the Somali said that? Yeah.

Of course. And this guy had blue eyes too. Somalis are not like standard Negroes.

There's like some mixture. Yeah, apparently whites were all over South and East Africa as well as North Africa. Yeah, I've heard legends about that, even in Ethiopia.

There's all those step pyramids, the step pyramids derived from the whites. You mean the creation of the evil genius Jakub? No, that's Nation of Islam lore. Oh my God.

I'm sorry. I just believe that. Which, by the way, the Nation of Islam is an interesting story itself.

I mean, I've studied it. I mean, it's pretty interesting. They borrow a lot from theosophy and masonry.

Maybe it's just a masonic organization that was set up. It really is. You look deep into the Nation of Islam, a lot of it stems from masonry.

And this guy named, I'm trying to think of his name. His name was Wallace Dodor Farad Mohamed, who is described as a white person. He was described as white or a light-skinned Negro or something.

And he's the one that told them, told that he could have been a con artist that was deceiving the Negroes and telling them all about, made up this racial myth for them to. I didn't know they're superstitious. They'll latch onto that and probably they developed it further.

Yeah, they probably created that in the first place just to unify them as a group against white people to demonize whites. I don't know if it's even that deep. It's more or less kind of the guy who did it was a silk merchant and they have an FBI file on him somewhere.

His name is Wallace Dodor. Might be a Jew. A lot of people don't know his origins.

Could have been Jewish. Could have been Turkish. Could have been an Albanian.

They don't know his origins. They're not very sure. They know one thing.

He was probably not a Negro. Because you are going back in the discussion, Sigurd mentioned that the Jews had vampiric nature. Going back to the Bulgarian myths, since the word vampire came from the Bulgarian word vampir, which means vam means you and pir means to feast or to drink, the origin of the vampires, the older form of the vampires is called upir, which is basically the same.

U means you and pir means to feast. So feasting upon you, which is typical for the Jews. Nosferatu, this is another story.

This is much later. Yeah, that was Bram Stoker. That's just an allegory of the way Jews behave.

Yeah, we're talking about pre-Christian myths, right? These upirs, the first upir was, according to, it was, so basically the creation story, I believe I spoke with a guy about, several people about Bulgarian myths, but there was a battle in the beginning between the Thunder God and the Sky Father, the Bulgarian, it's called Tangra, which by the way refers to the Persian angra, because angra in Old Bulgarian means battle rage or anger. In Persian, I believe it was angra, but it was more like negative commutations. So basically Tangra is a bringer of battle rage, which is similar to Odin with beser gangra, right? So anyway, so the Sky Father is fighting this true trickery, by the way, he pretends that he's weaker to understand the power of his enemy.

His enemy was Yaha, this demi-Urgic mutant, so to say, that sometimes is represented like a mixture between dragon and snake or black bear. So it's very complicated, but also had some kind of metal alloy protecting it. That's why Tangra managed to penetrate the widely open mouth of Yaha.

That is also another symbology for the greediness of this demi-Urgic, because he tried to swallow the sun and the moon. So being penetrated with a saber or in some versions spear of Tangra, he began to bleed a lot and he ran away. He split the fire of creation that before this creature had stolen.

And from the drops of blood, the drops of blood of Yaha start to fall on the ground. And from the drops of blood, the drops of blood gave birth to the evil spirits called Yudi, so Yudin. And one drop, especially a big drop of blood, dropped in the lake of creation and the moon started to shine upon the drop of blood.

And from this drop of blood was formed the first Upir, that was an extremely disgusting creature, very hungry for, it is not exactly described, but more like a giant zombie. With wings or something like that. It was very, very strange.

Can I just interject something about those those winged beings? You know how there's that Vrilias, the power of the coming race by Edward Bulwer-Lytton, the guy who was the head of the Rosicrucian Society. He wrote that there's like winged beings in the hollow earth. And then there's another author, Edgar Rice Burroughs, a guy who wrote Tarzan.

He wrote a series of books called Pellucidar, The Land That Time Forgot, and At the Earth's Core. And in there, there's this group of beings called the Mahars, which are like winged, carnivorous, like pterodactyl type beings. And they feast upon humans in the hollow earth and they behave exactly like Jews and so forth.

Just saying that Tarzan is one of the names of the Aryans in Asia. So maybe this is another mindfuck. By the way, what was the origin of Tarzan? He was a white man, right? Yeah.

Yeah. So yeah, maybe this is a mindfuck. I mean, a wild boy that was raised in the nature was equal to the Aryans.

Anyway, so from this drop of blood came the first Ulpyr that was an extremely nasty creature, extremely hungry. It was not exactly drinking blood, but it was very, very hungry for human flesh. And of course, at that point, the humans were created by the god Horst.

And the soul of the humans were created by the sky father, which is a very common motif in the Aryan myths that the soul came directly from this ultimate deity. Right, that's like the divine sparks of the father god. And what's interesting, too, is that the Jews allegedly derived from Neanderthals, too.

And the Neanderthals apparently were consumers of the flesh of the Cro-Magnon. Yeah, yeah. They were cannibals.

And then, of course, the Jews commit ritual murder sacrifice. Yeah. And don't forget the story of Cain and Abel.

Cannibals, right? Cain ate Abel, right? So you have this story about this cannibalism. And of course, Horst, or Horst, or Horst, supposedly is the son, most likely is the son, but we don't have a source of the sky father tiger. And in Bulgarian mythos, he's the most venerated god, Horst, which could be equal to the god of Hephaestus in the Greek mythology, but also could be equal to the Thor.

You mean Hephaestus? Yes, yeah. So it's a very interesting deity. He's called the Iron Father, also.

And also he's called the Northern Rider. So that also, there was a reference to the Northern Light, like Northwoods. So you have the origin of the name.

Have you ever heard of the Minnesota North Stars, that hockey team? It's because the whole mythos is not placed exactly where is modern Bulgaria. Some people suggest it's in modern Ukraine, or some people suggest it's even on the north of that. As I said before, two or two reference to the point of origin, which is Tule, basically.

And we don't know where is Tule, so we don't know where is Tule. But anyway, so Horst defeated this Upir, the primal Upir. But of course, he has a lot of children already, which are the modern vampires, which are the Jews.

Which, interestingly enough, there was a differentiation in Bulgarian mythos between Yudin and Vampiri, right? But they're very similar in nature. Very similar in nature. So vampiric deities that cannot live without drinking blood or eating flesh of the humans.

So this is eternal war between the children of Tanger and Horst and the children of Yaga. Well, it's the children of light and the children of darkness, because the light is in the blood. Like who has it said, Giordano Bruno, that the blood is the life? And that's where the divine spark is, is in the blood of the Aryan.

Yeah. And that's why the Jews continue to consume the blood of white people in the form of blood banks. That's why they have blood banks that they run.

Yeah, yeah, yeah. Exactly, exactly. And also there was some interesting, how to say, interesting, this is like contract, like a pact between the Horst, the creator deity, and the humans.

And the humans were 72 tribes that were named like Tervilini, which most likely the gods, because their ancient name was Tervingi or something like that. There were Kimbroni, which are most likely Cimmerians and things like that. I mean, this is like the numbers of tribes, like the German clone of the Aryans, know their relatives.

The Eastern tribes, that was Scythian, Iranian, Baltic, or modern day Slavic, so to say, they also know their close relatives. So it was like a family tree, so to say, these 72 peoples. So yeah, this is the creation myth.

And this pact between the Horst and the humans was represented like a red stash, basically. So that's why the Bulgarians, if you look at the folk costumes, we wear red stash, because this is the pact between the deities, the Aryan deities and the humans. So this is the bloodline of the humans.

That's interesting that in Kabbalah, they use that red string as well, like the Jewish Kabbalah. Yeah, I don't know what is the symbology of the red string there. But this is, I don't know, for my understanding, this is the connection between, because this pact was under the tree called Irmin, which is the equivalent of Irminsul in the Saxon mythology, this column that was destroyed by the Franks, by Charlemagne, and Idrisil in the Norse mythology.

So in the case of the Bulgarians, it was sacred oak. Representing the world oak, this connection between the sky and the earth. This is like, and some people think that it's representing also Kundalini, right? So yeah, it was a very, very, if you look deeply in the mythology, unfortunately, the modern Bulgarian myths, what are left behind were written in the 50s, most of the time by the communists, already written.

So most of Bulgarians don't know anything or they know bullshit. So yeah. But yeah, so this is how, going back to the beginning of the conversation, this is how you reconstruct the myths.

You must look at the sources and you must look at the different meaning of the sources. And even some words could be, I would say, could answer questions. For example, as I mentioned before, the Bulgarian word Budja means to wake somebody up.

It's very close to the name of Buddha. So he was the guy that is awakening. Now what he's awakening is another question because his religion is egalitarian and I don't like it.

But it's basically, I would say, basically a type of decoding the Aryan history and mythology. Hello? Yep. Sigrid, are you still there? Did Sigrid leave? I don't know.

Maybe something happened. No, I just had to go and check something. Sorry about that.

Okay. Okay. So is this enough time to continue with... How long have we been going? Quite long, actually.

Almost two hours, which... Okay, I think that's about it. Because if you go any further than this, people will just lose focus. Yeah, I will say one thing for the end.

I've just read that Biden decided that the transsexual in the army must be allowed again. They've already made a transsexual our minister of health. Just another way for the Jews to mock the non-Jews basically while they try to destroy them.

Yeah. I think it is a tranny Jew. Really? Yeah.

Perfect. It will be even better to be a transsexual, pansexual, Black Israelite Jew. But now this is more than enough.

Well, I guess we can only wait for the coming chaos to begin once they start trying to vilify us more and then round us up or something of that sort. So I guess the goal is to get away from the cities. It goes along with what you were saying about mental health.

Utilizing mental health as a weapon against dissidents. Yeah, punitive psychiatry and punitive whatever, psychology. They've got so many different variations on that theme that they can basically pretend that they're going to try to help you through using more or less any ideology or crazy system of beliefs.

You know, they can work within those ideologies. You know, if you say you don't believe in psychiatry, you don't think it's a legitimate science, then they'll say, oh, we've got some psychology for you. And then you say you don't look upon that as legitimate.

Then they'll say, oh, well, let's look into some alternative therapies. So in other words, you're guilty by default before you even have an opportunity to prove yourself innocent. Not to go any further, but they actually have been studying racism from little babies onwards.

And they have discovered that. They've been doing stuff like studying, I think, MRIs of scans of certain brain patterns, the way they light up certain sections of the brain sort of light up when they're subjected to images of other races. They've been doing this study, I believe, in some Toronto university.

In addition to that, I believe that even there was like journals talking about how certain types of heart medication like beta blockers were being utilized to control what they said racist feelings, xenophobic feelings. In addition to that, magnets. So they have quite an array of batteries of tests and data on all this.

It always comes to the conclusion they don't like. Yeah. Maybe they should study themselves and try to find out why they're so insane.

They don't have introspection for that. No, they have no vested interest because it doesn't accord with their Jewish supremacist agenda. Hopefully the tables will turn on them soon.

I think they don't have any self-awareness or introspection of it. Yeah, because they can't see anything but their own perspective. Yeah.

Well, I guess we can end it then. I want to thank you guys for inviting me. I think this has been a very good conversation.

I've enjoyed it and we can do this again. I'd like to talk about some more of the East European philosophers and esotericists with Nordlux at some future point, if that's something within the interests of both of you. Of course.

Because, as I told you, I have a lot of time these days, being under total curfew, lockdown, whatever you call it. Yeah, we can make it in the nearest future, like tomorrow, for example. So thank you, gentlemen.

Also, Sigrid, maybe give me some heads up about that. Give me some heads up about that conversation so I can research it further. Okay.

Sounds good. So, hail victory. Hail victory.

Nordlux: Rome & Judaea

So, a new podcast with Black Sun Media and Zygarde. Hello there. Hello.

So, the topic of the podcast will be quite interesting and complicated relations between the Romans and the Jews, the parasitic tribe from the Middle East. Because the Roman Empire, not only the Empire, the Republic of Rome and even the founding of Rome. It's quite an extensive period of time.

My suspicion is that we will scratch the surface of most of the things. But we will add a little bit of knowledge from the founding of Rome to the first Jewish parasites that settled in Rome, to the fall of Rome, to, of course, the Eastern Roman Empire, aka Byzantium, and to the fall of Byzantium and the role of the Jews in the fall of Byzantium. So, Black Sun? So, I'd like to start with the founding of Rome and start at the beginning.

And I think an important concept to understand when you're looking at history, especially classical history, is the Greek idea of anti-psychosis. And this is the idea of the regression of the state. It begins with the divine monarch, and that establishes the kingship, and the kingship usually digresses into a tyranny.

And then the tyranny is overthrown and established an aristocracy, and that digresses into an oligarchy. And the oligarchy is overthrown, and democracy is established, and democracy turns into mob rule. So, that's a basic groundwork for how Roman history kind of went.

So, of course, before Rome was established by tradition, it starts with Troy being destroyed in the Trojan War, and Aeneas sailing from Troy to Italy. And there he met the king of a place called Laurentia, and his name was Latinus. And my main source on here is Livy.

But as a peace offer between the Trojans and the king, he offered, the king offered his daughter in marriage to Aeneas, and her name was Lavinia. And he named the settlement that his men built called Livinium. And he named it after his wife, of course.

He fought wars with the Etruscans to unite the Latins and the Trojans together into one people. And after he fought all these wars, he died. And he, according to Livy, lives buried by the Numicus River.

And Livy writes, was he man or god? However it be, men call him Jupiter Indigens, or the local Jove. Ascanius was the son of Aeneas, and he was his heir. Although it is debated if, it's kind of weird, like, was he also Ulu, which was also the son of Aeneas, or are these two separate people, or are they the same person? No one really knows.

But he was the heir to his father, and he took charge of Livinium. But later he departed to build a new city called Avalonga. And his kingdom was so strong and full of clout because of his father, the Etruscans didn't really attack him.

So he basically ruled in peace. And his successor was his son Silvius, and that name kind of means wooded, like the state Pennsylvania, the Sylvania, you know, it means wooded. And the kings of Elba, they kept that surname, Silvius.

So generations later, there were two brothers, Numitor and Amulius. Amulius, that's how you pronounce his name better, Amulius was the younger brother, and he wanted the throne, so he drove his other brother out, killed all his male children, and made his niece, Rhea Silvia, a Vestal Virgin. So she, you know, can't bear any children.

So this kind of puts us where Romulus is born. So Rhea was then impregnated by Mars, who is of course the son of Jupiter, and gave birth to two twins. The king, enraged, bound her and threw her in a jail, whilst condemning the twins to death by drowning them in the river.

Some stories say that the man tasked with this job, you know, had pity on them and, you know, made a little raft so they can float down. Some stories say that the river had pity on them and didn't drown them. But either way, a she-wolf, which in Latin, that's lupa, found them.

And of course, there's the classic image of them suckling on the wolf, which I'll get into the whole symbolism of that later. They were founded by a farmer family. The guy, his name was Faustulus, and his wife was Laurentia.

They named them Romulus and Remus and raised them to adulthood. Later, when they grew up, they got in some trouble, like raiding cattle or whatever, and when the push came to shove, they ended up overthrowing their uncle and establishing Numerator to his throne. So, yeah.

And... It's, I will add that there are a lot of very, I will borrow the phrase from Tsleil-Waututh, very Indo-European elements in the story, like twin brothers. The twin brothers presented in the Anglo-Saxon invasion in England. Twin brothers of the main two Bulgarian deities, Horst and Thor.

What else? They are twins in the mythology of the Vedicarians and the Iranian mythology. And not to mention that the role of the wolf also, like the she-wolf saving the heroes, this is also representing, it looks like it was represented in the Scythian mythology, because the Turkic tribes that received a larger part of the myths from their Scythian, let's say, fathers, they also had myths that they're descendants of the wolves. That's why this supposedly fascist organization, the Green Wolves, the Great Wolves, the Turkish terrorist organization, they're using the sign of the Great Wolf, which look like, well, like a certain sign of the devil, whatever it's called.

So, anyway, let's continue. So, after they restored Numer Turtur's throne, they went off to found their own settlement, tends to be a family tradition, I guess. And they, as commonly known, they started bickering over which hill to build it on.

Romulus wanted it on the Palatine Hill, and Remus wanted it on the Aventine Hill. Remus was thinking more of trade and things like that, so he wanted it right next to the river, while Romulus was thinking of defenses, so he wanted it a little farther away in a different position. He wanted the high ground.

So, they were looking for signs, and of course, Romulus, not Romulus, Remus was the first one who saw a sign. He saw six vultures fly over his hill, while Romulus then saw 12 over his hill. So, they started fighting over whose sign was better, and afterward, Remus, and this is important, Remus went and crossed his battle defenses, Romulus's battle defenses, on the Palatine Hill, so Romulus killed him.

Now, this is a very important moment in Roman law, because after he killed him, he said, so perish whoever crosses my settlements. This was the beginning of a concept that was known as the Primaevium. So, it's kind of similar to the Germanic concept of Ingarther and Utgarter, inside the fence, outside the fence.

Utgarter is also known as Jotunheim, the land of giants, Ingarther is also known as Midgarther. So, inside the Primaevium, it's not only Rome in the material sense, but in a religious sense, that is the center of the Roman world. That is where their king, who is the embodiment of God on earth, rules, and anyone who crosses that line, especially with arms, it's considered an invasion.

That's why when lictors would carry their fasces inside the Primaevium, they wouldn't have axes on them, but as soon as they left the Primaevium, they would put axes on their fasces. That's why as soon as you crossed inside the Primaevium, you lost all military command, you were a private citizen. So, because you weren't allowed to have weapons across, you weren't allowed to have military or anything across the Primaevium.

It's actually even funny, Pompey, during a triumph, which is the only exception for having weapons or armies or anything across Primaeviums during the triumph, he was trying to get two elephants through a gate because they were pulling his chariot. Generally, they would just use horses, but he was trying to use elephants to be more showy, but they couldn't get it through the gate, although they could have gone around the gate, but that's not even something that crossed their minds because that's just something you did not do in Roman culture. Do you know what was the shape of that secret area? Is it a circle? Yes.

Yes. So, in Bulgarian sacred tradition, this is called Sarakt. It's a perfect circle and it's a rather large area around the capital.

In that area, you must not enter with weapons, you must not basically, a certain nationality is not allowed, for example, Jews, and also certain activities are prohibited, for example, trading. Does Sigurd have any thoughts on this? No, nothing really. I'm just listening in.

I'm not really too familiar with that Utgard concept, actually. I had no idea that was the case. Oh, okay.

Well, I'll continue then. Actually, there's a figure of Utgard Loki in the Edda, also something to do with like a giant or the giants, which maybe somehow are correlated with the Jews in some way, like the Titans. I'm not too sure about that, though.

Although, yeah, Utgard Loki, he's interesting because, yeah, he's a giant. I think he's the one that Thor was getting his hammer back from or either that or he's the giant that... It was the one that Thor was wrestling with, I think. Oh, yeah, yeah.

That was when Thor went on his adventures to the mountain or something of that kind. Oh, yeah, yeah. Loki was in the eating contest.

Yeah, that's it. Yeah, this is one of my favorite myths. It's actually kind of comical.

But yeah, Romulus, after he killed his brother and got all that done and over with, he sacrificed the hill. He made sacrifices to the gods. Because Romulus, he was a very religious man.

And actually, Romans, especially back in that day, were very religious people. Religion is a very Aryan thing. And the only foreign god, in quotes, that he did a sacrifice to was Hercules.

But that's because there was a myth about him around the area. So, one of his first acts as king was to make the Senate. He gathered 100 men, and they all came from what was called the Patres, which meant the fathers.

They were the head of their clans. And they would advise the king. What's interesting is between the government of the Roman Kingdom, is it really kind of also reminds me of Hitler's ideal of government.

With, you know, you have the Führer, you have your leader at top, and he's responsible for all the decisions. And you have a Senate, a group of people, but they are advisors. They don't vote, they don't make any decisions that way.

It is, you know, the leader's specific responsibility to do so. And I think that that's also an important point that should be made. Because, you know, in republics and democracies, you always have a problem with who's really taking responsibility for shit.

Well, so if you got one guy on top, you know whose fault it is, you know. But another issue that he had was Rome had too many men. It was a fucking sausage fest, basically.

And they needed women. So how do you solve that problem? Well, what they did is they, at first, they tried to do it peacefully, be like, you know, they sent messages to all the other towns around them saying, you know, you want to send some women here or whatever, you know. But they were all rejected, because I guess no one liked the Romans.

So what they did is they invited the towns around them to kind of a festival. And then on a queue, they just took the women. And this also notes kind of the Midas right attitude that our ancestors had.

They didn't do all this moral hand-wringing over bullshit. They did what they needed to do, because they needed to do it. Well, Rome wouldn't be able to have another generation if they didn't have more women.

So what did they do? They just went in and took the women. Which is interesting, because also, if you guys don't mind, I'm going to read from Livy a little bit, because he does get into this a bit. It's kind of fascinating.

The famous rape of the Sabinians. Yes. Okay, so quote, by this act of violence, the fun of the festival broke up in panic.

The girls' unfortunate parents made good their escape, not without bitter comments on the treachery of their hosts and heartfelt prayers to the god of those festivals. They had come in all good faith and in the solemnity of the occasion, only to be grossly deceived. The young women were no less indignant and fell for foreboding for the future.

Romulus, however, reassured them. Going from one to another, he declared that their own parents were really to blame, and that they had been too proud to allow intermarriage with their neighbors. Nevertheless, they need not fear.

As married women, they would share all the fortunes of Rome and all the privileges of the community, and they would be bound to their husbands by the dearest bond of all, their children. He urged them to forget their wrath and give their hearts to those whom chance would give their bodies. Often, he said, in the sense of injury yields the end to affection.

And their husbands would treat them all the more kindly, and that they would try, each one of them, not to only fulfill their own part of the bargain, but also to make up to their wives for the homes and parents they had lost. The men, too, played their part. They spoke words and vowed that it was passionate love which had prompted their offense.

No plea can better touch a woman's heart. And this also reminds me of David Lane's KD Rebel, because that's something he advocated in KD Rebel, was, you know, they'd go out and they would just kidnap white women and bring them back to their tribe. But when they were taken back, they weren't treated like shit, they weren't beaten, it wasn't fucking white sharia, it was, they were still treated with respect, they were still treated kindly, because that's what's in the Aryan to do, is treat women kindly.

If I could just jump in and add, I think that it's pretty much an inevitability. Once things in, for example, North America Balkanize more, it's going to be like, you know, 10,000 warlords, like that Pastor Martin Linstead guy said, you know, it's gonna be neo-feudalism everywhere, and there's going to be having to be some type of eugenics prima nocte with the best men getting the most females, basically, because they'll have all the resources. Yeah.

And white people, you know, need to get into that Midas right mindset where you have to do things like, like this. Because if you don't, you know, you're going to your people aren't going to survive, you know, and that doesn't involve capturing women. I mean, our Viking ancestors who do it, the Romans, obviously, that's what I talked about, they did it, you know, it's something that's been commonly done throughout the ages.

Yes. And this is typical for all Aryans, not only for the Aryans, even the hominids practicing that you can read what Boko Haram is doing in Africa, they're kidnapping 300, 500 the girls from their schools with the school buses. So they obviously, they need girls for the fighters.

So this is a part of the game of in the earth, so to say, to procreate you need resources. And one of the resources, the people, men and women. So yeah, by the way, the modern feminist is purging, what about the rape of the Sabine women? Yeah, of course, there.

Well, this is funny, this copy of the early history of Rome, it's a it's a used copy and the person I can tell by the handwriting was some chick that owned it. And anytime that there's something to do with women or whatever, she's spurning in the in the ledger lines. Like there's long paragraphs, like, maybe I can find one.

Something like, oh, so women are only good for reproduction, you know, stuff like that. I'm like, Jesus Christ, this is so retarded. I mean, there was a whole, I mean, around later history of Rome, of course, but there were a lot of rights of the women, especially from the noble families, of course, that they had a lot of rights, including a lot of duties, including a lot of duties, different ceremonial roles, of course, the role of the, how is it pronounced, matrons in the Roman society, the mothers of the family.

And of course, they had a special role in the religion, they had a special role, ceremonial roles, and of course, they were even taxed heavily, especially the noble matrons, especially the inheritance, were quite heavily taxed in the later stages. I believe Octave and August introduced this tax to finance the wars that followed. So, yeah.

Oh, this is some gold right here. So, it talks about how, you know, Rome was taking in, you know, people from the outside, because you need a population. And this chick wrote in the margin, refugees contributed to greatness.

So, only if they're white refugees that they would ever contribute to greatness. Do you know anything about the Lex Apia, the law about marriage? There's something that Cato had written about that. Not off the top of my head, dude.

What do you know about it? I can't remember exactly, but I read an article or a speech of his, I think, yeah, Cato the Elder, for the maintenance of the Lex Apia. I guess the Lex Apia is the law of marriage, which was like the historical Roman law in its earlier form, and apparently it was changed in later time. Not too familiar with the details, though.

Okay, because I know Augustus was trying to, like, reform that, like, bring it back, bring a lot of those marriage morals and stuff like that back to the forefront. But, yeah, I'm not really familiar with that. I should look into it.

I attached the speech to the chat there, if you want to read it. It's not very long. All right.

I can't remember what substance was, though. All right. Yeah, I'll look at that.

Cato was, like, one of the more traditionalists. Like, he was a farmer who was involving himself in plowing and stuff like that. He was more like a Stoic, I guess, in the classical sense.

And I know that Seneca the Younger, who was a tutor of Nero, was always venerating Cato as a sort of archetype of, like, this masculinist, you know, traditional Roman. Mm-hmm. Yeah, I'm a fan of Cato the Elder.

I'm not really a fan of Cato the Younger, though. I'm not too sure. The Cato the Younger, he was alive around the time of Caesar.

And any time that, like, they had a—Caesar was having a conflict with Pompey. You know, Pompey wanted Caesar to step as proconsul of Cisalpine Gaul. But Caesar's like, no, you step down as consul, you know, first.

So they're going back and forth. They're bickering. And they almost came to a deal.

They almost came to a deal where both sides were agreeing on something. And then Cato had to fucking ruin it. And then after that, the Civil War started.

So, you know, he—I wish—was Cato the Elder his grandfather? I don't remember. But, you know, I wish he had his mentality more of. Yeah, I think pretty much everybody at this time needs a mentality of a Cato, more stoical.

Now they're having the capacity to detach yourself from all the insanity of this modern world. Yeah, yeah. Cato us.

Yeah. Yeah, especially because right now we cannot change the situation, at least for now. But on the other hand, the situation is changing even without our help.

It's deteriorating. And hopefully it will see the fall of the whole system during our lifetime. So, yeah, hopefully.

Oh, I'm terrified. I'm terrible. But, yeah, let's go.

Do you want to read the speech of Cato? Honestly, here, let me look at it. I can do that if you want. If you think that it's necessary.

I don't think it's that long. I think it's just a few paragraphs. Yes, yes.

Oh, I guess I'm back. I didn't realize I left. OK.

Oh, hi again. Hi. I don't know why it hung up on me.

Yeah, but maybe some kind of Internet connection. I mean, we're. Maybe.

No, I pulled up a screen saying only accept files from people you can trust. So I'm like, well, I don't think Loki's. I don't think Sigurd's fed.

So I think I can trust. OK, I think it might be people eavesdropping on the connection, actually. Eavesdroppers, man.

OK, so download. Oh no, it wants to give me seven days free. This is typical for the late Romans.

We are not rich. OK, it's almost downloaded. So.

Sorry. When exactly the Semitic parasites enter the story? Well, I know the I know are. The Jews entered Greece around.

I think it's the 300s BC. All right, I can't open it. It's saying I don't have the proper app.

I work off a Chromebook, so that's probably why it's because I have a shitty computer. I can always read it if you want. Yeah, if you want to read it, you go right ahead, man.

OK, it shouldn't take too long. I don't remember it being very lengthy. Yeah, I was just like paragraphs, and this apparently is from Livy's Roman History Book 34, one through four.

OK, if each of us Roman citizens had taken care to preserve the rights and dignity of a husband with regard to his wife, we would have fewer problems with women as a whole. But our freedom, after having been destroyed at home by the violence of women, is crushed and trampled on even in the forum. And for not having been able to stand up to each in particular, we fear them as a whole.

For my part, I regarded as a mythical tale and as a fiction the story according to which all the men of a certain island had been exterminated by a conspiracy formed by women. But there is not a category of people who does not expose you to the greatest dangers if you tolerate its meetings, its plots. And I have a hard time deciding what of the act itself or of the example it sets is the worst.

Our ancestors wanted that women could not deal with any business, even private, without the guarantee of a guardian, that they be in the hands of their parents, their brothers, their husbands. And we, great gods, we even suffer that they mingle in the government, that they interfere in the life of the forum, in the assemblies, and in the comitia. For today, what else are they doing by roads and crossroads than to support the bill of the tribunes of the plebs and to recommend the repeal of the law? Let go of the reins to frenzied natures and indomitable beasts and flatter yourself that they themselves put the brakes on their license, if you do not do it yourselves.

This defense is the least of those to which women suffer with difficulty from being constrained by customs or by law. What they want is full freedom, or rather, license. And if we have to call things by their name, if they win, what will they not try? Roman citizens, you have often heard me deplore the expenses of women and often those of men, not only of ordinary citizens but also of magistrates, and to complain that the state is undermined by two contrary vices, greed and luxury, scourges which destroyed all the great empires.

The better and more flourishing the situation of the state becomes, the more its domination extends. We have already penetrated into Greece and Asia, where one finds all the attractions of pleasure. We are already touching the treasures of kings.

The more I fear that we do not get hold of these things, but that it is they who get hold of us. It was for a hostile design, believe me, that the statues of Syracuse were brought into this city. I hear too many people bragging and admiring the ornaments of Corinth and Athens and making fun of the clay artifices of the temples of our gods.

As for me, I prefer these gods who are auspicious to us and will continue to be, I hope, if we leave them in their place. So in other words, the speech is basically an anti-feminist speech, and the women were basically trying to take over or were maybe being allowed to take over by perhaps Jewish infiltration or something, like in today's society, that they're using it as a disintegrative mechanism of the nation. Also, you can see that he was a Roman traditionalist and he was against the foreign influence in the architecture and in the religion, obviously.

So this is another thing that you can see like a repeating motif in most of the European history, that there are a group of people that are fighting for the traditions, that are trying to defend the traditions, and a group of people with a revolutionary spirit, of course, and they're trying to change the society to serve their goals. And I wonder what Kato would say if he lived in the modernity, especially towards the women and their role in society. But anyway, let's go with the history of Rome.

There was actually something else I wanted to read from Livy too. It's on 42. This has to do with a sacrifice in the Jupiter.

And I think it's very interesting, especially when you consider the metaphysics of it. So the context is they're fighting a war because they just stole a bunch of women from these tribes and they're pissed about it. So the Romans pursued the routed enemy.

Romulus himself cut down their prince and stripped him of his arms. Then their leader, dead, took the town at the first assault. The victorious army returned and Romulus proceeded to dispose of the spoils.

Magnificent in action, he was no less eager for the popular recognition and applause. He took the armor, which he had stripped from the body of the enemy commander, fixed it on a frame made for the purpose, and carried it in his own hands up to the capital, where by an oak, which the shepherds regarded as a sacred tree, he laid it down as an offering to Jupiter. At the same time, he determined on the site of the plot ground to be consecrated to the god and uttered this prayer.

Jupiter. Such was the new title he bestowed. To you I bring the spoils of victory, a king's armor taken by a king, and within the bounds of the already clear to my mind's eye, I dedicate to you a holy precinct where in days to come, following my example, other men shall lay the spoils of honor.

Stripped from the bodies of the commanders or kings, killed by their own hands. And I find that interesting because when you look at the Roman triumph, what was the climax, what was the height of the Roman triumph? That was when the prisoners, for example, Caesar's triumph over Gaul, he had Vercingetorix and all the other combatants that had been imprisoned. And what they did is they would at the feet of the temple to Jupiter, which was on the Capitoline Hill, they would strangle to death their prisoners.

Now, of course, the Romans never called it human sacrifice, but that's very much obviously human sacrifice. Yeah. Yeah.

Which, I mean, what culture back then didn't practice it to some sort of extent, but... Basically, it's what happened to the captured Romans after the battle of the Teutoburg Forest. Yeah. There were sacrifices and that, but I assume they were tortured before the sacrifices, because there are some sources that claim so.

So, they were sacrificed, my suspicion is to God Votan. So, yeah, and this was a very typical behavior. Scythians also practiced these human sacrifices.

And also, there was a metaphysical element of the sacrifice of the bull in the Mithraism, in the Northern Iranian polytheism, where in some cases the bulls are replaced by humans. So, that's why Mithra is killing the bull. But this is one of the several meanings, by the way, because some people said that this is the passing of the different zodiacal signs, like the sign of towers.

So, anyway, let's continue with the Roman history. Another thing I'd like to point out about that is during the triumph, the triumvir, the general who has been hailed as a triumphador, he would ride through the city dressed in a purple toga, which that's something a king would wear. Back then, of course, purple was a very expensive dye, very expensive color.

So, if you wore purple, they showed you had a lot of money. But if you wore a full purple toga, that was considered royal clothing, which, of course, in the Republic, that was a no-no, except for during the triumph. So, he would wear a purple toga, and his face would be painted orange, and he would have a diadem on.

And the purpose was to make him look like Jupiter. And that shows that the triumvir, the king, was supposed to symbolize Jupiter as embodied on Earth. Which leads into my next point.

So, Romulus, he fought a bunch of wars, won them all, kind of the Chuck Norris of his day. And then he ruled for about 40 years. Rome was very prosperous.

And then he had a very interesting death. And I'm going to go back to Livy for this one because he has a good description of it. Great though Romulus was, he was better loved by the commons than by the Senate, and best of all, by the army.

He maintained in peace as well as in war a personified personal armed guard of the 300 men, whom he called the Claeres, the swift. Such, then, were the deeds of Romulus, and they will never grow old. One day while he was reviewing his troops on the campus Martius, during the march of Capra, a storm broke loose and with violent thunder.

A cloud enveloped him so thick that it hid him from the eyes of everyone present. And from that moment, he was never seen again upon Earth. The troops who had been alarmed by the sudden storm soon recovered when it passed over the sun came out again.

And then they saw that the throne was empty and ready, though they were to believe the senators who had been standing at the king's side and now declared that he had been carried up on high by a whirlwind. They nonetheless felt like children bereft of a father, and for a long time stood sorrowful in silence. And I'm going to pause there and point out the relationship he had with his soldiers.

They felt like they just lost their father. That's how close he was to his men. Then a few voices began to proclaim Romulus's divinity.

A cry was taken up, and at last every man present hailed him as a god and son of a god and prayed to him to be forever gracious and to protect his children. However, even on this great occasion, there were, I believe, a few dissidents who secretly maintained that the king had been torn to pieces by the senators. At all events, the story got about through unveiled terms, but it is not important as all the admiration for Romulus's greatness had set the seal upon the other version of the son, which was moreover given further credit by the timely action of a certain Julius Proculus, a man, we are told, honored for his wise counsel on weighty matters.

The loss of the king had left the people in an uneasy mood and suspicious of the senators and Proculus, aware of this prevalent temper, conceived the shrewd idea of addressing the assembly. Romulus, he declared, the father of our city descended from the heavens at dawn this morning and appeared to me in awe and reverence. I stood before him praying for the permission to look upon his face without sin.

Go, he said, and tell the Romans that by heaven's will, my Rome shall be the capital of all the world. Let them learn to be soldiers. Let them know and to teach their children that no power on earth can stand against Roman arms.

However, having spoken these words, he was taken up again into the sky. So the Roman people made him a god. He was called Quirinus, that was his divine name, and he was part of the original Capitoline Triad, which was Jupiter, Mars, and Quirinus.

So, the wolf symbolism from earlier. The wolf is a sacred animal to Mars, and the vultures from earlier are sacred animals to Mars. And that shows that war, this idea of war, which is struggle, this eternal struggle between the forces of order versus chaos, because that's the Arian view of war.

It's a struggle between, you know, divine order and, of course, the chaotic element. That is something that they descend from. That's something that runs in their blood.

That's something that, hence, why Romulus and Remus, you know, suckled on the she-wolf, and, you know, vultures were the ones giving them their signs. But I also believe, you know, I think it's accurate to say Romulus was like the god-man. It symbolizes the god-man, kind of similar to Nietzsche's overman idea.

He was the divine king that started the cycle for Rome, that anticyclosus I was talking about earlier. Because, of course, at first, you know, it starts with the golden age. It starts when things are on top, things are great, and then it descends from there.

So, yeah, that's me wrapping up on that one. What are your guys' thoughts? I will say that this is typical. I will, of course, refer to the Roman Zoroastrianism with this.

It's not only Zoroastrianism. Every Aryan religion, and not only Aryan, I believe, in ancient Egypt, they also had some variant of that. It's always a struggle between the forces of chaos and the forces of order.

So, for example, the greatest mystery of the Mithrani cult is the creation of the cosmos. And the creation of cosmos is always in the Mithraeum, which is basically a cave. And in the cave is Mithras, the solar god, the solar deity that is killing the bull.

And, of course, above Mithra, they always depict the seven planets. So, basically, the five known planets, like the sun and the moon. So, basically, you have Saturn, you have Mars, you have Mercury, you have Jupiter, obviously a very important planet, and you have Venus.

So, this is the five ancient planets. And this is what the ancient thinkers of the Persian religion. Let's say that the Roman Mithrani cult was Persian.

There are a lot of debates about that. Some people think that there are a lot of influences from the Oriental Middle Eastern religion. So, there are elements that are not very well researched, I think.

So, the astrology of the Hellenistic version took a part of the symbols of the mysteries. And, basically, there was some kind of representation, as above, so below. So, basically, as Mithra is killing the bull and creating the cosmos and creating this order, this cosmic order, the same thing must be represented on the Earth.

And there are, of course, a lot of symbolism with the symbols of the Mithranic traditions. And that's why, by the way, the Roman soldiers that took part in the mysteries had amulets, like these sacred animals. Like, for example, amulets of a dog, of a snake, usually... A wolf, too, probably.

What? A wolf, too, probably, right? Yeah, sometimes it could be, instead of a dog, you have a wolf. And, basically, they're licking the blood streaming from the wounds of the bull. Yeah, doesn't that represent the constellation of Taurus, which is where Orion is? Yeah, yeah, yeah.

This is one of the explanations. So, it might have something to do with, like, the cycles of time, like the yuga, whatever you want to call it. Exactly, exactly, exactly.

So, it's basically going into a new aeon from the killing of the Taurus, the bull, going to Aries. Yeah, and the last animal is the scorpion, which obviously could represent the constellation of Scorpio. So, yeah, this is just the thing that I could think of, of Mithraism.

But, as I said, this is the Roman Mithraism. There were a lot of differences between the original Mithraism that was practiced by the Scythian tribes, the Persian Mithraism. Usually, some people said that they were already influenced by the Persian Mithraism and the Roman version of Mithraism.

So, anyway, let's continue with Rome. Could I just add one comment? Yeah. You had mentioned the general, the Triumvir.

And the Triumvir, he dresses up with purple and orange, and those are supposed to be colors of Jupiter. So, he, I guess, represented Jupiter. And didn't Jupiter, like, kill Saturn or something? Yeah, Jupiter overthrew Saturn, same way Zeus overthrew Cronos, yeah.

So, that basically represents, like, again, that sort of aeonic change from the Golden Age to whatever the age that it was during the Roman times, which was like the Iron Age, maybe, or something? Or, well, what are you going to be called? Well, Cicero had an interesting idea. He considered the, so you have Uranus, you have Saturn, you have Jupiter. He considered them the same deity.

They're just three different faces of the same deity, of that Sky Father deity. But I think you're on the money there, too, because I think he might have said something like they change as the eras change. Right.

I guess he just represents, like, the outer region of the firmament. Like the further, whatever you want to call that, in, like, Gnosticism, where they have the Ogdoad, which is, like, the eighth sphere, or the last sphere, the, whatever, the seventh sphere, seventh heaven, which would be, like, Saturn or something, and then, like, that maybe becomes eclipsed by the spheres that are closer to the Earth, because the aeons are changing, or something? I don't know. Yeah.

It's difficult to understand. I'll also point out another correlation between Romulus and other Aryan ideas is Alfred the Great, for example. You know, a lot of my ancestors come from the West Side, so I'm a big fan of him.

His genealogy goes back to who? Photon, right? Or, I guess, in the Saxon tongue, it would be Woden. But a lot of Swedish kings trace their genealogy back to Sigurðr, right? Who is the son of Odin. So this idea of literally descending from the gods, you know, this is just a Roman version of it, you know.

Romulus was the son of Mars, who was the son of Jupiter, and that he was seen as their father, as their main ancestor, as their founder. And that there was a literal belief that divinity ran through your blood, that your blood is divine, and that's what makes you special, okay? You know, that your blood is divine. And it's a very common Aryan tradition.

Yeah, that's probably because we derive from the Anunnaki, or whatever entities. I don't think I've ever heard of them. Anunnaki? The Anunnaki? You mean like in Sumeria, right? Where they were called the Anunna, or the Anunnaki, the clans? That's probably right.

Yeah, I don't really know a lot about Sumerian mythology. If you want to talk about that for a second, I don't know what you're talking about. So yeah, go.

I don't know too much about it myself, but I know that there basically is a general conception like there's Enlil, who is pretty much Saturn, so far as I know, and he is basically like the deity who creates with the other Anunnaki, who creates humans through whatever genetic modification or something. And then he wants to destroy his creation because they're acting up or something, so he creates a flood. But then Enki, who is like the cognitive Lucifer or Loki, he wants to save humanity, and he does that through sheltering some of them so that they manage to survive.

So it's like a creation mythos where Enki is like the good god, which is like Lucifer. All right. Enlil is like Jehovah, and basically that... Like Jehovah as in, like, as the Christians see him or as we see him? More like we see him, so... Okay, so the Demiurge, the Ja Monster, as Giuliani likes to call him, the Ja Monster.

Pretty much, yeah. Basically, it's like the Demiurgic god of force and destruction, and that's very correlated with Saturn, the planet, and all the aspects which are typically associated with Saturn as a god of destruction or finitude or whatever. Well, how Cicero described him is more, he represented time as the reason why he swallowed his children.

It symbolizes, like, time swallows everything, time eats everything. He's that regression of time. Also in, like, how Savitri Devi talks about the progress of time.

Yeah, and that's all finitude. Since we are going into more exoteric stuff, do you know something about the cult of the Black Stone in Rome? Actually, no. Lapis Niger.

Supposedly, there was this Black Stone, which is in the ancient shrine in the Roman Forum. And it is Lapis Niger in Latin, exactly Black Stone. And it supposedly is dedicated to Vulcan now, Vulcan.

And of course, I must remind the listeners that Jehovah or whatever is one of the versions that he's the Vulcan demon, Vulcan god. Since when he was leading the Israelites through the desert, he's representing, like, basically, like, volcano eruption, like, white, what was white smoke during the night and black smoke during the day. So this is one of the interpretations.

So basically, this old part of the Forum, this was built around 7th or 8th century BC. And they suggest that this is the black marble paving from the 1st century BC that gave the name. But interestingly enough, we found out that there was a cult of Oriental goddess called Sibeles or Cybele in Latin, called Magna Mater, Great Mother.

And she originated in Anatolia. And it looks like this, and of course, it is connected with the tradition of the mother, which we talked a lot of times for that topic. But it is supposedly her name developed for religious practices associated with Sumerian queen called Kupa or Kubaba, which is quite close to Kabbalah and Kaba in modern Semitic languages.

And the name of the goddess is called Born from Stone, Born from Stone. And it is supposedly is the mother of animals. It is the mother of nature.

So in a sense, she is also kind of transgender goddess. I will, of course, remind the people to listen to our podcast about Cybele and Attis. There was a very strange, weird transgender self-castration story about Attis.

At some point in the Republican era of Rome, they transferred the sacred stone of the great mother, Magna Mater. And this happened during the Second Punic War. So basically, you know what happened there with all the debacle, with the losses of Rome from Hannibal.

And they decided, they consulted the Cybelean Oracle and they decided that Carthage might be defeated if Rome imported the Magna Mater from Phrygia to Rome. And basically, they placed this black stone from Phrygia to the Black Stone of Rome shrine. So I won't expand to this, but this is another connection between the Romans and the Semitic or the Middle Eastern Black Stone worshippers.

Let's put it that way. Yeah, that is interesting. Yeah.

So it's during the imperial era, I believe August identified Magna Mater with the imperial order. So basically, he said that this is the cult of Magna Mater is connected with Pax Romana. So basically, this is the symbol of the Rome.

And the Roman Empire. So some people speculate that the Whore of Babylon is actually the Whore of Rome in the Bible. So this is what they said, because if I remember correctly, the Whore of Babylon was dressed in purple.

So yeah, this refers definitely to the Roman Empire. Of course, that's under Semitic construction though. Exactly, exactly.

Basically, they were sending encrypted messages for the Semites, the Jews spread across the empire to prepare for rebellion, which happened. They had several rebellions at that time, quite bloodthirsty people, these Jews. Who can imagine? Yeah, 9-11 is a perfect example of their technique.

They just give themselves an instant message saying, don't go to work today. And then they blast the buildings. And there you go.

Yeah, exactly. Did you see that news interview with that one Jew going, where did my son get the text then if that happened? Because no one cared about him, obviously. But I believe that there was a thing called the Juco.

They received the Juco. So someone was warned about the coming attack. I can see them doing that in the future too, to all the whites and all the white nations.

They'll just give people a signal and then do whatever they're instructed to do. So anyway, let's continue with the story of Rome. So there were six kings after Romulus.

There is Numa Popilius, Tullus Hostilius, Ancus Marcius, Tarquinius Priscus, Servius Tullius, and Tarquinius Superbus. Now, the last one is where I'm going to pick up on Tarquin the Proud. That's what Tarquinius Superbus means.

Actually, just a moment. The kings in Rome, okay. The kings in Rome, they were chosen by the senate and the people.

So when a king died, they would elect someone called the interrex, meaning between kings. He would be in charge for like five days. And what his job was, was to find a candidate to be the new king of Rome.

So he'd find the candidate, the senate would vote on it. The senate voted, and then they'd bring in this guy in front of the people, and they'd vote yes or no on it. If they vote no, then they just repeat the process.

But if they voted yes on it, then they went to the priests, got the god's blessings, did their omens, and then he would approach the people again, and he would ask for imperium. Now imperium is important, because what imperium was, was to the sovereign right to lead Roman armies, to use the force of law. Because the Romans, unlike today, where people try to bullshit themselves about what law is, they saw what law it was.

It was the state using force. That's how they understood it. And they were giving him the permission to use the sword.

So, because that's what law is these days, is the upper class using force. So, that also gave him the command of armies, and the right to go and fight in defense of Rome. So back to Tarquin.

Tarquin was an Etruscan who became the king of Rome. He was a cruel and overly prideful king that he basically pissed every single Roman off. So this goes back to that cycle of anticyclosis.

The divine king, which was Romulus, now descended into the tyrants, which was Tarquin. So, I'm pretty sure it was his brother, or maybe a cousin, but his brother probably, raped a noble Roman woman. And Tarquin, of course, refused to take any action on it.

And she ended up killing herself from the shame. So, Brutus the elder swore vengeance on him, and to drive the king out. And that's what they did.

And they drove out the rest of his family. There was even one guy who had picked the other side, who was tired of Tarquin, that was part of his family. But because he had the same name, he was thrown out of Rome too.

But he went more voluntarily because he knew it was bad PR. And Brutus became the first consul of the Republic. And this is the establishment of the noble aristocracy.

But Rome is a little bit more complicated than that, unfortunately. So, the next bunch of notes I have is on the Roman state. So, the Roman Republic was an aristocratic state at first.

The plebeians, which were the lower bourgeois caste and the proletarian castes, they at first had no political rights. But through the years of internal struggle between the patrician class and the plebeian class, the Republic developed a unique character, a mix between aristocracy and democracy. The patricians were representing the aristocratic element, of course.

And the plebeians represented the democratic element. These two elements of the state would devolve simultaneously through the coming centuries. The Tribune of the Plebs was eventually made to counterbalance the aristocratic senate for the benefit of the plebeian class.

Another thing that is important to understand about the Roman state is religion and civic duty were not separate things. Like, today, we have this concept of the separation between tribe and state. I know in Europe, you guys might not have as strong of a concept of that as in America, but in America, that's a big thing.

Anytime someone feels like, you know, like the whole abortion issue. Feminists and people who like murdering babies, they were like, well, you're not supposed to enforce your religious views on others, so you opposing abortion means that there has to be a separation of church and state, right? Back in Roman times, that was not the case. Actually, back in any society, that was not the case.

This is a very modern new thing, this idea of secularism in the state. So, religion and state affairs were just two sides of the same coin in Rome. Not only did they elect officials to have political power, but they also elected officials to have religious authority, like the Pontifex Maximus, which I'll talk about later.

It's also interesting to take note, Rome didn't really have government buildings like we have today. They did their government business inside temples, like they'd have the treasury and the Temple of Saturn, they'd have like, they would do their civic business inside temples, because in the Roman mind, there was no separation of what we would call church and state today. So, in the Senate, there was a thing called the cursus honorum, which is basically kind of like a step ladder of different offices.

So, to get in the Senate, you had to first be elected what's called a questor. There were 20 of them elected every year. They were the new inductees of the Senate, and 14 of them would be sent off to run provinces with governors.

Although they didn't call them governors, they were called either pro-consuls or pro-preachers. These were people who used to be consuls or used to be preachers, but after their term in office, they get sent out to govern some other part of the Republic. So, these guys were sent out there to basically be the number twos.

While they were out campaigning, they would run the state in that province, or if the pro-preacher or pro-consul decided, they could come out with them campaigning, but whatever. Two of them were assigned to the consuls directly, to the sitting consuls of that year, and the final four would be appointed to administer Rome's treasury. The next step was the aediles.

There were four of them elected each year. Each one of these terms was only a one-year term, and they were basically in charge of temple upkeep. The name means temple builder, but they didn't really build temples because anyone could build the temple in Rome.

If you're a private citizen, a government official, whatever, you could build a temple. They were in charge of upkeeping them, running the public baths, keeping up the aqueducts, and the grain supply. But most important, they were in charge of public festivals, which, as you know, they were very important in Rome, public festivals like Lupercalia, Saturnalia, etc.

The next step up were the preachers. There were eight of them elected every year. They were essentially, they were judges, which was a very important power of the king because when they established the republic, they just took the king's powers and kind of divided them amongst elected officials.

Well, they had the power of judging in court cases and stuff, but they also had imperium. They could be the number two to the consul if Rome was at war or something. The head of the state was called the consul.

There were two elected every year, and they would kind of hold facies. That means that consul was in charge, and they'd switch out months. So the guy who got the most votes would take the first month, and the next guy would take over the second month, and they just kind of flip-flop.

Unless they were out on campaign because these guys were the ones leading the armies, then they'd do it every single day. They would flip-flop. They were the head executives of the state.

Essentially, they took the place of the king during their term. I already talked about that. And they had the power to call the senate or public assembly for meetings in the legislative agenda.

They would oversee elections. They had veto power. They could veto each other.

The only person that could veto them was the Tribune of the Plebs. They would read omens and assign public holidays, so they also had religious duties. And they had the ultimate command in the Roman army.

So pretty important post. What part of the Roman government was copied by the United States? Well, it's kind of hard because the United States had a lot of... They tried to mix Roman ideas with Enlightenment ideas. So I guess you could say the president is sort of consul-ish, but it's kind of hard to say.

When I was in school, they tried to tell the bullshit that the United States was based off the Iroquois Confederacy or some shit like that. Yeah, of course, yeah. But when the United States Constitution was written, they were thinking of government as separated into three different functions, legislative, executive, and judicial.

Now, Romans, they didn't have that concept. That was an Enlightenment concept. I think it was... I can't remember.

Loki, do you know which philosopher came up with that one? Came up with what? The idea of legislative, executive, and judicial branches to government. No, I think all of that probably just comes out of, like you were saying, the Enlightenment period. It must come out of some type... The origins of parliamentary democracy.

I don't know what those are exactly, but I'm pretty sure that's something maybe along the lines of John Locke with his... Yeah, I was going to say John Locke, but I didn't want to be incorrect. It seems sort of like the British empiricist type of thing there. It was like the proto-USA ideas, I guess, like Siegmund had talked about in one of his recent discussions about how it all traces itself back to America and so forth, traces itself back to England and then from there previously down the line even to the Holy Roman Empire and so forth, apparently.

Yeah, it was quite a good discussion. I'm planning to reupload it and to make some comments on that. Because from what I've known, the Founding Fathers being these wonderful masons, they were big fans of Romans, ancient Greeks and the Jews.

So, basically, from what I've seen from American symbolism, including the fascia, the architecture, obviously, and some parts of the organization of the armies and also the governments. But on the other hand, you have this federal principle, which is kind of different from Rome. That's why I was interested.

Yeah, the American Founders, they did take some things from Rome. A lot of these guys, they were intellectuals. They would read stuff like Cicero and Cato.

But I'd say it was more counterbalanced with English tradition, with English ideas of law, which were sort of based in Roman law because of historical precedence. But in its origin, didn't the Codex Justinianus, which is the basis of the common law, I think, of England, wasn't that something related to Jews, like they had somehow developed that? In ancient Rome, or at least were instrumental in its development? I don't think so. You said the Codex Justinianus, right? Yeah.

Didn't Emperor Justinian come up with that? Yeah, but I'm pretty sure somebody told me that there was some Jewish influence. I don't know if there would be Jewish influence because I know the Byzantines were a lot harsher on Jews than the Western Romans. It depends how you look at the Jews, like a tribe or like a religious group.

Like religious Jews, yeah, they were suppressed. But also, I must tell you that Eastern Romans were very, like the rest of the Romans, were very cynical. And in many cases, the principles were not, how to say, they didn't stick to their own principles.

But overall, saying if you were Jewish, you cannot hold high posts in the Byzantine Empire. But the Eastern Romans, they never called themselves Byzantines, but they were quite soft towards conversals. Apparently, they also, for the Jews, they also banned them from all banking and all teaching positions too.

Yeah, but... Make a distinction between religion and then race, and then just confine it to religion, then that enables crypto-Jews. Yeah, but also the situation in the Eastern Rome was that in the Imperial Idea, they believe this is much later, but maybe we will go to this moment. The emperor, the Vassileos or Vassileps, he was seen as the king of Zion on earth.

So basically, he was like a representation of Jesus Christ on earth, contrary to the Western European model, where the Pope is this representative power on earth, in the Byzantine model and in the rest of the Orthodox world, Bulgarian Empire, the Russian Empire later, and so on. So the head, the most important figure is not the patriarch, it's the tsar, it's the emperor. So basically, the Byzantines look at themselves like the chosen tribe of Israel.

That's why the Varangian guard actually had the Hebrew letters on their shields, because they are the guards of the king of Zion, of course, aka the Byzantine emperor. So of course, this also leads to the ideological idea that only the Byzantine Empire or the Eastern Roman Empire is the legitimate kingdom of heaven. So basically, the Frankish Empire was illegitimate, the Bulgarian Empire, there was a very long bloody wars to establish equal title of tsar, which is equal to the Vassileos or Vassilevs of the Byzantine Empire.

There were a lot of problems with that. So basically, there were a lot of problems with these, how to say, in the eyes of the Eastern Romans with the legitimacy of the Frankish emperor, so the Bulgarian tsars. So anyway, so basically, long story short, if the Jews converted to Christianity, they could rise to the ranks.

If they were Jews, they were especially stubborn, they were suppressed. But I've missed the point that Khazars were very close allies of the Byzantines. Byzantines used the Khazars against the Bulgarians and also against the Arabs.

So take in mind that at that point, we're talking about the 7th century, the Khazars were supposedly not converted to Judaism at that point. They were so well treated, the Khazars in the Byzantine Empire, that there was a Byzantine emperor called Leo the Khazar. And also there was an elite guard unit, the personal guards of the emperor, the Khazarian Guard, that are not so well known contrary to the Varangian Guard, but basically they were their predecessors.

The Khazarian Guard were decimated in the beginning of the 10th century after one quite decisive battle against the forces of the Bulgarian Tsar Simeon, where he, being a quite spiteful and evil Bulgarian, he cut the noses of the captured Khazars, because we don't like Khazars, and sent them back to the Byzantine emperor. So this is more or less the situation with the early Eastern Roman Empire and the Jews in different forms. By the way, the Khazars, the Sephardi Jews, that of course they were prosecuted, restricted of trading, restricted entering certain cities, of course banned from a lot of activities in the Byzantine Empire.

This is true, this is true. But also a lot of registers with the converted Jews were lost, which is a very similar story to the conversals, to the marranos of the Spanish Empire and the Portuguese Empire. They somehow lost the registers with the bloodlines of the converted Jews.

So this obviously opened the gates for further infiltration of the parasites in these empires. In the case of the Byzantine Jews, they were very, especially the second wave of Jews that came from Venice, they infiltrated the Bulgarian Empire, they infiltrated the Byzantine Empire, and most likely they infiltrated the Serbian Kingdom. These Jews were supported by the quite mighty trading fleet of the Venetians, and of course the Byzantine Empire was a trading competitor to the Venetian trading empire.

So this caused a lot of struggle, a lot of conflicts. One of the theories is that the fourth crusade that attacked and captured Constantinople and established the Latin Empire was financed by the same Venetian families like Zawomon. By the way, Zawomon later became a German noble family, and there was a quite famous, based member of the Freikorps from the Zawomon family.

And of course, conspirator against Adolf Hitler, because Zawomon, they like to do that. This is the long story of the Eastern Roman Empire and the Jews. So basically, the Jews steadily managed to infiltrate the empire through several different ways.

One of the ways is obviously through the religion, through the orthodoxy, and there was a lot of things to be said about the iconoclastic movement, the destruction of these icons in the early centuries. One of the reasons for that, one of many reasons, is that the early traditions of making icons was to copy very ancient icons that were made under the descriptions or from the descriptions of early witnesses of Rabbi Yeshu and his followers. And of course, they didn't look very European, so to say, so usually these icons were destroyed with one or two exceptions that survived to these days.

And you can see what kind of people they look like, I mean, the chosen Israelites, my ass. But anyway... Shout out to the CI guys. Oh my god, oh my god.

This guy doesn't sound like a white man. Anyway, so basically, this was one of the ways through obviously to Christianity. The other ways were through the aliases of the Byzantines with the Khazars.

I must say again that there were certain castes of Khazars, the warrior caste, the upper Khazars, that were white people, described like red-haired warriors, quite tall and quite handsome, with blue eyes. And also the lower castes were, I don't know, maybe Turks, maybe Semites, it depends how you look, but they were described like darker than the Hindus. So this must say something.

So the Jews, the descendants of the Venetian Jews, there are a lot of sources that claim that they helped the Turks in the later years, the last years of the Eastern Roman Empire. And that actually Constantinople fell because the Jews helped the Turks. They financed the Turkish Sultan, they provided maps, they were operating like spies, which is not very surprising for the Jews.

And of course, they were doing the usual stuff like poisoning the wells, selling false information to the Byzantines. Meanwhile, in Bulgaria, the last Tsar was Mishlink, this is the official part of the history which caused the divide in the empire and the legitimate heir to the throne basically was separated with a very small part of the empire in the northern part of Bulgaria and a very small army, much smaller army than his illegitimate half Mishlink brother. And this guy led the Bulgarian empire to total disaster, maybe because he was incompetent or maybe because he was just a fucking Jew or Mishlink or whatever, and he just did the beating of the Jews.

And of course, his mother was a descendant of a very rich Venetian Jewish family. And of course, there was some semi-legendary story how the Bulgarian Tsar Alexander Shishman met this Jewish Sara, but interestingly enough, when she converted, of course, she converted to Orthodox Christianity, her tribesmen that were before that were not allowed to enter Bulgarian empire, they were allowed to enter a certain parts of the empire and to live in ghettos. And they committed a lot of crimes, including the boot labels, child sacrifices and other scams, and of course, the Black Death entered the Bulgarian empire with them, which just a cherry on the top, I suppose.

Yeah, these are the roles of the Eastern Jews in the Orthodox world, at least at the Balkans. So we may go with the Western Romans again. Before I continue, I want to point out something funny.

You said that the Varangian Guard had Hebrew letters on their shields, right? Yeah. And Pierce is who we are, he calls the Varangian Guard, quote, the SS of their day. Well, okay, okay, okay.

Let's say the Anglo-Varangians or Celtic Varangians had shields with Hebrew letters, most likely with the name of Yahweh. And also they had some kind of Hebraic text on their breastplates and whatever to say their loyalty to the Greek Vasilevs. But you can look at this book called the Varangian Guard from Osprey publishing.

And the good thing about them is that they're using surviving original depictions of the Varangian Guard. And on the page 18, you can see the original Byzantium painting, most likely in some church with the Byzantium Guard with the typical long Danish axis and with Hebraic letters on their shields. As simple as that.

So it's not coming from my ass. But of course, I must say that there were a lot of people that were part of the Varangian Guard. I mean, there were obviously Norsemen, they were descendants of the Vikings.

There were Taurovskittoi, basically Ukrainian Varangians that were descendants of, I don't know, half Viking, half Bulgarian, half Ukrainian, whatever. There were Keltovskittoi, Keltovskittoi, Keltov Varangians that are usually coming from Ireland or Scotland. And there are Anglo-Varangians, so descendants of the English or to the early Anglo-Varangians were Saxons that actually escaped the Norman invasions in 1066.

So there were even settlements near my village called Nova Anglia, so basically New England that were inhabited by Saxons that escaped the Norman conquest. So yeah, so yeah, it's just Varangian Guard. Very brave people, very efficient, but there were mercenaries, very good warriors, really.

But there were mercenaries, and they were indoctrinated in the enemy's religion, basically. So going back to the earlier Romans. The last position I'll talk about is the Pontifex Maximus, and it fits in because you were talking about the Pope and the Patriarch, because that's where those positions actually come from.

He was the highest elected religious official, and it was a life-term job. His job was to regulate public morality and regulate the morality of the Senate. He headed a group called the College of Pontiffs, which would basically, when they made laws, they didn't need the approval of the Senate or public assentably.

When they voted on laws that pertained to public morality and religious custom, they were law. They had the full force of law behind them. He also oversaw a group called the Flamen.

Each one of them was the head of a specific cult. The cults to Jupiter, Mars, and Quirinus were the most prestigious, and he also appointed Vestal Virgins. The next part of my notes, a little lengthy, but it's about the evolution of the Roman Army, which I find is a fascinating subject.

During the time of the Kingdom in the early Republic, the Romans used the phalanx model. They adopted it from the Greeks, of course, but the main advantage they had was a lot of their neighbors were still fighting loose formations, like band and creed-style conflicts. When you have this phalanx, which is a tight square of shoulder-to-shoulder guys with spears and shields, they can mow over opposition like that very easily.

They're just very easy to flank because, yeah, they have the weight, but they're slow, and they only are really useful on level ground. So, when the Romans started expanding into central Italy, which is a lot more mountainous, a lot more hilly, they had to switch out for what they called the maniple system. It basically took these units, made them smaller, and then made it more flexible, so they can fight on uneven and hilly terrain, but they also divided the legion into three parts.

The first part was called the hastati. These were the youngest recruits. They were the front line of it.

They were issued a sword and shield, but were also fitted out with javelins, so they can be your unit too. The second line were the principes. They were more experienced.

They would have swords and shields, but they would also switch out with the hastati and vice versa during the battles so they can pace themselves. The last line were the triarii. They were the most experienced.

They were the elite troops, and they were more like the spearmen from the phalanx. They were more organized like a phalanx. They were only used when the battle was going really bad, and they needed it.

Like in the battle of, was it Lake Trasimene, or the Trebbio River, or one of the two, part of the Roman army had broken through, but instead of turning back to help their comrades over there, they just kind of kept going and going and going and going and like just ran off the map. But the other guys at the flanks were surrounded, and they were cut down, and Hannibal had a group of people hiding in some like tall grass, and then when they came out, it was the triarii, that last line that went and took them on, and they were the last ones standing in that battle. Later, Rome was fighting, you know, not just Carthage, not just in Italy anymore, but they were fighting everywhere from like Cisalpine Gaul to Asia, so they needed more of a uniformed professional military, so Marius came along and made some reforms, and that's what came out with the cohort system.

And the structure of the cohort system, which the smallest unit was a group of eight guys called the contubernium. The guy who led it was called the decanus. Now, it's called the decanus, not the octanus, but the decanus because there was technically 10 people in here, just two of those people were servants, they were non-combatants, they were just servants.

He was chosen by his men to lead, though, so it was very bottom up on that one. The next unit was called the sentry, which is a group of 80 men with about 20 of those servants, those non-combatants, and the head of it was, of course, the centurion, who was promoted by higher officers. He also had a second command guy called the optio, who would march at the back of the formation, while the centurion would march at the front of the formation.

The next unit up was the cohort, which is about 480 men strong, six sentries in each cohort. This unit was led by a centurion with the most merit, so out of all those sentries, they would pick the centurion who has the most experience. And he was advised by the lesser centurions.

But this does not apply to the first cohort of every legion. The first cohort was different. The first was made up of five double-strength sentries, so 800 men total.

Every centurion in this cohort outranked all the other centurions, and the lead centurion was called the primus pilus. The next rank up from the primus pilus was the camp prefect. He was basically the top career soldier.

He essentially was also a quartermaster. He was in charge of supplies and the construction of the encampment and all that fun stuff. He was a former primus pilus, and therefore he was the highest-ranked career soldier in the Roman army.

He embodied the living legacy of the legion. Further up was the military tribunes. There were six of them, but five out of those six were thin-striped tribunes, and they basically were, like, think of the coffee boy at the company.

Like, they really didn't have any say or power. But one of them was called a thick-striped tribune, and he was important because he was in second command of the legion. This guy was usually a young aristocratic guy who was looking to join the senate.

That's actually the job most people would take before they were run for elections for quæstor, is they would become a thick-striped tribune. At the top, the head honcho was the legate. He was the general of the whole legion.

This guy was a senator, and he was appointed by the senate to lead the legion. So what do you guys think? The reforms of Gaius Marius. Gaius Marius was relative of Julius Caesar, if I remember correctly.

Oh yeah, he was his uncle by marriage. Uh-huh. So the reform of Gaius Marius was forced because the Teutonic tribes basically smashed the Romans several times.

Yeah, yes. And especially in the last battle, the Romans claimed that they lost, what, 72,000 men? Kind of, I don't know, it doesn't sound realistic. Töteberg before Töteberg, you know.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, it's something like that. So basically, it is not like the Cimbrian War. So they, I believe that Gaius Marius was, at that point, was in northern Africa, and they basically summoned him into Rome to fix the whole chaos in the Roman army.

They had generals that, at first, you know, I can't remember what his name was, but this asshole, he talks to the Teutones, and he's like, okay, you guys want land, we'll allow you safe passage, whatever. Cool. And then as they're moving, you know, he goes and tries to ambush them, you know, like a dickhead, and they kicked his ass.

And that's kind of where it started, and they just kind of keep on kicking the Romans' ass, and then they went off somewhere else for a while, and then came back. And then, yeah, like you said, they had to grab Marius and say, hey, can you fix this? We kind of fucked up. Basically, from what I get, this is the Roman way.

I mean, they were not very, they were not keeping their promises too much. Yeah. In the later Republic, there was not as much honor as there was in the earlier Republic.

You must look at the history of East Rome to see what is going on there. It's a new, I mean, the earlier Romans must learn from the later Eastern Romans. Just they're making a contract with some country, and they're breaking the contracts.

But at the same time, they're hiring people to attack them in the back, and they're claiming, oh, we made a peace treaty with you. And at the same time, they're selling, for example, cattle that is infected with some disease and things like that. Sounds like the Jew in the woodwork there.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, exactly. So, in other words, the more Jewish it becomes, the more corrupt it becomes, basically, the general principle. Exactly.

Yeah. Do you know if Cleopatra was a Jew? I don't think she was a Jew. It wouldn't surprise me.

I mean, she did know how to speak Hebrew, but it would have surprised me if she was surrounded by Jews, but I don't think she was a Jew. Did you ever see a picture of her or her bust? It looks pretty Jewish. Hmm, I don't think I have.

She's got sort of like a weird long nose too, and sort of slanted. I think Greeks and Mediterranean kind of have that big nose too. Yeah.

The guy who has the largest nose in the world is Italian. Really? Yeah. You got to smell that spaghetti from like a mile away.

I think that's what he used. I believe that in the case of Cleopatra, they are also a product of incest. So, yeah, that's true.

They kept this ancient Egyptian tradition, and they started to inbreed with their close relatives. I believe Cleopatra was married to his brother, which is kind of... That's what her father's will was, was her to marry her brother, but they got in a fight, and that's when Rome got involved at first with Caesar. Damn, that is a big nose.

Caesar showed up looking for Pompey, because he knew Pompey came down, and that's when they showed him the severed head of Pompey, and that's not what he was looking for, because he was big on the whole clemency shit. Egypt owed Rome a ton of money, and he's like, well, I'm here. What's going on with your debts? When are you going to repay them? They gave him the run around, and he basically sat around in the city for a minute, and then one thing led to another, and he has the king hostage, and there's warfare going on in the city.

To basically break that off, Cleopatra, there was some Sicilian dude, some really big Sicilian dude that threw her in a laundry bag and carried her into Alexandria, so she can consult with Caesar. Also, another big misconception I notice a lot of people have is that Caesar burnt down the library of Alexandria. Even Classen talks about this in his book, Nature's Eternal Religion, and basically, the Christians are the ones that did it, and I don't know why he didn't bring that up, because that'd be a perfect thing to attack the Christians for, but what happened was just part of it got burnt because there was a big fire, but it was accident, and it still ran, and it was still in service for centuries afterwards.

I thought that they basically, this was, of course, this was not his goal. I believe that Caesar was severely outnumbered in Alexandria. Oh, yeah, he was.

I believe he had only one legion or something, and the whole debacle with the Egyptian the Egyptians didn't like Romans at all, because they looked down on the Romans like upstarts, and yeah, I mean, this is what you got, and of course, the Romans needed Egypt because of the riches of the east or of the south or whatever, how you count the Egypt, and especially because the breadth of Egypt was very important for the Romans. Have you looked into the Egyptian bureaucracy during Cleopatra's time? No, what is the situation there? Well, you think the taxes in Europe are bad, so basically, if you're a farmer, you don't own the land. It was royal land.

You were basically hired on, essentially, to work, and they told you what produce you had to sell, how much you had to sell it for. Of course, the government would scoop off the top for themselves too, and it's just all throughout every single process, and in the Egyptian economy, there was a tax on this. There was a tax on that.

It was a mess. Actually, I can send you a video. There's a guy who talks about it quite well.

My theory was, but this was for the earlier Egypt, for the dynastic Egypt, my theory was that actually, the Jewish socialism and communism originates exactly in these city states in the Middle East and later in ancient Egypt because basically, you have centralized, well, government is quite a strong word, but basically, the state is centralized around the god-king, in the case of the Egyptians, and basically, the god-king owns the land, and he's basically the citizens, the Egyptians. They own everything in the state. I mean, the organization, protection, the relations between the Egyptians and the gods, everything is centralized around the pharaoh.

So, this is the thing is similar to the quite centralized and autocratic state during the communism. So, maybe this is the situation with the Egyptians. Maybe this was traditional.

Yeah. Communism just follows Jews around wherever they go because it's just Jewish inherently. Rabbi Stephen Wise had said that communism is Jewish or something like that.

Communism is anti-Semitism. I'm pretty sure that's what he said verbatim. He also said, some call it communism, I call it Judaism, I think was the quote.

Yeah. So, yeah, I mean, this is the situation with these. And if you look at why Egyptians were organized like that, the whole reason was the River Nile.

I mean, the River Nile, you know that they're providing basically the whole, how to say, the whole region is quite arid. And of course, Nile is providing food and water. But you also must provide certain, what is the term? I forget the term, but basically you must organize because also their foodings, seasonal foodings from River Nile.

So, that's why the role of the pharaoh and even the role of the priests, very important because they're the people that organized the whole agricultural work, so to say. So, that's why they believe that he's also connection with the gods, because obviously the gods like Lazarus, they're providing the blessings and good harvests. So, yeah, this is the whole thing with the centralized power of the pharaoh and the ancient prototype, maybe this Egyptian and Semitic states, the ancient prototype of the modern Semitic communist states.

So, yeah. We don't know where it originated. I don't think it originated there though, or it was related to purely material factors.

I think that's just the nature of the Jews in terms of their consciousness. I think it was Nietzsche who was speaking about them, or maybe Heidegger is speaking about them as having world fear. He didn't necessarily refer to Jews specifically, but he referred to world fear and things like that.

And I think that that's a property of the Jewish consciousness, that they're weak, genetically hybridized and defective. And so they huddle together in a mass for protection against outsiders. And then they have to have a relationship with some sort of all-powerful deity to protect them, because they're too weak to be able to stand on their own two feet.

They have to submit before this god and so forth, this father god. It sounds logical. So, communism and Judaism are basically in a way the same thing.

The only sort of power structure that Judaism has, so far as I am aware of, is basically you have a priest caste and you have a tribe of whatever nomadic types who just roam around and involve themselves in trade. And the priests are like the ones who intermediate between the alleged gods that Jews adhere to, and then the masses. So it's all subordination and slavery before the god-man-priests.

So it's all just basically a slavish weakness before authority. And at the same time, a despotic man-godism and control freakism, which is itself in the minds of most of these priests probably still subordination towards the deities that they probably invented in the first place. So it's all this despotic, control freak slavishness is the whole consciousness of the Jews.

And that's probably all based in their self-protective weakness or something like that, maybe. Yeah, it reminds me of the whole slave morality versus master morality difference. That's why I think the term anti-race is perfect for them, because we have the idea of a god-man, but our idea is completely different from theirs.

Theirs is, as you said, subservient and, oh, look at me, I'm such a sinner, I'm such a worm, you know. But ours does, like as Nietzsche said, the kingdom of heaven is within us. It's something that's alive within us.

Right, yeah. We, our relationship to, and I think Ebola discusses this quite a lot, like our relationship to higher forces or deities is one of not submission or it's one of like detachment from the material plane while being involved in it and acting without acting. In the Eteoist phrase of wei wu wei, acting without acting, you're not affected.

That sort of gives rise to Stoicism, even though Stoicism was an Eastern conception in large part in its origins from Zeno of Elea in Syria, modern-day Syria. At the same time, it was adapted by the Romans under Seneca and various other types. Yeah, like in the Bhagavad Gita, it says, doing works but detached from their fruits or, you know.

Yeah, you're not affected by things because you can transcend it. That's imminent transcendence, that you're beyond, you're not affected by things. That's the sort of warrior spirit that accompanies pretty much all warriors into battle.

I would assume that you can, you know, you throw yourself into the midst of it, and that's sort of transcendent experience. Yeah, like Ebola spoke about that in the metaphysics of war to some extent also. Devoteo, yeah, he talked about Devoteo.

There's another thing he talked about here. I'll look it up. I got the book in front of me.

I can find it. I know there's the concept of the Jihad too. Yeah, yeah.

The greater war and the lesser war. Yeah, Islam probably was in its origins pagan, and it wasn't. It was just like, you know, Abrahamized under Jewish influence through Muhammad, who is probably a Jew himself.

But the general concepts of that, you know, like the sacrificing yourself to a higher, to higher states of being is, you know, sacrificing your lower self to your higher self, but not in this sort of self-immolation, like the Dionysian Semitic conception of, like, castrating yourself or becoming a eunuch. But it's something like, you know, you're just not, it's not in your consciousness to be, you know, you don't need to materially, you know, become a transgendered freak in order to transcend, you know, that sort of dualistic consciousness of masculine versus feminine or whatever lower states of consciousness. You can just, you know, over, you can assimilate the difference into yourself, you know, like the sacred feminine, you can assimilate that into yourself, but not let it, you know, sort of effeminize you.

Yeah, you have to have a balance. But it's even going beyond that, it's more like transcending that and affirming your proper nature. And once again, I will repeat the story of the priesthood of the Sibeli, called Galati, Galii, or also called Kurubani.

These were bantees, weren't they? Yeah, they were eunuchs. They castrated themselves, supposedly repeating the story of Attis, the lover of Sibeli, and after the castration, actually Sibeli herself. So basically, you have these Semitic transgender cults that moved to Rome at some point.

So, very, very sad end here. Antiphobia, unfortunately. And the other thing is that if you look at who are the targets of these cults, basically, they established themselves in Phrygia, their priest were Galati, so basically they're descendants of these Anatolian cults, most likely, at least the first priests, and then they targeted the Roman Empire.

So, it looks like this Black Stone cult is quite ancient and quite esoteric conspiracy, which, of course, included the Jews. And because you mentioned Stoicism, well, I believe that there were a lot of philosophical debates, which is including in the Shakespearean literature about Stoicism, what is right to do to rebel against the whole world, which supposedly we evil Nazis must do, or to stand and just to accept the, I'll say, the state of the world, which, of course, the Stoics were doing. Yeah, it's kind of... Yeah, that's definitely a contrast between more passivity and activity.

And Stoicism, yeah, Stoicism doesn't necessarily imply passivity, but I can see how it trends in that direction because of the Near Eastern influence. It's just too escapist. It's just a question of, like, turning the other cheek, for the most part, and ties into Christian morality.

So, a lot of Stoicism became incorporated into Christianity later. Yeah. I know Nietzsche criticized Stoicism, but I'm not sure on what he criticized it on.

Are you familiar with that? Um, not really, but I know a lot of the Christians, they give attributions, sort of, throughout history, they've given attribution to Stoicism as, like, one of their, you know, kosher-approved moralities, if you want to call it that. Sort of like, you know, how a lot of people like Thomas Aquinas, the St. Thomas Aquinas, who was a founder of sort of Catholic theology, or the expositor of it, they basically, you know, approved of it as a sort of, like, redeemable, so-called pagan, whatever, or had redeemable elements, because of that Christian relationship, which is that in-the-world, not-of-the-world type of mentality. Yeah.

Which could be interpreted in a positive way, with that way-woo-way Stoicism, or that Taoistic type of concept of imminent transcendence, but if you're just, if it becomes a Semitic escapism, then obviously that's where it deviates toward, you know, very undesirable direction. So basically, from what I can take from Stoicism is that you must basically endure the things in the world that you cannot change. This is the important thing.

Right. That's very similar to Epictetus in his book The Enchiridion, or The Manual, as it was called. Yeah.

Meanwhile, I think that everything could be changed if you have the will to change it. Well, you get it simply by existing, you're changing reality, so it's never a question of just ignoring reality or turning the other cheek, because that sort of morality is like the Christians of South Africa, right? They just turn a blind eye to everything and say, just pray to the Jew, pray to Sky Man. Yeah, exactly.

So, we can continue with the Roman history? Yeah, my notes ended there, so if you want to, we're at Marius, so that's Late Republic. Oh yeah, that's interesting, it's the Late Republic. So yeah, you have that civil war that was between Pompey and Caesar.

I'd like to know more about the Jews' influence in the Roman Empire, like when they started coming in, and then you can see how, you can probably see how, you know, the more they came in, the more corrupt it became. Yeah, I think they had a heavy hand in the civil war too. So, Jews have been in like Greece area since at least the 300 BCs, I think, I'm pretty sure.

I can look it up real quick, but I'm pretty sure it's since the 300 BCs, they've been in Greece. I think it was probably before that, because the Phoenicians were probably largely Jewish, weren't they? I know they were Semitic, I don't think they were Jewish. They acted differently, because I mean, at least the Phoenicians built things like Carthage, and they had people like Hannibal, the Jews don't do that.

Yeah, but if I remember correctly in the Bible, the King of Tyre, and Tyre is basically a Phoenician city, Phoenician colony, he built the Jewish temple. So, they were very close together. All right, I was wrong, it was the 4th century BC that Jews entered Greece, at least according to a Jewish Wikipedia.

But of course, they would have probably spread from Italy, because the Greeks had control over southern Italy and a lot of Sicily too, at that time. And of course, a lot of that was trade and economic stuff, and that's what Jews gravitate towards. Is there anything that has to do with money or goods or, you know? Maybe we can develop the history in another podcast.

I mean, this... Like maybe College Jews in the Ancient World would be a good way to go. Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah, because this is how this is developing. I mean, we can talk about the conflicts between the Romans and Jews and the increasing infiltration of the Jews in the Ancient World, which, by the way, we have a little bit more information about the Jewish infiltration in Rome than the Jewish infiltration in Greece, in Ancient Greece, and the Descendant Kingdoms after the fall of the Empire of Alexander the Great.

But I believe that the Diodotii, especially the Ptolemaic one, they were quite close with Jews, quite close to the Jews. I believe the Seleucids suppressed... They had a mixed history, actually. The Seleucids, at one hand, they were flirting with the Jews, at the other hand, they were trying to Hellenize the Jews and to suppress the Jews, which led to this revolt, this Jewish uprising, the Maccabean Revolt, the riot of the Hammer Brothers, of the Jewish Hammers.

So, yeah, this is part of the history of the Ancient World and the Jews that I'm planning to talk about in the future podcasts. That's basically like repeating the mistakes of the past with the Jews, when the Aryans always try to accommodate them and they try to assimilate them in some way or whatever, in a harmonious way, and then the Jews just backstab them in some way and set them up. Well, in the case of the Seleucids, it was harmonious at first.

Actually, I'm not absolutely sure. So, basically, a lot of Jews started to assimilate because, obviously, the Hellenic culture is far superior than what the Jews had. Basically, nothing to that point.

And a lot of Jews started to speak Greek, to wear Greek clothes, and to adore Greek culture. And this led to a separation between the Hellenized Jews and traditional Jews. And to this moment, from what I've known, a lot of European Jews have the names, like Greek names, like Alexander, for example.

So, yeah, this is a thing with the Jews and the Greek influence over them. And, of course, the Maccabean Revolt was part of the larger process of disintegration of the Seleucid Empire, which I believe was the largest empire that was formed after the death of Alexander. And they were in the constant war, almost a constant war, against the Ptolemaic line in Egypt, basically, the forefathers of Cleopatra.

My thought would be that Hellenism itself was possibly largely a Jewish phenomenon, and that's what gave birth to all those Gnostic sects around there. Well, there's a lot of theologians like to talk about when, like as Nord was just saying, when Jews started incorporating Greek ideas, they call it a Second Temple Period Jewish theology, where they were bringing in a lot of Greek ideas, like the ideas of demons, the soul, I think even their idea of Sheol, it was copied from the Greek idea of Hades. A lot of things like the idea of a messiah, you know, they adopted from the Greeks, a lot of platonic ideas they adopted from the, of course, from the Greeks, they, you know, and that's what led into Christianity.

Like when you read the Book of John, there's a lot of Greek concepts in there, like even the first verse, you know, and in the beginning, you know, the word was God, was with God, you know, blah, blah, blah, blah, blah, you know, a lot of Greek ideas. Sorry. It's a lot of borrowings from Babylon as well that the Jews have taken up to make their religion.

That's what they took from Babylon. I'm not too familiar with those. It goes into quite a lot of detail in the book, The Great Jewish Mask.

It's like a 60-page book that Jan Lamprak was reading in an audiobook format once. It's an anonymous South African author. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

Pretty good. But yeah, it's all sort of related in that whole region anyway. But yeah, the Jews basically are just synthesizers.

They just rip off and then combine it all together. It just seems like Gnosticism is more or less a product of their own insanity to me more than anything. Yeah, but also I must say that the Jews are incorporating a lot of beliefs and mystical practices from the Persians, actually.

They took the idea Yahweh is basically some kind of cutoff from the idea of Hura Mazda. But also some people, including me, believe that Zoroastrianism was influenced by the Semitic codes, including by the Jews. Since there was in the Babylonian empire, later Babylon, I mean, there were certain, according to Georgiania, certain Semitic families, he said Babylonian families, that were priests in the temples of the Babylonian gods, for example, Marduk.

And these temples were used also for the first banks. And these families later started to become very prominent and influential families in the Persian empire. And basically, Georgiania said that these families were Jews, actually.

Contrary to the theory that the Jews were enslaved in Babylon, they were actually not enslaved. They had very high, they were high ranking in the Babylonian empire. And even though they betrayed the Babylonians to the Persians.

Yeah, they tend to claim that they've been slaves everywhere, don't they? Yeah, of course. We're slaves in America? I don't think they'll survive long enough to be able to make that claim. But anyways.

So, yeah, this is a story. So, how you prefer to develop this podcast? I mean, how to make, because basically what I wanted to hear, and maybe most of the listeners want to hear, is the Jewish infiltration in the Republican Rome and later conflicts with the Romans, including the rebellions of the Jews against the Romans, the Masada, the myth of the heroic Jews, which is total bullshit, and later spreading of Christianity in Rome and things like that. This was my idea.

So, maybe we can make another series, maybe one or two podcasts on that topic. Yeah, I think having another podcast, like a part two would be a good job. Yeah.

It would be a good idea. Yeah. Yeah.

So, any words for the end of the podcast? Well, I hope the listeners enjoyed it. Hopefully, they found it insightful, and wait for part two, I guess. And, of course, Heil Hitler.

Zieghert? Hello? Yes, I can hear you. Sieg Heil? Yeah, the A-D final words? Yeah, I'd say, instead of Sieg Heil, shouldn't it be like some sort of Roman? Aue Durks. Or whatever the phrase would be with the Romans.

Pax Romanum. Pax Romanum, okay. Pax Albus.

So, anyway. Delenda S. Judaica. Maybe, maybe.

Yes. Maybe. Maybe this is the correct phrase, especially here in Europe.

The situation is basically like a mutated transgender copy of the Roman Empire. In the final stages, of course. Oh, gross.

Yes, especially the final stages. But with that difference that the Romans were never, even in the later days, they were trying to be militaristic. And the European Union is just pathetic and disgusting.

And I don't know. I don't think that there is any more faggotry pseudo country-like. The European Union.

So, anyway. With that being said, I hope that the future podcasts will be soon. And Hail Victory!

Nordlux: Hyperborean Symbols (part 1)

Some materials for that, but trying to find... Because the Blackstone is quite interesting, quite interesting topic, because it's mysterious actually. Right. It's a lot of ideas, these mysterious black-white, even the Babylonians, the Greeks also talk about these mysterious black-white or the green, the green-white connected with Osiris.

Right, and the Egyptians always speak about doing green things as well. Yes, and also the color of green is connected with Hyperborea. I think it's with Venus too, somehow.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. And some people think that there was some kind of specific stellar configuration on the sky when Hyperborean civilization was dominant. Maybe this is also another connection.

Might have something to do with the Pleiades. I think it's some kind of emanation of the soul, the green-white is kind of emanation of the soul. And of course, Serrano thinks that this is the mysterious white, but I don't know.

Serrano, as you know, it's like love-hate relationship with him. He's kind of strange. Yeah, his language that he uses is basically green language, just a sort of playing with language so you can't really understand exactly what he's talking about.

It's pretty esoteric. Yeah, I mean, okay, so when you're ready. Yeah, I'm ready right now.

Okay, we can talk about many, many symbols, not only the Black Sun, if you like, of course. It could be related to Hyperborean symbolism because Epoch speaks about that too in some of his articles. So a new podcast with Ziegler about the Aryan symbols and maybe even the symbols of civilizations that were older than the Aryans, like the Black Sun, Schwarze Zone, Zone Erat, like the swastika, like the rules, the different stars, because the seven-pointed stars, even the six-pointed star was much older than the Jews.

And the five-pointed star also, I should add. Mm-hmm, yeah, yeah, this is also a thing. So, Ziegler, maybe you will open the topic.

Okay, I guess we'll discuss at first and then lead into other topics, the Black Sun especially. And for that, I had ordered a book by some somewhat of a quasi-liberal hatchet man, James Pantolillo from, I think it was Invictusbooks.com, which was an anthology of all of the writings on the Black Sun that he could scrape together throughout the last 100 or so years. And even before that, there are some selections in it on that topic, but they are very diverse and they don't really necessarily, there's not really entire consistency between all those articles.

There's quite a lot of different interpretations or meaning of that. So, basically, there's at least some of them that are, I would believe, correct in correlating the Black Sun symbolism with the Hyperborean tradition. And this possibly even correlating with like a sort of esoteric Christianity in the sense of Miguel Serrano or Jörg Landsvang-Leibenfels.

And there's one guy, one of the articles, it's called The Mystery of the Central Sun by Perit Xiu. And this figure apparently was an affiliate of Crowley, who was involved in all sorts of these magical orders around like the turn of the last century. I'm not too sure when he died, but I think he might have been actually killed during the Third Reich.

And he wrote a book which was translated by Stephen Flowers. What was it called? It was, I forget what it's called exactly. It's called The Edda as Key to the Coming World Age, which was written in 1920.

And basically, it's sort of like a very esoteric Christian viewpoint on the edda. So it's trying to interpret the edda as like a sort of blueprint of the apocalypse, I guess you could say maybe, or the coming age, the different aeonic changes. And I found that to be a fairly interesting book of his.

It's a short work. I think I have that on whitelibrary.org if people want to scrounge around there for that. But this particular article on the Black Sun he wrote is called The Mystery of the Central Sun.

And it basically says, so far as I can recall the details, that the central sun is the Christ, which is the black sun, and that the solar system is moving toward that central sun, and that that's what the second coming of the Christ is. This is interesting, because I believe we discussed with you the idea that the Jews are stealing these archetypes of the real gods, the Aryan gods, and they're imposing this Jewish archetype. It doesn't matter if he existed or it was a composite image from different other semitic scam artists, but they're imposing this over the Aryan gods.

We know that there was a Celtic deity called Asus, that was also connected with the forests, and his sacrifices were actually sacrificed on trees. We know that there was in the primordial Aryan religion, the daughter of the sky father was called Hesios, and it was the goddess of the morning star. Right, and that's what Jesus is called in the Bible too, Stella Matutina, the morning star.

That must relate to Venus maybe, the planet. Yeah, and it looks like the Aryans, because we are living in colder climates, especially the Hippoborans, they were waiting for the morning star, because this is the herald of our archetypical god, the sun, and of course some people said that at first the sun and the sky father was one and the same, because you cannot describe the sky, and then later the sun was representative of the sky father. It doesn't matter, I mean some people think that it's two different deities, and anyway.

When you walk around in the morning, which I had done previously, waking up at like 4 30 in the morning, in the middle of nowhere, in the very northern climate, you could always see the Venus on the horizon way before the sun came up, so it's the herald of the dawn. Yes, and these, and the contrary, the Semites, the Semites being nocturnal creatures, and they're living in quite hard, I mean quite hot climate, during the day they cannot live in the desert, so they sleep or they whatever they're doing during the day in their shitty tents, and during the night the temperature is dropping, they're going out, they're doing whatever they're doing, maybe singing, dancing, stealing it from each other, I don't know, but trading, we know that there was in the ancient time there were these caravans between these cities in the Middle East, like Uruk for example, there are some evidence of this ancient trade, and they worshipped the moon, they had this deity called Sin or Shin, and for them the moon was a male deity, contrary in most of the Aryan myths, the moon is female deity. I'm not entirely sure if that's true though, I know, I've heard that Mani the moon god was a Nordic, and he was a man, the man in the moon.

I will, that's why I said in the most, and I will open brackets here, there was in Bulgaria, there was a thing that our genius communist historians, they cannot decode, the highest caste in the Bulgarian aristocracy, they shaved part of their heads, and they left a strip of hair on the top of the head, and it is, people know that it's connected with Kundalini, there was some vague things that were not destroyed by the Christians, but there was a description of that, that it is a connection of the male virility that we discussed in the previous podcast with Christopher, and I found out that this type of haircut was spread all around the Aryan world in one way or another, and it looks like according to some people it was connected with the lunar cult, with the moon cult, and I thought well it's strange because the Aryan people are solar people, but maybe there was an ancient cult that were worshipping also the moon, like they're taking oaths for something, for example, if they're protected in battle, and there were both oaths connected with this deity, because the moon is always connected with some kind of connection with the water, most likely because it is, you know, the influence of the lunar gravity on the liquid, it manipulates people, especially the mood states of people, and females especially, because as Aristotle said, women are wet. Yeah, yeah, so I found this quite interesting, and also I found that the Tuharians and the different far eastern tribes also were sun worshippers, but also they worshipped the moon, so there was some connection there, maybe this comes from the even older religious system, older than the Aryans, maybe this comes from Hippoporeans, or maybe from Atlanteans. We know that if we go back to Pindar, Pindar claims that the two giants fought, had some kind of conflict, Pindar said that Atlanteans fought other giants, he implemented that both groups were giants, and they fought the giants in the far north.

So yeah, this is, but Pindar on the other hand, he also pointed out a very different location for the Hippoporeans, he pointed out that it was beyond Danube river, in the most likely in the Ukraine or Romania or something like that. There were different locations for the mythical place, I also had suspicions where this could be, maybe in the north of Russia, this is one of my suspicions, maybe it's a landmass that was lost in the Atlantic Ocean. You're talking about the origin of the Aryan, or the Hippoporean? The Hippoporean, the Aryans, I think that it's most likely in the area around Ukraine.

I would say that that's incorrect, that according to René Guénon, in some of his writings, in the compilation by Wellesberg Archive, The Veil of Isis, he talks about how the and so too does Evola, that the origin of the Aryan or the Hippoporean was the polar civilization, which was the North Pole, and we can segue into that, into the swastika, which apparently is a perspective or a glyph, a diagram of the Big Dipper seen at different, the solstices and the equinox from the North Pole, and the central star is the pole star around it. Yeah, I know that theory, but I pointed out that the Hippoporeans were located, at least the Russians think that the Hippoporeans were located in the north of Russia, so maybe they were part of this lost civilization, and as I said, I don't trust the Russian data, they're quite, they're looking for sensations, but they pointed out different type of megalithic structures that according to that, they think are going back to 20,000 years. Now, genetically speaking, they probe the modern science, whatever science means in these days, the modern science found, find out that there were these ghost population in the Yamnaya, they localized them like the Hippoporeans.

There were some good documentaries about that, I believe even Survived the Jive made some kind of remarks about that, and this population had some kind of impact on the Yamnaya people, so this is true, but also I must point out that the oldest swastikas that we have, which is in Ukraine, but in Ukraine these swastikas vary, I don't know how to say, it's not like traditional swastikas, most of the listeners will imagine, it is more like stylized type of figure, it's connected with birds, most of the oldest swastikas, they're connected with snakes and reptiles. Maybe that refers to the Kundalini itself, because it could be like a sort of enlightened being who's more in tune with the universe, you know, God, meat, wounds, who's ruling with God. This is very interesting, because in the oldest swastika, I hope someday I could show you in real time, so to say, in some of the Bulgarian museums we have quite amazing stuff.

You can see, for example, pottery in, I believe, in the museum of Veliko Tarnovo, one of the old capitals, you have pottery from 8000 years, 7000 years, and so and so, and on this pottery you can see a different type of swastika. You can see that in the oldest pottery the swastika is, let's say, it's a snake swastika, like this frog swastika that I'm using like an avatar for a very long period of time. And I think there is a connection between this ancient swastika and some esoteric knowledge with the green sun or black sun, if you want, even though I think that there is a difference between the green sun and the black sun.

Well, the green sun is an alchemical symbol. Yeah, the green lion. Yeah, exactly, and that's something to do with, like, transmutation, with the overcoming something, like a previous state.

Exactly, this is, that's why the ancient people connected. Maybe this is because the original knowledge from the Hippoborans or Atlanteans, I said, there could be two competitor civilizations. The original knowledge was lost, but there was still some ancient knowledge.

And we know that the reptiles and these, what was the term for these other group of amphibious creatures, like the frogs and salamanders, for example, they were, in the ancient time, they were connected with the metamorphosis, because they're changing their skin, they're moving through water to earth, and so on. So for the ancient people, they were mystical creatures. I believe that in ancient Greece, they believed that the frogs were created by a mixture between the element of earth and the element of water, and this somehow spawned the frogs.

So maybe this is a symbol of metamorphosis. And my suggestion is that the green sun is the, the green sun is the sun of rebirth. Meanwhile, the black sun is the sun of more mortification, of mortification, mortification, thank you, of these.

The negredo phase. Negredo phase, exactly. So this is my suggestion, that this is, maybe we must worship the green sun, not the black sun, because in the Vivaldsborg Castle, the sun is green after all, it's not black.

Yeah, and it's a green that's sort of almost like a purplish green, so it's very dark. And what Helena Blavatsky said in The Secret Doctrine, in her analysis of the correspondences of colors with planets, is that the esoteric correspondence with Saturn is actually dark green. Yeah, yeah.

So that's what that is. So what it is, mainly, so far as I can maybe draw some inferences, based upon Serrano's conceptions, is that it's an attempt to try to, I guess, save the Saturn logos from its current state, which is basically a demiurgic state that it's in right now, which is captive, according to what Serrano says, which is captive by the demiurge and these whatever entities that Jews are working with, and that apparently they've captured it. Maybe he doesn't mean this literally, but he might mean it literally also.

And the intention would be to try to overcome this or spiritualize this logos. And this explains, and that's why I had some kind of argument with Patrick, because he doesn't agree with the idea that Saturn is the Jewish Goyehovah, because Saturn was worshipped by Aryan people back in the time. And my argument was that the Jews are using some element of these planets.

They're using the demiurgic element of it. Yes, yes. It's not like they're using all the elements, because if you look at back in the in the history, the age of Kronos, which is also connected with Saturn, is the golden age.

Right. So it's an attempt to represent the golden age through the cycles of time, because apparently, according to René Guénon, again, we're already past that point. We're in actually already the new aeon, ever since like the 1800s or so that's been the case.

So, so one of the theory is that it's, again, well, I can talk about this. It's not exactly Aryan symbolism. It's more like anti-Aryan symbolism.

But one of the things that people don't realize is that the communist flag is basically the symbol of Saturn, or I must say, the revolution of Kronos against the Sky Father, the Aryan god of the sky, Uranus. The story goes that Gaea, which was the Mother Goddess, of course, and we talk about the Mother Goddess, was not very happy with the behavior of her husband Uranus, because Uranus imprisoned in her some of their cats, the 50, I believe it was called Hecatomhieri, these giant 50-handed monsters. And, of course, Gaea was not very happy, because these monsters caused her enormous pain.

So, Gaea gathered other kids, the Titans, and she asked them to kill her husband. And the only Titan that was brave enough to rebel against his father was Kronos. And the story goes that Kronos convinced some of the Titans to help him, and they crucified basically their father Uranus, and Kronos castrated his father with sickle.

Now, this is represented in the glyph of Saturn, which also contains sickle and cross, but if you look at the symbolism of the communist flag, which is hammer and sickle, the sickle represents, well, they will say that it's the working, the peasantry, and the hammer represents the proletariat, the workers. But in reality, the sickle represents the sickle of Saturn, and the hammer represents the phallus of Uranus. So, basically, they're representing this revolution, the revolution of Saturn.

And if you look at what the symbolism of this moment is, basically, it's a changing of the world order. It's changing of the world order, and of course, it's the hammer sickle, golden, which is the symbol of godliness, similar to the golden stars of the European flag, which, of course, most of the people know they represent the 12 tribes of Israel, according to this bastard clergy. Of course, the irony is that there aren't any 12 tribes existent at all that would be Jewish, because Jews don't even constitute anything but like a ragbag of anti-race, so they're not even a tribal unit that can be spoken of as a distinct tribe.

There is another theory that also could be taken in mind, that these stars represent, of course, constellations, this is another thing, but also, of course, 12 months, but also could be said that these golden stars could represent the golden bees, and the bees are another symbol of the gods. By the way, this is another topic, maybe we must prepare better for the queen bee. Back in ancient Egypt, they had a very strong bee symbolism, and even before that, in Sumeria, there was a connection between these Anunnaki, that these bastards, Jew, Scythian, tried to present like extraterrestrials, but most likely they're Aryan people, or white people at least, that are representing fertility gods, and they were connected with the bees.

Some people said, for example, in Bulgaria, there was a quite strong opinion that these were hierarchical structures of the bees, working for the improvement of the land, very similar to what the ancient Aryans did with these hierarchical societies, similar to the society of Egypt, for example. And this is another, and of course, the color of the bees, golden, most likely, the aristocracy of the Aryans were also quite fair-haired, so this is another symbol. Yeah, and didn't the Egyptian pharaohs have a bee in their urias, in their headdress? Yeah, Napoleon also adopted this, he had a golden bee, and also, not to forget that the French kings used fleurs-de-lis, this flower symbol that could also resemble a bee.

And yeah, this is another interesting thing, but maybe we can talk about this in a different podcast, especially for that, because the theme about the goddess, or the gods of the bees, is quite... Seems like the bee symbolism is more like not really an Aryan symbolism at all, seems pretty foreign. I think that there could be said something about these bees. Now, first of all, of course, as above, so below, so look at what is going on with the white race, and look what is going on with the bees today.

I mean, I believe that the European type of bee is going to extinct at the same time when the Europeans are quite oppressed. Well, that could be deliberately done through the electromagnetic fields that disrupts their navigation equipment. Yes, back in the time, in the early 2000s, they said that the bees, the European bees, are suffering from a virus, a virus that is coming from Israel.

Which could be more just a revelation of the method on the part of Jews there, for the most part. Maybe, maybe. But still, it's a good representation.

But also, you could be also right, because the cells of the bees, they're hexagrams. If I remember correctly, in Bulgaria, the hives of the bees, they're called kosher, which is very close to kosher. So maybe there is something in that.

And also, there was a quite interesting hierarchical system there. The bees are living in some kind of, well, if I say fascism, it's not exactly true, but they definitely have roles. There was workers, there was one bee queen, and there was several, there were several male soldiers, so to say.

So they have this very centralized system and not all bees could reproduce themselves. So yeah, this is another thing. And of course, the bees are flying, contrary to most of the... Right, to the Semitic ideology.

It's always crawling and creeping around in the swamp. Yeah. So that's true enough.

That makes a lot of sense. A lot of this, you know, they distort and pervert the symbolism of Aryans, and then just co-opt it for themselves. But it gives me some hope that there are actually like a white elite somewhere, you know, probably globally, that are pushing back against things and preserving the tradition.

So that it suggests to me that whites actually have more power than we believe. But it's always good to assume the worst anyway, and just act on the basis of that fact that, you know, we're all on our own and we have to do what we can with whatever we have, regardless of the consequences. Can't rely on any external authority or anything else or any other people to save us or whatever the case.

There was just a small addition to what I've said about the bees, like a potential Aryan symbol. There was an article years ago, maybe more than 10 years ago, in the German press about an interesting hero, or I must say heroine, called the Bee Maya. I don't know how popular is in the new continent, in the new world, but in Europe, it's a very popular book and cartoon.

And I remember when I was a kid, I've watched Bee Maya. And now they found that the author of the Maya was a National Socialist and National Socialist sympathizer. And that's why the lazy and stealing animals were always punished in the book.

So Maya is with like M-A-I-A. Is that it? I will show you. Wait a second.

It might be good for children, that sort of cartoon to get it out. Yeah, yeah, yeah. Interesting.

There's a cartoon from Russia called Crocodile. I don't know if you might have heard of that before. It's like with puppets.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. Look at Maya the Bee. Of course, Maya is blonde.

She's very good and she's always helping. But you must watch the older series, because the modern, of course... Right, they always distort it and pervert it. Judified.

But I believe the older series are made in Germany. So very popular in Bulgaria and Germany. Yeah.

And also, there was another book that maybe is written by the same author, but I'm not absolutely sure. It was called Freddy the Ant. More or less the same story.

The hardworking ants were fighting against some kind of stewards, like I believe it was spiders, that were always trying to steal from them or to eat them or something like that. Yeah, even in Tolkien, you have that sort of mythos of the spider. There's Shelob the spider.

And then there's also the spiders in the Mirkwood forest that wrap Frodo up. That could be a symbol of the confusion of Jews or their entities that they're involved with, wrapping up the area with their spider's webs and creating confusion amongst them. And so he has to break free from that with Sting, which is a flaming sword, which is basically the higher consciousness or the Kundalini.

Yeah, this cartoon from Russia was Cheburashka and Gena the crocodile. And that crocodile guy, that suggests pretty much like a Jewish type of creation to me more than anything. Let's read a little bit from this.

So the author was Valdemar Bonzels. Valdemar Bonzels, born on 21st of February 1880 in Ahrensburg and died on 31st of July 1952, was a German writer. Valdemar was the most famous work in the children's book Die Beine Maya und ihre Abenteuer, so basically Maya and Her Adventures.

By the way, I'm reading this because if some of the listeners have kids, it's good to take notes what kind of fairytales they could read for their kids. Yeah, I also came out with, I should mention that there's a Ukrainian folktales book that I had scanned recently, that people can get that off the archive, I think, some places like that. Yeah, yeah, we must start to upload these things because they will change.

So this book serves the basis of Japanese animated TV, so it was Japanese, not German, television series named Maya the Honeybee in the mid-70s, as well as Croatian opera for children by Bruno Pijinski. By the way, very good, very pleasant cartoon without any transgender, Jewish bullshit. Just find a way to bypass all propaganda.

Yeah, that's my thought, is just to avoid anything, anything after like the 80s is just garbage. It becomes worse and worse as time goes by, for the most part, like a logarithmic cycle of time, the Kali Yuga, it's going spiraling downwards to the lowest depth, basically. And we're pretty much at that point right now.

Yeah, yeah, yeah, absolutely right. Maybe we must make a list of books and cartoons. That's what I was trying to do.

I was trying to develop a curriculum for people, but it's been put on the back burner. But for ideas, you know, like what should people be exposed to at what age? You know, you're at younger age, you want to expose them to these or those folktales or stories of that kind. And then when they get to be more mature, then, you know, start introducing more stories of a more greater complexity.

So on down the line so that they can, you know, accelerate their education in a more healthy, wholesome fashion. Yes, yes, absolutely. This is and we're making this podcast just to help the people in some way to spread the Aryan spirit.

So the opera, we're talking about the opera, this Maya the Bee, was staged in 2008 in Vilach, Austria at the Carinthian Summer Music Festival. Himmelsvolk, People in the Sky, is a sequel with a more philosophical focus, describing in mystical terms the unity of all creation and its relation to God. Very interesting.

He wrote a number of novels and short stories dealing with love as Eros and the high level of divine love in the spirit of Romanticism. Eros and Evangelion. So, la la la.

Naren und Helden, with the relation between man and nature in a simple life unchanged by modern civilization. So that's why he liked the National Socialist. Also a historical novel about the time of Jesus.

So he was Christian, obviously. He traveled extensively in Europe and Asia. Indian Fart, Voyage in India, is the fruit of one of these travels.

Bonsus was outspoken anti-Semite and expressed his approval of Nazi politics against the Jews in 1933, calling the Jew a deadly enemy who was poisoning the culture in the article of NSDAP and Judentum, which was widely published. He was a good guy, obviously. That's why I liked Maya the Bee.

Very, very nice children's book. That's sort of like the Tintin thing, but Tintin is more for like a somewhat little bit older audience, maybe. There's also another cartoon from France that has a lot of Hyperborean symbolism in it called Asterix.

I don't know if you've ever heard about that. Yes, yes, yes. I had this one.

This one movie is a child called Asterix and the Twelve Tasks. That's a pretty good cartoon for people. It's like the Twelve Tasks of Hercules, only it's applied to the Gauls in France.

I'll give you a link to it. I think I could find it here for free. Yeah, here it is.

That's a good. I recommend spreading this around for people, people who want to get a sort of taste of the, you know, the Hyperborean tradition in a very pop cultural form is Asterix and the Twelve Tasks. There's also a good segment in that movie on bureaucracy.

That's very interesting. That's more or less exactly correct in its analysis of the insanity of bureaucracy. The bureaucracy in the Roman Empire.

Yeah, and that's sort of like a precursor, like a Jewish precursor to subsequent British Empire and so forth. Yeah, yeah. And of course, Asterix, Aster is from the star.

So this is another thing that we must take in mind. This symbolism of the flying creature, golden, doing good on the earth, hierarchical and organized. This also could be said for the bees and this also could be said for another group of creatures, which, of course, we started with the Black Sun and maybe must return.

But another group of interesting creatures are called Smurfs or Schlumpfen, if I remember correctly the German pronunciation. Of course, they were accused of anti-Semitism and racism because fans angry over a new book alleging the pale, much-loved children's tale contains overtones of both, I don't know why, Stalinism and National Socialism. They always like to try to associate things with anything that sounds forceful, right? So it's a false association because they're two diametrically opposed ideologies, basically.

If I remember correctly, the old cartoon, there was this evil Jew-looking... Gargamel is his name. Gargamel, very typical Jewish name. Yeah.

And he's got a cat that goes with him everywhere. And that cat is basically like a representation of the police force that goes around harassing the Smurfs who are the common people. The cat was also with a Jewish name.

It was Azrael or Azazel or something like that. Yeah, Azazel, which is like a Jewish demon or something like that. Yeah, yeah.

And, of course, they were small. They were blue, like the blue gods of ancient time. They were quite patriarchal.

I believe that there was only one female Smurf. They were they were united and they wore a red, I mean, they wore a white Frisian hat. Yeah, that's also could be a Mithraic hat too, the way it sort of bends over.

Yes. And the main, the Papa Smurf, he wore a red Frisian hat, which is the highest. And they connected, of course, with KKK, which, of course, could be quite exaggeration.

So what you said, a little army of fans has mobilized to defend Smurfs against accusation of anti-Semitism and racism. Antoine Bueno, a lecturer at Sciences Po University in Paris, make the claims in his book, Le Petit Livre Bleu or whatever, Analyse, Critique, Analyse, Critique, Politique de l'Association des Shroups. This is the German pronunciation, I suppose, in which he points out that the Smurfs live in a world where private initiative is rarely rewarded, where meals are all taken together in a communal room, where there is one leader and where the Smurfs rarely leave their small country.

So they are not enough. They are not globalist, the Smurfs. Does that not remind you of anything? A political dictatorship.

For example, ask Bueno. So this is some kind of Jew academic or maybe communist academic, something. Right.

They're all the same spiritual Jews. They have the same mentality. Exactly.

World totalitarian utopia reminiscent of Stalinist communism. Oh, my God. This will be a very stupid article.

This is a professor. Papa wears a red outfit and resembles Stalin. This is bullshit.

While brain is similar to Trotsky. Oh, my God, this is stupid. And Nazism, the character of the Smurfs' enemy, Gargamel, is an anti-Semitic character of a Jew, which is true.

A story about the black Smurfs, meanwhile, in which Smurfs... By the way, these black Smurfs, I don't know anything about black Smurfs, because in the original story, I don't remember any black Smurfs. There were only blue Smurfs. No, there is not.

In which the Smurfs are bitten by a fly, which turns their skin black and renders them unable to speak as a colonial overtones. Anyway, people knew what they were talking about. That's for sure.

I'm sure that most of these people who made these are probably like initiates or something like that, that they're probably Aryan initiates in some form or other, that they're just revealing, you know, the symbolism, the Hyperborean symbolism to youth in a more like, you know, pop cultural form. Makes it more easy to ingrain it into the consciousness of youth. Maybe there was a thing that I've read that the author of this story, after his death, they found National Socialist books in his house and even something connected to the KKK.

So maybe there is something about that. Maybe there is something about that, but definitely Gargamel and his cat Azrael, it was obviously a Semitic figure. They're trying to destroy the blue-blooded creature, the blue-skinned creatures.

Yeah, it'd be good to come up with something like that ourselves or some artists. We could make some type of comic book or show. Yeah.

And of course, if I remember, the female Smurf was blonde. Yeah. Yeah.

So this is a ticket, of course, about this professor in Paris. What is the level of academics these days? They don't even know that this is not communism. This is National Socialists representing it.

This is an ancient Aryan Phrygian cats that are representing the high priest class. So, yeah. Right.

So either they don't know or they do know, but they just want to sweep it under the rug and distort it in some way. Maybe, maybe. But anyway, this is another example of how you can use some kind of old fairy tales and a way to introduce the mind of the child to Aryan concepts and to make the more sympathetic, for older age, of course, to National Socialism and Racialism.

And later, of course, you want to teach the child at the age of 12 to read Cyrano or even Evola, of course, on the higher age. But these fairy tales will prepare the mind of the kid to start. Yeah.

Somebody needs to make a whole curriculum from the conception of a child. You know, as soon as they enter into the world, until their time to, you know, leave and be autonomous on their own. Oh, by the way, at what time you started to read Cyrano? I don't know, just in the last couple of years, but I discovered Evola, I think around like 2006.

But then I lost track of him because I didn't have the money to buy all the, well, there wasn't very much available in the English speaking world that was translated. I think Carriou came out with the first translations in English, except for one book, which was the Doctrine of Awakening, the Buddhist Varieties of Assises. And then I sort of lost track of Cyrano for like a whole decade and then just rediscovered him with the alt-right when that came around again.

So I had totally forgotten about the guy. I believe Evola, the Pagan Imperium was translated in Bulgaria in the late 90s, but this was the first book. And later I found more of Evola in the early 2000s.

So around 2005, 2006, 2007, around these years, I started to find more and more about Evola and Cyrano, of course. Yeah, that's why a lot of the younger people are very lucky to be able to have that during their more formative years, more that's available now. Whereas for myself, it wasn't as available, you know, so I was just getting whatever I could get, which is not easy to find.

The internet wasn't built up. I think that because most of the people now, they know Evola, hopefully they know Evola, they know Savitrudevi, which, yeah, it's okay to read Savitrudevi, but still, it's, I don't know. It's a lot of distortion and superficiality in it.

Yeah, still, she's a woman, so. Yeah, it's not the most dense, theoretically. Yeah.

And of course, they know Cyrano, which, hey, there was a lot of good things to be said to Cyrano, but also a lot of strangeness, especially with his connection with Carl Jung, which also is interesting. He's between racialism and feudalism in some ways. But anyway, I mean, this is just, as you said, the curriculum must be created for creation of this Aryan mindset that must be created in a way to prevent the kid, to protect the kid from Semitic influences.

Because from what I get, a lot of people that have kids, they have kids, they try to raise them like nationalists, or national socialists, or racialists, but in many cases, they're failing. Because the kids, especially in the ages around the entry of the teenage years, like 13, 14, 15, the raising of the hormones, they're starting to reject the authority of the parents. And with this rejection, they're rejecting their principles.

Right. Yeah, I guess happened with a lot of people in the white nationalists in the States, like the Gayde, April Gayde, and her daughters, the Prussian Blue, they became, you know, deracinated, and then Don Black's son. It's terrible, terrible.

Really, I didn't know that. I've heard that they were, I mean, Prussian Blue were these very cute, blonde kids that were dancing around the swastika, if I remember. In the early 2000s, I've watched videos of some screeching Jew that was terrified how these kids could dance around the swastika, or something like that.

And then I found out that they were singing quite nice songs. And then I found out years later that they entered college, or something, they were smoking weed, or something like that. Right, yeah, they become corrupted by the so-called freedom, or whatever you want to call it, that is associated with the university environment, typically.

This is another example how the Jewish trap is working. I mean, this could destroy racist girls, and also non-racist girls, for them it will be even easier. But what you told me that they had the black kids, or something, is terrible.

Well, no, I never said they had black kids, but they were race traitors. No, the guy named Don Black, the guy who controls Stormfront, his son was a race traitor as well, that's what I was saying. Oh yeah, I've watched a video about him, that he actually, he mixed with some Jew, which is terrible enough, yeah.

And he's dressing himself like a fucking rabbi or something. Like who? This guy, he is dressed like a rabbi. Like a rabbi? Yeah.

Pretty strange. Well, you can look at his pictures somewhere to see how he's dressing all in black, with the black hat, even wearing a fake beard or something. I guess it's that sort of Stockholm syndrome or something like that.

He binds himself to the Jews because he wants to expiate his sins for having harmed the innocent Jews because of his sins of his father or whatever. Yeah. Sort of mental illness that a lot of those privileged people have.

They always get some guilt complex because they have too much or they have too easy a life and they become decadent and corrupted mentally. Yeah. But this is because the people don't have an Aryan society.

And if we have an Aryan society, we basically will be treated like some kind of weirdos or maybe some kind of... Terrorists or something. Terrorists, yeah. So this is another example of how we must create a parallel society.

But also this is another example of how this mighty propaganda machine of the Jews must fail. Our parallel societies, they cannot survive the propaganda pressure, so to say. And that's why the Jews had this war against the Aryan spirituality since the time immemorial, since, I don't know, maybe at least 3,000 years.

But I think this occult war is much older. 3,000 years. Yeah.

I'm assuming it's probably a cosmic war of some kind. And that's obviously their technique is just a means of destroying people through destroying their soul. And what it's connected to in terms of egregores or archetypes, all the thoughts and ideas that are like the cultural emanation of their being, they seek to destroy that as a means of destroying the actual biological group because they know as above so below that if you destroy people in the spiritual, you destroy them in the physical.

And that's their mode of operation is to target you at a higher level to whatever level they can get because they're obviously of a lower nature themselves. So they can't, you know, grasp the spirit or imprison it in their matrix. They can only try to grasp your soul and imprison that in the matrix.

That's why we need to try to spiritualize people. And the way to do that is through the symbolism, the Hyperborean archetypes, because that activates the blood memory. Yeah, this is another thing that we must say that, first of all, we must look at the, how to say, what is typical for our people.

Second, we must try to use the symbols to implement in our new society because the symbols are very important. People don't believe in magic, but actually the symbols are magic. Right.

The symbolism of the, for example, with the asterisk, the cartoon, they're always having wild boars. And the symbol of the boar, apparently, according to René Guénon, he says that it is in his Atlantis and Hyperborea article, he says that it is the basis for the etymology of Hyperborea. It doesn't just mean beyond the borders, but it refers to Boreas, which is something to do with the wild boar, which is apparently a symbol, Hyperborean archetype.

Absolutely, absolutely. And look at Asterix. He's very smart, very brave, blonde.

And his friend is Obelisk, if I remember correctly, which is quite gigantic, a very strong redhead. Right. So it shows the two different qualities or archetypes of the whites, of the Aryan.

You know, they have strength, they have intellect. And then, of course, you have the spirit in the form of that guy named Getiphix, which is the druid who brews their magic potion, which turned them basically into berserks. And they're fighting the Romans.

And interestingly enough, the modern French, I believe, had a lot of the Roman blood. It was even proven back in 2018 that northern Spaniards and southern French had the very close genes to the ancient Romans, which I suppose disappointed a lot of Italians. But yeah, Asterix is also a good movie, even though I'm not sure the new series, because you see these 2018, I believe, or maybe it was even 2017, comics, Asterix and the Chariot Races, where Asterix raced against coronavirus in Italy, which is obviously a type of predictive programming.

I mean, 1000% predictive programming. Another thing that we didn't mention, we mentioned the Black Sun. Most of the people are connecting the swastika either with the Sun, with the Polar Stars, or with the Sun.

As I said, all the swastikas are connected either with the birds, like is the case in Ukraine. It's not exactly a swastika-like symbol. It's not exactly a clear swastika.

The oldest swastikas, like real swastikas, like swastikas that most of the people could recognize today, are found, I believe, in Bulgaria in Divitashka Cave. They are 8,000 years old swastikas. They're right-handed and left-handed swastikas.

They're represented by, they're basically presenting, and of course, this frog swastika is quite old. Some people said that it's even older by a couple of hundred years than the Divitashka Cave. Obviously, the connection between this swastika and the Green Sun.

So, we said that the swastika had a connection with the Sun, with the Polar Star, but there is another thing that a lot of people don't realize, that these swastika-type symbols, they're also connected with the Thunder Gods, because there were Zonyarat, but there are also Thunder Wheels. So, sometimes they're representing the Sun, sometimes they're representing the Thunder Gods, which is another arid element. It could also represent, the left word swastika, which is the National Socialist emblem, could represent working against the cycles of time, working against the demiurge, because you're going in a counterclockwise direction, which is like that company Counter-Occurrence, a publishing company.

Yeah, and of course, the two together represent, as I said, I see the swastika opening the cube of the demiurge, this material prison. Yeah, that could be the same sort of idea there, working against the cycles of time, against the matrix. Yeah, against the matrix, and of course, when I say cycles of time, of course, Cronus is the God of Time, like Cronus.

Yeah. And I will read a little bit of what I wrote about the Thunder Gods back in the time, because a lot of people forgot that one of the archetypes, of course, the thunder, like a symbol of war, symbol of electric currency. Through the ages, a recurring archetype has prevailed within the mythos of the Aryans.

In this context, I refer to Aryans as noble ones, keepers of the light, and other terms to represent a spiritual caste, a collective of different culture and traditions that seek to understand and adhere to the natural law, which of course leads to their racial unity. There are many different differences between cultural traditions within the Arya, Arya in the sense of the Aryan family. There are more similarities.

One of these similarities would be the Thunder Gods. Whatever the tradition, Thunder Gods are central figures. They are generally loved and venerated by the people and even known to outsiders who know nothing of any other gods within their myths.

Many, maybe even most of atheists, know Thor. We all feel his presence within the Vedic tradition is the Thunder God Indra, who is compared to the Celtic God Taranis, the Norse God Thor, Roman Jupiter, Perun or Perkunus, Tangra of the Bulgarians, and so on. Even the Australian aboriginals have a Thunder God called Mamaragana, or whatever is the pronunciation, who Wikipedia claims lives in a puddle.

And by the way, this Mamaragana is represented with blue eyes, which I don't think that aboriginals had a single gene for blue eyes, so this is telling. I would suggest that there are several reasons for this. One of the major reasons being that we can literally see thunder and hear lightning.

It affects us. It scares our children and our animals. It makes the earth and the air shake.

It lights up the night while sometimes cutting our electricity supplies. Its source is clouds above, so the connection with the skyfall. Its destination is the ground below.

If you get in its path, you will likely be instantly destroyed. The Thunder Gods, like Thor, are usually defenders of the sacred tree of life. In Norse mythology, it is called Idrasil.

The Mighty Thunder protects the life in Midgard. Could there possibly be a better display of the natural charge all around us here in Midgard? The Aryans understand that this energy is present at all times, not just when Thor strikes his hammer. Of course, the hammer of Thor is representing the Aryan strength.

The phallic principle. That's why the symbol of Thor has a phallic look. As they had used in the communist logo as a symbol of sacrifice, that might also be a symbol of sacrifice to the Aryan God, which I assume it is, because obviously Uranus is the cosmos or the sky father.

That's probably what they were signaling. They were signaling the destruction of the Aryan through that means. There is another thing.

It is the color red. At first, I thought it's just representing the color of revolution, like they will spill the blood. This is basically a sacrifice that Kronos did with his father.

Then I realized that the color red could be the rebellion of the common masses or the hominids against the blue bloods. I realized that in several stories that I found in the Bulgarian and German folklore, when they compared the nobility with the blue flowers. I've realized that the symbol of the international socialism is a red rose.

In many noble families back in time, it was blue flowers. This is another thing. The Christians have the white rose, which is some sort of Masonic symbolism.

The white rose. This also must be researched. What is the red? Isn't that like the rubato phase of hermetic alchemy? Yes.

As well. What is exactly that phase? I don't know. Some do the consolidation or something.

Let's see. Of course, in the communist symbolism, they also have that sheaf of wheat, which is always present. That might also have something to do with harvesting, with Kronos harvesting life.

Rubato is a Latin word meaning redness, of course. That was adopted by the alchemist to define the fourth and final major stage in the magnum opus. Okay, so it's the final stage.

Both gold and the philosopher's stone were associated with the color red. And rubato signaled alchemical success at the end of the great work. By the way, Calergis means good or beautiful.

And the word Calergis means good deed or great deed or something like that. They're pretty fond of patting themselves on the back. The three alchemical stages preceding the rubato and nigredo, and I believe we have the nigredo phase right now, which represents putrefaction and spiritual death, albedo whiteness, which represents purification, and citrinitas, yellowness, the solar dome of awakening.

Some sources describe the alchemical process as three phases, of course, they're writing different things because the different alchemists are hiding their methods from one from another. So there's a lot of distortion there. The asmed expression takes place between albedo and rubato.

The rubato stage entails the attempt of the alchemist to integrate the psycho-spiritual outcomes of the process into a coherent sense of self before its re-entry to the world. The stage can take some time or years to complete due to the requirements of substantial insights and experiences. The symbol used of chemical writing and art to represent the red stage can include a phoenix, a rose, a crown king, or a figure wearing red clothes.

Countless sources mention the writing process. The 17th dictum of the 12th century Turba Philosophorum is one, for example. Turba of philosophers and disciples now has spoken about making into white, but it yet remains to treat concerning the redding.

No obvious sequence after this art, that unless the white cannot make red, because the two natures are nothing other than red and white. White and therefore the red, and the red and the white. Interesting.

This reminds me of the Bolshevik revolution. If you think about the civil war there, the whites against the reds, and the reds dominated the whites. But on the other hand, in the rest of Europe, the whites won for a short period of time.

Right, yeah. And of course, in the Jungian, in the framework of psychological development, especially the force of Jungian philosophy, these four alchemical steps were viewed as analogous to the process of attaining individuation or to proceed that allows an individual to attain the integration of the opposites. Their transcendence finally emerges out of an undifferentiated unconsciousness.

In the archetypal schema, Rubedo represents the self archetype and the culmination of the four stages, the merging of ego and self. Interesting, interesting, interesting. So maybe they viewed their magnum opus, like taking over the world and summoning this deity to the earth in material body or something like that.

Yeah. Interesting. Let's continue with the thunder gods.

So the Aryans understand that the energy, where was the tree of life in the Norse mythology, it's called Yggdrasil. So the mighty thunder protects the wife in the Midgard. Oh yeah, and I should also mention about that Yggdrasil tree and also the Erminsul, the world pillar that according to Ganon, that's sort of like a representation of the access of the earth and how it was.

It was not unbalanced before coming into the magnetic field of the earth of the moon. And that was when the golden age was, when it was just straight up and down. It was like perpendicular to the equator.

Whereas once the moon came into the magnetic field, then that upset that and it created the tilt of the earth on its axis. In Bulgarian mythology, the people, the humans were created in the, basically near the Erminsul, so Bulgarian tree of life. And it looks like one of the tales suggests that the soul is created by thunder, like by thunder, the sky of God, and it is breath in the bodies of the humans.

And they mentioned 72 tribes, of course, which is brother tribes. And one is the gods, I suppose, the Scythians and so and so. And these humans, they were always connected with the invisible string to the Erminsul.

So there is some kind of, I believe, racial connection there between the white race and the Idrisil, the tree of life. Maybe it is symbolical, the destruction of the natural order, and they're trying to destroy the white race, like they're destroying the animals, like they're destroying the bees. And maybe the tree of life is this cosmic order in the universe that they're trying to overtake.

Well, it's also within the person as well, a quantum entanglement or a fractal, you know, that it's the cosmic order. The macroprosopos and the microprosopos, as it says in the Kabbalah, you know, the cosmic man and the man who has become a perfect man, man perfected. The Adam Kadmon.

Yeah, and that's related to that five-pointed star. You know, when you have the upward pointed star, then that's like the spiritualization of the material. And that apparently has something to do with the planet Venus as well, which has something to do with that green ray.

I'm not too sure if that's like a stargate maybe or something like that. Something to do with like the, with that, I don't know what it's called, the Aeon or the whatever. The Venus is like, you know, the orbits, they have like their orbital paths, spherical spheres, I guess you could call it, their shells, like a certain region.

So of a certain vibrational frequency, maybe. Maybe. And that's correlated with color, maybe.

Maybe this is also connected with these ancient Egyptian myths that were most likely arid by origin about the return of the reincarnation of the, not reincarnation, the return of the seized Pharaoh to his heavenly father, Osiris. Maybe this is, maybe this is also a connection there. And of course, Osiris was green, being the god of the underworld after he was killed by Seth.

And of course, Seth is most likely the deity that was worshipped by the forefathers of the Jews. Right. Yeah.

And Seth is, I think, in the lower Egypt, is it? In the south. He's correlated with the south. He's also a god that represents like the deserts and the sort of, you know, the outlying regions, the regions outside of civilization.

He represents nomadism and sort of is connected with pantheism, where he's just like this wild desert god. Yeah. And also, interestingly enough, behind his mask, you can see the reddish hair of Seth, which is also, also interesting.

And there's, in the Bible, there's at least in Christian identity, there's that Esau is spoken of as being a hairy man with red hair. Hmm. There is some connection there.

Maybe there were these redness in their case came from the Neanderthals, not from the, not from the Aryans, not from the Chromaggian line. May very well be the case. Or maybe they had some kind of race-mixing elite, Aryan elite, that brought the European genes.

Maybe. I know it's always strange whenever I deal with Irish people or have had dealings with them, they always seem to have a sort of twisted mentality, like they're, have some sort of relationship to Jews. The behavior of them is always a sort of passive-aggressive type behavior in most cases.

That's been my experience. Maybe it's just those that are bound up with them or have Jewish genes inside of them or something like that. I think that, I think that the connection with the Jews coming, I mean, the red hairedness could, well, there were several, several genetic lines that brought these red hairs to the Middle East.

One is obviously the ancient Aryans, which is suggesting that they had something like 30 percent, well, genes for red hair, but it doesn't mean that they were one third of the world red haired. Then Scythians, of course, part of the Scythians get red hair. Also, people that were very close to the Western Aryan branch, so to say, the people very close to the Celts.

And I believe that this makes connection between the Egyptians and the Western Europeans, actually. You know, it's interesting, just if I could interject when you're saying that, the guy who wrote The Mystery of the Central Sun and who wrote the Edda Aki to the Coming Age, he also wrote a book called, what is it here? The Esoteric of the Atlanteans in its Relationship to Egyptian, Babylonian, and Jewish Secret Teachings. It's that Perry Hsu guy.

And what is his theory? I don't know. It just references the book. I don't know if it's even translated into English.

A lot of these, these works of his, he seemed to have written a fair amount, but almost nothing is available in English. Another book that could be researched. And so, these are the people that brought, and of course, my suspicion is that later they had a Reddish admixture through the Iranians.

There were Iranian princesses that obviously, at least in these frescoes, obviously had reddish hair. And of course, later when they started to mix with the Khazars, the elite caste of the Khazars, they were with quite strong Scythian genes, contrary to the Christian identity that they believed that they had. Church genes or whatever.

And that's why the Khazars were referred to as the Red Jews, or Red Jews of the East. And of course, in the Bulgarian mythos, there was this epic duel between a Bulgarian bagateur called Boromir. Yeah, just like Gerard Tolkien.

Yeah, not Boromir, but Boromir. And by the way, these, historically he existed. I mean, Boromir, he existed.

He was from a princely origin and he fought against the Arabs. Most likely, he was from the Chigots. So basically, maybe there was a, not maybe, most likely they were from Gothic origin.

And he fought against the Arabs and later he fought with Isperech against the Khazars. And in an epic duel, he managed to kill the Khazar prince. And it is said that the beard of the prince was the same color like his blood.

So, yeah, it is obviously reddish, very strong red genes there. And anyway, I mean, I'm not spreading that. And by the way, what is the meaning? Why they're trying to say that the Israelites were white when there were a lot of tribes that spawned from the Aryan tribe? What's proving that? What is their point? Right.

I just don't understand. Because they're obsessed with their Jewish god and they want to sort of patch themselves into that slot of the Israelites. That the Jewish god was the original god of the Aryans or what? Yeah, basically, Christian identity.

It's basically just trying to pencil themselves into the place of the Jews in the mythos that Jews created. Even though Jews created that mythos by distorting much of the pre-Aryan, pre-Christian Aryan tradition, such as, you know, from Babylon and from the Near East and so on and so on. I, from what I can take, and I know this for a very long time, that our gods are considered demons in the eyes of the Jews and in the Bible and in the Christianity, they're considered our gods demons.

And in that case, we, for them, we are Satanists, basically. And vice versa. They are Satanists for us because they're our enemies.

Obviously, just the way they have, they're trying to distort their enemies and portray them in the worst light so that they can, you know, make themselves feel good and so forth. Like a typical non-white, they always slander anybody who's white because they're jealous of white people and they wish to tear them down and so on. Yeah, yeah.

Basically, what Nietzsche called Chandalism, it's the mentality of the slave in relation to the master. Yeah, exactly. And by the way, maybe the Jews are making some kind of, maybe they're serving us in that way because they're spiritually making difference between the strong mentally and spiritually people and the weaker people in that regard.

Most of these Christians, they really want and they become very aggressive for what they found. They really want their sky rabbit to be real. Everything is a serious area.

I don't know if you noticed the commentary under our last conversation about the psychology and the spirituality of our enemies and what was the reaction when he saw the ancient icon of Rabi. Right. Yeah, I think I saw that.

Usually that's a standard reaction on the part of Christians because it's all just emotion. They don't have any capacity to argue their points in any rational way or they can just fall back on, you know, the faith-based non-arguments by saying, oh, well, it's just my belief. I just believe that.

Well, you don't have any basis for your beliefs other than mere opinion, which has no correlation to reality and you can't prove it. And the only way you can make any sense about Christianity at all is if you interpret it from a very esoteric standpoint, like that book, The Edda, A Key to the Coming Age by Parichu or something like that, or even René Guénon's book, The Symbolism of the Cross, which is, you know, an Aryan symbol that goes way before so-called Christianity. And that's more like the equal armed cross, whereas the cross of Christianity just shows the inversion of the chakras, which is just a means of cursing the Gentiles on the part of the Jews through like a black magic act on their part.

Interestingly enough, they don't read their own Bible where they many times, the Jews and their God are cursing the Gentiles and they want to exterminate the Gentiles, which of course, the translation they don't call Gentiles. They're called basically what will be the nations, the nations. So the nations basically curse to be exterminated.

Right. I mean, that's the sort of religion you want to believe in that, you know, you're just going around killing people all the time. It's a pretty crude religion.

Quite cruel and quite bloodthirsty and quite targeting the white people. Right. I don't even think that they considered non-whites to be any kind of humans.

So their main enemies were always white people being Greeks or Romans or Persians or Scythians or Germans or Thracians or whatever. They're always the enemies of the white people. So I don't understand why they want to pretend this Christian identity.

I think it's just that they need a crutch because they're too weak to be able to stand on their own feet. They need to have some sort of mythos that enables them to feel like there's something external to themselves that can prop them up and make them feel good. And they don't and they somehow ignore the fact that they are listed, they are listed like relatives of these Middle Eastern people.

Like they're trying to convince us that these old Canaanites and all these things, they were white or what? Maybe they had white elite. I think that there's a lot of those types and their origins were white. Like Jörg Landsvand-Leibenfeld speaks about in Theozoology and also that book Atlantis Eden Bible by Herman Wayland that goes into that, even though it's not the best scholarship or anything.

But I'm sure those regions of the earth were white to whatever extent in their origins. But that doesn't really have anything to do with that. And it's sort of like Israelite-ish mythos of like the 12 tribes type stuff.

So we are talking about a similar situation like in the books for Conan, the Hippioborean Age, where these Aryan heroes are invading the Middle East and ruling over the subjugated Semites. Which book is that? I believe that this is the whole story of the Conan he's described like in... Oh, Conan the Barbarian, right? Yeah. Yeah.

He's described in... And not only Conan, they describe other Barbarians that are similar, if I remember what is written, similar to origin to Conan. Sometimes there were... What was this another tribe? I've read it when I was a kid. So basically Cimmerians, of course, and then their neighbors, which were Vanir, if I remember correctly.

Yeah, they were Vanir, so the Norse people. And they were invading these Middle Eastern kingdoms, similar kingdoms like Sumer or Egypt. And they're ruling over the subjugated people on the basis of their warrior prowess and strong spirit.

Right. Yeah, I'm pretty sure that's the paleohistory right there. Aryan migrations from the polar civilization that radiated outwards in every direction on the earth from the North America, South America, so on.

Yeah, yeah. So yeah, another good books, the books of the Conan. But you must look at the period when they... And who wrote, because there are a whole, I'll say, fantasy universe around Conan, Conan the Cimmerian.

It is, of course... Well, it was created by Robert E. Howard, who shot himself with a shotgun. He was a Texan. He lived to like the age of 30.

Jonathan Bowden has a good lecture on that guy. But the other guy who took up his work for the most part was Robert Jordan, who was a writer of various other sci-fi and fantasy novels. It's actually pretty good, pretty decent quality stuff.

And there's a few allusions to Jews as archetypes throughout those types of audiobooks. People can get all those off YouTube. If you type in Conan audiobooks, you'll get all of those.

They're pretty good, pretty well written, pretty well read to while away your hours of work, slavery or whatever. These books are not so... I believe the teenagers could read them. They're also good for building this area of psyche.

Yeah, even like pre-teen types, probably that would be the age range for that stuff, would be from age like whatever, depending on how developed your child is, right? Up until adulthood and until you die, because they're all timeless stories or well written. So just to read a little bit about... Conan the Barbarian was created by Robert T. Howard in a series of fantasy stories published in Weird Tales in 1932. Howard had been in the search of a new character to market burgeoning pulp outlets in the early 30s.

Conan is a black-haired barbarian hero who swears by a deity called Krom. Now Krom, most likely he took it from the Celts, but there was a Bulgarian or I would say proto-deity called Krom and this referred to the avatar of Thangar, which was called Thang Krom. So this is another thing to be said.

As a whole, I found that Robert T. Howard was a very well-educated author. I was even surprised for the accuracy of a lot of things he wrote. At least the basis of his fantasy was quite accurate.

I think he was involved with H.P. Lovecraft too, to some extent, maybe, because they both wrote for those sorts of magazines. Robert T. Howard wrote for Weird Tales magazine and Lovecraft wrote for some similar type of publications. Even though they were from different parts of the country of America, they were more or less around the same time period.

Yeah, the various stories of Conan the Barbarian occur in the Pseudo-Historical Hippioborean Age, Pseudo-Historical, yeah, set after the destruction of Atlantis and before the rise of the known civilization. This is a specific epoch, a fictional timeline created by Howard for many of the low fantasy tales of his Artificial Legendary. The reasons behind the invention of the Hippioborean race were perhaps commercial.

Howard had an intense love for history and historical dramas. Yes, he knew history quite well. However, at the same time, he recognized the difficulties of the time-consuming research work needed to maintain historical accuracy.

And moreover, the poorly stocked libraries of the rural part of Texas, where Howard lived, just didn't have the material needed for such historical research. Now, I don't know, but he did quite a good job with the historical research. Yeah, he only lived to the age of 30 years old, too.

So yeah, that's pretty significant. Obviously, they had a much better education at that time in history than they do now. According to the Phoenix on the Sword, the adventures of the Conan take place between the years when the ocean drunk Atlantis and the gleaming cities and the years of the rise of the Sons of Arius.

Sons of Arius, obviously the Arius. And, of course, Conan was a blacksmith. Of course, they said that the Chimeras were based on the Celts, but actually, back in the time, the German historians called the Celts in Central Europe, Celto-Chimerians.

So they thought that these Celts would originate from these Proto-Scythian tribes, Chimeras. And, of course, they think that the Franks also, or at least the royal line of the Franks, came from the Chimeras. And, of course, Bulgarians set by Pliny to have a Chimera descent.

So quite important group in the Aryan history. So, yeah, Conan the Barbarian, another very good book for teenagers. Yeah, let's see.

Yes, I mentioned it before a couple of times. I think that Robert, Edgar Rice Burroughs, the guy who wrote Tarzan, is also quite tied into that sort of mythos, the Hyperborean mythos with Tarzan, who sort of represents that Aryan archetype. Yeah.

And he discusses a lot of things in other of his works, too, about the Hollow Earth and stuff, which may very well be a reality. Interestingly enough, Arzan is one of the names of the Aryan Scythian tribes in the Far East. It's just like another, so to say, key to understand the Aryans is to look at the names.

Yeah. According to Ganon, Arya actually means, what is it, like a farmer? And he contrasts that with the nomadic civilization, which was Jewish. I will say that could be the opposite, actually.

Could be the opposite. Maybe, maybe, maybe. Well, even Vikings had farms, though.

Yes, but the Aryans represent aristocracy. And I mean, aristocracy of blood, aristocracy, warrior aristocracy, contrary to the much later aristocracy of the land owners. And to see what is the difference, for example, you can see, let's say, the Spartans.

The Spartans never worked the farms directly. They had slaves. Contrary, for example, to the land owners of, let's say, much later Poland, which was one of the reasons that the Polish accepted the Jews, because the land owning aristocrats of the Poles needed, very often they needed a mediator or money, money lender, because very often they could not sell the harvest and they needed money.

So they accepted the Jews. So I don't know, it's kind of, I think that the, and also this is another thing, the type of diet that the Aryans had. When I say Aryans, I mean these Proto-Indo-Europeans in that sense.

Contrary to the old Europeans or pre-Aryan invasion, one was based on milk, milk products and meat. The other was more based on bread, let's say. So this is also to consider.

Yeah, apparently even in the Vedas, I think it is, they talk about how meat was very succulent and so forth or whatever, that it was something correlated with like the noble caste or the upper caste. And contrary to a lot of these people who are trying to popularize Vedism, like that Mukunda Dasa guy, he's trying to say that the people then were lacto-vegetarians and so forth. But I'm pretty sure that was just a slave class who were, you know, mind controlled into adopting that sort of diet.

Now, I'm not the biggest fan of this British, whatever he is, geneticist, maybe this Button, no, Dutton. So I'm not the greatest fan of his work. But he claims that short periods of fasting creates a kind of stress and this helps actually of growing the testosterone.

Yeah, it's called the leptin, something to do with leptin and ghrelin, which are like growth hormones. I know there's one Jewish guy who is on this forum called Paleo Hacks. He's like a guy that's pushing paleo, Dr. Jack Cruz with a K. He's always pushing that theory.

But I don't really think that that's the wisest idea, that sort of feast and famine type thing. Because I've personally followed that sort of diet. It actually just leads to your becoming totally messed up in terms not only of body composition, but in terms of energetic levels and muscle mass also.

It'll just lead to muscle wasting. Yeah, I understand. So basically, maybe we must make a podcast, especially for the types of diet.

For like a physical, could be called a fucus or something like that, from the Greek. This is an idea for a podcast, but must be a little bit more prepared. Also, I'm talking with a guy, a very close associate of mine, to read a little bit of let's say practical advices for building a homestead.

This is, I believe it is connected with the type of diet. Because today I've watched this quite well. It's not even a warning.

It's frightening book called The Countdown, which is about the falling levels of testosterone and sperm count in the Western. So they're using the term Western men. But we're talking about white people here.

Yeah, I've actually got a formula for that for testosterone in this handbook that I made called Uber Menschheit. It's a subsection of that handbook. It's got the testosterone formula based on my research and so forth.

And I had my blood work tested. So I have higher than normal testosterone levels, apparently. Good, good.

Maybe we must also make a podcast about that. Yeah, I think that could be more or less incorporated. It could be called something along the lines of just man up or something like that, or some practical advice.

Yeah, so basically, one of the reasons that the people, there are many reasons, but one of the reasons, of course, the plastics in the water. Most of the food, they use plastics that are basically dropping the levels of testosterone. And of course, this is spread only in the civilized countries, predominantly in Europe, North America, and maybe in Asia, maybe in China, South Korea, and Japan.

But definitely, from what I see, the Jews are trying to poison the white man and to turn us into some kind of sexless, passive creature. Yeah, that way they can enslave us. And one of the ways to stop them is to make the people to raise their food and to feed themselves properly.

And of course, this, again, raised the question of building a homestead, imperial societies. Just we cannot, you cannot have kids, healthy kids without this. And of course, the kids, even if they, by some miracle, are born in this society, they will be brainwashed and turned into some kind of enemies of our people.

Yeah, it all goes together. Like we always said before, it has to start in a spiritual dimension, if you want to call it that, and then go, you know, crystallize and coalesce in a physical form. But it all works together because the physical relates to the spiritual and the spiritual to the physical.

So it's not all, you know, you don't just try to create a blueprint and then suddenly follow it out of nothing. It's a dialectical process, if you want to call it that, of alchemical transmutation of yourself. Yeah, absolutely.

And of course, a lot of people must realize that this is, I mean, everything could be reversed and the Jews are not so, I mean, so all-knowing and all-powerful like they're trying to present themselves. That's usually just part of their psyop to try to psych out the opponent, basically. Demoralization.

Exactly. And yeah, I mean, we must just realize how to stop them or how to, what are the problems basically in our society, in our gene pool? We have problems like degeneration pushed by the Jews, of course. But yeah, this is another question, is how we can, how to say, how we can, how to say, how to make these people that are communicating on why to move in the real world, so to say.

Right, yeah, exactly. This is the main problem. Because the Jews are going to be shutting it all down soon anyway, so you have to get into your position before there's a, before there's no opportunity.

Yeah, maybe I just, because from what I've seen in EU and JEU, they're trying to take all the communications down between people like us, basically people that are opposing the Jewish power. Yeah, it's just another modern way of cutting the transatlantic cable like they did during the Second World War. Yeah.

Create isolation. And of course, they will say that they're looking for terrorism or whatever, and actually they will try to cut any communication and eventual network building, which I repeat for again and again, we're talking only about legal stuff here. We're talking about community building.

We're talking about business building. We're talking about informational exchange and things like that. And of course for them, they'll just deliberately try to distort anything which is just conducive to our survival as something terroristic or criminal so that they can criminalize us.

That's their policy, is basically demonize, criminalize, genocide. That's sort of a gradualistic distortion of people's identity. Yes, of course.

But yeah, this is the game of the JEU. I mean, for now, we have at least some freedom of communication. We'll see what will happen in the future.

But they removed the freedom of traveling. So maybe they will use some kind of accident or some kind of false flag event to remove the freedom of communication. Right.

Yeah, I can definitely see something like that happening once there's enough pushback to their corona type of issue. Maybe even in the summertime or fall, then they're going to start creating more of these false flag operations to try to further restrict people's ability to exist, try to continue with their plans of vilification of whites. Yeah, so we'll see.

We'll see. I mean, you cannot predict, even though I, after 2020, as I said, I'm quite open for any kind of conspiracy theory, including, as I said, I start to believe that they will make this false alien invasion or something. Something to unify the goyim.

Yes, to unify the goyim. And maybe to create a new type of religion based on belief in the aliens or something like that. Yeah, I think their template for the new religion is basically just the mother goddess type cult and then some sort of messianic figure that they're going to try to pretend is and then everybody will believe it's their personal messiah, be it Jesus or the Imam Mahdi or whatever.

It'll just be something for everybody, basically, just like just like all their religions are just a sort of syncretic plagiarism of whatever Aryan traditions that are twisted into their Semitic, supremacist version of that same sort of thing. And then they can just get everybody to believe that they're the Israelites or whatever, and then everybody's all right. Right, right, right.

Yeah. Type of thing. Mm-hmm.

And of course, again, I will mention this predictive programming, this 2012, I believe, movie called Prometheus. They're also mentioning these white giants that are supposedly creating us, the humans, and how they were just destroyed by these hybrid species called the aliens. And the aliens have a very Jewish type of behavior here, basically inserting in you an egg that is coming from you.

So basically, they're killing you from inside. Just like the alien movie with Sigourney Weaver. Mm-hmm.

And of course, I believe in Prometheus, and of course, this Ridley Scott, he's amazing. So in Prometheus, they landed on the 25th of December on that alien planet. And at the end of the movie, this creation, this proto-alien, he killed the white giant, the white giant.

And so basically, this anti-messiah was born. And it was born from a virgin, from one of the... It did a lot of Judeo-Masonic symbolism in the movie. Right.

If you want to watch it, be warned that it's quite, I would say, quite filled with hatred against the white man. Yeah. So basically, this is an ancient war, as I mentioned, between the archetypes, between spirituality.

Even in the Bible, David is killing the giant Goliath, or Goliath, or Golem. Right. And of course, these Philistines, they're coming from the Balkans.

There were Aryan people with reddish beard and double axes, and they were quite good warriors. And of course, they're enemies of the Jews. But David, the name David, if you look at the name, David is the opposite of Diva, and Diva is one of the Aryan names of the gods.

So... Right, so just more inversion. Inversion, yeah. Inversion.

And of course, they killed the giant only with a small stone, or a stone in the head. By the way, this is another... But it must be something to do with, like, taking the third eye out, or something like that, your pineal gland. Maybe, maybe, maybe.

But the stone also is another important symbolism, but they're more like for the Semites and for the empires that were infiltrated by the Semites. For example, we mentioned that many times, but this Cybele, or Cybele, goddess, she had, or she or he, because it was a transgender deity, of course, had the black stone. Of course, the Romans, the black stone of Cybele was transported to Rome, and of course, the Romans had the cult of the black stone.

So, and of course, this cult of the black stone was some monastic orders, I believe, in the Catholic Church also had some connections with the black stone. This also must be said. Right.

And, and of course, the Bibles themselves, original Bibles, they're quite, obviously, they look like a black cube, let's say, black. And of course, this is the book, and the book is the cube. So, this is, this is the people of the cube, the Jews, and the old Abrahamists, so to say, following the sacred holy books that are written by the Jews.

So, the question is, what is the final goal? And we answered, I believe, the question that is the total, or I must say, totalitarian rule over the world by a king of Zion. And eventually, even esoterically speaking, the return of the deity or deities to the earth, which could happen through some kind of artificial intelligence. Right.

Yeah, I think it's not even really a question of their own personal creation, like the Jews don't have all power. I think they're basically controlled by some sort of entities, like I said before. And pretty much their, their goal is to just bring these entities onto the earth and have people possessed by them so that these entities can like avatar their bodies and, you know, use them as a vehicle of getting energy from them.

Yeah, and they're using this genetic connection that we mentioned that it could be the connection with the Neanderthals, could be some kind of demon possession, could be some kind of connection with the Black Atlanteans. These Dagon, or these Oannes, most likely came from this world civilization. Could be the race mixing, I think the mixture between obviously white people, Negroids, Asians, other types of Asiatics.

That might have led to enabling these entities to possess them. There must be some kind of genetic and spiritual connection there. There must be all these two components.

It's not only genes, I think. I mean, a lot of people don't realize that the Jews by themselves were not so intelligent back in the time. There were some intelligent people, if people is the correct word for them, of course.

But as a mass, they were not so intelligent. They had quite low IQ scores, I believe. And then they started to dominate and they claimed that they had, what, 115 average IQ? Yeah, of course.

I think they might have invented those IQ tests in the first place, and they're just artificial misunderstanding of things. Anyway, they're a distortion. Yeah, could be.

But even if they were quite intelligent back in the time, let's say 150 or whatever, I don't believe that even the smartest people could manage to predict the effects of Christianity, for example. And from what I've seen, Christianity served them a quite decisive role in the competition for taking over the world. I don't believe that even a supposed genius level Jew in the first century could predict what Christianity would bring.

So this leaves the only other possibilities that other entity is, I'd say, planning the things of pulling the strings. Yeah, that's my thought, because the Jews operate like a hive mind entity. They don't behave like they're something autonomous.

They all behave in a similar way, and they all sort of behave like a robot sort of more than anything. So this is another connection with the bees, maybe. Maybe like the bees, but more likely like the ants, like the ant people.

Well, they behave like termites when they infest a society. They eat it up from within. Yeah, yeah.

So this is another connection. And also, my thought is that back in the time, our people were more like, well, our people were, I mean, the individual heroism were always celebrated in our culture. Meanwhile, the Jews, I cannot remember from the top of my mind some hero that was a renowned hero in the Bible.

There was this guy, Samson, of course, but Samson was not really. I mean, he was actually stupid. He was actually stupid.

He cooked the Jews for a woman, if I remember correctly, and he redeemed himself at the end of his life, killing the racial enemies of the Jews. Then he killed himself in the process, I think, or something. Yeah, yeah.

That's a sort of titanic mentality there. You know, just that's what the Jews can only attain to in terms of masculinity, if you want to call it that. It's a sort of violent, thug-like, mafia-style behavior.

Yeah, and it is interesting that you mentioned the thug-like, because there are some suggestions that there's a very ancient connection between India and the Jews. And we know that these thuggies, they were quite popular in India. And their lifestyle, let's say, their behavior is quite similar to the Jews, especially these Shabbatean Jews, Shabbatites, which, of course, the Jews are using these Shabbatites as an excuse that the rest of the Jews were not bad people.

Of course, Shabbatites was opposing Judaism. But in reality, they had a lot of these figures during their history. And as a whole, these taboos that they have, these restrictions, 365 restrictions, I believe, they are representing more like the Saturnian restriction upon the Jewish psyche.

And when you have severe restrictions, you are creating these extremes in the psyche. Right. That's why it comes out in the form of pedophilia and various other of these Jewish tendencies.

And then they try to make allowances for that with more of their rabbinical behavior or whatever. And also notice how the left, especially the Jewish left, is very aggressive, very destructive. And they're very good at implementing mass terror, which, by the way, the conservative right-wing and national socialist regimes, they were not really very good at implementing this mass terror and mass aggression, destruction, things like that.

The Jews are always first to commit terror attacks, individual and mass terror, of course. Like the Ergun. For example, the Ergun.

But I was thinking about the terror acts against the Russians. I was thinking about the French Revolution. Right.

Gavrilo Princip was apparently a Jew also from Serbia. Yeah, yeah, yeah, yeah. I was thinking about the republican terror in this period of the republican revolution in England.

But I was thinking about the pirates. There were a lot of Jews among the pirates. They were quite infamous with their cruelty.

If I remember correctly, what was the name of this pirate? The Blackbeard. He was a Jew. And he was known with his sadism, especially against the Spaniards, because, of course, the Spaniards expelled the Jews.

And, of course, there were a lot of these slave owners. They were quite notorious Jewish slave owners. They implemented systems of breaking the psyche of the slaves, white slaves and black slaves, by raping them.

So, yeah, that's definitely something that would be about as Jewish as it gets in behavior. So, you can imagine what kind of hominids we're talking about. So, the Portuguese Jews, slave owners, actually, were described to be quite sadistic in raping and torturing techniques.

So, yeah, this is and, of course, the Portuguese slave owner Jews, they were related to the North African Jews, which are also notorious. They were quite infamous with their practices of killing and raping and torturing women during the invasion in Spain. Yeah, they repeat the same pattern of behavior over and over and over again, like during the Russian Revolution and the Spanish Revolution, they did all sorts of stuff like that also.

Yeah, yeah. And, of course, they were also known, and maybe I will have some time to read about the genocide. This is the whole book, which, of course, unfortunately, it's not translated well, only through Google.

It is called The Holocaust Against the Bulgarians. And it's quite a controversial book because it's written by a historian using translation, direct translation from several different sources. Wait a second, try to find the translation.

Ah, I found. This is short. And this is not the beginning.

So this is just a sample from the book. The Jews were the true masters of the Ottoman Empire, Bulgaria under the Turkish Jewish slavery from the, it's written from the 14th to 19th century. Actually, it's more like from the beginning of the 15th century.

After the fall of Ternopil in 1393, the struggle against the Turkish enslavers continued. In fact, the Turkish invasion of the Balkans in 1352 until the liberation in 1878. The resistance didn't cease.

The first 50 years of the Ottoman invasion were the bloodiest, and the Bulgarians gave the most casualties in the wars against the Turks. The heroic sacrifice of the Bulgarians largely saved Eastern Europe from the danger of the falling under the Turkish rule, as it kept the Turks on the Balkan Peninsula for a very long time, and this prevented the subjugation of new territories. During the Turkish yoke, the Bulgarians staged more than 50 major uprisings and took part in more than 50 campaigns of other Christian states against the Turks.

The more important were the campaign of Vujvoda Stefan Elizar in 1402, the uprising in 1405, the Bogumil uprising in 1413, campaigns of Vladislav III of Varna in 1443, 1444, the campaigns of Georgi Kastariot in 1443, 1467, the uprising of Prilep in 1564, so basically the listing called the uprising. All these uprisings and campaigns are well summarized in Josephus' book on the Bulgarian uprising. He also gives detailed data for the existing documents about Bulgarian victims and the Turkish atrocities among the civilian population.

The massacres, the exorbitant taxes imposed by the Jewish tax collectors, and the genocide committed against the Bulgarians, Josephus also noted the treacherous role of the Serbs, Venetians, and the Genoese who felt the second campaign of Vladislav III Jagiello, also called Varnacek, in 1444. Apparently, on the instructions of the Sanhedrin, the Jewish bankers from Venice are involved in the game again. So he's describing the Felt Crusade.

The Pope Eugene IV was not satisfied with the result achieved, and therefore Vladislav III violated the peace treaty with the Turks, and in the spring of 1444, he reappeared, in this time, in northern Bulgaria. He crossed the Danube at Orshovo, captured Vidin, Nikopol, Shumenkrach, this is in northern Bulgaria, Kaliakra, and besieged Varna. Actually, the Turks were in full retreat.

They suffered a series of defeats. Bulgarians were joining en masse. This Vladislav was king of Poland, but also he was from Hungarian and Lithuanian descent.

There was a united coalition of Europeans against the Turks. There were a lot of Teutons, a lot of Germans, Scandinavians, Hungarians, French. The only people that didn't join were some Italians, because the Venetian Jews had something to do with this.

Italian or, I must say, Venetian ships actually transported the Turkish troops against the Crusaders. I'm sure the Venetian ships were also, the Venetians were pirates as well. Yeah.

Because they were Jews, and that's just a typical highway robber mentality. It's just their natural mode of behavior, for the most part. Let's continue.

It's quite interesting. I mean, sometimes I'll try to make a proper translation of the Jewish involvement in the fall of the Balkans and the infiltration of the Byzantium and the Bulgarian Empire, which was crucial for the fate of this part of the world. So, all the ones between the Balkans and Danube were liberated, but the most decisive moment was when Vladislav was before Varna, and the liberation of northern Bulgaria was being decided.

The Serbs, Venetians, and the Genoese changed the sides as the Venetians and the Genoese with their fleet drove the troops of Sultan Murad II from Asia across the Bosphorus and the Black Sea to Varna. And the Serbian despot Yuri Branković did not want to ruin his friendship with the Sultan and did not allow the Bulgarians in Macedonia, led by the famous Georgi Kastariot, which is by the way, one of the oldest, how to say, he took a blood oath to fight against the Turks and he was successful. By the way, he also committed genocide against the Jews because he found the connections between the, how to say, he heard the stories of Jewish connection with the Turks.

A number of historians note that extremely vile role played by the Venetian Jewish bankers and the Jews in Constantinople with regard to the conquest of the Balkans, and in particular Bulgaria, by the Turks. They also played a key role in the fall of Constantinople in 1453. Venice sought by all means to preserve its place in the trade of the Eastern Mediterranean in order to preserve its endangered positions and to expand its domination and influence in other Balkan lands.

That is why it constantly maneuvered between Hungary, the Ottomans, and Genoa and exploited the divisions and difficulties of those Balkan countries to which it had long directed its aspirations. More than obvious is that close cooperation of the Jewish merchants and bankers, especially Jewish slave traders who appreciated the potential for profit in the growing Ottoman empire. The Jews did their best to support the process of asserting the power of the Turks, of course, at the expense of the enslaved people who were plundered and totally destroyed.

Nikolai Stanishev notes the beheading of the Bulgarian people continued through the 14th century by sword, by exile, or by contract, vassality, temporary self-preservation, which ends again with the sword, and sometimes with conversion to Islam. Some, some, but not many converted. The beheading of the Bulgarian people continued in the 15th century during the Great Turkish Strife, when the Bulgarians made the first of many riots and attempts of uprising.

A large part of Bulgarian aristocracy was liquidated and only a small part managed to hide in the countryside or to immigrate abroad, mostly in Germany, Hungary, and even in France. The beheading and bleeding of the Bulgarian people continued through the slavery, after every revolt, after every hopeless uprising. At the same time, Turkish conquerors began to settle in Bulgarian lands, at the center of the peninsula.

A large number of the population thus further weakened Bulgaria. This is according to the, I believe it was Italian adventure at that point. As already mentioned, the Jews who helped the fall of the last Christian fortress, Constantinople, which was conquered by the Jews, the Venetian and the Genoese Jewish bankers were mostly involved in the hellish act and betrayal.

As a number of authors point out, of origin, the Jewish question through the eyes of... So, as early as 13th century, Byzantine Jews supported the occupying armies of the Turks and in the 15th century, they supported the Turks during the last conquest of Constantinople. This is explained in the same way, and this is from Google Translator, so it's not good. And for the same reasons, the Jews supported the conquest of southern Spain by the Saracens.

After the occupation of the Muslims, they were in the ruling government. According to R.M.F. and Meyer, the betrayal of Constantinople came from the suburb of Galatia or Galata, which was... Is that Galatea? The Galata, sorry, exactly. Galatea, I think it is.

Yeah, which was officially a Venetian and Genoese colony and where many Jewish merchants and customs officers lived. They helped the Turks to transport over 70 ships by land to the Golden Horn Bay, necessary for the decisive assault on the city and supplied the occupiers with provisions. Nicola Vatten, I believe he is French, points out that the Galata merchants maintained an ambiguous neutrality supplying both sides with provisions and information.

Something typical of Jews, always working as double agents and making a profit from the war. Sounds like the carpetbaggers in the south, the southern states during the civil war. Yeah, yeah.

There are a lot of things. He mentioned Calergi, but this is one of the origins of the Calergi. For his part, R.M.F. points that the operation to take Constantinople was actively stimulated by the personal physician and advisor to the sultan, Ahmed II, the Italian Jew, Giacomo di Gaeta.

He advised the sultan to use artillery during the storming of the city, something totally new, and established contact with the Hungarian engineer Urban, a specialist in cannon casting. That could be a Jew, by the way. After its fall, Constantinople was badly damaged and looted and partially destroyed.

The Turkish troops did not enter only Galata, where there were many synagogues. It is symptomatic that the attack on Constantinople began the Easter or the Jewish Passover, and apparently, with this equivalent sign somewhere from the Sanhedrin, symbolically wanted to say something to the Orthodox Christians. In the describing of the battle of Constantinople, he said that the spears of the Ghazi, the fighters of the Islamic faith, carried like the scepter of Moses, seemed to the tyrants, the unbelievers, like seven-headed dragons.

Interesting. During the conquest of Constantinople, many Christian churches and not a single synagogue were destroyed. And the most beautiful and impressive of them, St. Sophia, for example, was turned into Moscow in the Mosques.

Numerous priceless libraries and manuscripts were burned, and a number of Christian valuables and relics were desecrated and destroyed. In the same way, the Turks and their mentors, the Jews, acted in Bulgaria, according to which is a Russian historian. The Turks and later the Greeks, fanariots, by the way, fanariots, groups, basically it came from fanar, a lump, and it is said that in these, exactly in Gavata, they had a lot of lumps, red lumps.

And this name came from these, from the lumps, and their mixture between Byzantine aristocrats, Jewish merchants, most likely from Venice, and even in some cases, Turks. So this is the fanariots. Commanded by Constantinople, combated Constantinople, Constantinople is the purposefully first destroyed cultural centers and literally, and literally values, especially Bulgarian manuscripts and books ask if the goal is to erase from the face of the earth everything foreign, everything non-Muhammadan, everything Bulgarian.

In connection to, with his visit in Tarnovo, in 1838, the French traveler Ami Boué wrote that the Muslims had destroyed everything that would remind of the Bulgarian nation. And what Ami Boué said about Tarnovo also applies to many other towns, villages, and districts. QF also describes that many monasteries, churches, and bookstores were burned during the Turkish war, and thousands of Bulgarian manuscripts and old printed books were destroyed, and lost to history.

This also happened during the numerous revolts and uprising of the Bulgarians against the Ottoman rule. The monasteries in Mount Athos, Svetagora, which must be translated with Hollywood, were also badly damaged, including Bulgarian monasteries of Graf. According to QF, the systematic and organized destruction of Bulgarian written monuments began in the second part of the 18th century, when the patriarch Samuel of Constantinople succeeded in closing the Serbian Ipek Patriarch in 1766 and the Bulgarian Orchid Archbishop in 1767.

This patriarch, by the way, Samuel, is from these fanarios, so maybe he was from Jewish origin also. The destruction of Bulgarian and Slavic books to be served and to replace the Bulgarian language with Greek. This task is assigned to the taxon.

Greek fanarios with their actions destroyed in later periods many more Bulgarian written monuments than the Turks. And that's it. And there is a short family tree, which leads to Kalergi family.

Right. So he was basically the descendant of people who were responsible for the genocide that happened around Bulgaria. Bulgaria.

But interestingly enough, he's also responsible for the genocides of the Greeks, because they're international. They are not. They're Jews.

So they just use the Greeks like a hammer against the Bulgarians. And overall, the Turks used by the Jews to establish this multicultural empire. And maybe back in the time, they tried to establish, to take back the lands of Israel.

But it was not successful. Yes, you can see that they've been doing the same sort of thing over and over again throughout the whole of history. It's just the same old procedure over and over and over again.

Yeah, and they're not going to be stopping that because, as we had speculated, they're probably controlled from above by whatever sort of entities that they don't have an ability to convert to Christ or whatever stupid thing like that. And again, according to later tradition, Alexios II Komnenos sent 12 noble Byzantium families to Crete in order to strengthen the ties between the island and Constantinople. As I mentioned before, Byzantium, they saw themselves like Rome.

They were God-chosen. The Byzantium emperor was the only legitimate emperor in the earth, as well as he's representing the power of Rabbi Yeshu on the earth. So, Ioannis Fokas was one of these 12 Byzantium rulers.

Fokas changed to Calergis during the Venetian dominion over Crete, which began in the aftermath of the Fourth Crusade. The Fourth Crusade is also a thing that we must talk about. Richard von Kudenhof Calergis described in his book An Idea Conquers the World that Calergis' themes is composed of the Greek, I mentioned the Greek word kalon, beautiful, and ergon, work.

So basically, a beautiful deed, a beautiful accomplishment. Known in many versions as Calergis, large areas of Crete were attributed to each of those families. The reason of the village is named Calergiana.

On the white mountains, heraldic resembles contain the Calergi family coat of arms. Bendy, Argent, and Azur. To see what is the flag of the Calergi brothers, just look at the modern Greek flag, which is also telling.

Coat of arms, Bendy and Azur, could be found all over the island of Crete in the churches and other monuments. The name reappears many times in the turbulent history of Crete and also in modern Greece. During the Venetian dominion and after the Ottoman conquest of the island of Crete in 1669, many of the Calergis moved to the Ionian Islands, Elbe, Venice, and they moved to Russia.

Also interesting, in Venice, the family named Calergi in this branch built bonds with the families of Venthamin, Crespi, and Gribani through marriages. The family is also connected to Pozzo Venthamin Calergi, which is found in Venice and Grand Canal. It's like I got some Jews spying on me in the window here.

Just thought I'd have a mention of that. It's their nature, they're always creeping around trying to peep on people. Damn bunch of creeps.

So yeah, that's just a short example of the falling of the Balkans and falling of the Byzantine Empire and these Jewish infiltrators.

Nordlux: Symbols of Hyberborea with Sigurd (part 2)

March of General March The forest is covered with blood The widow is crying, she is wounded March, march, General, march To fight, to fly, to defeat the enemy March, march, General, our fight to fly, brother, to win! Bulgarian Chetniks, the whole world is watching us, Let's go to victory, to fight gloriously! The Balkan army is hunting, the war is great, With the spirit of a soldier, we lead the wing. March, march, General, our fight to fly, brother, to win! From Nojnik to Vikri Bojnik, we are worthy of the laurels to take, We are the people for honor, freedom, for a merciful people. March, march, General, our fight to fly, brother, to win! Hello, Sigurd.

Hello there, how are you doing today? I'm fine, I hope you're fine. A lot of people wrote me about the first part of our podcast, and we're back to the topic. There are a lot of things to be said about the different symbols.

The symbol of the swastika we discussed, the symbol of the black and the green sun. By the way, the black sun is a quite open topic. Some people said that it's a Semitic symbol.

I don't think it's a Semitic symbol. I think that it was used also by Germanic people. I think that the understanding of the symbol is quite lost.

I think that it's based on the thunder wheel, and as we mentioned, it's based on the rejection of mortality. It's just now a chemical symbol of transmutation and the immortality of the soul. But because our race is in severe decline, I mean, I don't even think that during the Mongol invasion or the Turkic invasion, the Black Death and the Arab invasion, we suffered so heavy casualties.

But still, the white race, we still had Aryan qualities. And now it is very hard to see a person that you can call Aryan. Right, exactly.

They're all Semitized. So that's why I think that we must talk about different symbols of Hyperborea, of Thule, of Atlantis, what we know about Atlantis. By the way, there was a letter, a guy that didn't want to mention his name, but he asked what is your opinion about Atlantis, because he thinks that Atlantis was actually anti-Hyperborean and anti-Aryan in a way.

Well, according to René Guénon, I think it's in the compilation of his articles, The Veil of Isis, the article Atlantis and Hyperborea, I believe. He basically said that there's two parts of Atlantis. One was the south and one was the north.

And that Thule was one of the cities, I think, in the north. And that the southerners were like the Ramoahal, some other race that were like the proto-redskins from the Americas. But that's as far as I'm aware of that.

But I would say Atlantis was definitely white, at least in large part. Just like today, it's always become blended. That's a strategy of the non-whites to try to destroy us.

It's their sneak strategy, you know, just gradualistically eroding our culture and mixing with us and so forth. That's barely how Atlantis fell. If we believe, of course, this is not a historical book.

This is not even an attempt to research this thing. But on the other hand, I'm talking about the books of Tolkien. In his writings, Atavante was mentioned that it was a very dominant sea empire.

But also the other name that was used for Atavante was Numenor. And they at some point, basically it was the high class of humans mixed with elves. So according to him, they started to worship at some point the Demiurge or Morgoth or Melkor, this black deity.

And this caused a problem. And there were two groups from Atlantis. One was the followers of the real gods and the friends of the elves.

And the other was these followers of the Melkor. I guess the elves represent the Hyperborean devias probably. Those who actually have real blue blood like in the Bhagavad Gita.

And this caused the fall of Numenor and the fall of Atavante actually. And both groups survived. One moved to the area which in the real life must be Europe.

The other group he called Black Numenoreans, Black Atlanteans. And they moved in the area which in the modern day in real life must be the Middle East. So this is the idea.

I don't think that it's... Maybe it's based in some esoteric teachings. I know that some of the so-called Illuminati, the Illuminist ideology like Anthroposophy with Rudolf Steiner, Max Heindel's Rosicrucianism and then Blavatsky's Theosophy, they talk about the Atlantean black magicians and how that caused the fall of it and so forth. And apparently, according to Max Heindel, who probably was a crypto Jew, he basically said that the original Semites no longer exist and that they were... It's hard to tell if he really implies that they were white in their origin.

So like a somewhat of a Christian Identist perspective on things. But he basically says that they all came out of Atlantis. And then from there, they radiated outwards to so-called Gobland, which is a Gobi Desert civilization and so forth.

And there are obviously different migrations, but I'm not too sure what... He didn't really say much specifically, or none of these people really did, about the different groups, which region they went to though, so far as I can remember. Because they were not really... I mean, they had some kind of racial ideas, but they were not racials in the moral sense of the word. No, they're anti-racists.

I will say that one of the first modern racialists was Himmler, not even Hitler. Hitler had more like traditional ideas of race, the German race and Celtic race. There is Jörg Lanz von Leibenfels with his Ostero magazine also.

Yeah, but Himmler was more like this Aryanist type of figure, very close to the paganism and to this revival of the folkish ideas. But anyway, I mean, we won't argue who is the first. I mean, everything in the National Socialism is based on the German Romanticism and this research of the past, which... I mean, power to the Germans, they invested quite a lot of resources and money, even before National Socialism in the 19th century, they were researching a lot of things in the Middle East and in the East of Europe and the Balkans.

Partially Bulgarian, quite famous Bulgarian revolutionary researcher, poet and quite interesting figure, Jörg Savorakowski. He was connected with the forefathers of the Germanic order, so to say. These German scientists that were making research in the Russian Empire in Ukraine.

And he managed to connect what they said with the Bulgarian myths that he researched about the original Bulgarians, the so-called Manassius Chronicles, which are also very interesting research and they show quite different picture than the present narrative of Slavo-Turkic bullshit that they forced. So, going back to Atlantis. I mentioned this many times before that the Masons, like mainly Pico, they claim that these Oannes or Dagon representing race of people, of sea travelers that were very highly developed for its time.

And they obviously went to the Middle East from the West. I assume it's something to do with more like cryptozoology or cryptobiology, like Jörg von Leibenfeld says, that they were a mixture of kinds. Maybe that's too exaggerated.

Not absolutely sure. Maybe you can... Because there was a thing, well, if we go to Semitic sources like the Bible, you know that they mentioned that the giants, these Nephilim, mighty men of old, they committed crimes against the flesh of the animals and men. So, this could be interpreted in many different ways.

So, I think that that's probably somewhat legitimate, even though it seems very exaggerated, Jörg von Leibenfeld's conception of things. Because he draws upon, you know, obviously the so-called Bible and all the various other Semitic or alleged Semitic literature from around the Middle East, which may very well have been derived from original Babylonian sources, like a lot of his bas-reliefs in the book Theozoology. He shows how it, you know, they depict with anatomical more or less exactitude the figures of these sort of cryptoids, the beast men or whatever, called Baziati and Pagutu, according to the Babylonian bas-reliefs.

And basically they were depicted in the stone in a very anatomically correct fashion, so that it would be highly unlikely that they were actually fabricated and false. And then just all the textual evidence, the only way to make any sense of that, of the Bible, is from that racial standpoint. So, my understanding of that is that they are probably, the Jews just ripped it off, a lot of these stories and things like that.

And then they just, you know, twisted it and then put themselves on top, like a sort of rotten cherry on top of a pie. That they baked a bunch of shit inside too. Yeah, but we know that some people in the past, when they encountered more developed races, when we're talking about more developed races, we're talking about most likely Hittites, Atlanteans and later Aryans.

So, when they encountered their races, they had a tendency to glorify them, to deify them, or to attach mythological qualities to them. So, basically, for example, the Kentauros. The Kentauros were placed basically in the Thracian mountains, in the mountains north of modern day Greece.

And most likely, it is the first encounter of the Proto-Indo-European population with the horse-riding Indo-Europeans and Aryans. And Thracians, maybe, because of Thracians. And, of course, later the Greeks made the connection between these Kentauros with the Thracians.

And because the Thracians were famous horse riders, and, of course, they had the attitude of being wild in battle and things like that. So, they attached these attributes. They created this mythological figure of the Kentauros.

It's interesting how the German National Socialists during that time frame, a lot of the statues that they had done and the bas-reliefs, if you want to call it that, were very reminiscent of that of Babylon, in the way in which the muscle definition and everything was very precise, very orderly and logical. And if you look at all the Babylonians in the earliest period, those bas-reliefs, they look very similar to that. And all of them had sort of round eyes.

No, I'm not debunking anything. I've also read the different theories that there were these hybrids back in the time that was created by the early civilization. But, I mean, we don't have much evidence.

There's Bigfoot too. The Bigfoot is an interesting topic. Some people believe in that.

Some people reject it like some kind of propaganda. Cryptozoology. But, for example, I believe that in the oceans there are a lot of undiscovered types.

It's said about Turkey too. There's a lot of those hybrid types in and around that region of the Earth. Honestly, maybe you remember that I've shared this video from the Australian documentary about these Turks that are walking on four feet.

Yeah, exactly. And basically they're the missing link between the Homo sapiens and the rest of the hominids, I suppose. But, yeah.

That would be evolution. That would be devolution. Some kind of mutation, definitely.

Some kind of mutation. They could barely speak. They walk on four feet, so it was obvious.

I would say that's a result of hybridization with the beast races. You know, these sort of hominid entities. And that basically is my perspective on why the non-whites are existent in this world as a result of mixture, miscegenation.

That's actually a Christian identity perspective. But you don't have to subscribe to Christian identity in order to subscribe to that reality. Talking about different animals, maybe we must talk about the bear, like a symbol of the Aryan people.

I'm not sure about the Hippoborean connection there. But people like Marie Cachet, for example, they claim that there was a solar coat connected to the ancient bear. And that our forefathers, fighting with the bears, hunting the bears, they started to respect the bears.

Of course, her understanding is quite naturalistic and quite lacking of symbology. But also must be taken in mind, even though from what I get, she had this not Indo-European understanding of mythology. For me personally, looking at Bulgarian tradition, there were three warrior initiations.

So basically, we don't know the lowest initiation. Maybe it was something for the kids. Maybe it was a raven.

Because that's what they had in Rome, a raven. What? I'm not sure. The raven certainly had something with the gods in the Bulgarian mythology.

They are messengers. They are messengers of the thunder god and also of his son, Horse, which is the solar god. But I'm not sure about that.

So the second initiation was the initiation of the wolf. And we know that amongst the Indo-Europeans, including Scythians and from the Eastern Scythians, these transferred to the Turks. This Indo-European tradition was the cult of the wolf.

So the young warriors, after a successful hunt, after a successful male initiation, which may be combating each other or maybe passing through the test of bravery, they covered the young warriors with the wolf skin. So that's why a lot of cultures, like the Bulgarians, were known that they wore wolf skin over their armor. The same was for the Germanic warriors.

The same was for the Celts. And the same most likely was for these Baltic Scythians or Slavs or whatever they were called. So this is the second initiation.

I think that the bear is related to the constellation Arctos, the bear, astrologically. Maybe. And that has something to do with like observation of the stars from the North Pole when it was a polar civilization.

Maybe this is also a thing. But also it is interesting that the highest initiation was the bear in the Bulgarian mythology. It was these warrior priests, they wore a bear skin, which is documented by a German cardinal, I believe.

That was some kind of ambassador in Constantinople. And he describes a Bulgarian pagan prince that he rejected to wear Byzantium clothes, which were most likely silk clothes. And he preferred to wear traditional Bulgarian clothes and to wear this bear skin like a symbol of honor above them.

The question is, why is it that the bear is the highest of the initiatic order? Well, of course, there are different theories. First of all, obviously, the bear is the largest, is the most powerful animal in European nature at that time. With one exception, which we are not absolutely sure, there were European lions, cave lions.

But we are not absolutely sure that they are stronger than the bears. Most likely they were not stronger than the bears. The white lions, they are known, you know, these figurines from Germany that are 40,000 years old.

There were lion type figurines. And also there was two white lions in Bulgaria at the time, until maybe 10th, 11th century. Interesting enough, the white lion, I think that's one of the publishing companies.

I forget what Verlag it is in Germany during the Third Reich. That was a symbol of one of their major publishing companies. I forget if it was called Eckart or no.

I don't remember what it was called though, something Verlag. And also, interestingly enough, in Semitic languages, Ariot is a name for the wild, one of the names of the wild. So they made some connection between the Ariot and the lions.

Maybe because of the color, maybe because the mightiest animal, the king amongst the animals. I don't know. But going back to the bears.

So the word for noble in Old Bulgarian is bor. Boila. Boromir.

Yeah. And, of course, there was an Old Bulgarian Elboromer. Also, this is a famous Bulgarian hero that took battle against the Arabs and later fought against the Khazars on the northeast.

So maybe Tolkien knew something. I don't know. Just a theory.

I'm sure that his whole mythos is probably esoteric in large part. Yeah. And interestingly enough, the word for slave is the opposite of bor.

It's a rope. So that's why you have robot, which is a slave worker. And bor is the opposite.

Bor is a nobility and also is a fighter. So warrior. And the word that in whole Eastern Europe, I believe, was spread from the Bulgarian Empire or from the older Iranian type of empire, like Great Scythia.

The word for nobility is boriu, which comes from Old Bulgarian bor. Boreas. Boreas.

Yeah. And it refers to, obviously, Hyperborea. And I remember reading in René Guénon's articles, he said that borea or boreas refers to the boar and that derives from the Celts.

Yeah. And that's why you see in the cartoon Asterisk. You know, they're always eating wild boar and that and their goals, which was derived from Celts in France.

But interestingly enough, you're making connection with the boar. But in Bulgaria, Old Bulgarian, the word for bear was bor. So I don't know.

Maybe some kind of combination of the cult of the boar, which we know existed in the North country. In the North countries, there was a cult of the swine, of the boar, and a cult of the bear. Maybe something like that.

Some people said that actually there was a cult of the stag, because we have an unknown, unnamed forest entity, very similar to Cernunnos. But we don't know the name. It was a very mysterious entity.

Most likely some kind of mysterious forest god. But it was not a negative entity in any way, because at least in the survived story, he repelled the inviting evil spirits, the Yudi from the forests. And he actually helped the white gods in the final battle.

So I don't know. Some kind of nature deity like Cernunnos most likely. Isn't it to the stag, the emblem of that alcohol, that bear, Jagermeister, which is the master of the hunt? Yeah, Jagermeister, exactly.

And my suggestion is that there is some esoteric meaning of that, because of the burning cross between the horns of the antlers of the stag. So, yeah, there is a lot of symbolism in that. But take in mind that this highest title, Bor, or Boril, or Kuobor.

Now, the Bulgarian priests, sometimes they are quite primitive. The communists tried to convince the people that they are just primitive shamans. They used shamanic practices, but there were also, this was a title Kuobor, there were the priests of the Kuoborat, or the sun wheel.

So there was some connection between the sun worship and the bear, which is also very interesting. Because at first you cannot find what is the connection between the bear and the sun. Maybe people in the ancient past made this connection because the bears are sleeping during the winter and they're awakening during the spring.

But also there could be astrological connection. Yeah, I'm thinking it's more related to Arctos, the constellation. I'm not too sure.

If you view Arctos from the North Pole, what will that do in terms of the sun? Would that not be, maybe it makes it more visible during the golden age when the Earth just basically orbited around its axis. It didn't have like a tilt, didn't have that wobble. So it was always like one season.

Yeah, there was this theory that the ancient sky was quite different back in the time. Unfortunately, of course, this is hijacked by these Jew worshippers of the Electric Universe, the followers of Velikovsky. And they mindlessly, like a lot of other people that were following mindlessly, for example, Einstein, they're rejecting any suggestions that, for example, Velikovsky, which is, of course, Jew, quite vile, anti-white friend of Einstein, Zionist and so on and so forth.

He stole this theory and he implemented that Saturn was the most dominant figure on the ancient sky. And maybe he tried to establish the Saturn worship. Don't they say that something to do with the Saturn was the Sun or something? Yes, or was the real Sun or the second Sun or the dominated Sun.

And they tried quite primitively, in my view, to explain, for example, this elongation of the skull in many civilizations. Like these people were just watching the sky and there was some kind of planetary configuration on the sky and that these people were somehow inspired by these constellations. And today, because these planetary configurations somehow look like elongated heads, this is absolutely ridiculous.

I mean, this is bullshit. More likely, there was a really different situation in the ancient sky. Some people claim that the Moon was not visible.

And the Moon, some civilizations remember the time before the Moon existed. Some people think that there were two Suns in the sky. Maybe this was the situation.

Yeah, like on Star Wars, when Luke looks into the sky from Tatooine, he sees the two Suns. Yeah. Of course, George Lucas is a Jew.

So obviously, they're just signaling there, you know, this is what we're about. The central Sun. And, of course, the main hero was Anakin Skywalker.

So, yeah. Anunnaki. Yeah, Anunnaki Skywalker.

Anunnaki Lucifer. Yeah. So, very, very interesting thing.

And also this esoteric theory about the Golden Age of Saturn or the Golden Age of Kronos, which also gives this - it's almost a communist type of mythology. Because this Golden Age, everyone had a source of food. Nobody works.

People were living for enormous periods of time. The lion is lying next to the lamp, like in the Bible, by the way. And this is totally utopian.

And I don't know. I don't think that the lion ever lied next to the lamp. It's just not - just a - Well, if that ever happens, then either the lion is not going to get up or else the lion is going to be torn to shreds by countless lions.

Maybe. Maybe there's some kind of esoteric meaning if we think that the lion is, for example, the Aryan race and the lamp are the - I don't know, the Semites. Maybe.

It's probably something to do with astrological symbolism. Maybe. Maybe.

Maybe a tribe of Judah. And I think it represents a sun, the lion. Of course, you have in the book by C.S. Lewis, the lion, the witch, and the wardrobe, you have a lion called Aslan.

Or Aslan or whatever his name is. Aslan, maybe. Yeah, I think so.

Because Aslan in Turkish is the name of the lion. And this is also connected with the Aryans because Asir or Aswan basically means Aryan. So that's a funny, ironic, tongue-in-cheek joke on the part of the Mexicans in the States when they think they're going to take the whole of the southwestern states and make it into Aslan.

And making it into Aslan, it just gives it to us, right? Yeah, but I believe that they're missing the part that they - the Aslan was a city founded most likely by Aryan people. Just an occult joke against them. Yeah, yeah.

That's what I'm thinking, that there's actually more of a white power in the world than people think. It's just cryptic. And that what they're doing, they're naming all these cities, places and whatever in a way that just reveals who they are and what they're doing.

This is the same like a lot of places quite south in the Middle East, they had a name like Tule or Tile, which also reveals that our people were there. Also, the name - and this is another thing that also proves that it's connected with the Aryan people because the Celts that were led by Bolg and entered the Balkans, they established a kingdom with the capital of Tile or Tule. Which is in south, central, south Bulgaria.

And, of course, they had a lot of wars with the Thracians. At some point they melt with the Thracians. They were kind of similar in a way.

So, yeah, it's an interesting idea about Tule or Tile. And, of course, we don't know where exactly was this mythical place. There are different type of ideas about that from the North Pole to Scandinavia to West Ireland.

Some people thought back in the time that the British Islands were Tule. Interestingly enough, the Danish people called the German Tusk. So, this is also a thing which suggests that actually the Germans, the southerners compared to the Danes were Tusk.

So, they may be there, the Tule was there. On the other hand, Bulgarian founding and most noble family were called Tule or Tule. So, emanates from the North Pole.

And then from there, they just preserve the tradition. Or maybe it was a place of the Aryans in Ukraine. Or maybe it was from the North Pole, as you said, or somewhere in northern Russia.

A lot of theories where Tule was. About the bear, I honestly think that there are multi-level of explanation. As we know, as above, so below.

So, I don't reject the astrological interpretation. I don't reject the more material interpretation. And I don't reject this kind of shamanistic interpretation of the bear.

Like they're absorbing these powers from the bear. And this is a test for the male strength of the hunter and the warrior. The esoteric is just like a higher level or interpretation of the same thing.

They're not incompatible. They're just different facets of the same thing. From different perspectives.

And also, we know that these warrior priests in the Bulgarian myths, they were stargazers. So, I don't think that there is any contradiction between these warriors back in their youth, of course. Because they're living for quite a long period of time.

Like, they're obtaining knowledge and wisdom and things like that. In their youth, they hunted bears. They passed through these initiations.

And later, when they were wise, they observed the stars. This knowledge of the stars and the cosmic processes, they're also connected with the bear. I'm not very knowledgeable about the Druids.

But I'm pretty sure that I saw something similar for the Druids. That they were knowledgeable about the stars. Knowledgeable about the nature of the gods.

And knowledgeable about many material things and material wisdom. So, they had these levels of interpretation of things. I'm pretty sure that's just the Aryan tradition in all cases throughout the whole of history.

It's been layers of initiation and so forth. You have the common people. And then you have the exoteric understanding of things from the common people.

And then the esoteric more for the initiates and for the priestly caste. And not to forget that, for example, Pontifex Maximus is the builder of the bridges in the Roman tradition. And some people said that they really were building bridges back in the time.

So, this is material interpretation. But also you can interpret this name like they were building bridges between the mortal people and the gods. Yeah, from Midgard to Asgard.

Yeah, so this is something more complicated, not so profound like just building a bridge. But even building a bridge, if you think about it, let's think what knowledge they must have to build a bridge, let's say 2,500 years ago. This fucking Homo erectus in Africa, they cannot build a bridge on their own in present day.

So, I mean... It's equal, man, you know. Peace, love, unity. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

I mean, this is a thing with the bears and the shamanic tradition. Also, some people claim that these shamans, Bulgarian co-workers, they had these... First of all, they took part in battles when they were in the younger age. And also they had the ability to command the weather.

In some account and traditions, the Russians of Ivan the Terrible, Ivan Grozny, they were afraid of these Bulgarian co-workers because they commanded the forces of nature. They commanded the storm, which is, of course, normal because they were knowledgeable of the cult of the Thunder God, of Thangar. They commanded the sun, according to them, and they know the secrets of the moon.

So, this is also an interesting thing. And also, we must go back to know that there was something about... I believe Pindar also pointed out that the Hippoboreans know much about the weather and much about the sun and moon and the stars. So, this is another interesting connection.

About Atlantis, because we can add a little bit of Atlantis. There are some speculations about Atlantis. For example, the color, which are alchemical, of course.

The color white, red, and black. The hermetic alchemy colors. And, of course, these colors are quite widely spread among the Aryan people, like folk costumes.

And you see, too, even in the racist movement, even in the United States, and before that time, they were always using the hermetic alchemical colors, like the Blutfaun of the National Socialists. They used red, black, white. The creativity movement of Ben Klassen uses red, black, and white.

It's pretty much pervasive. In all the novels, too, like William L. Pierce's Hunter and the Turner Diaries, they also use red, black, and white for that. Do you think that this is some kind of racial archetype, unconscious archetype that is taking this memory from our forefathers? I think they're basically initiates, the people who wrote all those, who developed those sorts of organizations.

I think that what they're doing is basically just revealing themselves that way, hiding in plain sight. Yeah, but the folk costumes of a lot of people, including in Bulgaria, Eastern Europe. And I've seen, for example, the folk costumes of the Saxons, restoration of the Saxon costume.

The Saxon folk costume was very close to the Bulgarian costume. So, if these red, white, and black, small black elements, let's say, so prevalent in the ancient people, like amongst the common folk, we must see that they, the ancient areas, had this affinity to these colors for some reason. I'm not too sure.

I think it's mainly just the esoteric meaning that it has with it, which is probably correlated with the actual meaning of the colors and esotericism. Like black, apparently, I think, represents sort of like the hidden light. You know, it's not the light of day.

It's like the black light. It's like the unmanifested. This is all Kabbalah, but the Kabbalah probably derives itself from Aryan sources in its origin.

And it was just corrupted by, you know, the Jews and stolen by them. The black is basically just like the unmanifest. And red is pretty much, I don't even know, but they obviously have their esoteric significance.

Are you still there? No, no, no, I'm out there. There is a sort of weird bubble sound like Skype usually makes for some reason. No, I'm yeah, I'm pretty sure that these that this is all esoteric meaning and throughout all these color schemas, like they don't just use these without reason throughout history, or that it's like a purely unconscious thing.

That's a manifestation of the collective consciousness. I think that it is basically deliberate, you know, hiding in plain sight type of thing, which is a signifier. And, of course, it shifts the consciousness.

It shifts the consciousness as well of the population of the average people. You know what they dress in all these garments and so forth. The traditional garments, they're always, it activates their blood memory.

And it shifts their consciousness because, you know, their consciousness is tied in with their collective racial consciousness. And that is like an activation of it. I think it's mainly the initiates and those who have preserved the tradition throughout history, who basically have continued to preserve that tradition in the form of these more symbols and like the in music and so forth.

Everything is basically based on climatics and this, you know, sacred sounds and so forth and sacred geometry. Maybe, but I think that it's also these unconscious archetypes amongst the people. Which are sources to write like through, like you had said about being the bridge builder or the intermediary, which is a priestly caste function of the initiate that what they're doing is basically manifesting the.

Manifesting the will of the gods, maybe through themselves in that particular form as a means of harmonizing with them or maybe connecting themselves with them in symbol. Maybe this is also a thing, but it's interesting. You can look at these Saxon folk costumes, for example.

They are also kind of interesting in comparison with the Bulgarian folk costumes, but basically with more or less the same tradition. And, of course, the remaining folk costumes, but they're close to Bulgaria, so this is also a thing. And, of course, this.

That's just the Aryan tradition in all of its forms, you know, the traditional everything garb, costumes, so forth. You can see how the Jews deliberately try to desecrate the sacred through sort of suppressing or concealing or perverting the culture of the Aryan through countless means. You know, they'll take the music and they'll invert it.

In today's society, they'll take a lot of the older music that still exists, which might not be entirely sacred music like Bach. And then they'll get some Chinese to play it or some Jew and they'll deliberately play it in a sort of fucked up fashion. This is like desecration of the connection, like this ugly modern art that they're doing, which is totally ridiculous, of course.

But, of course, there were another thing, for example, look at this. This is a green Anglo-Saxon costume from 5th century, according to the historians, or at least this is and this is a green costume, which, by the way, the Celts used a lot of green in their costumes. Yeah, that's again the green ray, something to do with the green night, which is also a part of the Arthurian mythos.

Right, you have Avalos, the myth of the grail, which discusses a lot of that symbolism of the grail in quite a lot of detail. Yeah, and this is connected with the reviving energies of Venus. Exactly, yeah.

So, yeah, you see this is in the common folk, you can find a lot of stuff. But also what I found is that non-European folk costumes, they had a lot of strange motifs, for example, these totally black, I don't know, costume garments of the Arab women, for example. Right, yeah, certainly not a very appealing garment, that's for sure.

Yeah, I can understand the practicality of, for example, the Arabs dressing in full white because of their climate. Of course, the heat, the white colour is reflecting part of the solar radiation, so it's supposed practical stuff. But also, I suppose, there was some kind of ritual stuff, but it looks like the folk costumes were not very colourful, contrary to the Aryan people.

So, this is another thing. And, of course, these colours are connected, as I said, with many aspects of the wisdom, so to say, of the Aryan wisdom. It could be connected with different status of the people, it could be connected with astrological bodies, like, for example, the green connection with Venus.

The black, my suggestion, is with Saturn, the red could be with Mars, for example, and things like that. So, all correlated with the Archons, if you want to call them that, the planets. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

So, in that regard, this is the colour symbolism of the Aryans. And also, there are a lot of different variations, for example, this idea that the gods are connected with this golden race, and when you die and you have a heroic death, your body will be replaced by a golden body, with a totally pure body, and this will basically unite you with the godly race. Yeah, and that's also referred to in people like Serrano as a diamond thunderbolt body, even though some people critique that and say it's not Aryan, the diamond body conception.

Not absolutely sure about that, because, first of all, the diamond body, why are they criticising that? What do they think about it? I can't recall exactly who said it or why they said it, but it doesn't really, it's not a very sound argument. It does seem to me that that would be a very Aryan conception of the transmutation of, you know, becoming a living god or merging yourself with God, not trying to fly away from the reality, like the Semitic type of conception, you know, ascension, go and fly away to heaven or whatever. You're actually trying to purify and achieve a god-like state within this world as well, not just escapism, sort of fatalistic escapism, which is what the Semitic worldview is typically.

My suggestion is that these golden masks that existed in almost every Aryan tradition or Aryan-dominated traditions are connected with the golden race, which, by the way, if you look at the Semitic propaganda of today, the golden race is mocked in a lot of movies. For example, the Golden Army and Hellboy. The Golden Army was some of these elvish warriors that were fighting to destroy the human race because they believed that we are destroying nature.

And, of course, Hellboy, this Jewish mutant, supposedly was created by the Nazis, of course, was fighting them. And this struck me because the Golden Army was used like an idea in the Bulgarian mythos, the idea that the honorable warriors, if they die in battle, will join this golden host that will fight in the last battle, which reminds me again of Serrano and his ideas. And, of course, the Norse people, the Einherjar, this idea that the brave warriors will dine in Valhalla and wait until the final battle with the forces of the Jotuns.

I guess the distinction between the Semitic and the Aryan conception of the afterlife is sort of like, if there's any afterlife at all in the Semitic conception, which there often isn't, it's usually based upon some type of cowardly flight from reality. You know, just sort of pray to the whatever deity or deities. And, you know, you can magically ascend through various propitiatory actions or, you know, various emotion and pathos on the one hand.

And paradoxically, on the other hand, it's a sort of fatalistic, oh, there's no future, you know, it's just ashes to ashes. All we have is this world, so forth. Whereas the Aryan conception is mainly about immortality.

I believe that we have totally different mindsets. And unfortunately, a lot of people change their minds and they have this passive Semitic mindset right now. Meanwhile, the Jews feeling being a dominant force in the world, they started to adopt a lot of the Aryan ideas and to twist them in a Semitic way, of course.

Because back in the time, the Jews were subjugated by the Aryans in one way or another. And they, being mongrels, being weaklings, being cowards, they started to reject reality. And to find this rejection to a kind of materialistic or purely spiritual, purely materialistic duality, which is not right.

And dualism, I guess, is what it embodied itself. Yeah, it's something that is not typical for the Aryans, because as I mentioned, there are a lot of evidences that our religions were creating these archetypes of the hero, these archetypes of the constant struggle to obtain this immortality, to obtain this God-like status. That's always like a spiritual virility.

It's always about combat. It's never about passivity. And now a lot of people adopted this passivity.

And the result is that we are worshipping the gods of the enemy. And this creates a specific type of mindset that is self-destructing. Yeah, the idea of the Semitic conception is just to turn within and be peaceful and loving and harmless as doves and so forth.

Yeah, yeah. And also, I must point out that a lot of people adopted this, even if they claim that they are pagans, for example, they adopted this pacifist, this non-Aryan mindset of inclusiveness. Inclusiveness to people that are not Aryan, inclusiveness for people that are degenerates and inclusiveness.

So basically, egalitarian spirit, which is not right. Even in the Aryan society, there was a separation, there were castes, even though these castes interacted and they were much closer together than in the present world when these elites, these false Jewish elites are not close to the communists, to the goyim at all. But they're glorified like some kind of example to some kind of role models.

In many cases, they're not role models at all. They're just fake. Yeah, basically, the whole mentality of the so-called elite is the Freemasonic worldview, which is basically egalitarian, universalist.

It's purely a result of hypocritical pretense of giving to others and helping others and humanity and all the sorts of meaningless words. It's basically just Semitic mendacity for the most part. Most of these people, that's something obviously completely foreign to Aryans who are, you know, like the phrase Deutsche True.

I think that's what the phrase is. It's a typical mentality of the Aryan to be honest and open and to try to resonate with the sum total of things, you know, try to live an orderly, harmonious life, whereas with the Jew, it's always a sort of selfish sneakiness. And hypocritically, a regard for otherness, when in reality, the otherness is simply just a means of binding themselves to others as a means of getting benefits out of them.

That's sort of mentality of a merchant, you know, that they have a sales pitch. They're always pretending to be friendly so they can steal from you and use you. Yeah, maybe this is coming from the archetype and maybe the connection with the Demiurge, this entity that is surrounding the whole earth, Jormungandr, Yaga in Bulgarian myths.

This Demiurge, if we go in the different Gnostic texts and Abraxas, this entity that cannot create in reality a spiritual connection. But he's exploiting the material connection, so this kind of vampiric entity and the people that are connected with this vampiric entity are also different types of vampires, like maybe a real type of vampires, like they're described in the Bulgarian legends, which is also there is a Jewish connection there. Or financial vampires, or energy vampires, or yeah.

The whole thing is like a thieves pact with all these entities, with the Jews, with the Freemasons, with the non-whites. They're all basically bound together in this thieves pact, where they always pretend that they're trying to help people, they pretend they're about humanity. Come by from me, my friend, something like that, right? This is sort of tricky, underhanded nature.

And that is basically the Semitic mentality in a nutshell. It's just, you know, purely emotional, irrational, and yet sort of a cunning sneakiness about them. So symbolism always is like the serpent or the snake, or some type of worm, or whatever other sort of creeping, crawling thing, or low entity.

Which is typical for the Jew, especially when they're not in a position of power. This is typical for the so-called court Jews, as Defoe pointed out. And we can find these court Jews in all countries, being a mediator, being a tax collector, being a money launderer, and serving to the elites in some cases, mixing with the nobility, mixing with the... Mixing even with the royal houses, which, of course, makes the royal houses of today totally illegitimate.

Basically bastards. Basically bastards. Look what happened with the house birds.

Look at them. They are basically inbreeds, but also mixed with the Jews, which kind of reminds me of these pharaohs of Egypt that married their daughters. They married their first cousins.

And, of course, they mixed with the Jews at the same time, or they originated from the Jews. And the question is, what was the incentive on the part of the upper-class whites in the first place to mix with Jews, and why did they do that? And in my opinion, the incentive that they had was basically money and was the corruption through the mystery traditions that Jews brought in. Like in ancient Rome, they brought in all those mystery cults from the Near East, which more or less introduced that sort of Semitic mind infection by beguiling the goyim.

And that's what it says in the protocols about masonry, that they create that mystique as a means of sort of hooking them in. Yeah, yeah, absolutely. I support you 100% of that.

I think it was very... It's obvious that they subjugated the Aryan Empire with Jewish infiltration. And especially with these mystery cults, as you point out. And also, if I remember correctly, the Jews tried to infiltrate the cult of Jupiter back in time, but they were kicked out and rejected.

So... Just like the Freemasonry was probably corrupted and co-opted from its origin, like in the medieval trade guilds and the so-called Campanonage, I believe it's called. And they were trying to worm their way in throughout the whole history of it, and they never really managed to get a foothold until around the time of Mozart, like in the early 1700s or late 1600s. Maybe a little bit earlier in England in the 1600s, but that's when they started worming their way in.

Yeah. And with Napoleon too later. Yeah, yeah.

And a lot of people got this idea that the Jews, for example, the Kabbalah, that there are these... I think that they're giving too much power to the Jews with a lot of these... that these teachings were Jewish or they were created by the Jews. No, most likely the Jews twisted them. Like most of the cases, the Jews twisted them.

Look what is, for example, Hollywood. They're using this Hollywood, the sacred roots of the Druids, for example, but they're twisting the meaning and the role upside down. The Druids were these bastions of the wisdom and these guardians of society.

They even... there were Druids that were punishing the criminals. And they were connected, I suppose, with some Saturnian cults, because this is the role of the Saturn being a punisher of these... The tree symbolism you referenced there, that's also a fairly significant symbol of the Aryan is the oak tree, I think. Yes.

Even, you know, you have Arnold Schwarzenegger, the oak or whatever his nickname is there. Obviously, he's a race traitor, but it's still, you know, he probably derived from some sort of noble bloodline or something in Austria. Yeah.

I've heard his family were like high-level national socialists or something. I'm not too sure. It looks like in his early teenage years, he was influenced by his father that taught him discipline, that taught him this Aryan, how to say, this cult of the beauty, of aesthetics, that obviously influenced him.

And also, because you mentioned the oak, maybe we must mention the world tree and these sacred trees that we have. In the case of the Bulgarian tradition, the world tree is actually a sacred oak. And it's connected with the god Tangra or Tangr.

Usually, Tangr is the guardian of the sacred oak. The sacred oak is called Irmin, which is the day of the sacred... The day of Irmin is the 1st of May. Irmin is close to the Irminsul of the Saxons and also to Ygrasil.

And of course, after the Christianization, it is associated with the patron of Jeremiah, the saint of the thunderstorm. In the Bulgarian villages, for example, there is this ancient tradition that the village is built around the sacred tree, like oak or walnut or beech. And of course, these trees are connected with a different type of deity that is the protector of the village.

And that's why in the modern churches, you have, let's say, walnuts in the backyards of the churches and the people believe that the walnut is a protection against evil spirits. As I said, the 1st of May is the feast of Irmin. And also Irmin, it is called Irminden.

And it is also known as Zmeyskiden or Zamskiden. And this means the day of the snake, the day of the dragon. Zmeysk is the Bulgarian name of the dragon.

And this means that in the 1st of May, the evil forces are coming to the white world, the Middle Earth, the Arda. And they start this Manichean struggle with the forces of good, of light, that are represented by these sacred horsemen. Most likely in the ancient pagan religion, it was the god horse, which means this is the god of the Bulgarians, the god of sun, the heroes.

The Thracian horseman is also very close to them. And the Thracian horseman and these sacred horsemen was a central figure to the Mithraism. And my suspicion is that this gave the idea of Saint George fighting the dragon.

Interestingly enough, in the Bulgarian tradition, these snakes were called Judah. And, of course, the sacred horsemen and the forces of good are fighting the forces of evil for seven nights and six days. So, the hero fought the Yudi and their king Zmey, also called Yudin Tsar, Tsar of the Jews.

Which is represented by a big dragon, by the way. And the hero, which is, let's say, a Thracian horseman or Saint George, will defeat Judah on the 6th of May. In the Bulgarian culture, this is the day of the bravery or the Saint George or hero's day.

So, the Feast of Firmin is also a celebration of the thunder gods, which in different periods of time were Krom or Tanger or Perkunos, which are defenders of the sacred oaks. And the sacred oak, there was also an explanation for that, that the sacred oak in the roots or near the roots of the sacred oak, the 72 tribes were made, were created by the god horse that created the bodies. But the god Tanger, the sky father, he created the soul.

So, he breathed the soul of the humans in the bodies and this created the 72 brotherly tribes. One of the tribes was the gods, by the way. I believe this was proven by research like 7-8 years ago.

The 72 is some sort of numerology there too. Of course. Everything is numerology.

Everything is with deeper meaning. It's not just some random number. What is the meaning of the numerology there? I don't know.

I don't know what the 72 represents. And I guess the Jewish version of that, it represents like the 72 names of God or something. I believe that there were 72 demons in Greece, in some castes, but I'm not very knowledgeable of Greece.

So, there was a 72 mentioned there. Of course, 72 is 9, which is a number of completion. Yeah, it's a karmic number and it's a cyclic number.

And I believe that there's nine worlds in the Norse tradition. And Odin is for nine knights on the tree. And of course, continuing with the Bulgarian connection with the Irmin, the simple Bulgarian folk will light bonfires, which is symbolic of the sun.

And the belief is that these bonfires will help the forces. This is during the night. These bonfires will help the forces of good during the fight against the forces of evil.

And this is meant to scare the snakes and to help the hero in his battle against the snake king. That must have something to do with the Olympics too, how they have the eternal flame. Maybe, maybe.

But also, you must look at that these bonfires were burned in all Europe at that point. And even in India, in the northern part of India. I mean that the contemporary Olympic games that they use that.

So that that harkens to, you know, that symbolism. Yeah, yeah, yeah. This also could be said.

So people will jump through the fire like this is a way to cleanse and protect themselves from evil spirits. And also this is showing athletics and heroism because the bonfires are quite big. So if you're not very athletic, you can burn yourself.

And according to Bulgarian folklore, the oak is the only tree that is equal or could or can be used instead of a temple. Bulgarians had temples. Sacred, sacred properties.

Yes, yes. So basically you can relate it to James George Frazer's Golden Bough and so on. Yeah.

Cult of Lady Diana, Nemeferensis in Greece. I don't know. Was that an oak too? I don't think so.

I think that was something slightly different. The moon goddess, the moon goddess of the Semitic influence. I don't think that the Semites had oaks there, or if they have European types of oak.

European types of oak is always connected with military, with heroic tradition. Well, I mean, Diana is the huntress goddess, apparently. So it's like, I don't know, what does Diana represent astrologically? Isn't she one of the planets or something like that? This is interesting about Diana, these ideas.

But I'm not sure about the cult of Diana and the Semitic infiltration. So maybe this means that more research is needed. I think that it's mainly like a distortion of whatever sort of Aryan tradition, because Diana is often associated with the moon too.

And again, obviously, there was elements of Lunar worship too, to whatever extent, in the Aryan tradition also. Yeah, it was not a leading cult, but it was part of the Aryan cult. But also, I'll say that the month of Maia, or May, is the month when the Seven of Pleiades, also called Atlantis, by the way, because they were daughters of Atlas.

And Pleiades, the Oceanid. And Maia embodied the concept of growth of the female and the concept of mother and this reviving of the young nature, the beauty and things like that. So it's basically a spring goddess.

And it's good to mention that in the 22nd of March, by the way. Is that the Ostara? Yes. That was like the Nordic equivalent.

So I guess we should mention in relation to that, at this time, Jörg Landsvand Leidenfels and his magazine Ostara, which is also subtitled The Magazine of the Blondes and the Masculinists. So it wasn't a mother goddess thing. It was just about, you know, maybe integration of the opposites.

That sort of more feminine or sacred feminine conception. Yeah, more like maybe it was created by the need that also the women must find an archetype in connection with the gods. So it's normal.

It's not like these all... And by the way, even in Semitic traditions, like Tiamat. Tiamat is the mother of all, but it's basically a monster. Yes.

So it's kind of different from the Aryan goddesses. Yeah, basically, they looked upon that maybe because of their fatalistic nature that they didn't really have much in the way of a future. And so that was to them like the representation maybe of destruction or death.

Like the all-mother or whatever that everybody goes back to when they die. You know, this sort of, oh, it's inevitable. We're all going to be one.

Just like you have today with this mother goddess of Gaia. Yeah. It's much the same sort of archetype, that mother goddess tradition.

So basically, fatalism. Pretty much. And that's obviously what they're pushing on people now is that wimpy, passivistic, fatalistic mother goddess ideology.

What we know. So maybe we must also make, of course, about Yggdrasil. A lot of things could be said about Yggdrasil.

The whole pillar. Yeah. Which is also Ermsensul.

And maybe if you're more knowledgeable about that subject, because I know the basis. I know that Yggdrasil, some people call it the Odin's horse. And, of course, there were interpretations that Drasil, for example, means horse.

And Ygr is one of the names of Odin. Also, some people said that it's actually Yutri. Or some people even said that Ygr means terror.

And they refer to it as a gallows. So they undermine this dark, dark aspect of Odin, of this god of the hanged. Yeah, I'm not too sure about that.

That seems to me more like a sort of Semitic thing with Osiris in the rising and dying god form. That's why I'm not too sure that Odin is even a legitimate Aryan deity anyway. Seems like an interpolation.

I know that Bill White, or William A. White, the guy who wrote the book The Tradition of the Mother, he speaks about the distortions through Esatru and so forth in some of his articles. And it just seems to me that this rising and dying god form is completely Semitic. It's like a Mediterranean type of deity more than it is anything.

And I think that might have been interpolated into the Nordic tradition, which is a distortion of it at a later time. It could be totally the opposite, that this rising and dying god is part of the rising sun, which is a solar Aryan god, and it was adopted by the Semites. And maybe this is also a thing.

Just saying. Because we know that in the ancient time there was this idea of the Skyfather. We know that the Semites adopted the Skyfather and they twisted the Skyfather.

We know that they twisted, for example, the idea of the daughter of the Skyfather, Hesios, and they created Rabi-Yeshu. And we know that, for example, they used different ideas, for example, Vulcanus, or Vulcan, or Hephaestus, they also incorporated the idea of Yahweh. So maybe it's the opposite.

Maybe the Aryans, being the leading spiritual power, they gave the ideas and later the Jews started to twist the ideas. And this is the connection, actually. That could be.

I'm not too sure exactly. It's difficult to say. It just seems that Uddin is sort of a god of, more or less, inconstancy and what would you call it, sort of like a Dionysian type of thing.

And that just doesn't really seem to me to be the most Aryan thing on earth, like this sort of chaotic type of conception. That's more related to the Semitic type of worldview. If I remember correctly, Nietzsche said something about the Dionysian or Dionysus, that it was actually in the right measure, so to say, it could be a reviving factor.

It could revive the nature. It's not only because a lot of people prefer the Apollonian spirit, it's bright and white, but sometimes the Dionysian is also needed. Right, I guess that's sort of like the challenging element to transmutation of yourself, as opposed to sort of a reliance upon like a one-dimensional, perpetual, eternal thing.

But at the same time, though, the nature of the Aryan symbolism is more or less like a solar worship, solar type of conception of things, as can easily be seen now with the Jews and all their symbolism. It's all related to the sort of lunar tonic deities. I'm more inclined to Apolla's view about that, that is basically that the rising and dying god forms are more of a Semitic type of conception that are a result of interpolation, or I mean distortion, from whatever sort of Semitic influences that came around into Aryan nations or were adopted by them in the Mediterranean, like the Pelasgian civilization and so forth.

I'm not sure about that. The rising and dying god is just a symbol of the cycles in nature. Meanwhile, the god of the Jews, if you look at that, it's this supposedly eternal deity that is not changing, but actually is changing all the time.

So it doesn't make a lot of sense for me. The Osiris, for example, maybe this is coming from the lack of knowledge in that way. Osiris definitely was an Aryan deity.

I'm not sure about that. I'm pretty sure because his brother Seth, which is the evil deity that was worshipped by the Jews basically, under his mask you can see his red hair. So most likely these deities were connected with the ancient Aryan castes.

And later, yes, of course, they could be Semiticized like most of the things in the Middle East, but I believe that there was an Aryan element in the beginning. It's very difficult to really sort of get to the actual origin of all this mythology because it's so twisted up with all historical contingencies of different admixture. For example, one of the names of the Aryans was Azir, in Bulgarian it's Alpazir, so the white gods.

In Norse mythology it's Asir. And I believe the Osiris, the real name of Osiris is Az, so I don't know, it's just another trace. And of course the green skin is just another way of representing some connection with the reviving spirit, like in the case of Hephaboria, it's green-white.

That might be the case. I know with the world pillar, René Guénon, he says that it represents, at least in part, it represented the Hyperborean time period or Aeon, or the Polar Aeon, actually the Polarian Epoch, when the world was spinning around with the one season so that the pole was perpendicular to the equator. There was no tilt in the axis of the Earth because probably the Moon or whatever other planetary object or whatever other sort of cosmic catastrophe happened that caused that to occur.

And so the pillar, it represents basically like a Hyperborean origin. Yeah, it makes sense actually. It makes sense.

And also some people think that it's connected with Aurora Borealis. Northern Lights? Yeah. And the Northern Light itself probably relates to like the actual light of the gods of the Aryan race.

Yeah. That only we possess. And going back to the symbolism, maybe we must mention the eagle.

Yeah, the eagle, so far as I know, it represents, according to Evola's conceptions, it represents like constancy and it represents the Sun, the solar symbol. Yeah, it's representative of the solar symbol. But in that case, we're going back to the Egyptians, that Horus being a falcon, they don't have eagles really.

He's representing the solar symbol. Right, but it's always a bird that transcends the given of experience. So that relates more to being, I guess you could say, or whatever beyond being, beyond the contingent material world to the absolute or the eternal, basically.

Yeah. Transcendence. Yeah.

Yeah. And of course, the eye of Horus is blue. At least the oldest depictions they depicted like blue eyes.

So there was some connection there. Right. It shows the relationship between the Aryan and the blue-eyed and transcendence, having that god consciousness.

So we, and of course, there was something with these, basically the white race, the Chosen of Horus. The Sons of Horus, the Shem-Su-Horus. Shem-Su-Horus, exactly.

If you read the depictions of these people, they were white people. Yeah, and their origins, and then they just became mixed. There's a good book, I think it's called by a guy named James Dennison Sayers, who wrote a book called Can the White Race Survive? at the turn of the last century, and that discusses how in ancient Egypt, they polluted their gene pool through bringing in slaves.

And then there was a lot of intermixture between the males and their slaves, and the Negresses. And that's one of the ways in which Egypt fell, basically. Yeah, yeah.

And later the Arabs from Arab Peninsula. Yeah, of course, what created the Arabs in the first place is a similar type of mixture. Yeah, yeah.

A lot of those countries, obviously, the Middle East were white in their origin. And let's remind that, I believe we discussed that, that Muhammad being with a reddish beard, and the reddish beard is preserved, supposedly, by the followers of Muhammad. He said to his followers that, basically, he described how they were lusting after women with brown eyes and white brown skin, which means that they're different.

Yeah. Different from them. So you're saying then that Islam in its origin might have been like a white creation? I heard it was created by the Catholic Church, but I'm not too sure.

I think that it could be. I mean, okay, it's something like the infiltration of the nobility by the Jews. So we have moving forces that were white, at least these noble type of leaders.

Then you have these mixtures with the Jews, and then you have these mongrels on the bottom. And I think that the mongrels were helped by the Jews to replace these aristocrats at some point. And there was a lot of struggle in the Arab Caliphate between the followers of, supposedly, the bloodline of Muhammad and the followers of these egalitarian forces.

So I believe that the Jews supported a lot of these egalitarian stuff. The same happened with the Turkish Khaganate. That was this enormous political structure from Europe to as far as China.

There are a lot of descriptions of these elite warrior castes being tall and bright and strong and fierce. And these on the bottom were obviously mixed race because they started to mix with the females of the Asiatic types and the Turkic types. And this brought obviously miscegenation, but the Jews started to infiltrate the elite and to destroy the elite.

And interestingly enough, of course, there was a connection there. The ruling elite was the Ashina, which is of course a reference to the Asir. And they were described as blue-eyed and red-headed warriors.

And they were the ruling elite of the Khazars. These people. So this is another example of how the Jews are infiltrating this created by the Aryan societies.

They are bringing non-whites in one way or another, maybe like slaves, maybe like just white people think that they will keep distance from these non-whites by just the caste system. But because the Jews are infiltrating the caste system in one way or another, they are destroying the system. And this means genocide for the white people.

What happened with these white people in Asia? They were slaughtered or they intermixed with the non-whites. Right. They never seem to be able to learn the lesson.

But I think this time around the lesson will definitely be learned because there won't be any choice because it's going to be an inevitable conflagration soon. Hopefully. Hopefully we are in such a stage that we must... And this is one of the ways how the Jews are hiding the history.

They always say, oh, this civilization. Oh, they were pointing out, oh, this African empire. There was really some kind of developed African empires.

But if you look a little bit, you will see that these African empires, for example, were ruled by a white elite or like some Semitic mixed elite or some kind of black Semites or things like that. Never by these sub-Saharan African Negroes. And that's the earlier back you go in the history of any of these so-called empires or colonies, the whiter they become and vice versa.

The later you get into them, the more mixed and perverted the genetic goulash becomes. Yesterday I saw... I will try to find this creature. It's a little bit deviation from the topic, but still it is interesting.

I believe it was Maya Rudolph. Let's see. Oh, disgusting creature.

I found it. Just look at this thing. Okay.

Maya Rudolph. And from what I saw, it was some kind of lefty comedian or whatever. Another figure? Of course.

And interestingly enough, I was kind of baffled. What is the race of this thing? Because it doesn't... And Patrick said, oh, this is Juwatu. Just saying that this is Juwatu.

And what is Juwatu? This is Jew mixed with Muwatu. I said, what the fuck? This is disgusting. But what I saw, the first thing that came to my mind was some late Egyptian statues.

It really looks like similar to them. Because it was Semites, maybe Jews back in the time mixing with the Negroes. And this is the result of this creature.

I think most of the Jewish slave traders, they raped the Negroes and had like mulatto. That's what the mulatto originated as. So most of those who are black in the United States now pretty much, they pretty much are Jews.

And I think that's the case around the world in different countries like the Philippines. Also, a lot of those countries when the Spanish came there through the Jews, the Murano Jews and so forth. They probably were intermixed with the native female population.

And then the Jews basically had their prima nocte with them and injected their Jew genes into them. Because I've heard that the Filipinos actually look upon themselves as Jews. They look upon themselves as the Israelites.

Oh my God. Pretty much. All of these non-whites look upon themselves as Israelites too.

It's just the same game that the Jews are playing, you know, making the non-whites think they're special or the non-Jews think they're special so that they can use them to worship the Jews and then go around doing whatever they tell them because they claim it's biblical prophecy or whatever the case. I was thinking of something. So basically these Jews and of course in the Persian Empire, you have also this thing, a white elite.

A lot of people are giving this example. Oh look how the Greeks, the whites were fighting against the non-whites. Well, if you look at a lot of the sources of the Persians, they look, and in the Greek sources and the Greek art, the Persians look white.

There's like that mural with Alexander. That's a pretty famous mural. Yeah, they were even bashing the Persians.

The Greek were bashing the Persians that they're feminine because they were covering their heads and their bodies with quotes. Meanwhile, the Greeks, they enjoy the male ideal of a beautiful body and things like that. Well, the thing is that Persia is quite a hot place and hotter than Greece.

It's not as the Persians being a people that in the higher caste, I'm opening the brackets, higher caste, the warrior caste, the nobility and most likely the priests, but the priests were infiltrated at some point. And this is coming with the Zoroastrianism that there was an infiltration there. I just want to mention that the Zoroastrian element, that was probably like Rev. P. Oliver, I think, speaks about that in that Origins of Christianity book.

He talks about how Zoroastrianism was probably an invention of the Jews as well. It just sort of ties in together. It all looks pretty much the same, looks Semitic, you know, the Manichean dualistic worldview.

Yeah, exactly. And there was a rejection and of course this Persian Zionist or maybe Jew Georgiani, he mentioned that Bulgarians were Mitreanists and the Mitreanists despised the Zoroastrians. Actually, there was this split between Northern Iranian speakers and Southern Iranian speakers.

Southern being Iran and Northern being basically the Europeans and the Saka in Asia and the European Scythians, as I mentioned. And he mentioned that Bulgarians were Iranian speaking contrary to the official bullshit. But he didn't mention that Bulgarians despised the Persians.

They preferred to fight against the Persians on the side of the Byzantines. I'm curious to find out about the connection with Islam there and how that has been incorporated into that sort of... because that was in the region that it was first introduced probably, right? I think that Zoroastrianism was very instrumental for the weakening of the Eastern Roman Empire and also the Persian Empire because Zoroastrianism had this idea of a sacred war. This war of Ahura Mazda, this technically Aryan deity that is the god of white but rejecting every single other god.

And they started this war partially on the religious basis, partially because of economical factors and maybe partially because both sides were infiltrated by the Jews. And we don't know what exactly because I don't have the origin. I cannot claim anything about the Jewish infiltration.

But I'm pretty sure that there were a lot of Jews behind the destructive wars between the Byzantines and the Persian Empire, which opened the gates for later Arabic Muslim expansion. And it is quite strange to see how these mighty empires were so, how to say, helpless in some way of stopping the fast expulsion of these quite primitive tribes, the Arabs. Well, just like today, if you look at society now, the way the white population just sort of hides away in their privileged areas, if they are privileged, you know, the people who actually have influence in society, they just escape, you know, white flight, they escape the problems and then they leave others to sort of die off, you know, because they look upon them as inferior.

But on how the non-whites proliferate, basically, the more they're given in terms of food and the betterment of their conditions, the more they proliferate. That's quite similar, probably similar to that time, actually, I would think, because white people have more or less the same type of mentality throughout history, more or less, even though now they're more semitized and cowardly. So, we mentioned the bears, we mentioned the eagle, I believe, like eagle is the messenger of the sky father.

It was the same for the Zeus, it was the same for the Jupiter. Eagle is the messenger also of Tungur, but also of the crow is a messenger. So, there's often a lot of raven symbolism, like in Mithraism, that was the Korax, it was one of the earlier grades of that.

And maybe that was what you were referring to with the initiatic tradition of earlier clay cases of Aryan societies. There's probably a raven of some kind. Yeah, maybe, maybe.

But it's about Mithraism. Mithraism, people that are not knowledgeable enough, they're making mistakes between the Roman Mithraism and the original Mithraism of the Iranian people, there are differences. We're not knowledgeable enough to know about the original Mithraism.

But because of the Roman Mithraism, they're incorporating things from the mystery religions from the Middle East. Yeah, society was already too far gone at that time. Yeah.

Originally, I believe it started with the Bulgarian, Alans, and overall Sarmatian horsemen in the Roman army. There were a lot of, I believe at some point there were over 420 alae, which means wing, I believe in Latin. These were horse formation, they were predominantly Sarmatian.

And this caused the boom of the cult of the sacred horseman, which was the central figure in the Mithraism. And of course, this is Mithra, this is the friend of the universe. And this was only for men.

Later in Rome, they started to incorporate different occult practices. I'm not particularly sure that it was originally celebrated in subterranean Mithraeums, like the subterranean crypts. I'm not absolutely sure.

But in Rome, we found quartz white Mithraeums. According to the present day historians, these Mithraeums represent the womb of the mother and return underground. So it is some kind of, again, some kind of symbolism like rising and dying God and things like that.

That's sort of Semitic, so I'm thinking that's probably where it became corrupted. Maybe. As I said, the original things are quite, the original religion of the Mithra, according to me, was the religion of the warrior.

It was religion of the heroes. And it's very similar to the cult of the Thracian horseman. And these religions were quite similar.

It was a warrior religion. And if I refer to that there was some creation with original Mithraism, not with the Roman one, the highest blessing was the exaltation called Angra, which is, again, Iranian word means anger. But interestingly enough, in Zoroastrianism, maybe because there were enemies of the Mithraism, Angra Mainyu is the spirit of anger.

This is the evil force. This is Ariman. So this is another thing.

For the Mithraic warriors, the Besergank or the Angra was the highest form of exaltation. That is basically a step beyond the Godhood. And for Zoroastrianism, which is also a very proto-Christian religion, actually, very Semitic, it's a kind of passive in a way, but also... Yeah, I know that Stephen Collins guy is trying to reintroduce that.

And obviously he is some sort of left-hand path, Crowleyite type of creature. It's a very strange religion, Zoroastrianism. Also it is doomed to extinction because supposedly Zoroastrians cannot marry other religions and you also cannot convert to that religion.

Right, it's pretty absurd. I don't know, it seems a little bit on the Semitic side there, it's fatalistic, it's very exclusivistic, very, in a way, egocentric, focusing on itself only. It doesn't seek conquest, it doesn't seek to go outside of itself, it just closes in on itself like a closed system.

That's a sort of matricized, demiurgic worldview of the Jews. I think that, and of course Giordani made the point that they started to spread Zoroastrianism like an esoteric religion, but esoterically the highest echelons were keeping, at least for a period of time, the Mithraic warrior cult. But maybe at some point they were just heavily infiltrated by the Jews and maybe they turned directly to Judaism, there are some references for that.

The Shahnashah, he despised the Arabs. There was obviously some racial hatred against the Arabs, he referred to them like basically camel fuckers or something like that. Maybe there were some Aryan elements still alive at the time of the Arab invasion and that's why the Jews helped the Arabs, again, opening the fortresses, poisoning the wells... Yeah, that's what they're doing right now.

They've already opened up the fortresses and they're poisoning the wells all the time. Fluorine water, GMOs, chemtrails, vaccinations, pesticides, herbicides, whatever, basically trying to kill us everywhere they possibly can now. And what we didn't mention, we talked about the lightning bolts.

In the ancient tradition the lightning bolts are considered to be in some way the weapons of the gods, in some way the tools of the gods, in some way it is a connection between the heavenly realm and the earthly realm. And it's some kind of emanation of the soul. In some tradition, contrary to the Christian tradition, it was considered that if you are struck by a lightning bolt and you survive, you are something like chosen by the gods.

It's not like a curse like some people believe today. So, of course, this is the connection between the thunder god and the solar god or the sky god. Because you cannot properly describe the sky, the sky is all engulfing, it's covering the whole earth.

You're finding a single representation of the sky god, which is the eye of the god, which is the sun, or the thunder. It's very mystical, the emanation, or according to some, of course, the modern Satanists, they will say that when Lucifer was expelled from heaven, all these Semitic fairy tales, was expelled to heaven, he fell on the earth in the form of lightning. So, this is, again, the Satanization of the Aryan symbolism.

It always must be connected with some kind of negative force, which, of course, depends on how you look at things, but the Jews managed to turn us into some kind of monsters anyway. But for me, it's interesting the aspects of this connection between the earthly realm of the mortals and the heavenly realm of the gods. And this possibility of connection of the soul with the lightning.

Yeah, it seems like it's to do with illumination, a lot of that sort of symbolism with the SS and so forth. Like, we know that the Sikh is a symbol for the sun or the victory, and of course, this connection that the sun is the bringer of victory, but also the thunder is connected with the war. The thunder god is always the god of war, especially in the Norse tradition, Thor, or even in the older times, Tyr, being the god of war and thunder.

In Bulgaria, the connection is a little bit, it's a separation between the thunder god, Thangar, and the solar god, Hors, which, of course, is using an axe. Well, maybe it could be similar, if you look at just the pure symbolism, to the hammer of Thor, Mjolnir. And interestingly enough, Mjolnir is connected with Mounia in Old Bulgaria, which means lightning.

Yeah, I think it all ties into Jupiter, or Thor, or Thor, the ermine soul and then the lightning or thunderbolt. Even on that painting, I think it was from the late 19th century, you have that painting of Thor riding a chariot, he's got swastikas on his belt, engraved on it. He's got his Thor hammer.

So that's all Jupiterian symbolism, or Tangrian symbolism, or whatever you want to call it, in its paleo origin. It's basically Aryan, heavenly symbolism connected with virility and victory, and domination. It's a very dominant symbol.

So Skavola was more or less correct in his analysis when he spoke of the Aryan tradition as the spirituality particular to it as a solar Uranian, Uranus being the cosmos or the sky god, and then solar being the sun god. Yeah, I agree with that. But also there was, I believe that there was archetypes and worships of all the unknown planets, and by planets they also look at the sun, like the main deity.

But also there was different codes of different planets, like Mars, obviously, like Mercury, like the moon, of course, more likely connected with the later female deities. But even, we mentioned that in the beginning, that in the really ancient times, there could be even some kind of ancient code that is connected with the male lunar deity. Yeah, the moon god apparently was the god in, I don't know what it was, what tradition in the Nordic countries, and the man in the moon.

And then there's also in the Islamic religion, I think that that was the man in the moon also. My point of view is that all these ancient codes are connected either with Atlantean or with ancient incursions of Hippoboreans in the Middle East, or with later incursions of the Aryans, since they were the dominant material and spiritual force. So they introduced these codes, and they later were adopted by the Semites.

Being not very like the Asians, they were not very creative, especially when the admixture was quite low. They kept the tradition in some form. But meanwhile, the tradition in the original Aryan lands, they were changing and adapting to the environment, adapting to different noble families.

For example, some families were worshipping one deity, they preferred this deity, they were adopting Kadar symbolism. But in the main Aryan highlands, so to say, the traditions were changing. I think in the colonized areas, they kept some elements of the traditions, but they Semitized, for example, or Mongrelized the other elements of the tradition.

That's why Hinduism is kind of... you can look at the Hinduism like some kind of source for Aryan tradition, but you must always keep in mind that there were a lot of non-Aryan influences in Hinduism. Yeah, it's corrupted by the Traditions in Southern India and their demonology, basically. Yeah.

And also not to forget that there were some Jewish diaspora in India at some point. Right, I think they were called the Fifth Caste. They were like the sort of traitor caste.

Yeah, yeah. Interesting. And sort of typical of the upper-class whites there, they just used the Jews as their moneylenders and tried to maybe shift blame to them from themselves when they're obviously complicit with the corruption.

Yeah, and also it's interesting that you mentioned the Fifth Caste because the Jews always referred to like the Fifth Column, like these spies and infiltrators. Yeah, it's pretty much what they've always been. And maybe there was also this connection with what we mentioned, the bear, the lightning, the pure of the earth.

Ed, maybe we must talk about algebra? Sure, yeah. Apparently that's in the constellation of Taurus, which is what I've heard from some sources. I think it might have been Blavatsky.

She said that that's where the Aryans originated in Aldebaran. Yeah, or at least they originated in the era of Taurus. Right, that makes sense.

And, of course, it makes sense because, of course, one of the symbols of the Bulgarians next to the wolf, next to the bear, is the bull. Actually, these people that are still like one of the heraldic symbols of the Moldavian Bulgarians was the bull. Yeah, bullfights in Spain too.

And interestingly enough, when you say that Aldebaran is the eye of the bull, and one of the eyes of the bull in the Bulgarian heraldry is a bull, which is also interesting. Yeah, that makes sense. It's very interesting.

When you think about something, you can find the connections in the ancient times. And, by the way, when was the era of the Taurus? Let's look at the age of Taurus. That was the one before Aries, of course, which is the Aryan age.

So, it might have been something to do with the Polarian epoch, which further underscores the relationship to Hyperborea and why that is a symbol that has been preserved in that way throughout the whole of history, including up to the present time. It's what was written in Conan the Barbarian before the rise of the sons of Aries. So, basically, the Cimmerians were living at the age of Taurus.

The age of growth, according to the, the age of Taurus was the age of growth. Yeah, that's what Taurus represents astrologically, is fertility. I think, isn't it now the season, or is this in Aries now, like within this year? Which month is Taurus? Isn't that June or something? Or no, that's, I think that's May, isn't it? April 19th of April, of course, Adolf Hitler was born on the 20th of April to May 20th.

Right, so that's right around the growing season of the spring, which is fertility, which is tied to like Astra, the goddess as well. Yeah, yeah, in Bulgarian tradition it is Astra, so basically from the stars. Taurus, the Latin of bull, is one of the constellations of the Zodiac, northern celestial hemisphere.

Taurus is the watch of prominent constellation of the Northern LLR. It is one of the oldest constellations dating back to the latest early Bronze Age. So, this is connecting with the spreading of the Aries, especially, and also with the spreading of Bundism.

This is also a thing. It marked the location of the sun during the spring equinox. Its importance of the agricultural calendar influenced the various bull figures and mythology of ancient Sumer, Akkad, Assyria, Babylon, Egypt, Greece and Rome.

And, of course, the symbol is the bull head. Yeah, you can see that in pop culture with the bull's eye and so on. Yeah, bull's eye.

Even riding the mechanical bull in a bar is a cultural reference to that probably. Yeah, bull riders in North America too. There's a lot of that.

I guess you're familiar with that probably. Yeah, yeah, yeah. I'm trying to find.

Aldebaran is a red giant and is the brightest star in constellation of Taurus and it's exactly the eye of the bull. So, this is the eye of the bull, the eye of the goat head. It's the 14th brightest star in the night sky.

5000 years ago, the rising of Aldebaran marks the spring equinox and it was the beginning of the Babylonian New Year. So, the spring equinox is today. That's interesting that we should be discussing this as a synchronicity.

This is synchronicity, definitely. It's also interesting. I'm looking at the Aldebaran entry on Wikipedia and there's one entry or excerpt that says there's a well-known example of the German conspiracy theorist Axel Stoll who considered the star the home of the Aryan race and the target of expeditions by the Wehrmacht.

I don't know if that's historically correct, probably not, but maybe. Look at this. The name Aldebaran comes from Arabic, according to them.

It means follower, most likely because the star is following the Pleiades. The ancient Greeks called the star Lampadis and Hippohidous. Hippohiros.

Interesting. Hippohiros. The Roman name is Pallitium and Subrufa.

The Persian name is Sadvis and Kugart. The Chinese name is something that is absolutely impossible to pronounce. Bixiuwu, something like that.

The Hindus or maybe the Vedic areas called the star Oruhini and it's the name of one of the 27 daughters of Daksha and the wife of God Chandra. The God called Aldebaran the God's eye and Aleph. This is important.

In Akkad the star is called Gisga and the gap of the heaven. Aldebaran is also called the star of Buddha. Does it have something to do with Genanga gap maybe? Maybe.

The star of light, the God's eye, the eye of the bull. It's interesting enough Baran in Russian and this means that it was also a thing in old Bulgaria and most likely means Ram. So I'm kind of suspicious that the name is coming from Arabic, but the origin is not Arabic.

Right. Yeah, that's usually the way it is. They'll try to twist anything obviously as non-white.

It's origins that they can try to claim that everything from us is not our property and we have no entitlement to anything on earth or even existence. It's the genocidal dog whistling that they're putting forth there. It's interesting that there's a book, a novel written by Arthur Comte de Gabineau called Les Pliades, which is about like a sort of aristocracy of the soul of a bunch of young adults.

I'm not too sure about the plot though. I think I have it in French, but I don't have it in English. I don't think anybody translated it into English, but that's obviously a reference to the Pliades and it's also a reference to probably the gods.

Maybe that's where the gods of the devias come from. Because you see in Mormonism there's like that banned Mormon cartoon. I'm not too sure if you're familiar with it.

No, no. If you type in on YouTube or one of those maybe bit shoot banned Mormon cartoon and you can see how there's like a story of the origins of man on earth and it's white people and they come from like this star, Kolob it's called. And then they come to the earth and the Redskins kill them all in North America and so forth, which shows that we were there before them.

No, that's interesting. I was looking at different names in the, of course, the Pliades, the source of the Aryan race, mythology, Mexican culture for the series of the Northwestern Mexico. This star provides light for the seven women giving birth to Pliades.

It has three names, whatever, I cannot pronounce. Quito, Azoy, Yin, or Cap, star that goes ahead. The lunar month corresponds to October is called Quito, whatever, Aldebaran path.

There's a city in Ecuador called Quito or Quito, however you pronounce it. In the Northeastern New South Wales, this star is the ancestor Karambal who stole another man's wife. The woman's husband tracked him down and burned the tree in which he was hiding.

It is believed that he rose to the sky as a smoke and became the star of Aldebaran. This is interesting. Yes, difficult to really understand a lot of this mythology in light of more contemporary type of mythos or whatever, like the Greek and the Roman, which is more intelligible to people who are from the Western world, right? Because our culture is more influenced by that region, which is probably a bad thing in a way because it's all distorted at that time.

That's why we need to go back to origins to like more ancient cultures like you're speaking about with the Scythians and so forth. Yeah, I believe that it is not like it is bad to go back only to Greek and Roman, but you must look at different aspects. For example, the Greeks and the Romans, but also the Greeks at their time, they knew that there were older civilizations and they were trying to re-establish this lost knowledge and lost civilization.

And from what I've seen, for me, we have the knowledge today to reconstruct part of the ancient Aryan and even pre-Aryan, Hippogorean or Atlantean beliefs. We just must collect all the pieces from what I've known from, I don't know, Bulgarian, Slavic, Iranian, Germanic, Roman, Greek sources. And to collect this picture and to see what is different, what could be interpreted in a similar way and we can clean the picture of the ancient past for ourselves.

Which is important because we lost so much knowledge and wisdom because of the Semitic infiltration and destruction of the ancient hierarchical system. And it leads, at some point, to a loss of basic wisdom and knowledge that was obvious for the people just 100 years ago. That you must not mix with the Negroes, you must protect certain differences in the white society, differences between male and female, differences between different, let's say, castes of people, it takes like that.

And that's why we must start to restore what is the basis of the Aryan religion to start, let's say, our new era of the Neo-Aryans, so to say, with the reviving influence of the spirit and reviving influence of the society. Right. Because, obviously, otherwise it'll just be people living their lives for bread alone, bread in circuses like it is right now.

So, all the Jews would have to do is just create chaos and then they can say, oh, in the name of peace, all you got to do is stop being an evil white person, average everyday white person. And then they just say, they lay down and then they forcibly, you know, they make it a moral imperative to mix yourself with non-whites or something, like Nicholas Sarkozy had said at one point. Yeah, yeah.

Doing that through their chaos, their deliberate creation of chaos, if they ever could get away with it, then they would just, you know, blame it on white people and they would say, oh, the Nazis, oh, never again. It's interesting that you mentioned that because it is these people that I've watched different streams and different national socials, whatever, they're arguing with these normies, so to say, these average goys. Well, they just don't get the basis of philosophy.

They cannot have a normal discussion, especially there, for example, these totally passive males that are totally disgusting. They're just passive and submissive. They have these hyper-aggressive females that are always screaming, quacking, of all kinds of logic and arguments.

Well, certainly propaganda broadcasting is the archetype for that. At its higher octaves. And you have these kids that they think that they know all the answers and they're just repeating over and over and over again basically the official line of the propagandas of the Jews.

Right, right. That's how they're classically conditioned to fly into their state of emotion every time certain words are spoken. All you have to do is just say the word white or the term white man in their face and then they'll immediately go into their fight or flight state.

Yeah, and of course the hominids, the non-whites, they're repeating what - because it suits them. I mean they must follow this party line because it helps them. It helps them to obtain more resources, more power in society.

If we were on their place - by the way, the white men overall, we always try to create this just society for everyone. This is the weakness because we forgot that the people are not white. The people are not equal.

White people are not equal amongst themselves to others. Degenerate low-lifes and there are people who are of a higher consciousness or those who are more physically oriented, more intellectually oriented, different types of people. So obviously people need to do what is appropriate for them according to their proper nature and this society doesn't enable that to occur.

It subverts the proper nature of the being and we can't fulfill our destiny when this society is standing in our path and suppressing our ability to fulfill what is appropriate for us as an individual, as a collective racial group also. Yeah, and also I would suggest that modern-day society - you can see how the white people lost the spiritual connection because look at modern art, look at modern architecture. Even the cuisine is totally different.

They are very influenced. The music, everything is influenced by foreign tastes, by ugliness, by some kind of multiculturalism. I mean why, for example, young - and this is a phenomenon that I found even in Bulgaria, even in friends of my girlfriend.

Why healthy, nice-looking and supposedly intelligent white women are shaking their asses like fucking negroes? Right, yeah. What the fuck is that? I mean this is absolutely non-Aryan. Right, well it's obviously negrified America, the primitivization or negrification of the white and that's just desecration on the part of the Jew for their introducing that sort of culture into the consciousness of white people in the first place.

And that's how they do it, that's how they open up the brain or the skull of white people is through their ears and their eyes. They insert the wedge and they drive it inside of their brain, you know, through pornography, through jazz music and whatever other trash culture that they're hawking. And I think that puts you into a lower vibrational state of consciousness, to a beast state.

But this is also a representation of the loss of the healthy sense and also healthy spiritual connection, because I believe that the spirit and the intellect and the body must be developed in harmony. And the art is a representation of these archetypes of the culture. Look what happened with the art of the Archaic Greece and Rome when the Christianity came, it basically was some kind of devolution of the art.

Well, it was also a deliberate violent desecration of the art as well, where they deliberately went around smashing statues, calling them Satan and so forth or whatever, just idiocy, pretty much all of the Christians are. Yeah, and now the other Semitic wave coming from the Middle East are doing more or less the same. So they're smashing statues of Mary and they're desecrating churches and things like that.

So, yeah, I mean, and unfortunately, this time, because some people say, okay, we can, we can ironize the Islam. I don't think that we can ironize Islam, because first of all, we will, the plan is to be totally replaced or mixed. Yeah, that would just be an assimilation protocol on the part of Jews is just to offer that as a false solution in their controlled opposition, pro-white, alleged pro-white figures and say, yeah, let's all convert to Islam.

Nordlux: O9A Spirituality, Aryan vs Jew

It will be different topics, we know that we are talking about different things. One of the things that I want to start with, so basically I'm making research in all these strange movements, that it's, I don't know, spiritual path maybe, the order of the nine angles, so I'm watching material, there are not a lot of material, especially non-bias material on internet, they're mostly Antifa making some kind of spicy remarks about the neo-nazis and all this stuff, and about the white people as a whole, how we being national socialists or white nationalists or whatever, we are some kind of pedophiles and degenerates, but this is the narrative that they're pushing. Sounds like protection on their part.

Of course, of course, because in the future I'll make serious research on that, because there are a lot of cases of sexual deviation and psychological deviation amongst leftists, we are just not talking about that. And we talked a little bit with Patrick about that, about this thing called queer anarchism, it looks like these Jews mostly, they were fighting back in 19th century against the basically the gender roles, they want to destroy the bourgeoisie society to build the golden age on earth, which is of course utopian ideal, so to say, based on the ideals of the golden age of Kronos or Saturn maybe. And one of the things that they want to destroy is the gender role, so basically these queer anarchists want rights for the homosexuals, for the lesbians, for the transgenders, things like that.

And I've mentioned that Nestor Makhno, this quite famous Ukrainian, not very white-looking honestly, anarchist, he was dressing in female clothes. And his wife, he had several, they were quite manly, so it's very weird stuff, very weird. But the claim, going back to the Order of the Nine Angels and especially the Temple of God, the claim of these anti-fascists and these people as a whole is that we, the evil Nazis, we are all pedophiles, sadists, and rapists, and yeah, this is the thing.

So typical false association. Yeah, yeah, yeah, and also I'm looking at people that are active in the Temple of the Nine Angels because Order of the Nine Angels, I mean not the Temple of Blood, the Temple of Blood, from what I can get it's a waste of time, maybe someone will argue with me, but it doesn't look like, they are really strange and abnormal there, from what I can see. I'm looking at some active members eventually, that could prove me wrong because I started to think that most of these Mexians are infiltrated or used by some organizations, for example, like British intelligence.

So any thoughts on that, Sigurd? Yeah, my thoughts are basically that the O9A or the Order of Nine Angels is inherently, and from its beginning, a psyop that was probably created by the whole cabal, whatever your specific facet of that, David Maillat was a Catholic priest in his origin, and at the end of it, even on his website, I think his website is davidmaillat.net or something, he says that he will always be a Catholic, I guess he'll always be a Catholic, and he even wrote various articles about how he's against quote-unquote extremism and so forth, and hate, and he associates, you know, thereby associating pro-white activism with hatred and extremism. He was probably an MI6 operative. Also, not too sure, his website basically has all sorts of primary source information on him, davidmaillat.info. That's all of his writings that are collected together.

Most of his writings are a lot of emotional pathos and stupid nonsense about, you know, Greek philosophy and so on, that tries to associate spirituality with this sort of, you know, irrational, I don't know, pathy-mathos, he calls it, pathy-mathos in Greek, and I can understand, to a certain degree, the sort of left-hand path mentality, where you're trying to transcend, you know, the chaos of the world by strengthening yourself through subjecting yourself to chaos and so forth, and, you know, trying to transcend all those base drives or whatever, but for the most part, it just seems like it's more tied into pure physicality, or at most just a sort of experiential immersion of yourself in nature and so forth, like in a sort of quietistic, hiding out in the woods and communing with nature type of ideology. But he associates his so-called spirituality of the Order of Nine Angles with all sorts of, like, made-up, invented deities that really don't have anything to do with any historical, traditional deity, like in the book Naos, which was one of the major primary sources of the Order of Nine Angles. I think it was written in, like, the late 70s or something, and further elaborated in the 80s.

For the most part, though, the whole so-called spirituality of the O9A seems to be more or less oriented around this irrationalism, for the most part. It doesn't really seem to give you very much in the way of particular spiritual practices that you can actually use. It's just sort of like, you know, go through insight rolls and adopt the character of organizations, or whatever the case, you know, pretend to be like a Christian, and you go and join a Christian church, and then you adopt the lifestyle of Christianity, so you can experience it for, like, a couple of years, and then suddenly you, you know, you get out of that, and then you're something totally different afterwards.

To me, that just seems like a totally Jewish mentality that's sort of a theater actor, play acting type of thing. And basically, that's what David Myatt is, in my opinion, because he converted to Islam for, like, 11 years, and then he claimed he was a Catholic in the end of it all. And then during, like, the 70s and 80s, he claimed that he was some sort of, like, Satanist and so forth.

And, you know, it's associated with all sorts of violence and so forth. Interestingly enough, I'm sorry for interrupting you. Interestingly enough, he rejected, because there was an interview with this anti-fascist, what was his name, Nicholas, I believe, anyway, you can find it in YouTube, and he claimed that he's not wrong.

So, Myatt claimed, rejected his role in the creation of the Order of the Narengo. He said that he was a friend with these people that created the Order, but he was not the creator. And it is interesting, because the interview is in 1998, which, by the way, is the year at that year he converted at some point to Islam.

So, he didn't claim that he's not a national socialist. He said that he worked with these people for the political purposes, to infiltrate these organizations, the lodges, quote, lodges or whatever, for political purposes, maybe to join them, to add them to the cause of the national socialism. But I don't know, he's a very fishy character.

I mean, it's a trickster. Trickster is the word that I'm looking for. So, yeah, he just basically is like a chameleon, which is very Jewish, chameleon, and very Christian, because Christians have the mentality of Jews, basically reading the Bible all the time.

And, you know, having those sorts of archetypes and behaviors interiorized in their mind, that becomes like the blueprint of their soul as a Christian, devious falsehood and hypocrisy. And so, obviously, his whole life testifies to that hypocritical play acting. So, I wouldn't trust that at all.

And my research into his background and reading his writings, it just seems like a lot of emotional pathos, a lot of falsehood, and a lot of attempts to try to associate that which is not Christian with Christianity. Like, even on his website here, he's got an article called Classical Paganism and the Ethos of Christianity, the Way of Jesus of Nazareth, the Gospel of John. And then he translates the Corpus Hermeticum and so forth.

But for the most part, it's all just sort of like blended together in this typical syncretistic falsehood, for the most part. It's syncretistic, yeah. It's basically syncretic of several different esoteric teachings.

And from what I get, they're rejecting Judeo-Christianity and they claim that they're basically a continuation of a 6,000 years old European tradition. And they also reject Kabbalah, which is good for them, of course. But on the other hand, they have this tree of weird, weird, yeah.

Right, yeah. Naos, that's pretty much a Kabbalistic tree, the same sort of. Yeah, yeah, exactly.

So, I don't know. Sort of schizophrenic, like it affirms something and it denies it at the same time, which is very Jewish. If, I don't know, I don't know.

I just, I had this conversation with our friend from South Africa about the Order and I still think that there was, I don't know, some kind of idea with all these combination of physical and spiritual training. On the other hand, I agree with you. I mean, all this infiltration and changing of inside roles, and I don't know.

It's kind of, I mean, maybe because I'm too traditional in the way of thinking of just being Hartwein, Heidwarner, National Socialist. I cannot think of myself of joining Antifa organization or whatever. But on the other hand, they claim, and I'm playing a little bit like an advocate of the devil here.

They claim that, for example, if you infiltrate Antifa, you can change the organization from inside. But on the other hand, we had examples of these people, especially from the Temple of Blood, which is, I'd say, a private case. It's not typical for the whole Order of the Nine Angles, obviously.

But these people like Atum Waffan and like these that were worshipped, that obviously were following the teachings of Temple of Blood. So, and also we had example with the national action in Britain, from what I can get. There were also some kind of, some of the guys, not all, were also members of some kind of satanic nexion or something like that.

And they were practicing, at least one of the guys were practicing pedophilia, like he was convicted for abusing a little boy, I believe. And the claim is that he was doing that because he wants to dehumanize himself. That's pretty retarded.

Yeah. Okay, I can agree that the present society must follow this Judeo-Christian narrative, this false morality. But I cannot see how rape of kids could create this destabilization of society.

That's what the Judeo-Christians do. They're notorious for that sort of thing. And same with the Jews themselves, right? Like, that's their dual morality, their double standard morality, that they claim that they're against all these things, but they practice it themselves all the time.

They're always being convicted for that sort of thing. Yeah. Any thoughts on that, Dom? Well, as far as the Order of the Nine Angles goes, I don't think about it much.

I mean, I've heard of it before. But as I said to you before we started this, you know, the only thing worse than one Anglo is nine of them. So the nine Anglos and their weird butt-fucking mysticism is not really that interesting to me.

Like, a lot of this stuff is just boring to me, actually, to be honest. And I'm not saying that of the conversation itself that we're having, but I'm talking about, like, a lot of these weird mystical religions. I was interested in Hinduism for a little while, mostly because I thought that it used to be an Aryan religion.

You mean Vedism, like through Mukunda Dasa, that guy? Yeah, I'm a little bit tired of Mukunda Dasa, though. But I'm talking about the Rig Veda, mostly. That's the oldest of the Vedas.

And that's the one that I've read the most of. And it seems to basically be like a saga, in the sense that it is a sacred hymn, a collection of sacred hymns. It was intended to be a song, just like the sagas were once songs.

And it was intended to contain folk wisdom, or maybe just like folk art, like folk music. These were devotional hymns to the various deities of the Aryans. So most of the hymns are dedicated to Indra.

And pretty much immediately after the Rig Veda, Indra loses his significance in the Hindu scriptures and culture. And a lot of them were devoted to other gods like Vayu or Rudra. And these gods also, well, Rudra became Shiva, and then he increased in popularity among the Dravidians once he became a black god.

And Vayu and Agni are still kind of important, but they're not really like the mainstays of Hindu culture, to the extent that Hindu culture even really exists in like a defined state nowadays, which it doesn't really, I don't think. Well, it's like a syncretism of the Dravidian Negro and the Aryan creator. Yeah, exactly.

Jews had their hand in that also, because they had like the fifth caste in India, the Bani Israel. And they probably created that, I don't know, it was Vaishnavism or whatever it was that was like the spark that destroyed the caste system in India. But ever since that time, ever since like the Rig Veda and the Law Code of Menu, probably, and the caste system, the whole of India is just a syncretic sewer of the nations.

Yeah. I mean, it's been that way for millennia. There were ancient Greek kingdoms in India and Persia, and I'm not just talking about Alexander of Macedon, there were other Greek kings that went there and ruled there for a while.

So there are some people who think that Indian astrology is based on ancient Greek astrology, it's just that it fell apart in the West, whereas they kept hold of it. So basically a lot of the things that the Western world decided to throw away, India kept them. In any case though, as far as the Nine Angles thing goes, like generally, my general attitude is anything that endorses Satanism, and definitely anything that's pedophilia, I just have to condemn it.

I just have to distance myself from it. I don't really want to have anything to do with it. Just on the strength of those two traits alone, that's enough to dissuade me from participating in it.

I don't like talking about this, by the way, but I'll say it. I'll mention it here, just so you'll understand what I'm saying. My favorite band since childhood that my dad used to listen to when I was probably five years old, and I can remember him playing this CD, or at that time it was a tape, in the car when I was five years old, I can remember this, was a band called Manowar.

That was my favorite band from the time I was five years old up until I was about 30, I think. Then I was getting ready with some buddies to go on a band tour in Europe, because they were playing in Europe, and this was during the refugee crisis, and I was like, let's go to the Manowar tour. Then one of my friends told me, he's like, wait, didn't you hear that one of their band members got kicked out, and he's in a legal battle now, because he was in possession of child pornography.

Then immediately when he said that, my stomach got sick. I got struck with a sickness instantly, and I looked it up and found out it was true. Then I stopped listening to all their music completely, even though it was the favorite band of the majority of my life, and that was at the point at which Doomsword became my favorite band.

I mean, Doomsword is objectively better than Manowar, even though it sounds like a more primitive or sounds like an older band. It's still just infinitely better. I mean, I'm not going to look up the personal lives of the band members, but I'm saying that the music and the themes presented in the songs and the language of the songs, even though it's an Italian guy singing it, so it's not very clear English, even so it's infinitely better than anything Manowar ever did.

But the point is, yeah, I just can't even go back to listening to their music. I'm sure he didn't start watching child porn until he was, I don't know, older and past his prime, because that probably tends to happen to rich, famous people. Well, they weren't that famous, but that probably tends to happen to people when they get older and, you know, decayed.

Or when they become really decadent by being involved in, like, occultism, like the Order of Nine Angles type of stuff. Or, you know, Jewish Kabbalistic occultism, where they're involved in all this perverted ritualism. Yeah, I mean, Manowar, I think even in the early days, they had some songs about demons or about hell or blah, blah, blah.

They never had any, like, pro-Satan songs that I remember. But those songs, I mean, maybe they sounded cool, but I was never really, like, I'm just not, Satanism just doesn't really appeal to me. Like, I've never, it's just not cool, the way I see it.

You know, even though I don't like Christians, like, to me, if you're adopting Satanism, you're still adopting a part of the Judeo-Christian religion. Like, you're adopting, you're basically just a heretical sect of Christians, in my opinion, or a heretical sect of Jews, more likely. So I'm just not.

That's the whole tactic that they work with, right? It's, you know, they have to have Satanism in order to have Jesus. In order for people to have Jesus forced on them, or the church institution, they've got to have movies like The Omen, or various other movies like that, that they created themselves in the first place, and that were financed by the Catholic Church. Yeah.

That drives people into the churches through that dialectical process of creating the chaos, and then giving the people the order that they wanted in the first place, and as a means of destroying the order of other people, they create this fake order, the Judeo-Christian order, and then claim that's the only order that exists. Everything else is pedophilia, or devils and demons. Yes.

And I will, I will add a little bit. I think that memoir, I know that it's kind of interesting coincidence, because my parents also liked to listen to memoir, and ACDC, and things like that. But the memoir, there were Masons, or Templars, or members of the Hospitaller order, whatever, something like that.

I'm pretty sure that they were members of the Masonic Watch, or the Templar Watch, or something like that. Wait, ACDC was, or memoir was? Memoir. Okay, well, then I disavow them even harder.

But look, if you want to understand the way that Christians think, or at least the way that Bible Belt Midwestern Christians in America think, you should watch a movie. And it's a pretty corny movie, but it's actually kind of, you know, unintentionally funny. It's really entertaining.

But it's called A Thief in the Night. And that's like a biblical passage. That's like a biblical quote, A Thief in the Night.

And basically, it's a movie about the rapture. And what happens in the course of this movie is that some teenagers are just like having fun, enjoying life, being happy. But then, you know, because they're in a Christian culture, some Christian questions come up.

And so the pious 19 year old kids, you know, as all 19 year olds are, especially 19 year old Christians, they're like super fucking serious and super pious, when they've not yet had to go through any of the tribulations of life. They've not yet had to go through any of the travails of life. So yeah, they've got all the faith in the world.

But in any case, so these kids basically start telling them, oh, well, should you feel guilty about being young and happy? What if you're just doing what you want to do, and not what God wants you to do? What God wants you to do as a 15, 16, 18 year old kid? You know, stuff like that. So in any case, throughout the course of this movie, various stuff happens. Some of it's kind of interesting, like the part where the kid gets bitten by a snake, and he's about to die.

But then a man who has snake anti-venom pathogens in his blood, I guess, what would be the correct terminology for that? He's got the antigens in his blood. He comes and donates his blood, and it saves the kid's life. So then he's talking to a priest about it later, and he says, exactly, that man's blood had the cure, just like Jesus' blood has the cure for sin.

Right? So in any case, it gets to the point where the New World Order in the form of the United Nations takes over the world, which is pretty hilarious. I mean, obviously, that's what's happening. But yeah, it's pretty funny.

So the United Nations takes over the world and brings in the satanic New World Order, and this girl gets left behind. And that's basically the theme of a song. The soundtrack to the movie is these kids singing a song where they repeat this refrain, you've been left behind.

And so that's what the religion consists of, is they scare the fucking shit out of you when you're young, when you're a kid. And they have this mythos that you're going to be left behind, you won't be able, you won't make it, you won't be on the boat, you'll be left behind. And it freaks the shit out of people, man, to the point that they're paranoid for the rest of their life.

And they can never change their mind or move on, because they've always got that constant fear, running them that, well, I'm something is wrong, I'm broken. And if I don't do the right thing, I'll never be fixed. I'll never make it, I will miss the boat, I won't get there.

And that has never appealed to me, because to me and my mythos, personally, I've always believed that, well, I'm not a perfect person. The only questions I really need to ask myself is, well, am I being a noble person, as in, I'm telling the truth, unless people are trying to lie to me or trying to take advantage of me somehow, in which case I'll just say nothing, usually, if I can, rather than lying. Am I being a noble person, meaning that I'm generally helpful to other people and tell the truth and don't engage in subterfuge, or am I being a dishonorable person, which is bad? Am I being a brave person, being a heroic person, or am I being a cowardly person? Those are the only two moral questions that really pertain to my life.

The difference between the sins and the non-noble virtues. Yeah, and to me, there's never, sorry, what? The morality of Christians or Jews and the morality of Aryans. Yeah, so to me, the question is, you know, am I going to get into Valhalla or do I have to come back and try again? It's not, am I going to go to hell forever or am I going to get into heaven forever? And that's the end of it.

It's like, to me, it's like, well, if I don't ever find a good cause to fight and die for, then I guess I'll have to come back and do this again, and then the way that I live my life will affect the way that my next life plays out. Whereas if I fight and die for a good cause at any point, like at any time, I can fight and die for a good cause and then I'll just go to Valhalla. But Christians kind of, well, definitely modern Christians don't believe that, but in ancient times, Christians too believed this because various church leaders told them, if you die in the crusades, you'll go to heaven.

If you die fighting to take the holy land, you'll go to heaven. And even in the case of medieval Scotland, when they were fighting against the English, there were bishops in Scotland telling the people that if you fight with Robert the Bruce, if you fight for your king and die for Scotland for the cause of freeing your own country, then you'll go to heaven. The Scottish people believe that in the 12 or 1300s.

Right. Like in the movie Braveheart. Yeah.

Well, I mean, I was reading this book recently. I started reading a book by, it was basically like a translation of a poem that was written by John Barber, I think was his name. He was this medieval poet who was commissioned by the grandchildren of Robert the Bruce to write a Scotland.

So it's all about chivalry and there are contained in it various heathen ideas such as the weird, right? When you mentioned that tree of weird earlier in the conversation, well, that's kind of like a modern reinterpretation or a modern rendition of the idea of weird. Weird being a force, an ancient concept in Germanic, even Celtic and Scandinavian mythology. It's some force that controls a man's destiny that's woven by the three norns, you know, i.e. the fates in the Greek, the Greco-Roman world.

Literally, they're depicted the same way as old women who are using weaving, they're weaving together the yarns of fate. So your life is a strand in this tapestry of everything else that's happening in the world, everything else that's happening in the universe. It intersects all these other things, but it is its own individual strand.

It has a beginning point and an ending point, at least for this lifetime. I mean, ultimately, I don't think our ancestors believed that you could permanently die, but they did believe that your life was like a thread in this tapestry. So that's depicted throughout the European culture, and I think it even exists in the Vedas, because they have these things called sutras, which means a thread.

And there are various sutras that pertain not just to your own life, but to various elemental forces or things that exist in the cosmos, you know, spiritual things, spiritual forces. Okay, so even at that point, being Christian, they still believed in fate in the same heathen concept of fate. I think that would be like the divine will.

Yes, and they believed in going to heaven or Valhalla if you fought hard with all your might and you died bravely for your country. So they believed that basically chivalry and courage was in control of your fate, like that decided your fate. So, I mean, the ancient Christians, they believed a lot of heathen stuff that modern Christians don't like, and they won't admit to it now.

They've just got this vanilla version of Christianity that is totally lifeless and bland, and there's no point to it. So even they can't get anything out of it. They can't derive anything from it other than fear and paranoia.

But in ancient times, the Christians used to believe that the bones of saints had healing properties. They used to believe that the kings could heal people with a touch, basically, or that the kings had healing hands. I think that's the distinction between Catholicism in its traditional form and Protestantism, like modernist Christianity is basically just like a individualistic, communist type of worldview, whereas Catholicism was sort of more integrative, even though it assimilated all the pre-Christian Aryan traditions that they just sort of put together in artificial syncretism.

So there's all these threads or strands of the Aryan tradition that are combined in Catholicism, but that doesn't mean that Catholicism is the solution, of course, but that it has redeemable elements that just have to be untangled like a Gordian knot. Yes. Well, I mean, the story of Jesus itself is basically pagan, and I'm not trying to say that in the sense that you've heard it a million times, that people have said, oh, well, it's based on these other ancient heathen stories.

Well, yeah, that's true, but I mean, just the very idea of Jesus and everything that he did, and his importance, and also the worship of his blood and his body specifically, like the idea of his blood itself having magical properties, like this is an ancient heathen idea, like this all stems from ancient heathenism. The idea of his sacrifice being essential for the well-being of his people is an ancient heathen idea. It's ancient Aryan idea, because ancient pagans in Europe practiced this.

They thought that the king was responsible for the well-being of the land, for the fertility of the land, and also that he had the ability to keep his people strong, healthy, prosperous. I mean, even Roman emperors were said to have been able to heal the sick. Like, I was reading a book called The Golden Bough.

That's a good book that you should read. I've started reading it like a week or so ago, but it talks about... I think the original book is like a 12-volume series, a 12-volume study by James George Frazer. Yeah, it's a pretty long book by Frazer.

I remember his last name. I forgot his first name for a minute there. In any case, that was a book that Varg recommended that people read, and he talks about how ancient people believed that their kings had healing powers, right? So I was talking to Nord Krumm about this before we started recording, but essentially, Jesus fulfills the archetype of an ancient heathen king or an Aryan king in basically every way.

Like, being able to heal people with a touch, sacrificing himself for the good of his people, his blood being sacred. I mean, the ancient pagans, and definitely in Scandinavia, the reason why the runes were always depicted as red, why they had to be colored red for them to have power, was because they used to take sacrificial blood and put it on the icons or on the altars, or they used to put it in the runes to make them red, because they believed that there was vital force in the blood. I mean, obviously, right? So sacrificial blood was a sacred essence, right? And so a sacrifice is a really important thing.

So when this Order of Nine Angles is talking about sacrificing, I don't know, degenerates or evil persons, it's like, guys, that's not really a sacrifice. I mean, I guess it is in a way. I guess you could say those people have to be sacrificed for the good of society, but it's more like a cleansing ritual than anything.

Like, those people are pollutants, they're destroying, they're making society worse, and they will ultimately destroy it. Like, there's no doubt about that, that cannot be denied, they are going to lead to our ruin. That's more of like a pruning, that's not necessarily a sacrifice.

In order to have a real sacrifice has to be something of great value. And it has to be something that you're giving up that's important to you, right? That's why the most important, that's why the most powerful sacrifice is always a self-sacrifice, which is what Jesus was supposed to be doing, right? It could also be an allegory of transcending the actual material sacrifice of animals and stuff like that, that it shows that there's no need of that now that they're at a higher spiritual level. At the beginning of that aeon when Jesus allegedly came into being, that basically put away all these more crude materialistic rites of animal sacrifice and so forth, so that's not needed anymore because his presence made that no longer valid.

Right. I mean, I've seen themes like that depicted in like culture in various places, the idea that basically there are these seals, I think there are seven of them in the Christian mythology, but basically the blood of Jesus, you know, he keeps these seals closed so it prevents evil forces from coming in and taking over the world. And so basically after a certain amount of time those seals have to be renewed, so someone else has to give up their blood to renew those seals, like someone else has to make a sacrifice in order to keep the land fertile, to keep the vital force of the world flowing, and to prevent darkness from setting in and evil forces from taking over.

And they used to do this in the Aryan religion, it was called, I'm trying to think of the name of the Sanskrit word for this, it derives basically from Narayana, it's called the Naramedha, it means the sacrifice of a man, right? Aren't these seven seals just the chakras though? I mean maybe it's, I don't know, maybe it's bound up with that, or maybe it's derived from that at some point, I don't know. Seems like a Christian inversion of the Aryan traditions about the chakras, and how that basically leads to enlightenment when you go through like the yogic exercises, but then the Christians try to shut down those seals so that they can prevent enlightenment maybe? Maybe, but I'm not, I'm talking about apocryphal things, I'm not talking about, I mean, I don't know what the seven seals represent necessarily in the Bible, I think it was mentioned in the book of Revelations that there are these seven seals that are opened during the time of Revelations, right? That might be the opening of the chakras. Could be.

It's all pretty distorted with these Christians, they distorted most of the Aryan traditions. Can I go back to the tree that you mentioned, the Tree of Wyrd? I will make this parallel with the Bulgarian sacred oak Irmen, which is very important because basically the white race, my interpretation at least, because the people that are mentioned there both are from the white race, all of them, the white race was created under the sacred oak Irmen. So the story goes that Horst, that is the Bulgarian, so basically it's a god of the sun, but also it's a warrior god, it's also the smith, so he was forging the 72, so he created the bodies of the men, but he was not able to create the soul, and the soul was from the sky father, from Tangra, so he breathed the soul into the 72 men, that is the forefathers of the 72 tribes, and some of the names of the tribes were lost, but I know that there was Tirvilingi, that is most likely the gods, of course the Bulgarians were mentioned, also Antoi, Antoi is the auntie, which could be the Russians, or could be these people that later became the Russians, so things like that, so basically the tribes that were around the Bulgarians were mentioned, like a family tree, but interestingly enough it is mentioned that the souls of these people were connected with a kind of invisible strings to the tree of life, so basically Irmen, the sacred oak, so when they die, they reincarnate, they go back, it depends if you're a great hero that died in battle, you go into the golden host, the golden army, if you still have something to do, you're reincarnated through this string until you go back to finish the job, so to say, so it's kind of, I don't know, it's kind of, I don't know, I feel, I see some similarity with both Hindu and Norse tradition in that regard, and also Arendt said that basically these Semitic parasites, they are trying to destroy our souls through this reincarnation process and to basically destroy our spirituality, they basically managed to destroy our spirituality with all these attacks from every single side, and this thing that they're trying to, these demiurgic entities trying to destroy and steal our souls through this pointless reincarnation, like you're living this book life and you cannot fulfill your goals and you're losing this connection with the tree of life, maybe this is my interpretation at least.

Yeah, their goal is to keep you in the illusion matrix that they create. Yeah, yeah, maya, in the constant world of maya. And that's the whole point of Christianity, it's just like an illusion of dark age ignorance, so they can keep you spiritually dead.

Frightening, frightening perspective, honestly, very frightening, and I will agree with Dungard, I mean the sacrifice, the greatest sacrifice is something that is pure and from the heart, so to say. But from my understanding, the killing is like this tradition of the Order of the Nihilists, it's more like the purge of undesirable elements, dishonorable elements, so to say. So it's, yeah, yeah, something like that.

I mean purge would be a better word for it. In terms of these sacred trees, this is also like an ancient Aryan thing, it's called the Ashvata tree, in Sanskrit I believe, and I think there's a conversation between Krishna and Arjuna where he talks about this and Krishna basically says that either he is the Ashvata tree or he uses the Ashvata tree in the same way that Yggdrasil is basically thought to be either a part of Odin or it's something that he uses. Obviously he hung from it when he found the runes and it's called, I mean its name basically means the horse of Odin or what Odin rides, what he travels on, right, is this tree that is connected to all these nine worlds, all these different worlds.

Well the tree, I guess where they got this concept of a weird tree from is from one of the three sacred wells that are supposed to be the sources that this tree grows from. It has three roots that go into these three different wells. One of them is Urther Brunner, or the well of weird.

So the well of weird, you know, the well of fate, where these three norns are weaving together the substance of everything in the cosmos. That's one of the things that sustains this tree. Another one is Mimis Brunner, which is Mim's well, you know, the well of Mimir.

In other words, the well of memory that Odin puts one of his eyes in and then he gains ultimate wisdom. In other words, he absorbed the wisdom from all this infinite memory. The third one is Vergelmir, and I suppose its name translates to bubbling spring, is the best that I can find, so I'm not exactly sure what else this contributes.

Maybe it's just like, I don't know, maybe it was a concept of this flow of life, this stream of life itself, of vital force. Yeah, it's becoming like the corrosive waters of Maia, or the veil of Maia, transience. But as for the culling that they're talking about, well, I mean, it kind of reminds me of Aztec religion more than anything.

I mean, Aztec religion is kind of similar in a way to ancient paganism, I mean, other ancient branches of paganism, because they had this belief in a sun god called, I mean, it's impossible to pronounce their words, their language, but Quetzalcoatl or something. Yeah, I think it was Quetzalcoatl, it's not Quetzalcoatl. Quetzalcoatl was his brother.

Quetzalcoatl. Yeah, that's right, that's the one. So he was the sun god, and he was born, his mother was the earth goddess apparently, but when he was born, his sister, who's the moon goddess, and his 400 brothers, who are the stars, they were angry at his mother, so they were planning to kill her.

So he comes out of the womb in full armor, just like Karna came out of his mother with golden armor in the Hindu mythology. So the sun god comes out in full raiment of golden armor, and he drives off his brothers and scatters them across the sky, you know, they're the stars of the night sky, and they flee from him when he comes during the day, so then there's the daylight. So the Aztecs believed that every 52 years, which I think, in other words, means basically every generation, they have to make a mass sacrifice, and there has to be blood given to him so that he maintains his strength and is able to keep the cosmos in order.

So they believed that the gods basically needed blood, they needed vital force given to them in order for them to maintain their power, in order for the cycles of nature to be maintained. So they would sacrifice their enemies that they had fought and captured, right? So, I mean, that's kind of, that's not exactly the same though, because your enemies, basically, you're sacrificing their strength, their power, right? Like your enemies are not necessarily like degenerates or decayed people, I mean, they were probably capable of putting up a fight against you at some point, at least, but they were expendable, so they sacrificed them. Also, the Aztecs famously would sacrifice their best people though, and a lot of them, which is why they degenerated over time, because they killed off too many of their best people, but, you know, I don't know.

I mean, brown people never do religion right, if you ask me. According to Serrano, Miguel Serrano from South America, he was saying that in the origins, that was a white area, like from the Black East, and then it became corrupted through Jewish infiltration, and that they had, when the conquistadors from Spain came there, or Portugal, they were brought by the Jews, and then they went around killing almost all the white population there. Interesting, interesting.

I know this writing of Serrano, and I think that I've found that there were a lot of legends for the Quetzalcoatl being white with reddish beard, and he was described like this Jesus Christ figure. Basically, he stopped these blood sacrifices, human sacrifices. Yeah, it could be, could be a thing.

We know that there was a connection between the so-called old world and the new world, and we know that most likely there was Danish Vikings that were visiting South America at some point. Oh, it was way before that though, like from Atlantis. Even before that, yeah.

What is it called, the Easter Island statues and so forth, those look like white people, and that's like almost 10,000 years or more. Yeah, but the point is that these royal lineage, these lineages, these families, they were keeping these old secrets of Atlantis, and maybe even Hippodrome, so maybe they knew like this was a secret knowledge that they knew, and that's why they were able to find the way to the West, maybe. So anyways, the only other thing I have to say about the Order of Nine Angles is that like, gee, when they have names and titles like the Temple of Blood, like you would expect a lot from people like that.

It's like, gee, that was really cool, that's fucking based, Temple of Blood. It's like, you guys are pretty hardcore then, right? Kind of like Atomwaffen, where they're talking about setting off nuclear bombs and shit, and it's like, wow, you guys are like really fucking based. But it turns out, I mean, so far, all that I've heard from them that they had to offer was that they shot some of their own guys, because one of them converted to Islam and went nuts.

So I don't know, it's kind of fucking crazy. It's like I said to you before in a conversation about Dugan, which I don't really want to relive, because like I concluded at the time, I kind of feel like he's just a fringe weirdo and not actually that important, and I also kind of feel like Russia itself is just a fringe weirdo country that is not really that important. But the thing is, it's like, if you guys really, like, you believe in all this edgy shit, I would expect you to be able to do something with it, but also this idea of, oh, we're gonna change this or create that, it's like, I don't know that you are, guys, because it seems like basically everybody believes that the world has fallen flat, it's gone stagnant, there's no point in creating or making anything better, there's no regenerative qualities left in the world, all we can do is just destroy, ruin, or otherwise fuck things up.

And I figure that's why Alexander Dugan has such a fondness of the Black Goddess Kali, and like I've said this before, it's like, dudes, you should just make a cult devoted to the Black Goddess, and you should just destroy and kill everything, like, that would be more popular nowadays than any of your other ideas about new Byzantium or orthodox Christianity or a new Russian empire or whatever that shit is, it's like, does anybody care about that, really? Like, what the fuck does Russia have to offer the world that we would gain so much by them running an empire that spans across Eurasia? I mean, I guess it's been done before in the sense, what? You could have some mail order, Brad. Yeah. I mean, I guess it's been done before, I've been reading another book called The Lightning and the Sun, probably you guys are both familiar with it, right? Yeah.

So Savitri Devi wrote this book called The Lightning and the Sun, and I think I've gotten to the end of the section about Genghis Khan, the lightning archetype, and basically, if there was going to be a Eurasian empire that would be worth anything, it would have to be like the Mongolian empire, or at least what it's alleged to have been like. And Savitri Devi depicts Genghis Khan as a man with blue eyes and reddish hair, like reddish brown, or maybe red hair. Yeah, I heard that he was actually a white person, his name is Tamujin.

Yeah. Yep. So she says that basically he went through the struggle of coming up into power in Mongolia and taking over the tribes, and no one really took him seriously when he became the leader of all the Mongol tribes until they started to insult him and disrespect them, and then he just took over huge sections of China.

And then the Muslims also disrespected him and insulted him, so he took over huge sections of the Middle East. And then eventually, by the time he died, I think it happened even before he was dead, he lived to be 70 years old. But right before he died, he had already taken control of basically all of the land mass between Poland and the Pacific Ocean, like the South China Sea, like the Sea of Japan.

Huh? Basically half the world, for the most part. Yeah. So then his sons and grandsons and one of his generals called Subutai, they took over even more, and they basically held what he had gotten for them for a while, but then after I think 100 or 300 years, it fell apart eventually.

They tried to invade Japan, that's when the famous incident where the thunder gods smote them as they were trying to cross the sea happened, and so the Japanese think that the thunder god, you know, Raiden protected them, or Raijin, whatever, however they say it. You mean like in Mortal Kombat, that guy? Yeah, exactly, that guy. Yeah, exactly.

Basically an Asian version of Thor. Right, so otherwise though, they took over the whole of Eurasia and huge sections of Russia and Siberia, and supposedly there was a Mongolian peace period because of this code of laws that Temujin came up with called the Yasa, and this was meant to ensure the rule of his family that he called the Golden Family, and it was meant to maintain the Mongolian race so that they would rule this huge empire, and basically it just was fairly simple stipulations. I mean, it's not intact completely, but there's multiple different sources that they've pieced together, and essentially it gave capital punishment to rapists and adulterers and sodomites, and it gave capital punishment to thieves and spies and liars and people who, in any general sense, tried to maliciously subvert society, like people that created quarrels and conflicts.

It also gave religious freedom throughout the empire and forbade religious fanaticism, so there was no religious quarreling under his empire, allegedly. And then on top of it, I think at one point in this account that Savitri Devi wrote, like in Savitri Devi's book, she said that he basically went throughout a huge section of the Muslim world and Eurasia and he turned it into an artificial steppe, is what she said. He made it an artificial steppe so that it would be more suitable to his Mongolian race, like the horse-riding tribes, and it wouldn't be suitable for the agrarian-based Muslim civilizations or Christian civilizations.

I don't know how true that is. I don't know if that's like a way of—if that's—people have attributed the desertification of the Middle East to him, and it might be correctly or falsely, I don't know. But that, I thought, was interesting, because that would be the only example I know of in history where a civilization did away with the agrarian model.

But supposedly he did, and so he created essentially a reich across Eurasia for his own race, the Mongols. Whatever the Mongolian race was in actuality at that point, I don't know. It probably was a mixed race at that point.

He was one of the few Aryan individuals left over that took charge of it, and so he wanted his specific family, which was probably white, to be in charge of it all. And it worked out pretty well for a while, then eventually it fell apart. But in any case, that would be maybe a credible Eurasian empire, where it's like an Aryan family running it, like basically a race of white people running it, and they just do away with the religious fanaticism and the Muslim bullshit.

And also they do away with Judaism, because they make laws that give severe punishments to malfeasance and subversion. And then they basically just collect tribute and punish criminals, but other than that they let everybody continue. Like he allowed the kings that surrendered to him to continue to rule, as long as they paid him tribute.

Now that would be workable. That's a Machiavellian type way of operation. That's like a Machiavellian mode of operation, where you just take over and then you just let the people self-determine, pay tribute or whatever.

Yeah, so essentially that's what he did, and I guess that's kind of what Dugan was proposing. He said, well, let's just take over Europe and then we'll allow them to have a semblance of self-government, as long as they pay us tribute. But I just feel like, I don't know.

Russians, I don't know if Russians today have the right temperament or the intelligence to be able to understand that. I mean, maybe they could do it just because they're lazy enough that they'd be like, yeah, we don't want to micromanage. We'll just let them continue to do their own thing, as long as they pay us tribute.

So I guess Russians might be the only ones in the world today who could do that. Definitely the Americans and the Chinks could never do that, and definitely the Turks could never do that, because Turks just want to rape and sodomize everything in sight. The Chinks just want to fucking steal and micromanage and commit corporate espionage on everything in sight, and the Americans want to micromanage everything in sight.

So of the four world empires, three of them are too fucking stupid or criminally inclined to understand this. The Russians are probably also too criminally inclined, but maybe their laziness would cancel out some of that, and then their stupidity would prevent them from micromanaging. But I don't know, you tell me.

All the Jews that basically control Russia from behind the scenes, that would not really be workable, because then if there was any influence on Europe by Russia, then they would just use that like a Trojan horse to try to, you know, insert more migrations or whatever the case, you know. Yeah, I mean, basically, that was basically my conclusion, is that there's no current powers, there's no current governance in the world that's capable of having a Golden Age or a Mongolian peace or Pax Romana or any of that, because they're all too corrupt and they're all run by Jews. And you cannot have a Golden Age with governments run by Jews, because the governments will never punish the malfeasance and subversion, like they'll never punish just like really, really heinous deviancy and degeneracy.

And you can't maintain a society if you're not willing to do something to control or moderate those things, which you never can in a society that's full of Jews, because Jews, they're just racially inclined to perversion and to cultural warfare. And if you can't punish them, because they're all in high places, and they're all just fucking pilfering and raping the country as fast as they can, you just, it will never happen. So the reason why Temujin was able to do what he did was because both the Chinese Empire and the Muslim Empire were both corrupt at that point, they were both decaying.

And also probably Europe at that point, I mean, it was the Middle Ages, Europe was also decaying, so it couldn't defend itself really. So basically, once he assumed enough power, he was able to smash them very handily. That's basically what has to happen today, except there's no room for it to happen yet.

I don't think there's like a situation where it can happen yet. But essentially, we need another mystery man, like we need another Dark Horse figure, like we need another Temujin. Or we need 10,000 warlords.

I mean, I guess, but that wouldn't be the same, because that would just be chaotic. Eventually, there would have to be one man who rose up above them. If they're all white, and they're all just, you know, going after their own booty and their own territory, and yet just leave each other alone, have like implied agreements or whatever.

I mean, it would be preferable to what we have, but it wouldn't be an ending point. It would not be an end point. Interestingly enough, I agree with both of you.

I mean, maybe there were different stages, because let's go to this legendary figure, King Carter. Before him, there was a lot of minor kings and lords that were fighting each other, and he was the solo hero type, and his knights, the stabilizing force that unite the nation and defend the nation against the enemies. This is what I get.

And Adolf Hitler, if you look at him closely, he's basically an Arthurian figure. Or if you are Germany, he's basically a reincarnation of Barbarossa. And I found this reincarnation of the solo hero or the solo king in basically all European mythos.

Like in Bulgaria, it's Buyan Maga. So basically, he's proto-fascist. When you look at his story, he's the last pagan prince of Bulgaria.

Interestingly enough, he's some modern researcher thinks that he created Bogomilism, which kind of doesn't fit his nature. He rejected all kinds of, quote, Roman degeneracy. So all kinds of traditions and behavior and even quotes that were coming from the Byzantine Empire, Eastern Roman Empire.

So I found out that all these solo heroes are very interconnected with the type of thinking of the European people. Like, yeah, there could be 10,000 warlords at some point, but one of them will be the sole, or maybe their descendants, will be the solo hero that unites them. That would sort of be like the Holy Roman Empire, basically.

Maybe, eventually, maybe. But it must be, maybe not an ethno-empire, but at least a racially pure empire, at least in my logic. Because the problem with the Mongol Empire, the problem with modern-day Russia, the Byzantine Empire, with the Second Bulgarian Empire, is that these empires are based around, not egalitarian really, they were not egalitarian, especially these earlier versions, but they were based around an imperial idea that incorporates a lot of different races and cultures and languages and things like that.

So if you want to create an ethno-state, you must follow the example of the Third Reich, basically. The core, at least, to be one nation that is big enough with mighty culture, material and spiritual culture, and then you can incorporate a minor, closely related people to this empire. But otherwise, I don't know.

The problem with Dugin is that, actually, he's not a minor figure. Actually, in a podcast that maybe I will upload in the coming week, I read an article from 2016 that actually he's one of the thinking heads of the so-called Byzantium club. Byzantium club is a Russian-created club that wants to renovate and restore the Byzantium Empire.

Of course, Russia will be there. Moscow will be the new capital of the Byzantium if they or until they took Constantinople. So that's why, back in 2015-16, this meme was running to take Constantinople back or something like that.

So this is their idea. And, of course, the Jews run this idea because they want this melting pot of races and people. And, unfortunately, Dugin is like a mediator between this Russian idea, Byzantium idea, and between them and the of Erdogan that want to unite all Turkish-speaking people like this in Central Asia, for example, and the Turks, which is kind of funny because the Turks in Turkey, they don't look like these Far Eastern Turks.

The Far Eastern Turks are really Mongolian, like the original Turks. And the Turks in Turkey, they are far between basically pure Europeans that were converted to Islam to the Semitic, very dark types, like really dark types. So... So it's a mixture in Turkey then? What? It's a mixture in Turkey? It's basically, if I say that every single Turk is mixed, it will be not true.

There are a lot of white Turks, majority of them, like maybe 90, I don't know, 95% maybe of them are not white in one way or another. But there's some minority of white Turks. And when you go into the upper upper echelons of society, so to say, they are whiter.

And maybe there are some crypto-Jews there, these John Donmeh types. Do you think that the majority of Turks from the upper class are white then? This is, yeah, yeah. Most of the higher class Turks were either white or at least with a higher amount of white.

And back in the time, because the Ottoman Empire was created by Jews, the Jews gave them these ideas of harems with predominantly white women. And they wanted to create this basically empire run by a Eurasian empire, or even I would say you empire that is on three continents, because they were in Europe, in Asia, and in Africa. So basically, there were white people, or let's say, whitish looking people were running the shows.

Jews were taking very important positions, including there were some Sultans that had the Jewish blood in them. And this enormous mass with an unknown origin, like these elite troops, like Yanisari, there were white people like Bulgarians, Serbs, Greeks, and even Germans that were converted to Islam. And they were the best fighting force until 17th, let's say, 18th century in Europe.

And then you have this dark mass of basically midshields. I'm not even exaggerating. They were using these gazi type, naked, dark types that were drawn from Anatolia.

And they were using them like human midshields. They were throwing them against the enemy positions, for example. This is a known tactic of the Turks.

So basically, the enemy is using all the arrows or ammunition against these midshields. And then they're releasing the elite troops like Yanisari and Sipahi and so on. So basically, it's a little bit like the Soviets' tactic.

I bet they've got the generals behind them shooting them in the back if they don't run into the mission. Maybe, maybe, maybe. Sounds like a pretty Jewish technique there.

Of course. Of course. I know at least of one case that is official of a Spanish Jew that escaped the persecution of the Jews in Spain.

And they escaped in the Ottoman Empire because the Ottomans were enemies of the Sacred League or the Holy League if I remember correctly. So this will be the Spanish Habsburgs, the Austrian Habsburgs, Venice and Spanish Habsburgs. I don't remember all of them.

But basically, a lot of Jews escaped to the Ottomans. And of course, some of them converted to Islam. And some of them took very high positions in the Turkish divan.

So divan is the government. And one of these viziers, he started to pressure the Sultan. And you must understand the Oriental logic.

So basically, Sultan, the Deharem is part of the government, so to say, in a way, because all these women, the mothers of the Sultan, is creating intrigues. He has his preferable women from the Deharem. They are creating intrigues.

All this Oriental stuff, so to say, is influencing the decision of the government. So the Jews are managing to manipulating the Deharem even with their intrigues. And there were, of course, Jews in the Deharem, and there were a lot of stuff.

Interestingly enough, in the Deharems of the Sultans, so they had some kind of racial policy there. Of course, the European women were preferred. But they also, in the Deharems, there were also negroes.

But there was some kind of policy against a Sultan having sex with negroes. So they basically were in the Deharems for some kind of, I don't know, maybe like they had some kind of collectible value or something, I don't know. You mean like horses or something like that? Yeah, yeah, because they were basically given, basically, the black women were given a right to clean the Deharems or to wash the stairs and things like that.

But there was no case of a Sultan making sex with them. So I don't know why they were there. So basically, maybe when he had guests, other Muslim rulers or some emissaries, to show them that they have these hundreds of different women and things like that.

But usually speaking, the descendants of the Sultan were either from a European origin, like Russia's, Bulgaria's, German girls that were kidnapped, who the fuck knows, Italian girls, or they were Jewish. So one of the two. So this is the thing.

That's the Esther effect there. Yeah, yeah. So basically, I think that the Jews knew that if they started to mix with the negroes, the whole Ottoman Empire will fall apart really fast.

So they tried to keep the ruling class out of mixing with the negroes. Yeah, they learned their lesson in Egypt. Yeah, yeah, yeah.

So for Turkey, do you think that, I'm looking at a map of it, it looks like part of, what is that called? The isthmus or something that goes from Istanbul into Bulgaria. There's like a landmass that's sort of more like it's part of Europe, a place called Edirne. Yeah, that whole section looks like it was once Europe, right? And then they took it over.

So that's sort of like their Trojan horse into Europe. Wait a second, I will add Rudolf to the conversation. I'd like to know the situation of Turkey geopolitically, if they're going to be used by Israel to try to attack Iran and Iraq and so forth.

And if that would maybe open up a window of opportunity for Europe to defend itself more effectively. Yeah, yeah, yeah. I agree with that.

That's why I want to talk with Rudolf about the situation of nationalism in Croatia, how the old allies, alliances, I mean, could be restored and how we can neutralize the influence of the Russians, of the Turks and things like that. Actually, most of the people, but he's not responding, but most of the of the European nations could forget the, how to say, the misunderstanding and the rivalries from the past. And especially people like... Let's set this up for another discussion, like split it into two sections.

Yeah, yeah, yeah. This was my... I'll stop recording it then. Yeah, I could separate the recording into two sections.

So that covers basically the spirituality aspect, that the 09A was basically a PSYOP. It wasn't really too Aryan for the most part. And our Aryan tradition is basically solar spirituality, not the lunar Semitic pathos and sacrificing people or fatalistic self-castration or whatever.

Interestingly enough, he cannot hear us. Why is that? Wait a second. I'll try to...

Nordlux: Black Sun Media

Welcome, welcome to the show. I don't know if you want to use a pseudonym or what name you're interested in being. You can call me Black Sun, Axel Noyes, Tyler, whatever you want.

Axel Noyes, okay. So yes, so you're on the show now and basically the idea of this show would be to put forth practical strategies and ideas or an implementation of ideas to make them a practical reality from whatever perspective you're coming and what your motivation is for your content. You've got a channel on BitChute.

By all means, let us know what it is. We'll put the link in too. All right, that sounds good.

So what I do is I try to put forth a viewpoint from a revolutionary National Socialist point of view, where I try not to aim my stuff to the normies, like a lot of people, especially in the last decade, have done. I used to try to do that, but what I found is it doesn't get very far. And I'm not saying it's bad, like, you know, you have David Duke guys that cast a wide net, and that's good.

You should cast. There should be people that cast a wide net. Well, what I try to do is get the already initiated, already awakened, I guess you'd call it, to a more radical viewpoint.

Yeah, that's similar to myself. I came to that conclusion, I don't know when, quite a while ago, that there's really no point in bothering to reach the so-called normies. I remember on a show called The Might is Right Power Hour, which you might be familiar with.

Oh yeah, I post Bill Wright stuff all the time on my channel. That's good stuff. And he basically said, you know, the masses are asses.

Lemmings gravitate to power. There's no point in reaching them. And in the novel Hunter by William L. Pierce, with the exchange between the Fed, William Ryan, and Oscar Yeager, there's no point.

Even if the masses don't read, even if you were to spread endless amounts of propaganda, they still wouldn't partake of it anyway. Or if they did, they would just forget about it tomorrow and turn on whatever other TV channel or something. So it doesn't matter.

There's no point in bothering. You know, reach the reachable is what Bill Wright's phrase was. And look at Pierce's first novel, too.

When the organization at first was operating one way, they were trying to, you know, lead the masses. They were trying to, you know, say, hey, you know, ignore Zog, ignore those assholes over there, and look at us. We're on Team White, you know.

But later in the book, Pierce puts out the idea that that's not going to work, because as Rice puts it, you know, they gravitate to power. So, you know, he put it, we need to treat them realistically. And that's what they are.

They're massive animals. They respond to fear. They respond to force.

Yeah. Yeah, that's what Machiavelli had said that, I forget this specific quote, but fear motivates more than love, basically. Because love threatens, you know, love promises you something that you don't necessarily want, but it's just like an elective thing.

You know, you might want it, but you're free to reject it. Whereas fear threatens to take away something that you need or have. And so that is more a pressing necessity to have that.

So it motivates you much more strenuously. Yeah. And, I mean, look at Marius and Sulla.

You know, the people loved Marius, but Sulla knew the language of the VNT a little bit better. He was able to defeat them and, you know, take power in Rome. Yeah.

Because force is going to win out at the end of the day. I think that's, was that in the movie Gladiator, the year 2000 with Russell Crowe? Oh, I couldn't tell you, man. I'm not big on my movies.

I know that that was discussed in the 48 Laws of Power by that Jew, Robert Greene, who wrote the book. I don't think I've read that one, no. Yeah, but yeah.

Yeah. But yeah, I'm not too familiar with the actual historical context since obviously the Jews have, you know, occluded, occulted, ancient classical history. So we don't even know, you know, the reality of that history, like Gibbon's decline and fall of the Roman Empire.

We don't have any very thorough or exhaustive knowledge of Roman history, unfortunately. As Redbeard said, and I might just write, you know, the victor writes the history, you know. The history is the record for the victor.

He puts it that way. I can only paraphrase. Can't think of the actual quote, but yeah, that's that.

I mean, what do we have based from Roman history? You know, if you want to look at the Gallic Wars, the source is, yeah, there's other sources, but the main source is from Caesar himself. Of course, he's going to have a bias, you know, towards, you know, we don't have a source that tells the Celtic point of view of the conflict, you know. So history is skewed that way, but Yaki, he said, history is our connection to the past.

Even though, and I interpret that as, even though we might not know the literal day-by-day things, you know, there's some stuff that we don't know, and there's stuff that we do know, and we don't know. What I have a problem with modern, a lot of modern historians is because it kind of goes to this like 19th century idea of like the materialism. They're trying to find the exact everything.

They're not trying to interpret the history and see what it means in the big picture of things. Or in terms of its mythopoetic qualities, the way that it is like a crystallization of the spirit of the Aryan in terms of particular cultural forms like Spengler speaks about in his Decline of the West, that is just negated altogether with the mainstream academic, if you want to call it philosophy, not really even legitimate academia, because what they do in that is basically just project their biases on the past, they evaluate the past by the standards of the present. Everything becomes like a fertility cult or something, or it becomes, you know, this sort of crude interpretation of astronomy on the part of, you know, more ancient civilizations.

It's all astrology, it's all astro-theology, and it's beyond that to, you know, higher spiritual forms that are, you know, known through initiatic degrees, through the mystery traditions of Greece and Rome. Yeah, and it just shows how little they don't understand it, but they're trying their best to put their own interpretation on it, and as you said, from their point of view, and that also goes to, you know, critical theory and all that stuff, you know. And that's why I like how kind of Evola looks at things, is because he compared different cultures, and you can fill in blanks that way, you know, and a lot of these people, they just want to put everything in its own box, you know.

There's totally no, that's coincidence, you know. Yeah, well, basically, with respect to the Aryan tradition, it's world historical, and it's global. The entire world was a pyramid civilization from Easter Island, and the Machu Picchu, Tiahuanaco in the South America, to the North Americans, as the book Vinlanders speaks of, and as Miguel Serrano speaks of, and Adolf Hitler's ultimate avatar, or last avatar, and then the Gobi Desert civilization, and so forth.

Basically, throughout the whole world, it was pyramid culture, and it was always, it was the same thing. There were linguistic cognates in all the cultures, you know, the Aryan, the Ar, the Ireland. Yeah.

So, yeah. And even now, today, with Ireland, in specific, you know, I, I always thought that, you know, Ireland, it was just cognate with Heros, from Proto-Indo-European, but I'm trying to remember now what they, how they try to explain it away, but they were like, oh, it's just the name of a goddess, you know, but okay, fine, even so, what does her name mean? And it's just, it's outright lies, because they're trying to, you know, cut our roots off, which they've succeeded in, because, I mean, again, back to the masses, look at these animals, you know. Yeah, look at them in the streets, with their rainbow flags, and their string bikinis, and fat hanging all over their bodies, screaming and shouting, and, you know, race-mixing, and drugging, and so forth.

Absolutely, they're alcoholized animals, they're goyim, they've made themselves goyim, and I appreciate, I appreciate Evola's type of, like, his hermeneutical exegesis, if we wish to call it that, the, you know, his more Olympian stance, in terms of esoteric tradition, that it's beyond philosophy, it's beyond scholarship, it's beyond the mere rationalist, materialist worldview of scientism, of the enlightenment, so-called, and, you know, it attempts to represent radical traditionalism, as a radical representation of ancient traditions, so that they can actually be practically implemented, in terms of awakening the blood memory of Aryans, you know, bringing them back to that Hyperborean origin, which is apparently his intention. What I like to tell people is that our, yes, our viewpoint is new, and, like, comparing it to the old ways, you know, of, you know, the Dark Ages, but really, it's kind of a reawakening of the pre-Christian values. Yeah, and that's what radical traditionalism is.

And you can see this in, yeah, and that's, and, but people go to Nietzsche, you know, Nietzsche wasn't a traditionalist, but you can still see a lot of, you know, correlations between Nietzsche's ideas, Evola's ideas, even though I see some people saying they're trying to, you know, they were against each other somehow, like the ideas are opposing, but it's just a different way of saying, you know. Yeah, well, basically, Evola did critique Nietzsche and Ride the Tiger. Yeah.

His perspective, Evola's perspective, is more a contrast between the Olympian, solar forms of spirituality, and the lunar, sonic, tellurian, or more earthly forms of spirituality. And Nietzsche, somebody had called, I don't remember who, called Nietzsche a half-Jew, because his form of spirituality was more oriented toward that emotional pathos, and, you know, sort of a Dionysian extasis, I guess you could call it, like an ecstasy, the sort of whirling dervish type of stuff, you know, a lot of, a lot of sort of like Luciferian left-hand path sort of orientation. He was, of course, affiliated with Jews and associated with them as well.

So his particular project was quite corrupted, I would say, in terms of the Jewish influence, which sort of took away from the hyperborean truth, with a capital T. And I think Heidegger sort of straightens that out a little bit in his work. I believe it was called the, he wrote a two-part work on Nietzsche. One was called The Will to Power as Art, and another one, I think, I forget exactly what it was called, but that sort of straightens out Nietzsche in a hermeneutical way to adjust it, to attune it to the hyperborean tradition to a greater extent.

And Heidegger took that forward more, as you were saying, as a sort of like hermeneutical, critical refutation of the distortion on the part of Jews, who have concealed our traditions behind sort of gauze of lies and half-truths and, you know, just a distortion of our traditions. So Heidegger was trying to straighten that out, and Evola is also, and representing it in its more proper form, away from the more like lunar emotional forms of spirituality, which are current today, to a more, what he called a spiritual virility, Olympian sovereignty, a more heroic type of spirituality, like the figure of fighting against the serpent. You know, you're being pulled down into the waters by the serpent, by those forces, the dark forces, and you're opposing that, resisting it.

And that is the whole idea right there, is riding the tiger. Yeah. And to distorting our traditions, our main source when it comes to, well, one of the main sources when it comes to the old myths, the northern myths, you know, was Snorri Sturluson and the Eddas.

And I see a lot of these academics, they, you know, oh, this is a Christian influence, you know, but when you look at Christianity with its religious history, you can see that a lot of it comes from apocalyptic literature from the second temple period, which a lot of that came from Hellenistic tradition. The Jews kind of just adopted that in because, you know, that's what they do. They can't create anything themselves.

So they got to just take from other cultures, you know, and they took that from Hellenistic tradition. So yeah, with respect to the Greeks, that was more like the degenerate forms of the Greek culture when they were more mixed in with others, I think, because I remember, I think it was Hesiod who was lamenting that the Greeks were no longer blonde. And that was at an early period itself.

So I do subscribe to the distinction, to the validity of the distinction between the Apollonian and Dionysian of Nietzsche and his birth of tragedy, and Evola would be more Apollonian. And, you know, the Christian is definitely a sort of pathos, you know. Yeah.

But I mean, it's always it's interesting to go back, you know, into religious histories, and, you know, trying to pick everything apart and seeing what's what and who's who. I think Evola is basically the best source for people who are not acquainted in any great depth with having actually studied different spiritual traditions, because it's more or less impossible if you're coming at this time in history, to that unless you read a lot of books of scholarship prior to the Second World War. And even then, it's been thoroughly corrupted because of the so called Enlightenment, and the more sort of like pagan revival during the fin de siècle period around the turn of the last century with Theosophy and so forth.

There's a lot of Jewish influence there. Freemasonic Jewish influence. And it's just, it's a lot of work that we have to do to pick it all apart and figure it all out.

Yeah. And I think obviously, we only have so much time before whatever mass chaos is brought upon us. I'm not too sure what it's like, you don't have to reveal your actual location, but or even general area, but boots on the ground from your perspective, I guess you're, you're probably seeing some rioting and stuff, maybe.

Um, I mean, I've, on my channel, I've given too many hints in it already. I live near Lansing, Michigan. Okay.

And there was some rioting there, but not like Seattle level of rioting, you know, like, it's calmed down for the most part. I'm just waiting for the next, you know, hat to drop, you know. Yeah, that's what they're doing.

And it's always gradualistic with these people. They always do things in stages. Yeah.

People, because if they, if they see that other people are recognizing patterns, you know, this is their way of scrambling the patterns by stretching it out temporally, and then creating confusion with their dialectic back and forth and back and forth. But yeah, I guess Lansing is where they have a lot of military there, isn't it? Um, I'll be honest, I don't know for certain, because I stay the hell out of Lansing. I can't stand big cities.

I grew up in the woods, I can't stand concrete. So most people around here, I mean, I in the around the town I live, it's it's mostly people just going around like nothing's going on. And yeah, typical cops ignoring laws from our governor and shit.

So that's just basically Well, I guess that's good that the police are, you know, not entirely sovietized. Yeah. I think that there's some hope for the police, especially in smaller areas.

Because they, unless they're unless it's like a place where I grew up in the woods in Canada, which was like a training ground for police. So they would always be pumping in new recruits, you know, who are upholding whatever laws they make. Yeah.

So there's like 50 police in a town of like 4,000 people. So that was like one per 100 person that they had. So it was a real police state.

But yeah, I still think that there's some hope for the police in the smaller towns. But everywhere you go, you've got the typical paradigm there. You've got the Jews leading from behind the scenes with their Christian puppets and Freemasons.

And then underneath them, you've got, you know, on the front lines, some token minorities and so forth. So it's all white. And the Jews are always micromanaging every facet of life, basically.

So they're always breathing down the neck of their of the whites, especially because they know that they're the greatest threat to their power. Yeah. And how do you how do you get a white man to do whatever you want these days, you got to, you just got to threaten his personal wealth, his personal safety is personal, you know, just got to threaten his person, and he'll do he'll do whatever you want.

You know, he'll yield to you. And that and, you know, yeah, we can. And a lot of these small town cops, they're, they're decent.

I'll say they're decent. Yeah. You know, because at the end of the day, you know, Kike McGee comes down here and says, Hey, you guys need to start doing this or you know, they're gonna, you know, take your cars away or whatever, they'll, they'll arrest every white person on the spot if they have to, you know? Yeah, it's the unfortunate thing.

Obviously, they're sort of trapped in a corner, I guess you could say, within certain rigid limitations that they can operate in. Of course, many of them are very corrupt anyway, in terms of the values, just like everybody else in this society with the sort of liberal type of values, you know, they're jumping on board Jew world order trying to virtue signal hard. So it happened to me recently with some cop who was in the gym, he's like, standing around with his token minority, you know, in front of me, virtue signaling and stuff like that, like what good people that we're not the evil white racist, you know, because I'm being gang stalked here by Jews pretty heavily.

So even right now, as we speak, there are Jews outside next door, you know, trying to bother me. So that is, but I guess in your state, that was Henry Ford state. So they must have dumped a lot of I heard they dumped a lot of Arabs into Henry Ford's town of Dearborn.

Oh, yeah, you can't throw a rock without hitting, you know, some sand nigger or something. It's, it's disgusting. It's, that's why I can't stand big cities is even the white faces, they got like, metal through there.

Like, I guess the new thing is to put it in the center of your nose or whatever they call it like a septum piercing. You know, they're just freaking degenerates. And so they're not any better than the non whites.

And it's, it's a hellhole. That's what I think Pierce spoke about that in the Turner Diaries with all these degenerate youth, you know, they're like lying around on mattresses and puffing dope and stuff like that, and so Yeah. And that's all they wanted.

You can talk to them. And that's a perfect example from the Turner Diaries. A lot of them are alienated.

And which is a good thing alienation, I encourage everyone to be alienated from this sick, disgusting sewer that we have to live in. But they don't have the goal setting that people like you and I have, you know, all they want to do is fuck, smoke dope and shove their face full of Doritos all day. That's all they want to do.

They've been hooked into the sort of lower sonic tellurium, if I could use that phrase again, of Eva was into that modality of consciousness, they've been lowered to the level of a purely emotional, animalized being. So they haven't cultivated reason or any sort of higher consciousness through any sort of meditation, or even just normal life, just detachment from the welter of spatio-temporal circumstances, what is called samsara in the Vedic tradition, the changing conditions of sensory reality of the material plane. They don't transcend that, they're just immersed in it.

So they're basically drowning in the waters, I guess you could say, or the sewage of the Jew world order, the matrix. Yeah, obviously, what you're doing is probably one of the better ways to go. But I won't say necessarily the only way to go.

Because I think it's important for people to remain within, you know, more populous centers also, not exclusively, but also because that way, you know, they could isolate people, and then they can just target them in smaller centers too, because, you know, there are spies everywhere, the Jews are everywhere. That's what happened to me. A couple years ago, I was going to move to a, you know, way out of the city, I was living in a city.

And then I was out there. And as soon as I was ordering some books on Jews, you know, like the protocols and stuff like that, those types of books, I was being spied on by the Jewish postal worker who was ripping open my packages. And then all of a sudden, I see these unmarked trucks at the end of the roads, you know, with a line of sight right at the place where I'm living.

And then I go, they're tailing after me. And, you know, you suddenly see all these frowning faces on the part of the uptight Christian Zionists and so forth who are there. So, you know, they can single you out and target you.

They're basically witch hunters, these types. Everywhere you go, they're looking to tail after you. So, it's sort of better to blend into the larger centers in a way, in some cases, because that way... Yeah, as Rize was talking, actually, I just posted both of his podcasts on it, Keep Your Head Down, Blend In, you know, and that was Tamazi's thing, when, you know, get out of the uniforms, because it just paints a target on your back, look like, you know, you don't have to go as far as a lot of these degenerates.

You don't got to have like a fucking, you know, all metal in your face. But, you know, Blend In, Keep Your Head Down, and operate, you know, under the level, because, you know, we're behind enemy territory. Yeah.

Well, I can see how they're bringing their police state against us. They're, you know, brainwashing the police to be, to look upon white people like us as terrorists, basically. So, yeah.

And that's been coming for, I've been trying to tell these white people, and of course, you know, I sometimes have, you know, a reactionary vibe in me. And I try to tell them what I think, you know, thinking that, hey, they're going to listen this time. And I try to tell these, you know, it doesn't matter if you like to think of yourself as a white person or not.

At the end of the day, you're white, they're coming after you. No questions asked. It's like a cognitive dissonance, like a soldier in a war who's got the uniform on.

And he's like, oh, I don't want to hurt you, enemy. You know, I'm your friend. Well, obviously, it doesn't matter, because the enemy looks upon you as an enemy.

And that's what matters. And it's what they will do that matters, not what you personally think or feel. That's just sort of a way they have of trying to, you know, put themselves in that comfort zone again, back away from the controversy, because they can't cope with controversial realities.

That's the main thing is, you and I realize that this is a war. They haven't gotten to that point yet. They don't think, that's not even a thought in their head that we're at war, what, you know? Yeah, they need to be brought to that point.

I'm wondering, maybe you could even reach out to Bill Rize and see if you could get him on a show or something and have an interview with him or something. Oh, I have no clue how to contact him or where he's at. He kind of like, at least to me, he kind of disappeared for a while.

I think his his gab is discriminator. Okay, so he's on gab? Yeah, last I checked, it was discriminator was his gab. Okay.

I think his Might is Right site is mightisright.weebly.something. Oh, okay. W-E-E-B-L-Y. I was in contact with him through social media a few times over the years, but you know, for the most part.

That would be great to have him on a show with him. That would actually be great. Because actually, that's how I got into the movement originally was, I came across Thulean Productions.

Yeah, that's good. And then somehow got like, into Renegade and then Might is Right Network. And I'm like, okay, Might is Right Network on Orion.

That was that YouTube channel. I had a lot of their stuff. And I was still in high school.

So you know, I'm living at my parents house. So I have to, you know, keep that low key. But you know, when no one else was listening, I'd be, you know, listening to their podcasts.

Yeah. Yeah, I discovered it in 2016, that specific podcast. And from there, it really shifted my focus to a great extent in terms of particular practical strategies.

But I still think that they're somewhat wrong in some ways. But at the same time, it's still valuable. But yeah, I don't subscribe to the more naturalistic understanding of things.

I think that's where that is either a psyop on the one hand, or on the other hand, that's just an error on the part of a lot of people who prescribe that and who, you know, make that the basis of their... You're talking about the creativity aspect of it? No, I mean naturalism in the sense of like, so called paganism, pagan naturalism. Oh, okay. Okay.

I see what you're saying. Yeah. Because, you know, there's a distinction between the naturalism, which drags everything down to a sort of materialistic level, and something like Avalon, which would elevate it to a higher spiritual level.

So the two are not necessarily opposed. You know, one's just like a level of the other, a higher level. So yeah, that's, yeah, yeah, I agree fully.

That's one issue I've had with their ideas. That's actually, I think the only issue I've had with their ideas is that it's a very materialist way of looking at things. Yeah, and I'm pretty sure that that's actually a sigh off on the part of the Jews.

And that's why I suspect Renegade, because I've attempted several times to lay comments or submit articles to Renegade. And every time they just sort of blow up in a rage against me. Yeah, yeah.

And yeah, interestingly enough, I just had somebody else submit one of my articles recently, and they accepted it. So, you know, I don't know how they still have my articles on there, because I kind of got away from Renegade. You remember, did you ever know a guy named Veganator? Yeah.

So they, Kyle shut him down, because he said like a sentence that Sinead didn't agree with. And of course, she threw a fit. And he kicked Veganator off Renegade.

And in the next show, they just basically had a show talking shit about him. That's all the roundtable was about talking shit about Veganator. And I'm like, dude, this guy, like, he didn't like doing shows with him.

I talked to him on a personal level. He didn't like doing the long broadcast. He was more of a video type of guy, you know, but he was willing to do it with him.

And he attracted a lot of people to them. And then they just kind of tossed them away. You know, when he said one thing they didn't agree with.

So I just like screw this place. I haven't listened to Renegade since then. Well, I listened to Kyle Hunt's presentation just as a sort of news update, I guess you could say, because I don't know of any other sources for news.

I don't really pay any attention to mainstream media or what, you know, because the events are endless. And they're always some sort of manipulation and change. So it's just not worth involving yourself with because, you know, what we need to do is just focus on straightening out the white man's thinking and directing him toward practical action related to community building and networking.

And survivalism in the sense of natural survival in the woods and in urban settings. And, you know, propagandizing effectively against who is our enemy and what they're trying to do to us to, you know, reach enough reachable people. Yeah.

So that's basically all. That's a pretty simple program. And I try to talk to a lot of these more softcore nationalists, like Iconoclast.

I like to leave comments in his videos that suggest that point of view, because, you know, they're all like, you know, vote. We're going to vote our way out of this or we're going to community build or whatever the new catchphrase is for the alt-right. Yeah.

And I'm trying to be like, hey, no, you need to start, you know, well, the British need to get their guns back somehow. I don't know why they just gave up their weapons and didn't fire a shot over it, but they need to figure out their gun situation and then figure out how to use them. Yeah, well, I would say, you know, community building in a sense of not like elaborate, just networking with people for, you know, pooling resources together and stuff like that is pretty much essential at this time.

Otherwise, you can just isolate people and do away with them, without backup or any people doing anything to assist you. But yeah, natural philosophy in the sense of like, Mike is right, Ragnar Redbeard, that's only like a certain level of consciousness in my understanding of things. Oh yeah, yeah.

What's the point of the Fed to survive if it's just, you know, to defeat everything else? You know, there has to be some purpose behind it than just everyone kill each other. And, you know, and that's where Pierce comes in to me, at least in my opinion, that's his Cosmotheus principles come in, because I think he did a lot of work in unifying those two concepts. Yeah, but I would say that the Cosmotheism that they air, because they adhere, at least Kevin Alfred Strahm appears to adhere to a more Ludwig Klages biocentric worldview, I guess it would be called.

Ludwig Klages wrote the book about and Evola in his Synthesis of Racial Doctrine critiques that also, as well as I think in other of his works, by, you know, again, claiming that it's too naturalistic, it's too Donic, Tellurian, too Lunar, too soulish, you know, it's not spiritual. So it devolves towards a more ecstatic, almost Semitic, so called pseudo spirituality, just like a soulish, you know, Nietzschean type of thing, to some extent, but more natural, you know, biocentric in a sense of purely biological materialism, which sort of denies any higher spiritual consciousness. So I would definitely deviate from Cosmotheism in that regard.

But I think it would still be sort of like, basically, might is right would be like a naturalistic level. From there, then it would be Cosmotheism, which would be a soulish level. And then from there, it would be Evola, which is a spiritual level, the solar, Uranian, Olympian consciousness, if you could call it that.

I think that that would be the best to occupy that promontory, like an eagle looking downwards, and then picking up people from those lower levels, because might is right is sort of like the level of the consciousness of a Negro. And then Cosmotheism is like the consciousness of a Jew. And then our consciousness is, the Aryan consciousness is the consciousness of the solar Uranian, in the sense of, you know, beyond the mere material plane, beyond the spatio-temporal, toward the realm of eternal forms, as Plato called it.

I think that, well, a lot of people try to like, just pick one, and, you know, they like to stick with it. But the conclusion I've come to is you got to look at all of them. Take the good, separate the bad out, you know, because, you know, these philosophies are created by men, they're not perfect, you know.

No man on this earth has ever been perfect, you know, except for maybe Hitler or something, you know. But you have to take all the good stuff from all of them, and you have to refine it down and figure out what the actual truth is behind it. Yeah, that's basically what I do.

I guess you could call that a sort of pro-white integrationism, where you're just integrating all, or sort of like a syncretism, you know, you're synthesizing all these different elements of all these different traditions, to the extent compatible, toward a higher objective, always going upwards, never, you know, descending to a lower level of spiritual practice. And I think that, yeah, most of them have a tendency to drag downwards toward more materialistic states of consciousness, where it becomes just like, you know, a sort of cultural aesthetic thing, like the creativity movement, the height of that is just, you know, like Matt Hale wrote in his book, or is writing, The Triumph of Life, you know, where it's purely materialistic, you know, sort of like aesthetic, cultural thing at the height, but that isn't the real height. And then that's typically the way it works, that they orient themselves toward that orientation, that it becomes power and the might is right, it becomes power and strength of a more, you know, sort of like Tarzan in Edgar Rice Burroughs' books, you know, it's sort of like the Aryan, you know, Superman of a lower sense, you know, like this hero figure, like Robert E. Howard type of Conan type figure, which is obviously very primitive.

And none of the ancient Aryan traditions were really like that, that was just sort of like a distorted understanding of them, naturalistic conception. Yeah, a lot of these, and a lot of those ideas come from the 19th century, as Yaki points out in his book Imperium, a lot of this materialist idea, ideas came from the Enlightenment, and then the 19th century, when society is kind of went full force. Yeah, because of Darwinism, and Ernst Haeckel, and Gregor Mendel, to some extent, I guess, was represented then a sort of biological naturalism, anthropology, in a sense of Madison Grant, and Lothrop Stoddard, and the, you know, biological racism in the sense of Rassen hygiene of Fritz Lenz of the National Socialists, and so forth.

So that is all, you know, it all sort of reduces or restricts things to a lower level of being. And that, you know, does an injustice to our actual traditions. So could also be construed as a deliberate psyop on the part of those who control society to try to pose it naturalism over and against Christianity, so that they can say, oh, all that stuff's just silly paganism, it's just, you know, beneath, and the real spirituality is Christianity.

That's the way to go. Well, if you look at Jewish theology, they see the material is separate from God, material because it's separate from God is inherently sinful, it's inherently bad. Yeah, exactly.

So it makes me because I think how a lot of this materialism come came from, and this is just based on my intuition, you know, so you Christianity, Newton was a, you know, hardcore Christian, you know, you have all these scientists that are Christians. And they believe in that idea that there's the flesh, there's the material, which is sinful, and separate from God, and then you have God. And then as we start moving into the 19th century, agnosticism and atheism become more prevalent.

So they throw out the idea of God, and what are you left with just the material, right? Because it's based on Jewish idea when our ancestors, I've had, I've heard it described as animism, that everything that the idea of God and matter are not separate, they're combined, they're one and the same. Yeah, that's Spinoza's pantheism, basically. And that's sort of, I guess, represented to some extent in theosophy, which is, again, another Jewish psyop, which is basically, as Blavatsky said, spirit and matter are one, verbatim quotation, that thing, you know, just different vibrational frequencies or something.

So, you know, it becomes just an ocean of theosophy, everything's all equalized, you know, let's all harmonize, and that becomes a New Age, Jew Age philosophy of the present moment, which is a purely chthonic tellurism. It is earthly worship of the Earth Mother, the Mother Goddess, you know, there's no patriarchal conception, there's no, you know, really masculine forms of spirituality, of force, of strength, of self overcoming, of, you know, detachment from Sam Sarah, it's really just a sort of immersion, like swimming in the waters of Sam Sarah with these people, like on some sort of slide park or something. Yeah.

Hotel. And they, well, they, of course, they got to throw their egalitarianism bit in there, you know, the human brotherhood idea. Yeah, which obviously, as anybody can see, at all levels, either naturalistic, soul, or spiritual levels, can easily see that that's a complete farce, because it's completely diametrically opposed to any form of lived experience.

And you have a lot of, like, a lot of these New Age paint. I've heard of what we call Wicca true, with this as a true movement, but it's mainstream as a true, you know, they throw their egalitarianism in there, they have their Ophelia room with a rainbow in the background, which I mean, if I saw that, I would think, okay, oh, rainbow for frost, you know, our inheritance is connected to the divine. Okay, that makes sense.

But what they mean by the rainbow is, of course, diversity. Yeah, you know, the world. Yeah, basically, that's the exact inversion of our traditions.

Because a rainbow just means different colors, which I guess, are just different vibrational rates, or something like that. So, different chakras of your body are the different colors. So, that's the black magic of the Jew right there, is to portray legitimate spirituality as, you know, just butt banging in various other low forms of existence.

Yeah. And, of course, they like to make these lies about how old Germanic societies were completely egalitarian. And, you know, the faggots were allowed to run around freely.

And it's like, no, those people were drowned in a bog, you know. And it wasn't egalitarian. You know, there was a hierarchical system.

Yes, they would elect their chieftains, but those people weren't politicians. They were people who earned those titles still. Yeah, and the way in which they elected it, who elected it, it was only free men, typically.

I don't think any of the vassals had the power to elect. Yeah, it was only free men. And there's some evidence to maybe say free women, in some cases, but free men mainly.

And those men, they earned, you know, the spear they carried, because all Germans, you know, they were always armed. Yeah, I was going to say that, basically, it was only those who had the merit, you know, that sort of inner aristocracy that earned that actual title. In order to be qualified as that, they had to actually embody that.

They couldn't just be like a sneaking, lying politician of today's society, just sort of, you know, worm their way through their connections, through their Masonic lodge into power, and just have the brightest smile and the most vigorous handshake or something like that to gain. There's obviously another testament to the exact antithesis of so-called modernity to tradition, if we could use those terms, I guess, post-modernity or whatever the contemporary world may be. Yeah, it's a hellscape, ideologically.

Nothing makes sense anymore. Yeah, and that's, of course, deliberately what the Jews are trying to do, you know. Like it says in the protocols, we will eliminate the vile poison of liberalism.

So their intention is to create liberalism, or if they didn't create it entirely, which they probably did, you know, through, what was it, Rousseau and people like that, their agents. Then they at least take it up and they exacerbate it through the media and through the power that they have, introducing all these sort of chthonic currents in the tradition of the Aryans so that they can chew away the power, you know, from theocracy to aristocracy to bureaucracy to proletarianism, you know, the reversion or regression of the caste, as everyone called it. You know, they just create that as a dialectical means of a dialectical negation process to negate white societies.

And then they can say, oh, we've got the solution. It's Christianity. You know, this is our tradition.

Meanwhile, there's nothing but a bunch of niggers in the church and so forth. And yeah, I doubt that our tradition was ever anything remotely similar to that, which is easily disproven. And even with Christianity, when you look at Martin Luther's The Jews and Their Lies, one of his criticisms is that he says, well, according to scripture, you know, we're all born in sin.

How does your bloodline make you any special? And that's one of his criticisms. And that shows that this egalitarian mindset, you either get it with their secular Christ insanity or their religious Christ insanity. Yeah, it's the same thing.

It's basically the equality cult, egalitarian pacifism is what I sort of reduce it to. Although you could also add egalitarian pacifism, Jewish supremacism, because in the case of liberals and people like that, they never criticize Jews as such, because they're anti-biological reality, anti-race, race in all degrees, body, soul, mind, body, soul, spirit. And then on the case of the Christians, obviously, they're overtly Jewish supremacist, even though they denounce racism.

At the same time, they're Jewish supremacists. So that's basically what it is. When you're a lemming, your ideology doesn't need to make sense.

Pretty much. It's just a lot of feel good feelings and posing, you know, this sort of pose of moral superiority that they all have. That's sort of what they get off on.

Yeah. And it's disgusting. Pretty much.

I mean, I've encountered that here large amounts of times now that I'm being gang stalked and persecuted by the Jews here. All their Christians are forever virtue signaling in my face and harassing and bothering me. Basically, it's what Nietzsche called the bestowing virtue, you know, by virtue of giving to someone else, that implies you have the power to give and others are dependent on you in receiving or taking from you.

So that implies your relative superiority of power in relation to them. So it's just a sort of Nietzschean will to power only in a sort of cowardly and false, hypocritical form. Dishonest will to power is what Christians operate on the basis of.

Because that's all they have at the end of the day. All they have is their lies. All they have is their degeneracy.

All they have is their cowardice, their scum. And that's how the scum works. So, you know, when I come across people like that, that's all that's in my mind is you're scum.

I don't give a shit what you think. You can go put a gun in your mouth and take care of the rest for all I care. Yeah.

Or you can nail yourself up on a cross and burn yourself to death, soak yourself in gasoline. Yeah, it's funny. I had this one store on this paraphernalia company called Viral Style.

And I was making these T-shirts that said, burn your local church. And it had like a picture of a flaming church on it, like an actual photograph. And then they banned me right after that, because they didn't want people to, you know, get any ideas.

Of course, the company is probably run by Jews, but Florida and so forth. Yeah. And if they're not Jews, you know, they're people who suck up to Jews or they have Jews in their head, you know, because people like us, you know, we can't, we can't get anywhere, anywhere.

And without, you know, shutting up and having to, you know, bite our tongue constantly. Well, basically, the white man's been demoted to as Matt Hill wrote in his book, White Slavery. Basically, we've been demoted to the level of a white nigger in our own country as the slave caste.

The only jobs available to us are pretty much working as a trade slave in whatever capacity, to whatever extent, based on how much connections we have and how, how much of an agreeable person we are or quiet and don't speak and have whatever sort of skills. So, you know, the most a white man can achieve in this society now is like, maybe an electrician or something like that. And then from there, it's, you know, manual labor, flipping burgers or whatever.

Yeah. But on the other side of that, look how much we have to gain then. Yeah, because it's an uphill battle, but you know, we're white people, we can fucking do this.

We've done this how many times throughout history? You know, those same genes are in us, you know? Yeah, basically, the good part of that is the positive aspect is that we basically can, we don't control the means of production, but we do have the means to dismantle them, because we are the trades people who prop it up. So if there's any white general strike or an adequate amount of employment of knowledge of the workings of the machine, and using, you know, work, you know, implementing subversive ideas in relation to, you know, the sabotage of the machine, then a lot can be done in that regard. But it's mainly going to be just more a gradualistic collapse within the next five years, and the main chaos will be instigated by the Jews and their non-whites, for the most part.

Like O.T. Gunnarsson wrote in his Hear the Cradle Song book, I think that's going to be more or less what it will be like. Yeah, and they're already doing it. Look at the NFAC, look at Black Lives Matter becoming more of a black nationalist movement than a, uh, just a kind of a black idea leftist movement.

Yeah. And they're telling, you know, black faggots to, you know, pick a side. You're either black or you're queer.

You got to pick one. The ironic thing, of course, is that most blacks are actually bisexual too, so far as I've heard anyway. You know, they're notorious for involving themselves in their bisexual activities I think it's better to put omnisexual, because as long as it's wet and warm, it doesn't even got to be warm, you know? Yeah, so even corpses are not exempt.

Yeah, that's pretty gross. Yeah, I wouldn't put it past them though. Yeah, got to keep them out of the morgue, I guess.

Yeah, hopefully. I don't know, you can put all those race traitors in the morgue, you know, just let the animals in there. They can eat them too, and get rid of them.

Why not? Well, yeah, it's pretty obvious that most of those who are hardcore race traitors, you know, these virtue signaling assholes who just walk around in town with their non-whites, you know, they go to the cell phone store to buy them a cellular phone, like, oh, look at me, I'm giving something to a nigger. Meanwhile, here you are with, like, trying to pay for your pay as you go flip phone in the store or something like that. You can hardly even, you know, you got holes in your shoes or something like that, and this nigger's got, like, brand new Nike shoes or whatever it is that they obsess over.

So, so much for the white privilege, it's just obviously a complete lie. Hey, at least they'll look nice when they're in the ground, okay? Yeah, I guess that's true enough. So, about, tell me about the history of your, you had just said you wanted to discuss the history of your childhood.

Oh, yeah, yeah. I was just kind of, like, throwing stuff out there at that point. But yeah, I started in the movement, I guess, proper my senior year-ish of high school.

And originally, I was, when I was a middle schooler, I went through a phase, although I was nowhere near, you know, at a mature level of knowledge. But, you know, as a middle schooler, I'd, you know, wear armbands. And, you know, I was known as the Nazi kid.

And I got in quite a bit of trouble. But, of course, because of that trouble, you know, I had to kind of, like, get my head down. And, of course, with all the brainwashing and stuff, you know, I kind of forgot a lot of the stuff that I did do.

But I've always been racially conscious, you know, of all, I've never have had quite the affinity for non-whites. And it's mainly because I've been around them my whole life, that a lot of people, I see their reaction to them as, oh, they're just like me. And I, they always made me sick to my stomach.

And I could never get away from them. And I finally got to and it was nice for a while, you know, but now occasionally, I have to deal with the occasional mud scum. But, you know, it's... Yeah.

So I guess you grew up in a city then or something or a more populous area? I originally grew up around Kalamazoo area. And which that's, that's Niggerville. But... I guess.

Yeah. And then I moved kind of north from there. And I grew up in like a small town area.

But, you know, of course, you got the race traders and the family and you got friends of family and all that other good shit. Yeah, yeah. For me, I grew up basically literally in the middle of nowhere in Canada in the woods.

And there I never even saw a nigger for almost the whole of my life, except like one or two. When I went to the nearby city, like which was five hours away from the town I was living in. The only people in my town were like a bunch of redskins and white people.

There was one Chinese restaurant with a Chinese kid. Of course, there were Jews. I never really understood who they were, though.

They just struck me as like darker haired white people. And then, you know, there's like one black guy in the town. So I never knew almost anything about them.

So when I was a teenager, I actually listened to rap music for a couple of years and became sort of a wigger because I had no idea. You know, this is like, oh, this culture is interesting. You know, it's something, you know, powerful and, you know, aggressive and so on.

So I delved into that. But once you start experiencing them in real life in more detail, you know, more intimately, I guess you could say, then you immediately cease to have that sort of perception, because that's just a sort of mediatized, you know, Hollywoodized version, black entertainment television version of them. Yeah, pretty much all non-whites are more or less degrees of vileness for the most part.

And that's all white, a lot of white people. That's most of the perception of them is from the television, you know, from what they get from Hollywood. They don't have any real time experience, except for maybe the better ones, I guess, in their quotes.

The ones that are more quiet, because they're a small minority, a tiny minority.

Otherwise, if they acted their natural way, then they'd either be in jail, or they'd be on the streets or, you know, be looked upon too hostilely by the population. Yeah, well, you put them in their own crowd, you know, they'll act their natural way.

Yeah, and even I grew up in high school, I was in a smaller town. So you had your like, handful of blacks or handful of Mexicans, you know, but they majority of the time behave themselves, because it was also one of those small towns where, you know, every truck had a Confederate flag off the back of it, you know, they, and people didn't take much shit there. Yeah, of course, they're, you know, they're, Oh, I'm not racist, you know, most people will be, Oh, I'm not racist.

But you know, Yeah, it's easy not to be racist when you don't have to deal with other so called races. But once you start having to, then you, you'll have to live a total hypocrite life if you can't face that reality. You know, if you think in your 90s, that you can just throw money at non whites, and they're going to become, you know, just like good little white people, then you're obviously very delusional, and don't have much understanding of what you're speaking of, of actual practical experience.

Yeah, my attitude in high school became I'm not racist, I hate everyone equally, because, of course, I don't like non whites. And then, of course, a lot of these white people, they're not really likable either. So it's like, you know what, screw all of them.

Yeah, I guess. I mean, of course, I'm not anti white. It's just a lot of scum that needs to be taken care of.

The notion of racism is just an emotive term to try to browbeat people into silence anyway. Yeah. And also to browbeat them to accept the, their own extermination and replacement to for whites to accept an endless limit of, or limitless invasion of non whites into their territory.

And if they don't accept it, then they become a so called racist, which means somebody who allegedly has some sort of negative feature that discriminates negatively against those who are not white. But of course, that's not bad, that's good. But the values of the society are bad and not good.

And so it becomes an inverted world, where everything that's good is bad and everything that's bad is good. So the heroic and intelligent and creative white man becomes a violent, hateful, fascist, imperialist, racist, sexist, devil, earth raping demon, and everybody else becomes an innocent suffering victim. You know, the sort of Jewish pathos, again, manifests itself in that secular humanist discourse, which is just designed as a sort of weapon to qualify any non secular humanist or non Christian, non egalitarian discourse, as basically heresy, as sort of devilish talk, something that is inherently bad and has a moral imperative bound up with it to, to be destroyed or to be negated, which is basically anything pro white is off the table, anything, anything that is not pro white or that is anti white is on the table right away by default, in terms of hiring preference in terms of what is permitted speech and what is permitted in terms of symbols and cultural artifacts and everything else.

So now you have even the Dixie flag being qualified as a symbol of so called hatred. So, you know, after a while, white population can't help but recognize that they're under attack and that every single thing, even remotely related to them is qualified as hatred, which means, you know, that they're setting us up for genocide with the rhetoric of genocide, which just proceeds or precedes rather, the actual physical attacks like in South Africa, you know, the sort of gradual, you know, slow, slow, infrequent, you know, more and more frequent attacks, not necessarily concentrated. And they're already doing that now with those nigger movements.

That's, you know, picking it up to a higher level of intensity of conflict. Yeah, and a lot of the better elements are going to get the point and realize, okay, they're coming after me, because I'm white, and because they're challenging us as a race, they need to be answered as a race. I think that's something James Mason said.

Makes perfect sense. But I still, a lot of the worse elements are still gonna, you know, try to be like, well, well, I'm not white, then, you know, they'll deny their whiteness just so they can, you know, get more Gibbs in the system. Yeah, basically, they'll do anything they can short of harming themselves excessively to, you know, derive whatever sort of material comforts, because their whole worldview now has been restricted to the phonic tellurian, the material plane, that's all they live for.

And they are indeed, like the Jews call them, goyim. They eat, sleep, fornicate, propagate, and maximize pleasure and minimize pain. And outside of that, they don't really have any consciousness of any reality.

And they even deny that reality, because their worldview is secular humanism. Even if it's Christian, it's basically purely materialist. So they can't go beyond that.

And so for that reason, since they're just living for bread alone, then they'll do anything for a scrap of bread, even, you know, licking the feet of niggers or bowing their head before the Jews, like a pathetic slave for the slave caller, or, you know, vaccination or masks, or whatever it may be. Yeah, and I tell people, and I like telling the conservatives this, the ones that are like, can you just stop thinking about color, please? I tell them, you either kneel, or you don't. Okay, you're either white or you're not.

You're either going to kneel to them, or you're not going to kneel to them. If you keep sitting on the fence, one of the sides is going to shoot you off of it. All right, so pick a side.

Yeah, that's what I've conceived of, too, is that if you're a fence sitter, you're just going to be ripped off the fence one way or the other, or you'll be ripped in half from both sides. So you don't really have a choice. But it's mainly, it takes people with more fortitude, more courage, and more moral character in the sense of Aryan, traditional, heroic consciousness, to be able to actually oppose what's going on.

Otherwise, it's more of the feminine, female type of emotional, pathos, and sentimentalist type mentality that most of the so-called males of the society have. You know, they're only interested in fighting when it's approved by the Jew system. They're not when it's master approved violence.

Yeah, yeah, yeah. But they're complete cowards everywhere else. You know, they like to compare themselves to, oh, 1776 will commence again.

You guys don't have the balls to pull the trigger. I literally watched this year, all these motherfuckers go into the Capitol building with their guns and not fire a shot. And they're pussies, that's it.

They go in, they wave their guns around because it's just phallic symbols to them. It's what's missing between their legs. And they don't fire a shot.

They don't do anything but bitch and complain, and then fall into line when master's whip cracks down. Yeah, and I think the Jews know that pretty much, that people have become far too, you know, pacifistic and materialistic. And so for that reason, they're just like, okay, we'll call your bluff.

And then the whites of that kind, the conservators, just hold up. And they're like, yeah, yeah, I don't agree with what you're saying. Jew.

And then the Jew just like, stands behind their police state and laughs in their face, basically. So that's why I think Alex Linder's strategy of attacking the conservatives is one of the major points of attack to try to, you know, shift the consciousness of white people. Yeah, David Lane wrote an article way back in the day about, you know, saying, hey, how about you get with your buddies and call up? What's his name? Lim Lim? Rush Limbaugh? Yeah, that guy, that piece of shit.

Damn, cancer didn't get him. That was sad. But fucking go call him up.

And in your team and just talk about pro white things, put it around there. And no, we're not going to get a lot of people doing that. But a lot of people who do eventually end up on our side are from, you know, the right wing.

That's why there's so many right wing tendencies in our movement is because we're all from the right wing, at least most of us. At the same time, that's why they created the right wing in the first place, the Jews, as a sort of steam valve for pent up aggression. And then, you know, because that's why it's symbolized by the elephant, this sort of lumbering beast that doesn't really want to move anywhere.

You know, it's conservative, it's stuck in its ways. And then you've got the drunken donkey that's swaying back and forth crazily, leftism. So they, you know, put them against one another dialectically.

It's, you know, that way, it's always they're always moving forward toward the cliff, which is where the Jew wants you. I thought the Democrats picked that symbol because they were a bunch of assholes. I didn't really make that connection.

Well, it could that could be true. But yeah, basically, it's to represent so far as I know, I think it's actually a representation of the Egyptian set. Also, you know, that sort of strange animal, animal deity in Egypt, that Michael Aquino named his Temple of Set after.

And that's like a sort of left hand path, Jewish lunar deity. Yeah, I'll be honest, I'm not really familiar with Egyptian mythology all that much. Well, it's basically a distinction between Ra, who is the sun god, the solar principle, and Set, which is the lunar principle.

Okay, so basically, that's what the donkey is. I think the donkey also refers to Yaho, or something like that, like a Gnostic conception, which was Jewish also. Pauly speaks of that in some of his works.

So basically, what it is, is just a sort of principle of chaos, of emotionalism that creates changes by virtue of its, you know, its inherent chaos. And the elephant is sort of dragged along with it, just like the conservatives, they can't remain where they are, because they're being forced by the leftists to react, which and their reaction is always just, you know, folding, folding in and conceding power, only not as much as the leftists wanted in the beginning. Just, you know, more and more and more, and then it just spirals down, you know, ever more chaotically.

Or I guess you could say it spirals outward, you know, like one of those sprinklers. That's sort of like how society becomes totally dispersed, or you know, flies apart, basically. So all the changes that these leftists are introducing, you know, they know that they're not going to get 90% of them accepted necessarily at a certain point in time, but then so long as they get 10%, then it just moves them toward that goal more and more.

And then obviously, the white people, because they're too trapped in their materialistic worldview, they want to be comfortable, they don't want to be taken out of their comfort zone, because that might entail personal risk or injury or loss. And so loss of job, loss of reputation. So they'll just, you know, quietly, try to oppose it to whatever extent doesn't threaten their comfort.

But that's not good enough. You don't have that choice. So you had said in your notes, that you wanted to discuss the armed struggle versus the mass struggle.

So basically, in a way that sort of dovetails with that topic, because the mass is like conservatism and voting, that's obviously ineffective and not working. So I don't know how many times it's going to fail until a lot of these idiots realize it. Because I mean, okay, let's Dylan Roof.

No. Was there was it a successful run? Maybe in the bigger picture? No. But what did it cause? What did that one hit cause? Fear, terror, you know, they don't like the idea of, you know, them getting shot up in their churches.

So in Minecraft, let's say there was 10 of them, 20 of them. That may very well be the case. I'm pretty sure that most of those are actually false flag actions, though, on the part of the Jews, because there's all sorts of cabalistic numerology bound up with them.

And they, they always occur on certain dates, you know, within the sacrifice season of the Jews and stuff like that. Or, alternatively, they'll have, you know, sort of, you know, a certain number of people allegedly died. And those, you know, those numbers will add up to like cabalistic numbers with certain meaning.

So I think most of these are just fake events. But at the same time, you know, if the mass strategy doesn't work, what can be done? Otherwise, I know one guy says that the only thing that can be done is basically just community building, and sort of, you know, trying to minimize damage to white people through propaganda and stuff like this, and just pooling resources together, and trying to avoid any sort of conflict, basically, of that more hot stuff. Oh, yeah, a lot of people, white people, especially if because not everyone's going to be able to do fighting.

That's not a thing that everyone can do. You know, because you have people who are older, you have people who just that's not in them, you know, they, they don't have the guts or whatever. But white genes are white genes at the end of the day.

And a lot of people, they should move away from the Nicaraguan zones. And we should try to network and pool in certain areas, because this country is going to balkanize, it's going to pull apart along racial lines. And we need to have our own piece of the pie when the dust settles.

Yeah, I think that whether that's an inevitability, or no, you know, because the Turner Diaries, basically, is like a sort of zero sum presentation, you know, where it becomes sort of like a opposition to the system for the destruction of the system from within. And, you know, it just says the whole system is basically eventually taken over. But even then they had like California was taken over first, right? Like it's a sort of isolated region.

So probably that will almost inevitably occur whether people like it or not, or wanted or not. Also look at the time, the time Turner Diaries is written was in the late 70s. A lot of the demographic shift that is causing this current breaking apart hadn't really occurred yet.

So what Pierce was looking through is what was, you know, going through at his time, and he made a lot of great predictions. The book is almost spot on a lot of areas. But the over the decades as, you know, blacks began to pool here, whites here, Hispanics here, stuff like that.

And then the growing racial tensions that we can see now that it's going to just break apart. I do think eventually that we need to take over not just the continent, but the world, in my opinion. Yeah, I'd agree with Claston with his Raha, this planet is all ours.

Because obviously, in a literal sense, karmically, we created the whole world thousands of years ago, and we're the only humans on this earth at that time. And even subsequently, non whites being more beast men, you men, you don't really have a spirit. So they're not, you know, spirit men or you men.

But yeah, with respect to balkanization. You know, even though I'm pretty suspicious, I'm thinking that a lot of this claims of the balkanization thing are a psyop to try to deliberately, you know, introduce the United Nations into the United States or something like that to try to, you know, get the enemy foreign powers to have a more of a foot in the country to tear it apart even more. And then just sort of like, you know, surround white people and then just destroy them or something like that.

At the same time, if it happens, it happens. So, you know, you'll want to be prepared for that. Yeah, I mean, but balkanization or not, the UN, as long as there's chaos, that's all the excuse they need.

They don't need, I mean, that's why I get a question a lot of these, you know, and I'm not denying psyops. I know, there are certainly, you know, the government does like to make false flags and, you know, things like that. I just, a lot of people that go, well, this is a psyop for this, and then I just go, but even if it's not, it still makes sense that this is going to be an inevitability.

The system is going to fall in some way, shape, or form. And we can see that, you know, if, of course the Jews are going to cash in on it, you know, they want to, they're going to try to get their fingers in, like the NFAC, of course they're funded by, you know, that he has his handlers, you know, duh, that should be a kind of a foregone conclusion. Yeah, it just depends if they can actually maintain power without being exposed and opposed.

So, I don't think a lot of people in this world are really so keen on living in a world being persecuted as a minority in their own country, you know. Not everybody is like that, obviously. And it's just a question of radicalizing more people to get them to understand the inevitability, because that's what happened in the African colonies, too, is that, you know, they brought the United Nations in there and then they just murdered all the people there in, like, Belgium, Congo, and stuff, when they couldn't leave.

Those who couldn't leave in those areas, they were just shot in half in sawmills and stuff like that. Yep. But the more that we reach the reachable, and the more that we radicalize the already initiated, you know, and the more that thought becomes action, the better off we're going to be.

Because, yeah, we can try to look three years down the pipe, or so on, so forth. But especially, like, we've seen this this year, you know, things like to change rapidly. You know, what's the saying, a plan doesn't last till after the first move of the battle, or something like that? Not familiar with the phrase.

But, like, nothing goes to plan. You know, you can make all these plans, but then, you know, what's going to happen is going to, you know, you're going to end up with a monkey wrench, and at the end of the day, so you kind of have to go move with as things are going, you know. Have to be adaptable, basically.

Yeah. Have to have just general plans, and then particularize those plans in your own particular area. It's all not necessarily too complicated, either.

I was talking to this one guy who's saying that a good way to go is to have organizations that can receive funding, and so forth, that are not explicitly racist or political, that are like some type of, you know, like an associate organization. Like a front? What? Kind of like a front? Yeah. Yeah.

So, they're basically, they're taking donations, and they're just, like, funding actual racist groups. Yeah, something like that might be a viable strategy, even if it's just a bunch of different people that gradually builds more power through setting up security companies, private military contractor companies, or something like that, as a cover for their own, you know, preparations, and then build, like, a private army, sort of. But, you know, as they're digitalizing the currency, because especially in the U.S., we can see now that they're definitely making a move.

You know, the coin shortage, you know, occurring, and they're trying to get everyone on pay cards. They're trying to make sure everyone has a pay card, because they want to go paperless with their money. That's so they can, you know, control people's finances better, because now everyone's money, it's not, you can't take your digital currency and shove it in a jar and put it under your bed.

No, that's a computer that's in their bank that's completely under their control. At the same time, wealth is always land and buildings attached to the land, and tangible, movable property, and human capital. So what white nationalists or white people need to do in general, is basically have their own digital currency, and then also, you know, work within the system as well, but have their own currency restricted amongst themselves.

But then, of course, I would presuppose that they're actually honorable, of course. And there's that big character problem that we have. Yeah, but if there was a means to keep it, you know, highly secure, a sort of like intra-white digital currency, then that would be a means of bartering and exchange between them.

But of course, most people in this movement are very poor. So maybe not very poor, but you know, not wealthy. So obviously, that's not going to be the best option.

But it's something to throw out there as like an idea. Yeah, get the ball moving amongst those who are, who can sort of see the smoke of the fires that are, you know, coming to their particular area. I'm like, I think it's Ithaca, New York had Ithaca dollars too.

That's sort of like within the only usable within that particular city. So that's another thing that could be done. That the local town or something has its own currency that only works there.

And then they can just have like, you know, their own exchange, their own currency exchange with whatever system currency exists. And farther down the pipe as the system starts collapsing under its own rotten weight, as power becomes more localized, then, you know, centralized on the national scale, you're probably going to see a lot more of that a lot of local currencies that separate themselves from the, you know, the national one. Yeah, that's why if people are not already situated in a place where they want to be, or where they have to be, then they should, you know, try to relocate, obviously to sustainable area, you know, and then you just start doing it now, you know, while things are still calm, as you can see, you know, things are starting to escalate.

And you're when the chaos is, when the boogaloo comes, you're not going to be able to do that, because people are going to have a closed border policy around their towns, and ain't nobody coming in here. You know, they're not going to be taking refugees. That's a sad reality.

But the actual reality of the consciousness of most people now is that social Darwinist. You know, they look upon white people who are perfectly decent people as more of a criminal than they would upon those who are not white, because they're still brainwashed with their anti racist thing, that they'd actually be more friendly to non whites than they would to just some random white guy, you know, don't suspect the random white guy being like a meth addict or a drug dealer or something like that. On the other side of that coin, though, the communities that do that, you know, when they end up all slaughtered and stuff, because all of their pets turned on them, the ones that will survive will be the ones that figure it out the hard way.

Yeah. Or, or the ones that survive will be the ones that are have more healthy instincts and don't tie themselves in with the non whites. All the churches and people like that, that are bound up with the non whites to whatever extent they are, you know, the non whites know where they live, they know what they have, they know who they are, that they're weak, they don't have guns, and they don't believe in guns.

And therefore, they're a sitting duck, basically. And what's going to take place is what needs to take place, obviously, is the massive cleansing, I just think nature is going to do a lot of the job for us. You know, of course, you know, we're gonna have to do our own thing.

But, you know, with the weaker and worse elements of our own race are going to get weeded out, because they are either going to have to realize that we need to abandon this liberal way of looking at the world, or you're going to die. Yeah, of course, the sad reality is that there's all sorts of decent people who will also die. But nevertheless, that's just the harsh realities of nature at a basic material level.

Nature doesn't care about individuals. No. And it's a sad, well, I mean, in an overall sense, yeah.

Yeah, it doesn't care about anything, because it is not really anything, it's just a sort of fiction, you know, reality is reality. And, you know, the stronger force overcomes the weaker force. You know, so if you're weaker, then you're going to be overcome, even if it's considered socially acceptable, you know.

Yeah, and as these artificial barriers start coming down, the system collapses, because a lot of this, the only reason why a lot of the scum is allowed to live for as long as they do, is because of all this artificial man-made civilization. As soon as that stuff goes away, they're going to die off like flies. Yeah, yeah, that's what O. T. Gunnarsson predicted in his book about the mestizos, and they're, you know, they'll be all dying of disease in California and stuff like that.

They'll just be, you know, they'll spread it around their own communities. And the Turner Diaries is the same, it speaks about the same sort of thing, which is, of course, you know, an inevitable prediction, pretty much guaranteed to occur, because all the non-whites live amongst their own communities, and they always live in population dense areas, for the most part. Although, I guess I've heard in the States, it's somewhat different, that they're more, like, spread out a little bit more.

But in Canada, it's mainly, you know, there's not as many non-whites in the smaller towns, at least there historically haven't been. Around here, it really depends on, like, the Blacks like to crowd around in the cities. You'll see, like, a few token ones in the towns, like, they'll live in town.

None of them are going to live, like, out in the boonies, you know. But in those small towns around here, most of the non-whites you'll find are either, you know, spics, or whatever left from the natives, or, you know, things like that. You won't see a lot of Blacks, which is good, because their faces are disgusting, but.

Yeah, pretty much inevitably, I'm sure that they, if this occurs within the near one-year type of time range, that they'll just blame it on the coronavirus, you know. Or maybe they'll release bioweapons or something, you know, and claim it's, you know, just the coronavirus is flaring up again, or something like that. So, you can probably tell what they're going to be doing, what their plans are.

But almost certainly, they've got all sorts of racially specific bioweapons that they'll be dumping around. Right where I'm living, they've got a class four biological laboratory outside of a NATO base, so that's, like, half an hour away from here. And this town is, like, a sort of Zionist stronghold in Canada, you know.

The Jews run every facet of the whole place, and now I'm being targeted for so-called hate speech here through allegedly distributing propoganda and so forth. So, I'm basically a target here. But then, if I leave, I'll probably just be tailed after over there anyway.

Yeah. So, I'll basically be in the crosshairs. Who was that German musician that worked with Pierce that the American FBI, like, arrested him and, like, sent him back to Germany, or something like that? I'm not too sure.

I'm trying to remember. With respect to Pierce, I think that he was actually allowed in Germany or something like that. Yeah, we spoke at, like, an NPD thing.

And that was supposed to be, like, a sign that he was a Fed or something people are claiming? I don't really know. Yeah. I don't... Everyone's a Fed.

That's actually a big problem I have with Renegade, is that everyone's a Fed, you know? Everyone is a shell, you know? Why? Because they disagree with me or something stupid, you know? And it's like, show me their pay stubs. Like, show me some actual proof that they're Fed, not just, oh, they were allowed in Germany, okay? But how do you know that there weren't, you know, specific, you know, conditions that they were allowed in Germany, you know? How long were they allowed in Germany? Or, okay, fine, whatever they were allowed in Germany, you know? Yeah, you got to have more details than just blanket statements and sweeping generalizations or assertions. Because I think a lot of this, you know, everyone is a Fed is a psyop in itself, because all it does is sow distrust and disunity.

And, you know, you can't tell anyone about an organization without them going, well, what if it's just a honeypot? You know, because no one trusts anybody. Yeah, and I can understand that, given the consequences of, you know, being trapped in one of those honeypots that you might have some severe consequences. Oh, yeah.

But, yeah, I remember just the other day, I tried to comment on Renegade, and then they were attacking me because the name is Loki. And they were saying that I was a Jew and so forth, because of the reference to what they interpret to be the Nordic tradition, where, according to them, Loki is a Jew or something like that. Yeah, that I think that comes from Thule Productions.

Yeah, Thule Productions. I'm like, it's not Thule in perspective, it's Thule Productions. I always flip those two around.

But yeah, that's one thing I disagree with Stefan on, is I don't think Loki is a Jew. Like, I get like a propagandistic interpretation that might be okay, but like, as a literal theological interpretation, I think it's more apt to say he's a force of constructive chaos. Yeah, that's what I looked upon it as.

That's why I changed my name to that, actually, because I looked upon it as sort of like a catalyst for change, like the Negretto stage in Hermetic Alchemy, basically breaking down or blackening of the current state of things, you know, bringing it to something new, introducing changes. Yeah. And that's still what I looked upon it as, because like we had said at the beginning with Snorri Sturluson, you know, that guy was influenced by Christianity and or was a Christian himself.

So I don't really trust his twist of the Edda, because it incorporates all sorts of extraneous elements that weren't in there in the original. Yeah, yeah. And you got to read between the lines.

You got to also, you know, read this book here, read this book here, read this book here, know a little bit of Old Norse, so you can translate the original text to really kind of get a grasp on what it's really saying. Yeah, and that's a big endeavor, indeed. And the thing is, yeah, I don't really look upon the Nordic tradition in that sense, in a sense of like the Germanic, Icelandic, in that particular form, as the be-all and the end-all of the Aryan tradition anyway, because even though that was somewhat the cradle of our civilization, Hyperborea, Atlantis, you know, that's sort of just a particular instance of that tradition from like thousands of years later.

That was just like a Religions aren't, they don't, they change. Just like languages, just like the cultures of people, they change over time. You know, it's not an accurate snapshot depiction of what our ancestors, you know, six, seven, eight thousand years ago believed in.

It's what they believed in a thousand years ago. Yeah, it's sort of like a morphological nature of culture, you know. Culture is like a sort of, what would it be called, an epiphenomenon of consciousness, of the collective consciousness, of the racial soul, you know.

It changes with the environment, it changes with conditions and circumstances to whatever extent, just as it changes in itself. So, it's all bound up in like a dynamic system, you know. Like nature said, the self-propelling wheel.

Aristotle conceived of it as the entelechy, this sort of being that sustains itself through itself and yet undergoes change at the same time, or changes that which is around itself. So, a dynamic system, I guess you could say, is basically what a race is at all levels, individually and as a collective. Basically, that's Julius Evola's conception too in the Synthesis of Racial Doctrine, which I'm reading right now.

That's a pretty interesting book. If you've never read that, I'd recommend that you get it. I could actually send it to you if you want for free.

Yeah, if you got like a PDF, you could send me or something. Yeah, I'll be honest, the only Evola I've read like completely through is his Metaphysics of War. I've kind of skimmed the Revolt Against the Modern World, but it's kind of like it's on my reading list.

I got, I think right now I'm reading, I was reading Livy's History of Rome, and I'm also reading Who We Are by Pierce. I got quite the reading list. Yeah, good.

Obviously, a very good, you know, occupation, better than TV or something of that sort. But yeah, Roman history is definitely something that people need to reacquire themselves with, especially from like the original sources, even though they're obviously translations, unless you speak Latin very proficiently, not the best to try to dabble around and like, you know, trying to piece it together. Well, yeah, I encourage everyone to actually try to learn some basic Latin, because it, one thing I learned by, I took German two years in high school.

And one thing I took away from that class is learning a foreign language makes you more proficient in your own language, you know, because you're able to look at another language and how it works, especially if it's one that's similar to English. And that also reflects back on how your language works. Yeah, because English is sort of like a later development of, or a sort of synthesis, or what would it be called, a syncretism of different languages that became synthesized together.

Yeah, because originally, English was a Western Germanic, it was spoken by the Saxons, some Frisians, the Jutes, and the Angles, although the English, Angle dialect of it was, had a lot of Norse, more Northern dialectical similarities, like, and the Saxons would say, we sind, which is similar to modern German, we sind. And, but, and the Angles would say, we are, which is more similar to the Old Norse, which I can't remember, I think it's like, we are, or something like that. Which means we are, which in modern English, we are, which, you know.

So that's how English started. And then of course, you know, as the Anglo-Saxons got Christianized Latin, some Latin was introduced, and then the Normans brought more Latin, indirectly Latin, but from Norman French, which also brought in a little bit of Old Norse, because Norman French was kind of a, did have a lot of Old Norse influence, obviously, because, you know, the Normans. And then of course, it developed from there to Middle English, and then early modern English with Shakespeare.

Yeah, if you read something like Geoffrey Chaucer, or something like that, from like, an earlier period, you can really see the developmental changes of the English language. Like, I don't know what would be the, even prior to that point, I think there was actually an English Edda, I'm not too sure. I think L.A. Waddell translated it, or something like that.

I haven't heard of that. I certainly look into it. That sounds cool, actually.

It would be interesting to compare the Old Norse to the Old English. Yeah, it must have been afterwards. I'm not too sure exactly the history of it.

But yeah, it's definitely, there's lots of linguistic cognates between all these languages, because they're all Ario-Germanic, or whatever you wish to call them, Arian-Nordic. So it's good to delve into the actual origins of the traditions. And of course, you can never really know it through purely linguistic means, because that is just a sort of abstraction of the consciousness of the Arian.

Yeah, it's just one piece in the puzzle. Yeah. You know, understanding each piece of the puzzle, too, you know.

So understanding language, but also understanding all the other aspects to the culture, obviously, is much better. A lot of people like to focus just on the language of it. They only consider the linguistics of it.

They don't go any deeper or anywhere else than that. Of course, language is a living system. And you can't separate that from real life.

And then of course, life is never really like mainstream anthropology, or biological sciences conceives of it as a purely materialistic, mechanistic structure, you know, that people are just, or whites, Arians are just these beings that can be substituted for Chinese or Negroes. Yeah, yeah, we're just all interchangeable economic units, you know, culture just falls from the sky, you know, it doesn't originate from anywhere. Totally.

Yeah. So if you're, that's sort of like a theoretical pulling out of the rug from underneath reality, you know, just sort of, you're living your life in this fantasy land, that is just a jumble of abstractions, everything becomes mere numbers or mere so called concepts without any history, you can't have a concept or meaning without the history of it, history in the sense of its life, like Heidegger speaks about a lot, the organic, you know, the organic nature of the thing, in its development, that it, you know, etymology and so forth, if you don't, you don't seek to understand things in that way, in its, you know, in conjunction with the actual culture of the people, then you can never understand the meaning of what they're saying. And so to, you know, to infinitely specific, particular conjuncture with reality.

So if you want to study something, you have to go there in person, you have to experience that. And then of course, you'd have to experience it at a higher level of consciousness yourself, if you are the type who is capable of that, if you're the ancestor of that being, because you can't understand it. If you're a Negro who goes and lives in Iceland, then, you know, you start speaking Icelandic and so forth, and living in a cold place, which even though thousands of years ago was actually a warm place in the golden age of Hyperborea, even then, you know, it's not appropriate for you, it's not authentic.

Your authentic culture is something that's, that you can, you can resonate with at all levels, you can attune yourself to it. Yeah. Culture is more than just language and cuisine.

And, you know, although those are very important, like even just looking at food, the food of different cultures tells you a lot about those people, what they value and what they believe in, you know. Are you familiar with that bit channel called Jewbergstein? No, it sounds great though, I'm gonna have to look them up. Jewbergstein? Yeah, and basically on his channel, he's got all sorts of, of footage of cannibalism from niggers and so forth.

That's basically what their cuisine is, ultimately, is just basically surrounding and swarming an animal, just hacking it to pieces and like ripping pieces of its flesh off. Yeah, that's actual video footage, that's not an opinion. That's what their cuisine is, literally, in the most literal sense.

Yeah. And I mean, I just released a video where I talked about how the Chinese, you know, what they like to do with dogs and aborted fetuses, you know. Yeah, I'm sure that the abortion industry in the white countries or in the countries created by whites, now occupied by Jews, all of that is just like a sort of hamburger joint for Chinese and for the Jews themselves, maybe, you know, they probably eat dead fetuses.

There's this one example that I spoke of yesterday with someone about how some Jewish doctor had stored like thousands or hundreds of fetuses in his place in shoeboxes. Oh, really? Yeah, he was arrested for it and so forth. And then his defense was that he was traumatized by the Holocaust or something.

Bear, come into this room, we'll traumatize you. Yeah. It's okay, it's just a shower, you know.

Yeah, basically, all these types, what are fallaciously called races, are basically, you know, beasts for the most part, in most cases. And they behave like that, they act like it, so you can infer the inner from the outer, you know, if you have a high enough mind that can go beyond that level yourself. If you're looking at the world through white eyes, if you see the non-white, you know, you observe them in their natural habitat in a sort of not, you know, like a voyage of the beagle, Darwinian voyage.

You see them and then how could that possibly, if you have an honest, if you're intellectually honest, how could you conceive of them as a human being, as a spirit man, because they don't behave like that. They just, you know, rip and tear and bite the heads off chickens in voodoo rituals. They, you know, like the Negroes in Negro Land, that book, I don't know if you've read that.

No, I haven't read that one, no. Yeah, it's from like the 19th century by some African explorers. I think it's Livingston and people of that sort, the famous African explorers from Britain and from France.

So, and basically it's just a compilation of their diaries and what they actually saw. They saw whole meat markets of nigger body parts being strung up like at a butcher shop in a lot of these tribes that they encountered. So.

Yeah, I don't recommend eating that for anybody. You might get AIDS or something. Well, for them, apparently what I've heard about the nigger, that their physiology, digestive physiology, that they can basically eat almost anything like a goat.

Really? Yeah. Yeah. They must have like some sort of very highly developed or very highly acidic or something, stomach acid or, you know, their digestive organs enable that to actually go down smoothly, like a, you know, a bucket of ice cream or something like that.

That's interesting. I didn't know that. Yeah.

It's like a bucket of blood or a bucket of gore. Well, that's definitely a testament to their state of being. So, you know, you can draw, you can infer the inner from the outer through sound observation at all levels.

Like the higher your mind is, the more you can understand the other at a spiritual level as well, whereas they can't because they don't have the spirit. So, yeah. I think I'll stick with my pasta and bread and stuff like that.

So, have you been influenced by that veganator guy? Actually, I used to be a vegan. Yeah, but it doesn't work. I just, it's just all me though.

I don't have the self-control for it. I'll be honest. I don't have the self-discipline for it.

I know for in seriousness that you cannot be a vegan if you're a white person. Oh, yeah. We're omnivores.

We're supposed to eat both. You have to. I mean, if someone can be a vegan, you know, more power to them, in my opinion.

I don't really care about what people are eating as long as, you know, it's not your collective group, then you should obviously care. Well, yeah, yeah. I mean, obviously that, but I mean, like, if they don't like eating meat, then I guess more for me then.

Well, yeah, I'm just saying that, you know, that's another one of the sign-offs on the part of the Jews to get white people weak, generated because that diet is basically a death diet that will eventually cause, like, physical degeneration and atrophy because I did that for three years and it basically, although I've recovered from it, it caused, like, a lot of physical degeneration. Yeah, our ancestors were hunters and we weren't hunting grass. We were hunting deer.

Go back farther. We were hunting mammoths. You know, we were hunting them and eating them.

Man, the carnivore. We were carnivores, but we also did pick berries and, you know, when we started farming, we did grow grains and things like that, but we did continue to hunt and grow livestock for eating. So, meat eating is something that's part of us, you know, there's no separating it from that.

That's a biological reality. Yeah, and that's why I suspect people who are pushing that diet for a long time and who claim that they don't have any problems because you will have problems. So, that's why Renegade, in my opinion, they're some type of operative because, you know, they've been around for quite a while and, you know, they're still pushing their vegan diet, not to mention all the other foibles that they put forth.

That was my favorite, the flat earth one. Yeah, that was actually just a conception invented by Jews through the Catholic Church because they were claiming that Jerusalem was the center of the universe. They like to think so, don't they? Yeah, that was what they forced on people at that time.

You had to believe that. Now, you have to believe that everything's equal and that there's no such thing as race and no such thing as all brothers in Christ, you know. Yeah, basically, that's what they're working towards.

Zion government there, so. Yeah, and yeah, that's another thing that they spend all this time talking about flat earth and, you know, veganism and all these other kind of like, I mean, I don't mind like having discussions about other topics, but they push it way too far, you know. Yeah, it's just another testament to their, that they have an agenda.

Why would you do that? I think they do have an agenda. They act like a cult. I don't like making, I don't like accusing people when I don't have proof because I don't have proof, but I do notice the same things and they raise a lot of red flags in my mind too.

It's good always to articulate, you know, those sorts of things instead of trying to be overly charitable and accommodative because then you might be accommodating disinformation agents and stuff like that. Yeah, that too, yeah. My position is basically that everybody who claims to be a guru in this movement or, you know, some sort of advocate should be scrutinized to the greatest extent possible, you know, because obviously that's the only way you can weed out any sort of infiltrators.

Otherwise, and interestingly and ironically enough, they were always banning me from trying to submit articles. So, I got somebody else to submit one of my articles today, which the topic was titled, How to Detect Agents. So, it's on there right now on their website.

So, haha. You did, right? You know, they were banning me and they're kicking me out and preventing me from even submitting articles. And yet, they just take an article from somebody else that I got them to submit.

So, it shows that- Well, another thing they're big on is, you know, their whole thing with Siege, like a series like Siege started getting big, they like went on the attack. They never tell anyone to read the book. They have all this bullshit to say about James Mason, which I mean, I don't know a lot about him on a personal level, but he seems all right to me.

I mean, I haven't noticed anything horrible. Like his newer books, I kind of disagree with. I think he's kind of fallen into the Christ insanity, but I'll read them to see what he has to say.

I don't think he's a bad guy, you know? I disagree with you there. I've read Siege and yeah, I agree with the critique of the movement for the most part. But the only conclusion he really puts forth is sort of like, you know, sit and wait for the collapse and or, you know, a lot of implied advocacy of terrorist activity and stuff like that.

And then from there, he's pushing the Christian identity, which is definitely a psyop. So, yeah, you don't want that. Okay, yeah.

But still, you know, Siege is all right in terms of its critique. It's like negative, critical aspect. I would say that that's legitimate enough.

Yeah. And but people should, people should read it, but they don't want people to read it. And what's the reason behind that? You know, Definitely question begging.

Yeah, obviously, should be as what would the word be scrutinous, if that's the word, as possible. But obviously, you don't want to get too paranoid and tied up in this sort of, you know, everyone's an agent type thing, because then that sort of puts you into the state of you're not really progressing or doing more positive type of stuff. It's just, you know, whack-a-mole type stuff.

You're trying to beat down on the agents or whatever. Yeah. And when I, my channels just started getting, but actually, I think, yeah, I made a video, and I posted it on the Tribune, and where I notched Siege, because I was on the renegade train.

And that's when my channel started getting big. But so I was anti Siege for a while. But then I turned around like, what the hell's in this book, I'm just going to pick it up, read it, you know, I downloaded a PDF, I listened to the audiobook version, with the lender, you know, so I listened to that and read it.

And I came away from it. I'm like, I don't see what the big problem is. That it's, it's sort of in a way.

I mean, yeah, it has its faults. But I mean, every book has its faults. You know, there's nothing that's perfect.

But yeah, it's not the be all and end all. It's not the Bible of the movement, really. It's even though they want to make it that, you know, the end result sort of, I guess, is implied that they're just implying that you should, so far as I can remember, anyway, just sort of sit and wait till things get more chaotic and start getting more chaotic yourself.

Well, what did what I get from it, because I actually, I listened to the audio version a lot, like if I'm not on a run, or how if I'm at work, I'll sit there and, you know, listen to Siege while I'm working. And it was really funny, because once I had a Jewish boss that I convinced I was a communist, a Jew to Jew, it was great. Yeah, that's right there is to always make sure that the Jew believes you're on their side.

But I'd sit there be talking to her while listening to, you know, Midas Rite Network, you know, on my phone. But what I get from Siege is, it's basically, yeah, kind of, you know, the chaos is going to come, and that's necessary. But it's more of the attitude of prepare for it, because it's coming.

And if you're going to fight, strike hard, strike deep. But if you're not going to fight, you know, just get yourself in a defensible position and wait for, you know, the the rubble to clear, so we can crawl out of the end at the survivor. We need to make sure, as Pierce put it in Turner Diaries, that we're the last Italian on the field.

Yeah, it's like a recipe for a counter-revolution, because they're the revolution, you know, they're the ones revolting against order, even though it's their own order, because they're just, their order is inherently chaotic and or utopian, like the book The Jewish Utopia by Rabbi Michael Higger, which I've never read, but apparently it's like a prescription of what their crazy Zion plan is to be, you know, their totalitarian slave society that they want, the Jews. Yeah. So they want to create lots of revolutions to try to impose that in the end, as the conclusion of their chaotic praxis.

So what's to be done about that is to try to counter that, and I guess in a way this channel here, or this show, I guess if you want to call it that, of mine, that's the whole purpose of it, the title, Aryan Practical Idealism. You know, we need to counter their revolutionary insanity through whatever means, and let's discuss how that can be done in minute specific terms, how we can neutralize their attempts to basically genocide us. And that's through neutralizing them completely, and either they're going to end up cutting their own throats, which would make it a lot easier on us, to be honest, or we're going to have to do it for them.

And we need to get that mentality into the already awakened, because you're not going to get a norm if you think that. They might pick up their guns, these right-wing militias might pick up their guns to defend their locality, okay, but they're not going to fight for any idealism. As Rockwell said, conservatives care about their money, you know, we care about our race.

Yeah, that's what Metzger said too, that the conservative only wants to conserve his money, basically, and that's pretty much obviously the case, whether they're a libertarian or whatever they want to call themselves, you know, they're all sort of money grubs and self-servers, so they're not going to take things further than personal defense of their personal family and their personal nature. It's going to have to be us that are spearheading. Yeah, and that doesn't necessarily mean any sort of violent, terroristic activity.

No, ideologically, we have to be spearheading. We have to be the ones scaring the future, we have to be the ones that actually have a fighting faith, you know, because conservatism is going to die when the system dies, you know, they'll finally realize there is nothing to conserve. Yeah, there is nothing there.

It becomes like a, I don't know what the metaphor would be, but sort of like this hollow figure, you know, that's got no substance in it. It's just like this statue that pretends to be something powerful and strong, and it's just this like piece of garbage made out of paper mache. All you need to do is just put a lighter to it, and it'll just burn up.

That's basically what America has become. I think there was like a horror movie, I forget what it was called, but it had this figure of like this Mr. America guy on the 4th of July. He was like this violent criminal psychopath, and then he ends up getting like burnt to death or something, dressed up in his Uncle Sam clothes.

I think it might have been called Uncle Sam, I'm not too sure. That would be a beautiful sight. Because that's all Uncle Sam is, is a fucking pedo mass murdering psychopath.

It's got a lot of many nations on his hands. Yeah, David Lane called it the red, white, and blue mass murder machine. Yeah, that's what I was saying.

I'm trying to think what did Lane say about it, but yeah, and from Dixie to Germany twice to, you know, all around the world, that's all they've been doing, and now they're gonna get their, you know, karma, and it's gonna be great. Yeah, apparently the astrological natal chart of America predicts some sort of extreme, you know, very hard violence around 2025 or something like that. So I'm thinking that's what I predicted as well, and this is based upon that Joy of Satan Ministries, joyofsatan.com, their conceptions of things.

They're saying that there's certain astrological alignments at that time that will, you know, create or influence those sort of conditions on the earth, with respect to America specifically, because of those conditions, it'll, you know, the stars will impel, I guess you could say, or manifest them. So that to me seems pretty, pretty highly likely. I'm pretty sure the Jews know about all that with their kabbalistic, you know, black magic, so they're trying to capitalize on that, on the, you know, astrological changes and stuff, try to bring that into being.

Yeah, and we can see that it's just starting, like, in our last civil war in the States, you know, 18, it didn't start in 1860, it started in 1861. 1860, everyone was just picking a side, you know, and that's what's happening this year, is, you know, there's not, there's something, you know, there's some violence, but compared to what's coming, no, this is still a cakewalk, you know. Yeah, things are becoming divided and polarized, so that they become more and more like those little balls that clack on that, you know, those metal balls on people's desks.

So you're just, you're pulling it back and forth and eventually just start swinging, you know, clack, clack, clack, and then they come together and just, any conflagration. So inevitably that's what's going to happen, just too bad that there are all sorts of decent white people who do not know what the hidden hand is, they think that the hidden hand is Donald Trump and the fascists or whatever, you know, the capitalists who did it all. So they have good intentions, but they're very deceived and naive.

So obviously a good way to reach them, although I doubt that any of them will really do much, but I'm thinking people like environmentalists and stuff would have a willingness to do things, because they're sort of like hardcore, a lot of them are pretty extremist, even though they subscribe to their pacifistic weakness ideology in large part, but yeah, they're at least distantly reachable. That's what Rockwell said, too, to convert hippies to Nazis. That was one of his strategies with that, you know, that young teenager he speaks to.

Yeah, I was just thinking about that, that one guy that came up and, quote, needed one last kick or whatever. Yeah. That's basically the way it is, you know, I see a couple of those people around here, I tried to reach a couple, but, you know, they're just too comfortable still, too busy puffing away on their drugs and so forth, trying to, you know, be cool and have their little journeys in their minds, you know, with this drug tripping of theirs.

So, yeah, and I like how they made marijuana legal now, so, you know, anyone can smoke it and, you know, get high, get couched and just eat Doritos all day, watching anime or whatever the fuck they're watching. Yeah, they wanted people to be weak, that's why they want them to take drugs that make you weak, like out drinking beer, beer has hops in it, which is that's like the most estrogenic plant on earth, that's why a lot of people who drink a lot of beer have ditch tits, you know, big belly and stuff, it's effeminizing, so they want them drinking liquor all the time, and that way it kills the brain cells, and then marijuana is effeminizing, it also kills your brain cells, so they're achieving the same result, you know, and then whatever opiates and stuff, which are, you know, sort of make you, I don't know, passive. Mm-hmm.

They want you to do the exact opposite of what you should be doing, which is being active, being intelligent, being powerful and strong, and directing your energies toward a target, toward the enemy, effectively. Yeah, and but there's a lot of correlation with what you just said they're doing, and what they do to cattle, and the, you know, in the meat industry, they make them passive, they put, give them antibiotics, and drugs, and all this other stuff to make them passive, and non-resistant, and, you know, willing to just go into the slaughterhouse. Yeah, and that's exactly what they're being, what's being done.

Obviously, a lot of people, they see the chaos around them, but they can't explain it or understand it properly, so they, like in the Turner Diaries, in that example with the, you know, hippies on the mattress, the burnt-out youth, they just become nihilistic and apathetic, so it's the exact opposite mental state you want. Yeah. You don't want to be a believer in lies and fantasies like a Christian, but you want to be, you know, reawaken the blood memory, and then develop power both individually and in a group, both spiritually and materially.

So, if you're gonna take any drugs, you know, take steroids, or human growth hormone, or something like that. Don't take, you know, things that make you weak and wimpy. That would just be stupidity.

Yeah. Vegan diets, marijuana, pharmaceutical products, you know, staring at your phone all day, or watching whatever retarded entertainment media, Netflix, or whatever it is people do, I don't even know. Yeah, I don't even know these days.

I try to stay away from that stuff. Yeah, I haven't watched TV. Occasionally, I might watch a show socially with people, but it's not something that, it's even a weekly thing, you know.

It's okay to, and I think personally, that it's okay to, you know, in controlled amounts of things, because you live in a sewer. We all live in a sewer. There's nothing wrong with, you know, at the end of the day having a beer, or whatever, but as long as it's eight, you know, not a 12-pack, and, you know, drinking until your face into the ground, you know.

Yeah, well, the thing is, of course, it's just cause and effect, you know. If you're wanting to suffer those consequences, then, you know, in terms of your mind, body, soul, spirit, how it affects you, then be aware that, you know, everything you do has certain consequences. Yeah.

So, if you're willing to endure those consequences, then that is your choice, of course, but anything that is inherently negative, you know, I would just have nothing to do with, because it's just inherently negative. Like, there's no, yeah, do it. So, like watching porn, there's no redeeming qualities to it.

There's no redeeming qualities to alcohol, really, because it is a poison. It's inherently poisonous. Yes.

So, instead of that, maybe just meditate, you know, do third eye meditations. If you need to relax, just go into a dark room, and put earplugs in, and just, you know, relax. There's a million and one things people could be doing instead, like exercising.

Yeah, exactly. Before a run, you can convince them, hey, hey, there's something called runner's high, you know, it's when you run for a while, and then it's amazing, you know, that's how you get the druggies to go run, you know, so. Yeah, it makes more sense, you know, something that is a eustressor instead of a distressor, because all those drugs are distressors, they're overall negative in their influence on you.

They don't empower you, they don't serve as a positive challenge, they're just a sort of degenerative influence, regardless of, you know, how less, how little you do. If I take a puff of marijuana, then that's still polluting my lungs with particulate matter, it's still poisoning my, you know, my mind. So, you know, if you're wanting to suffer that, then that's just what's going to be, because that's just cause and effect.

So, it's really up to you, as an individual, what your particular standards are. Obviously, for social purposes, obviously, most people are sucked into that sort of socializing, where you have to drink liquor or something like that, in order to be in a social context, which is unfortunate, but that's basically just part of the degenerate culture of this society now. Yeah, and when we have our own society, there's not going to be any reason to do drugs, because people are going to, because that's the reason why they do it is to escape, they're trying to escape from nihilism, they're trying to escape from the abyss, you know, they know they're going to die someday, and they can't handle that fact, you know, or their life sucks, and they don't have the emotional courage to be able to handle it, so they, you know, soak themselves in drugs and alcohol and various other substances.

Yeah, and that just speeds their downward journey, you know, it reduces their quality of life while they live, and it also reduces their lifespan and their ability to do stuff, because it degrades their mind-body-soul, mind-body-spirit, so you're basically just ruining your possibilities for higher forms of action. Yeah. For that purpose, and that's nothing really at all worthy of being done, you know, not an area in practice.

But in our society, everyone will have a reason to live, because they'll be living for the benefit of their race. Well, even beyond that, they'll be living for the higher cultivation of that. Yeah.

So, it doesn't just limit itself to purely biological, physical, it goes to the spiritual level, which of course then can sustain itself, and then develop itself, and then that's what Ben Claston said about the, you know, survival, expansion, and advancement of the white race, and the white race alone. You start with survival, you got to secure, you know, 14 words, you have to secure the survival. Then from there, it's an expansion of territory, expansion of numbers, and advancement of the higher culture through yourself, you know, a holistic technology for a harmonious world.

Yeah, we have quite the ways to go, because, you know, going on that trade of thought, you know, taking back, you know, Europe and North America is one task that's probably going to take generations, or could take generations, you know, we could get it all in one go, but depending on what happens, you know. And then taking back the, you know, taking over the planet, and then going out to the stars, you know. Yeah.

Well, I think it won't take very long, because if you think about it, given the nature of the chaos of this society, I don't know if you've ever heard of a guy named Kenneth Molyneux. He was a member of the creativity movement, or is, I think he's got a blog called Lord Molyneux. I don't think I've heard of him.

M-O-L-Y-N-E-U-A-X or something. He wrote a kind of similar to the Stefan Molyneux guy. Yeah, spelling.

Yeah, pretty sure. In any case, he wrote a book called White Empire, which basically is his sort of predictive programming of what it will be like, you know, once the Jews are off the back of the white man, and, you know, then that'll be like the expansion phase, you know, you go around the world and on like, you know, heroic missions, fighting against the non-whites and so forth. Yeah, and like our ancestors used to do.

Exactly. So that's inevitably what will be, no matter what happens in the meantime. Yeah, it's going to be a glorious day, but we got to get through this, which, I mean, a lot of people, I notice a lot of people in our ranks like to kind of despair of the situation, and it's a daunting situation, you know, look at what we have, but the greater the challenge is also the greater the victory.

You know, this is a very defining moment in history, and it's falling on us few to make the most of it. Yeah. Because there's everything, you know, in my opinion, at least everything's depending on this, the life itself on this planet is depending on it.

You know, we have a big burden on our shoulders, but when we win, and I think we will win this, it's going to be the greatest victory in history, because we'll have everything to gain. Yeah, in the most literal sense, not only our own survival and existence and potential to manifest our proper destiny on the earth, but we'll have all the material wealth on the earth as well, so there's not going to be any need to be grinding gears as a wage slave, nine to five, Monday to Sunday, forever and ever. Yeah, so just a matter of trying to endure, ride the tiger, as Evola says in his book.

Yeah. Same name, basically. I always look upon it sort of as, you know, that cartoon He-Man, basically, that's what we are, we're He-Man, and the Jews are Skeletor, and their evil horde is like all these weird aliens, the non-whites, that, you know, beast that hangs around Skeletor.

Yeah. Do they play that on the YouTubes these days, or is that too violent and heroic for white children? I have no idea. I think it's probably on, yeah, probably on YouTube, I think.

Sort of a corny show, but yeah. Some of the stuff they're taking off, like, I think they took Popeye off or something like that. I remember watching that as a kid.

It's like, stuff that we used to watch versus the stuff now, it's so retarded, and you can tell that if you let your kid watch TV these days, there's something wrong with you. Yeah, it's more those sort of virtue signaling social justice whiners. I call them socialite injustice whiners, because that's what they are.

But yeah, they're the only people who would allow their children to be subjected to child abuse by having like a black doll or something like that. One of these perverted people who puts their white daughter in the playroom with a nigger or something like that, you know? Yeah. It's anything to virtue signal to make themselves feel superior.

But yeah, all those old cartoons, they're basically sort of like, even though most of them were made by Jews, of course, at the same time, they're still, you know, amusing enough, like all these Tex Avery cartoons, where you went around just crashing people on the head with a hammer or something like that. Yeah. But yeah, and I don't know, I've always thought about when our movement's able to get that kind of media in our hands, you know, the stuff that we could create.

You know, we have a lot of source material, you know, we could, I've thought about like, have you read the book, Children of Odin? I think so. You mean, it's like an older book from around the early part of this last century? Yeah, yeah. But like, you could turn that into like a kid's TV show pretty easily.

Yeah, I'm sure that's, that's what will be, what will occur eventually. I think, you know, the Turner Diaries spoke of that too, with like renaming all the towns and so forth to Westleton and so forth, obviously better than having all these so called Indian names or whatever, even though most of those names are just like a cult names that just, you know, they're actually just a cult names that don't even refer to Indians. It's just like a tongue in cheek joke against the Redskins.

Yeah, yeah. That would make a good movie too, the Turner Diaries. Yeah.

Well, basically what could be done is just piece together all the footage from all the cameras of the race war that's to come anyway. Yeah, there you go. There you go.

You won't even have to hire actors or anything. Well, you know what's interesting too, in the Turner Diaries, they speak about basically bulldozing all the niggers into Death Valley and then, you know, using napalm to get rid of their carcasses. Why would they call this Death Valley, if not because that's what their intention is? Because I'm thinking that it's not entirely Jews who are in control of this world government, you know, I think that there is like pro-white occultists who are behind pushing back against it at some behind the scenes level or in behind the scenes ways which we don't know.

That may very well be the case. Yeah, that might be the case. I've heard of, you know, the whole Imperial German conspiracy with Antarctica and the UFOs.

Yeah. It's actually how I came across the Renegades. Actually, I was on one of those websites and I saw their Hellstorm documentary.

But, I mean, yeah, something like that could be happening. I think that we should not put our faith in it and continue on our course like it's not there. Because even say they are there, you know, why are they going to save a bunch of weaklings that can't fight on their own, you know? Yeah, it's not a question of like a salvationist belief where you're just, you know, praying to a god, a Semitic god in the sky for whatever, saving you from whatever sort of unpleasantness.

You know, you always have to do it yourself, basically, to whatever extent you're able to do so. And never just, you know, try to pussy out of confrontation, basically. So long as your actions are prudent anyway.

You know, you don't want to just fling yourself into the fire unless it's for a very good reason. Yeah, and, I mean, you got all these Christians, you know, praying, you know, for the rapture to come, you know, to whisk them away, you know, and stuff starts getting bad, you know? Yeah. Yeah, it's their mentality in a nutshell.

It's just a sort of sheep-like cowardice where they just sit around and smile and play a ukulele. I remember this one meme of this Christian missionary guy in Africa sitting around with a bunch of savages jumping up and down around him. He's playing bongos there and so forth, like right in the center of them.

I wonder what his fate would really be. Probably be being hacked to pieces by them afterwards. That's actually funny, you know, have you ever seen that cartoon, that old cartoon about that traveling salesman in Africa? I don't think so.

He ends up boiling in the pot. Good. Pretty hilarious cartoon.

I'll try to add that to the end of this video, maybe, just as a sort of like amusement. That would be great. But yeah, and people who do that kind of thing who try to, you know, it's horrible that we give them modern medicine so they can breed like rabbits.

I hate comparing them to rabbits because I love rabbits, but, you know, they breed a lot. And they just, they're not able to create anything. They're not worth anything.

But it's this Christian humanitarianism because every human life is sacred, you know. Right, of course. And of course, the fundamental error of judgment is that they don't understand reality.

They don't understand what a human being is at a spiritual level because their spirituality is just pseudo spirituality. That's not real spirituality at all. I definitely recommend that you read that Synthesis of Racial Doctrine of Julius Evol if you ever get a chance.

I'll send it to you. And basically, he just, he differentiates between the natural races and the ones that are, you know, beyond that. And then the natural races are really not, they don't have any spirit for the most part.

They're just like a body and a soul for the most part, and governed by the lower forms of existence, states of existence, passion, and, you know, they can't transcend the given of experience of the spatiotemporal context. They're sort of in bondage, I guess you could say, to that, to the world of illusion that they speak about in the Vedic tradition, the spatiotemporality. They've got no self-control, no ability to have willpower to direct themselves against, you know, against those forces.

Yeah, and they're not going to get anywhere. They're not going to be in the future. I think that, you know, for the Africans, I mean, you can have like an open-air zoo, kind of like how Rice was talking about once with the open-air zoo in Africa.

You know, you can see them eating by the crocodile, you know. But, you know, and in the future, I don't think we should even try to subjugate them or anything like that. We just have nothing to do with them.

Well, exactly. That's what Ben Classen said, you know, we don't want to kill or enslave the non-whites. We just don't want to have anything to do with them.

Just total segregation. Yeah, and I mean, and if they cause trouble, yeah, it'll be a good training mission, you know, have some fun. But yeah, I mean, I'm not, I think the only group I'd be comfortable with like outright down to the last frozen embryo is those damn kikes, you know.

And the niggers, they can have Africa, they can do whatever they want with it. You know, all of them, they can, as long as they're not in our towns and not in our cities, you know, whatever. But yeah, well, they can have their little enclave, maybe just as like you said, a sort of zoological exhibit.

I often thought about that myself. Just, you know, to be charitable and, you know, nicey-nice. But even then, maybe nothing, right? I wrote this one story called The Colony, which is about the recolonization of Africa after the race war.

Pretty amusing story. You send me that one too. I'll give a look over.

Sort of an amusing thing. And what I did, I paid this South African Christian woman money to type up like a 400-page anthology of short stories I had written. And the bitch just ripped me off.

She pretended that she didn't, you know, she couldn't type it because there was like some sort of interference on her computer or something, or she can't understand it or something. And then she just sort of dropped off and disappeared. And she was the director of the South African Family Relief Project.

Her name is Leigh Elliot, Leigh Dupreez. I forget what her middle name is. Leigh Oxley Dupreez.

She's the one who's like affiliated with Karen Smith and people like that. I'm not familiar with them, but yeah, I see what you're saying. You can't trust people these days.

They're all a bunch of dipshits. Yeah, especially Christians. And I learned that the hard way, but that was a very valuable lesson for me.

So I hope other people will take that lesson into consideration. Like Bill Rise was saying on the show, you know, with respect to Christians, if they want to involve themselves in the movement, you know, anybody who does, they have to take an oath that says that they denounce Christ, that they curse Christ, because that's the only way a Christian can be weeded out, you know, based on their reaction and stuff. Yeah, it's his test.

You have to say, fuck the Holy Ghost. Yeah, otherwise they're going to be trying to infiltrate and take it over and they'll just gather data on you and rat you out. So don't ever deal with Christians.

Just leave them alone. Let them be Christian identists if they want, but you know, don't bother trying to be together with the Christian because that's a backstab in the waiting. I mean, I used to be pretty extreme when it came to Christians, I'll admit.

I've kind of mellowed down. I'm talking about identity, guys. I'm not talking about Judeo-Christian pieces of shit.

I'm talking about your identity, guys. I don't agree with them. I don't like their ideology.

But as long as they put their race first, you know, if they want to, if they're fighting the same enemy as me, then we need to start counting our friends. But I see what you're saying with Christians though, especially mainstream Christians. Yeah, don't give them any credit.

Even Christian identists can be very twisty like that. I've had some dealings with them where they're trying to be friendly and so forth, and then they find out that some of my writings have been critical of Christianity and Christian identity, and they basically sever ties with you. Oh yeah, it's a two-lane street.

They have to give some too. They have to be able to, not like my ideology, and still be able to work with me. If they refuse to work with me because they don't like that I'm a pagan, and I don't like the Jew on the stick, then they can go fuck themselves.

Yeah, yeah, Evola, he speaks about paganism, that that was just a Christian word that they made up to slander those who weren't Christians. So I wouldn't self-identify with that if I were you, because then you're just going to be... Oh, I just use it as a clarity thing. I don't self-identify with it.

Yeah, but that's the thing, though, because Christians, they'll use that as a means of mocking and slandering you, and then putting themselves on a pedestal. I see your point there. I don't have a label.

I just identify as a National Socialist. Yeah, even that myself, I used to do that, but I don't even identify with that anymore, either, entirely, because it's more like naturalism, whereas now I'm more like, I would self-identify as a heathen imperialist or something like that. But really, I mean, labels are labels.

They can call me whatever they want. It doesn't make it true. It's just saying that because certain words and phrases have certain meaning, then people might get it twisted, or even yourself or myself might get things twisted because of the terminology used.

So it's always good to have a really more clarification of the actual meaning of terms because it gets twisted up, which is obviously inevitable with language, but specifically language that is related to practical action becomes more volatile, I guess you could say, to some extent. Especially if they just call you a Nazi or something, that standard insult and so forth. Of course, they'll always do that anyway, but if you use different terms in that way, it sort of separates you from that to some extent.

Yeah, I mean, all I know is I'm white, I'm pro-white, I'm working for the 14 words, and if you don't like that, I mean, not you, but you know what I mean. Hypothetical person doesn't like that, they can kiss my ass. They can call me what they want.

I'll tell them that's my ideology. Yeah, it's always good to be firm on your principles, but I would agree with Evola in saying that National Socialism is too, in a way, plebeian, because it's too more oriented toward a communitarian socialist conception, whereas there are a more hierarchical understanding of I would say is preferable, like the caste system of ancient India. From what I understood, and of course I haven't read too much of Evola, but from what I understood, he thought it was a good start.

Not quite where it should be, but it's a good start. Like fascism with Mussolini and then Hitler's movement was a good start, it's a good beginning. Yeah, he wrote a book called Notes on the Third Reich, which go into his analysis of that in a lot of detail.

But yeah, there's quite a few of his works that critique National Socialism. I would definitely say that's a good start, absolutely. Just like biological naturalism is a good start relative to the pseudo-spirituality of this society, and the degenerative influence of it.

It straightens you out, sort of puts your feet on the ground at a basic level, and then from there you go to a higher level, or you're pulled up to a higher level. Yeah, but I'll admit I've read quite a few books, but not as many books that now I think I should read. Yeah, I can give you all, well actually most of them you can get on the net for free of Evola anyway.

Yeah, I've been perusing the webs and expanding my book collection a lot. I just bought a four-part, it's like a complete collection of Machiavelli's works. It has The Prince, Discourses on Livy, The Art of War, and The History of Florence.

Oh yeah, I've never actually read The Art of War by him. I know Evola actually critiqued also his prints, The Prince. I read The Prince, and I read The Discourses long, long ago.

It's sort of like caricatures, maybe, or characterizes the proper leader as a sort of devious manipulator. And I guess Evola, so far as I can remember, would state that the leader should be sort of like a higher spiritual principle in a way that elevates the lower caste in relation to himself, and that it's all oriented upward in that sense. Yeah, but also The Prince, there's also, you know, because I think there's another interpretation of reading it where it's kind of like reading it, what's the word, he was being kind of like, it's not sarcastic, but he wasn't being completely sincere.

He was just saying like, this is how you guys work, and I know how you guys work. Because at the end of the day, it was like a job application or whatever. He was saying, hey, this is the reason why you should hire me for this position, you know? For The Prince? Yeah, to work for The Prince, or whatever.

I can't remember the whole story behind the book, but... Yeah, I guess that's true. And it's sort of like, yeah, like a sort of satirical presentation of the corruption of the rulership that currently existed at that time. Yeah, and he's, he listed examples of this is how power works.

You know, this is how people with power function, and this is the reason why they have to function that way. Because he was, he was a fan of the Florentine Republic, before that family took over and established a monarchy. Yeah, I'm not too familiar with it.

I think that was, what is it? That wasn't the Borgias, was it? Maybe, I think it started with a Medici or something like that. That's a Medici. I'm not too familiar with history, really, in that very minute sense.

I'm more concerned with philosophy, but obviously, in a way, you can't separate the two. Yeah. But I'm not, yeah, I'm not too familiar with history to that a great extent, outside of through the lens of philosophy.

Like, obviously, a lot of the philosophers will discuss, you know, particular minutiae of history and stuff. Yeah. Yeah, the two, they tie together a lot.

I don't see why people, especially in modern academia, they're like just two different subjects. They're never taught together. And well, of course, it's part of the distortion and, you know, all that good shit.

Well, that's why Jörg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel wrote the philosophy of history, you know, because it's the philosophy of history, as opposed to the history of philosophy, because philosophy changes, the ideas change history, and the history changes the ideas in like a dialectic. They're reciprocally conditioning chickens and eggs that are always circling around their cause and effect. Yes, yes.

So, yeah, it's obviously very valuable to understand history, especially when you can extract principles from it, like the on war type books, you know, von Clausewitz, and people of that sort. There are a couple of people who have written on war, I think Napoleon also wrote, no, it was the art of war, actually. Yeah, he wrote the art of war.

And then of course, there's Sun Tzu and people of that sort. A guy named Zunzi, I'm not too sure if you're familiar with him, he's like a Chinese philosopher, who is writing like, you know, man is like an evil being who just is like this sneaking, you know. Yeah, I'm not familiar with a lot of Chinese philosophy, to be honest.

Yeah, there's not much there. Anyway, it's not really nothing to be gathered from that, except maybe the I Ching and its proper origin. Julius Evola also wrote about that.

He wrote, I think it was on the Tao or something like that. It's pretty interesting, short work of his. I don't know, they tried teaching it us in school.

And I always kind of like got bored with it. It seemed too pacifistic, too olympistic, too effeminate. And it just didn't jive with me.

Yeah, basically communist. And that's because it fell, China, from the Aryan tradition in the Gobi Desert, where they had pyramids there. You know, that was like a colony of Atlantis, I believe.

And during the Aryan migrations, and then it fell through being overrun by the savage hordes. And that's the thing, you know, they have their karma coming, because they're the ones who overran our civilizations throughout the whole of history, and turned it into like, you know, that whatever civilization they inherited, or created, like a collapsed society, basically. Yeah.

We have a right to the whole world, basically. I mean, I wouldn't say we have a right. We have a claim, I guess.

Because we have a right to whatever we can take. Well, yeah. Yeah, we don't have a guarantee of anything, survival or anything else.

But in terms of that sort of karmic conception, we have a right to it, because it's, you know, we were there first, we created it all. And then they just sort of overran us, murdered us all. Same with the Redskins, as you probably know, in America.

The salutarians, yeah. Nope. No, that's not what you're talking about.

I mean, like, we were here before, we were here first. There's a book called Vinlanders. Actually, I'll send that to you also.

I was given it by the author for free. So I'll send that to you. It goes through a lot of historical news related to how we were here first, based upon archaeological evidence and so forth.

So like, like Billy Roper's Paleo-American Ethnic Diversity, if you've ever read that. No, I haven't. I haven't read that either.

Yeah, it basically just proves that we were here first, and there's copious evidence to prove it all throughout North and South America. So we were here, they came and they killed us, in large part. And then whatever remnant existed was just assimilated when the whites came back, you know, with George Washington and stuff like that, and the Vikings.

And from there, you know, we allowed them to continue to exist because of Christianity polluting our brains. So karmically, they really have, you know, have it coming for them, basically. Yeah, what comes around goes around.

And look, we have nukes now, so we'll probably be able to clean it up pretty quickly. Yeah, or whatever other sort of advanced technology or something, because that's the thing. They operate on the basis in their consciousness that they can just do the same strategy they've done throughout the whole history, which is breed like rats, overrun us, and then try to kill us off with brute force.

But it can't work this time, because the world changed totally. So it's not possible for that to occur. Yeah.

And what we have in our talent is our brains, and well, our physical ability, but our brains, we breed for quality, not quantity. Yeah, that's what Bill Rye's distinguished between rabbits and wolves. We're the white wolves, and they're just the, you know, profligate rabbits who just breed crazily.

The prey. That's what they should become again, is prey. Now, we have worked, right now, a bunch of cowardly, domesticated dogs that, you know, cower in fear when the master raises his newspaper.

Yeah, it's basically Planet of the Apes right now. Yeah, yeah. So there was this meme that I found.

It was a picture of Martin Luther Kuhn, you know, giving a speech, and it says, Planet of the Apes, 1968. Yep. But yeah, it's a nutty world, but I think we're going to get through it, and it's going to be great when we finally do.

And it's going to, and I'm not, and I encourage a lot of other comrades to kind of have this attitude as not to despair, but I'm actually excited, you know. I'm pretty excited for what's coming up. Yeah, it's basically like, you know, the thunderstorm is coming.

You get sort of, like, keyed up. Yeah, yeah. It's actually that same feeling, yeah.

Yeah, because you can see the ozone, or you can sense the ozone in the atmosphere. Temperatures are cooling. The clouds are really darkening on the horizon.

It's ready to, you know, let loose with the thunderbolts, you know. Yeah. Thunderbolts of the gods.

So maybe we should just end it now, and then if you want to do another one. Yeah, yeah. I was actually just thinking that.

I was like, how can I find a polite way to, you know. But yeah, it was a great talk, though, and I would like to do this again some other time. Yeah, anytime you want, since I'm basically free here while I wait, while I await the gavel and the, you know, the sword of Damocles falling on my head here for my case, whatever happens.

So I'll be free for at least another month and a half or so. Okay. I'll hit you up sometime, and, you know, we can probably do this again.

And I hope it doesn't fall on to you too hard, man. Yeah, I'm not too sure. Whatever will be, will be, because I'm being gang-stalked all the time here.

So every time I step outside, I've got police and unmarked vehicles tailing after me. So that's definitely a concern. Yeah.

What will be. So yes, I guess just keep up the good work and, you know, make sure that you implement the ideas, I guess, is the whole modus operandi here. Yeah.

And good luck to you, man. Try to stay out of as much trouble as you can, man. All right.

Talk later, then. Yeah. Hail victory, man.

Nordlux: Organization and Survivalism

Okay, so last time we spoke we were talking a lot about disinformation agents, but this time I think it's imperative at this time to discuss more about practical strategies for organization and survivalism and possible relocation to wherever specific areas people need to be to relocate in order to become most effective in their activism. What are your thoughts in terms of, without revealing your location, in terms of the sort of general map of the United States and of North America in general, we'll exclude South America and Central America, in terms of what people should do, you know, should they stay where they are, should they go elsewhere? What are your thoughts on that? Well, I think retreating is one thing, and that is not necessarily good because you can get a concentrated amount. It's like the whole ethno-state idea.

It's sort of like white Zionism. I'm not really too fond of that whole idea, but I agree with people, you know, if need be, relocating and sort of creating a community where they're at. You know, if they live in an area where it's basically impossible to really create any sort of community, then, you know, that's where I think the whole balkanization stuff and, you know, let's all just move to the Northwest, that's not going to work.

Yeah. I know that some echo in the microphone there. I know that Richard Butler is rumored to have been a half-breed Cherokee Indian.

And he was also Freemason. Yeah. And he was also rumored to be an FBI agent that sort of co-opted a guy named Josh Jost-Turner's National Socialist Kindred, which they tried to set up in the Pacific Northwest.

So I think the whole operation for the Butler plan was a deliberate PSYOP on the part of the JAWG system to derail whatever potential sort of Lebensborn communities that that Josh Jost-Turner guy had intended to set up. Yeah, I think Tex Mars did a broadcast about that, even though Tex Mars was probably a shill because he was pushing, like, you know, kind of fundamentalism. And I think he's, wasn't he published by the Barnes Review? Yeah, Tex Mars was sort of like an Alex Jones regular.

Yeah, an Alex Jones type, basically. So you really can't trust that guy. But yeah, absolutely.

Richard Butler definitely seemed to me to be, just by looking at his physiognomy, a half-breed Cherokee Indian, as he was rumored to have been. I mean, it makes perfect sense. So what is the point of all that Balkanization? Well, to me, that just suggests that that's exactly what the Jews want, is just to try to fragment America, because America is the greatest threat to their tyranny in the world.

Not only because it's the most strongest superpower, but the people there, you know, a lot of them are, some are aware of what's going on, and they have the firepower and so forth to actually do something about it. So their intention is just to do what they did in the Balkans and Yugoslavia and so forth during the 90s and in the Soviet Union, too. Well, when they created the Soviet Union, you know, just mass migrate people around and then create chaos so that they're forced to go.

They've been doing that with economic means, too, by outsourcing jobs in the States and then by incentivizing people of necessity to go to certain locations to have work. So they split up families economically as well through that economic means. So people are basically forced to migrate around, and that way it disrupts their communities, their ancestral communities, and it breaks up their families so that they can't form any, you know, traditional roots or maintain their roots.

So to me, that's exactly what the Jews want, is to create that Balkanization agenda. Yeah, it's sort of like what you mentioned earlier about having these splinter groups where, you know, you have different figures that would advocate for different sort of plans. It's like you had Covington in the Northwest, and then you had, I think, Roper was in the South, and then Tom Kaczynski was in the Northeast.

And it just sort of creates a, you know... Divide and conquer tactic. Divide and conquer, you know, that was what I was basically trying to say. And that's obviously exactly what Jews want.

So to me, that's their whole agenda is to... I think I heard that just today when I was listening to Renegade Broadcasting talk about Dugan, from Dugan himself, from the Jewish chaos magician liar's mouth. He was saying something to the effect of how they wanted to facilitate these sort of nationalist movements, like black nationalist movements and so forth, so that they could create that Balkanization. Yeah, I find it questionable those who want to advocate Islam and want to work with... No, no, Rockwall.

I think Rockwall actually did that, where he went over to the Nation of Islam and tried to work with them. But I don't know. I mean, I think that in the end, that would possibly end up something being counterproductive.

Yeah, I would say so. Just let the... Because they're really against you. I mean, not every time, just because the enemy, you know... Yeah, the enemy of your enemy is not your friend.

...isn't always your friend, you know. Pretty much everybody's against white people in this whole world, including most white people. So you're not going to have much in the way of friends with these deceiving people who practice taqiyah and various other, you know, coded in their religion.

They practice lying. So... And that's a typically Middle Eastern mentality, a non-white mentality, is just being a mendacious deceiver, for the most part. So yeah, you can't deal with these people.

Let them do whatever they want. Keep away from them. Don't affiliate with them.

Disassociate yourself from them. Whatever they do, it's nothing to do with you. So as to the Balkanization, though, obviously Dugan is pushing that also.

So why would you want to push that if you're a white nationalist, when Dugan's worshipping Eilerster Crowley and is actually a proven Jew and working with Putin, who is a Jew, and the whole... Well, coincidentally, Covington was also a Crowleyite. So yeah, there you go. Crowley... Anyone pushing Crowley is definitely a red flag.

Yeah, it's obviously proven that Crowley was an agent who was working against the Third Reich. He was... I think he facilitated the Anglo-Boer... Was it the Anglo-Boer War or something along those lines in South Africa that he did? I think he might have been a facilitator of the concentration camps there, which killed a lot of Boers in South Africa. And Winston Churchill also did that.

Yeah, Anton LeVay or Howard Stanton Levy, which is his real name. I know that I think he was a proponent of Crowley as well. Yeah, well, obviously that's all just Jewish Kabbalah that they're pushing.

So if Dugan is pushing that, and then he's pushing the Balk at the same time, that should clue anybody with half a brain in that it's obviously a psyop that the Jews want you to buy into. You know, Richard Spencer, all these other Nazbol people on the alt-right, Eric Stryker, David Duke, all these other sort of storm drain, storm front types, they're all... Well, another thing about them is they also push a sort of Stalinist... Yeah, that's what Stalinism is. I saw a stream where it was Brian Roo and David Duke, and they were just talking about how great Stalin was.

And I was like, okay, that's a red flag. Yeah, they're obviously disinformation agents. That explains why Brian Jew is so hostile toward me, because I sent him a lot of content that he picked apart a lot of those sorts of conceptions.

And he really flew into a rage when I stated that Theravada Buddhism was not a white religion, it was created by Jews in Tibet. And then he really... Well, he looks like... He has sort of a Jordan Peterson look to him. Well, he's got sort of like more of a, I don't know, strange looking face for a German person.

Yeah, he definitely doesn't look German. I mean, he has that kind of beak, nose and... Yeah, I was going to mention that. It looked like a beak, basically like a parrot's beak or something like that.

Yeah, like his profile picture or avatar or whatever. I mean, he just looks like a vulture.

Yeah, he looks like Gargamel from the Smurfs, basically, sort of.

Speaking of Gargamel, do you want to talk about this character who has been harassing you at all? Yeah, we can maybe just do that to just get it out of the way. But I'd like to try to stick to the topic of, you know, organization and balkanization and that sort of thing. Yeah, and the thing is, is a lot of these organizations, you know, to really organize effectively, you really need to be careful who you surround yourselves with and have it sort of a secret society kind of thing where it just has to be underground and not too open and not too, you know, you really have to organize with those that you trust and you know aren't agents.

Because one agent, one infiltrator, even just one idiot, can ruin an entire organization. Yeah, if you look at that Tony Avola guy who set Matt Hale up. Yeah, set Matt Hale up, exactly.

You know, with the Order, Tom Martinez with Bob Matthews was another one. Yeah, so these people are, assuming those are even legitimate. Glenn Miller, obviously.

Yeah, so anyway, with respect to this one guy that we're going to discuss, this gang stalking guy, Jewish gang stalking guy who tried to involve himself with me and I, in my naivety, involved myself with him just because I wanted to get that particular topic out into the public consciousness about Jewish gang stalking, how they tail after you and work with the police and spying on people like they did in the East German Communist Republic there, the DDR and the USSR also. They use the same techniques that they're now using today in gang stalking people. So I wanted that topic out.

But this one guy called Jewish gang stalking on Bitchute, he got my Bitchute, one of my Bitchute channels shut down because, I don't know, because I didn't have a willingness to continue on with him and he didn't really want to deal with me because he was saying that, you know, I'm dealing with Jews because of involving myself with various people who he's suspected to be operatives or Jews or something. So a lot of melodrama and silliness, but he was basically stalking and harassing me to some extent because of his, you know, this sort of melodramatic nonsense that happens to exist in this silly movement. You know, a lot of silly melodrama and childish behavior that is counterproductive and just a drain of energy.

And so this particular individual just represents that archetype, the archetype of the time waster, of the melodrama type. So anytime you see that sort of thing, even if the guy is not an agent, it's probably best just to keep your distance because, you know, they're not being serious enough or understanding the situation that goes on in this world, which is a life or death situation. You know, that's why everybody's got to start getting organized and getting involved in actually sustainable communities in order to secure your survival and be effective in activism and trying to recruit more people.

Otherwise, you're going to, you know, wind up like Matt Hale or somebody of that sort, assuming they were even legitimate at all, of course, if we want to assume that. Got your channel shut down, which only had around 200 subscribers, I think. Yeah.

Yeah. But still, that's one of the channels that I had that had a lot of like a good archive of information. You know, the fact that they're shutting entire channels down, I mean, that in itself, you know, shows you that I don't think Bitchute is really going to last.

I think at some point we might have to go back to YouTube and just use coded language or something at some point, because it's clearly about shutting down competition. Yeah, I don't think that that's going to be a possibility to go back to YouTube because they have such strict guidelines. But there are live leak and real dot video or alternatives.

I think the daily. I've heard good things about LBRY. I don't know if you're familiar with that one, but I would rather not go to Goyim TV or, you know, that World Truth site, which is full of psychos.

Yeah. Well, basically that gang stalking guy, Jewish gang stalking is affiliated with that Goyim TV so far as I know. And that's probably just an entire operation.

And he himself is probably just some type of Christian or Antifa person because he seemed to be pretty defensive about Christianity when I was criticizing that. You know, he was always talking about old Christianity and so forth. And that's just part of their psyop, the Christian identity thing to try to claim that the old Christianity was actually good, blah, blah.

No, no. They call it real Christianity. That's what they call it.

Real Christianity. Of course, real Christianity is witch burnings and the Inquisition and censorship and everything else. They enabled Jews to collect the money through usury while they, you know, they simultaneously scolded them and pretended that they were against it, but they still let them do that.

So obviously, that proves that they're just working hand in glove with the Jews throughout the whole time. The Jews created Christianity from the beginning just as a means of putting white people into mental bondage to themselves so that they could create their race mixed government. Christianity just works hand in glove with the Jews.

Anybody pushing anything else is obviously just either naive on the one hand or they're an operative who just wants to hook people into Christianity, which is what Jews want. And that's even what Nazbol functions as. It functions as this, the whole alt-right, as some sort of nebulous logocentrism that babbles on about nebulous ideas that don't have any real or tangible about them.

You know, it's just God and tradition and so forth. It doesn't really say anything very specific. Well, it's sort of like appeals to pathos and emotive.

You know, you sort of see that with a lot of these politicians. You know, for example, yesterday, I was watching Joe Biden's DNC speech. And, you know, I do check in to see what, you know, these people say every now and then because it can give you an insight on what's to come possibly, what's in their plan.

And basically throughout the speech, you talked about like stopping hate and, you know, really, you know, light over darkness and love over hate and just a lot of like sugary kind of emotive, you know, material that they use to sort of reel you in. You know, it's kind of like a social engineering technique. Yeah, they basically just utilize emotional programming techniques where they disengage the rational brain by engaging the emotional brain.

So when one's active, the other one is not so active. Just, you know, a typical technique on the part of Jews. Everything is just theater to these people.

They don't care about truth. They just care about what's effective for them. They're just pragmatists, basically.

Yeah, it's like, you know, they sort of have people on their strings in a literal sense. You can just sort of look at it like, hey, look over here. This is the problem.

And then they raise the other hand with the other marionette or whatever it is and say, hey, look over here. No, this is the problem. And they just sort of invent these issues, sort of like this whole Corona virus stuff going on now.

Yeah, it's all just basically smoke and mirrors that they use to try to... Create problems out of nowhere. Yeah, problem, reaction, solution. It's all the same dialectical little games that they play.

Just amazing that the average person hasn't figured it out yet. That's the problem. Of course, they never will because they just believe whatever is put before them like an animal.

That's why the Jews call them the goyim. That's why we need to keep away from people like that to create a parallel society so that these people, the average person, does not know of us and we just disappear like the gray man into society. That's why I think isolating yourself excessively is not a good idea because that'll be just like the Branch Dravidians where they can strike at you and just kill you with drone strikes or whatever the case.

If you're going to go and hide away in the woods or pretend to be some sort of neo-pagan dressing up like Varg Vikernes. Because that's a sign off that they're running also. Varg Vikernes is probably one of their operatives.

He probably always was. He was probably born into a generational... You're going to piss off the cult behind him, Saint Vikernes. You're criticizing Saint Vikernes, man.

That's the way they always work their psyops. They create these gurus, these figures that people worship and become emotionally attached to so that anybody who criticizes their guru, they attack based upon emotional classical conditioning. That's obviously the psyop they're running.

Naturalism is what they want. They want anarcho-primitivism. They want people to be running away into the woods, worshiping sticks and stones.

That way they can have total control for themselves. That's why I don't advocate that sort of thing because that leads to the Branch Dravidians and Ruby Ridge where you could just be targeted and done away with by their drone strikes or lawn... Yeah, just so you know, you're another Randy Weaver. Yeah, that's what I'm saying.

You could just be targeted by some of their non-white or white operatives. I guess even white people wouldn't have a problem if they're a police officer or a military person to more or less kill you and assassinate you because most of them, they rationalize in their mind and reason speciously that, oh, this is for the safety and security of society. They'll just say whatever makes them feel good to justify their getting their paycheck because that's really what they live for.

All of these sorts of people, in large part, are just self-serving people. There is a point to be made though about how living in the cities, you sort of are surrounded by decay. Oh, it depends on what kind of city.

If something were to break out, as they call it, the siege, those types, they would say, oh, the system's going to collapse, man. Mason wrote about dead zones, calling them dead zones. Yeah, well, once again, it depends on the size of the city too.

A small city that's only 20,000 people is more of a small town than it is a city, but it's still technically a city. Exactly, but if you're in somewhere like Chicago, I would get out of there. Absolutely, yeah.

I would definitely not be anywhere in any city that's over 100,000 people or over 150 anyway. Only if that city is spread out in the woods in a very isolated place, that would be like 100,000 or 150,000. Anything that's close, like an hour's drive away to another larger city, I wouldn't want to be anywhere near there because there could be marauders, there could be whatever supply chain gets shut off by the military or something like that, then you're not going to be able to get food and shelter because not everybody can afford to just go and hide in the woods in a shack.

Even if they could, you're still a target because the government can just tail after you if they ever discover you. If you've ever stated anything of a racial nature, they've got the Jewish gang stalking thing going on and they can tail after you and follow you and find you. Then you're a target, you've got a target on your back and they can easily dispose of you if you've got nobody around you.

Most people that hang around way out in the middle of nowhere, like all those survivalists, most people look upon them as sort of a suspect bunch, all the people in towns and stuff. If you're going to be way out like that, you're going to be basically looked upon as a suspect by others. If you don't talk to people or involve yourself with them, then you're going to be even more of a target because then that makes you a social pariah and so forth.

You're looked upon as a sort of sketchy and potentially harmful character because that's the way the Jews brainwash people, that anybody who's not totally plugged into their little communitarian system becomes a criminal or something like that. That's why I would advocate just living in a city that's ideally under 150,000 people and ideally away from any larger city by at least an hour and a half's drive. I don't know what it's like in the States for topography.

I guess it's much more dense than in Canada, but in Canada there's vast stretches between cities of terrain. Right. So for where you are in America, not specifically where you are, but in America, I guess the topography is much more compact and dense, right? I would probably say so.

I think in Canada it's a little more or less just trees and less populated, more or less. But then again, Canada does have a higher land mass. It is a larger piece of land.

A couple of people I was talking to on Telegram were talking about having some kind of settlement in Alaska. I don't know how that's going to work. I'm not too sure that's a good idea because if you're going to be in that specific region, not only does it get extremely cold, of course you can chop down wood for firewood, assuming that they'll allow you with bylaws and allow you to have a wood stove.

Because I know that in Canada there are certain places that they outlaw having wood stoves. You're not even allowed by law to have that. So if anyone sees smoke coming out of your chimney, then they're going to be calling the police and then the police will be justified in going into your place and taking your wood stove from you.

So you're forced on the grid. But Canada is not America. Obviously Canada is more strict in terms of its laws.

It's more of socialist prison. But also in Alaska and in very cold places like Canada, if you're going to try to live out in the middle of nowhere, then it's much more difficult than it is in a lot of places in America, obviously, where you can just live out of a van or you can just live even in a ditch if you really had no other options. Because it's so cold, you'll have to live in a ditch.

I was talking to one guy where he was living in a cardboard box. I don't know how you do that. Well, that's what he claims anyway.

He could have been some sort of operative, just amusing himself and other things. No, this was in real life. This was like a homeless guy where he was like, yeah, I've been living in a cardboard box for a few decades.

And I was like, oh, okay. I wouldn't exactly take a homeless person's word for... Oh, I know. Yeah.

I mean, the guy had missing teeth and he was like totally very unkempt appearance. So I wouldn't advocate that. I'm just saying that homeless people are all pretty much liars because they're very devious people, right? Because they look upon everybody else as their enemy.

And so because they're treated poorly, so they become a very corrupt person morally. So I wouldn't believe what he says anyway. But in the warmer places in the States, yeah, you can live out of a van and stuff.

And that may very well be the best bet. If you've got like a covered clandestine van for van dwelling, you've got jugs of water in there. You've got food stocks.

Maybe you can have a trailer that you can pull behind you. Just leave it somewhere in the woods or whatever the case, in a campsite, or maybe just put it in one of those storage facilities or something or off somebody's land, you know, or something like that. And then you can just live like that and roam around doing activism.

That's what I'd personally do if I had the means to get out of this country. But here I am now trapped here. And it's so cold that if you want to set yourself up in sustainable survival, survivalist conditions, you have to have a power pole, you have to have electrical wiring run and so forth.

And that's super expensive. And then you've got to have, you know, a transformer put on there and stuff like that, unless you can buy it or get a lot with that on there and so forth. So it's all just a huge investment of time.

And then what happens if you either lose your job or don't have the means to sustain yourself there, then you're going to have to sell it off and you wasted all your time and effort. And then you're probably going to suffer a loss in terms of money. So, but the main thing, though, is if you're going to isolate yourself, just like a principle, a principle of war in the 48 Laws of Power, I believe they discussed this book, the the Jew Robert Greene wrote it.

One of the laws is about not isolating yourself, you know, because if you isolate yourself, you're an easy target. Whereas if you're like Mao Zedong says, you know, swim in the sea of the people. Right.

The revolutionary swims in the sea of the people, I believe is a quote. So in other words, the best bet is to live, you know, amongst the the actual people of a of a predominantly white area with which is below one hundred and fifty thousand people. Ideally, I would say at least an hour and a half drive away from other major cities.

Basically a ghost wall. Yeah, I would say that that's the only real option that you have in order to survive, because if you don't do that, then you're just going to be a target. What's that guy doing over there? Because whenever you move to a small town, every single person in that area or if you move outside of a small town, every single person in that area knows that terrain and they see the slightest change, they see that somebody's moved there, then they're going to want to know, why are you here? What do you do? You know, they're going to suspect that you're a drug dealer or something, because I tried to move to a small town before of like in a in a country in the countryside on farmland and so forth.

And pretty much everybody in that town is spying on you all the time unless you're plugged into their networks, unless you're a socially engaging person, and especially unless you're a Christian. A lot of these boonie places, they're the only people who live there are just Christians on the one hand or alcoholics on the other hand. So unless you're one of the two, then you're not going to fit into their demographics.

Unless you have a reason to be in one of these small towns, then you're just wasting your time even being there because you're not going to fit into the place and you'll be looked upon as an outsider. It doesn't even matter how long you live there either. Even living there for years, you still won't be accepted by the people there because they only ascribe value to people who actually live there, you know, who have a purpose.

But if you don't have a purpose to be there, then you may as well not go there at all because you're going to be shunned and ostracized by the people there for the most part. Exactly. Yeah.

If you're going to go somewhere where that's completely opposite to really the way, just kind of alien to who you really are, I think it would be a waste of time because if you were to go up and, you know, I'd say the worst possible place you could be would be like Chicago or New York or LA. Places like that where, you know, very cosmopolitan and a concentrated amount of people and, you know, and you and I are kind of more, you know, introverted types. So we wouldn't really like the loud crowd aspect of those places in general.

And it also would be a bad idea to live anywhere where you would stand out. And that's why I think it's a really bad strategy to go out and basically wear your ideology on your sleeve. That all that does is turn you into a bullseye at the end of the day.

Yeah, I actually learned that the hard way because I didn't really think that this world had gotten so serious where the mass consciousness was totally turned against that. So when I went to this small town that I ended up living in, I was actually walking around with like pins and stuff like that, being like an open racist. And yeah, you definitely get a lot of hostility on the part of the people there.

And then your reputation is basically ruined from the very beginning. For the most part, nobody's going to really have a willingness to deal with you. And even if they do, you know, you've got the local authorities there or something.

They're all brainwashed by the ADL and by the Jews and the local churches. They're always harassing you. So you're just bringing heat on yourself.

But at the time I was more naive and I didn't understand that. But I learned through my mistakes that you want to be just a blend in, be a gray man, basically the ghost wolf. Yeah, there are these great broadcasts called Ghost Wolf, but I've refrained from sharing them on Bitchute because I think that they would probably get me kicked off because they're very interesting broadcasts.

But he does talk about things like, you know, guerrilla warfare and, you know, lone wolf ops. And he also says like, you know, stuff like, you know, these fucking shit skins, these fucking, you know, stuff like that. I don't know if that would be, you know, with the way things are going with Bitchute, I'm not sure if that would be flagged down.

Even if it weren't, it wouldn't really be worth their while because they'll just ban it afterwards anyway. But at the same time, so far as I know, that Ghost Wolf podcast, that's basically more just pushing a terrorist angle, you know, as part of the style. Basically, yeah, yeah.

Like the guy would say things like, I want to train the next Joseph Paul Franklin and Joseph Tomasi. And, you know, basically, I don't know if I spoke to you about this before, but I distinguish between like a light side and a dark side Ghost Wolf. Light side being just blending in, you know, swimming with the sea of the fishes and try to survive and then change the minds of the people that you're around for personal survivalism and so forth.

Whereas the dark side is more like the overt Rahoah race war type, you know, the lone wolf operative type. Yeah, I would stay away from anyone who advocates going around and being a terrorist on the internet. I mean, that is like a complete red flag.

I mean, if you're legit and you're saying stuff like that, you probably get some knocks on your door and it's just not worth it. No, because what do you have to gain by broadcasting that or advertising that anyway? The only thing you're going to do is just bring heat on yourself. And then everybody will look upon you as a terrorist.

And of course, that's what they want, because they want people to actually, they want actual people like that, so they can point their finger at them and say, look at that guy, that guy's a terrorist, you know? Yeah, and it's like you see these types like, you know, Alex Linder, you know, who would order people around and say, you know, time to kill. Well, they don't actually really do anything. They just, they just say, oh, you need to do this.

I think that's a red flag in itself. Yeah, well, obviously, Linder's a Jew, and that's an agenda that he's pushing. So it's quite clear that that's what they want.

Yeah, and you mentioned that, you know, in the audiobook of Yawkey's Empyrean, which I found very impactful, you said that his audiobook, he reads it in sort of a snarky kind of sardonic tone. Yeah, Alex Linder. Kind of mocking his neologisms and his, you know, his whole wordage and ideas.

Yeah, that's why I basically just took it down. I didn't want to waste my time putting that up on any, you know, giving it any publicity, because it denigrates the work, which to me, if Alex Linder, who is a Jew, is denigrating something, then to me, that suggests that it's a threat to the Jews, because that's what the Jews always do, is denigrate anything that is a threat to their power. So that is obviously something that people should read then.

And that's why I'm more interested in that. I just put that up on Bitshoot, just this very moment, basically, within the last couple hours, Empyrean by Francis Parker Yawkey. I've actually yet to read the whole book.

I think he was legitimate, because he was killed. Yeah, it's either that, or he knew he was going to be executed, and then he committed suicide. I'm not too sure which is which.

Yeah, no one knows for sure. That's kind of like the legend of the guy. And apparently, he had a feud with Oswald Mosley for some odd, like, he was frustrated with Mosley, because he didn't publish his work.

And then Rockwell was also a critic of him, because he, Yawkey sort of would mention this sort of, you know, work with, you know, work with our enemy types to defeat the enemy, you know, the enemy of our enemy is our friend kind of thing. He does mention a little bit of that stuff. I think you can work with people to the extent you can work with them.

And of course, by that, I would mean, to the extent that they can be worked with at all. And to the extent you want to associate yourself with them, like I don't want to have any association, personally with Islam. I don't want to, I don't want any association with any sort of black Islamic types.

But I would support, you know, any sort of nationalist of their own kind, who doesn't want, you know, who's against the Jews, I would support.

Nordlux: Esotericism and Paleo-history

A podcast with Sigurd about different aspects of Aryan spirituality. We, in the conversation before the recording, with how the Jews are infiltrating and twisting the history and the beliefs of the different Aryan people and how we just don't know which aspect of the Aryan religion, of the ancient Aryan beliefs we can revive and restore. Also, obviously, we must create or restore a religion that is exclusively for the white Aryan people and to revive the spirituality of the white men and to serve the future generation and to protect the white people from mixing.

Without having any sound and very clear and intelligible tradition based on a clear and intelligible spiritual practice, then we cannot secure our people or a future for white children because people will be divided on a spiritual basis in a sectarian way, just as it is today with all these different splinter groups, New Age, various Christian sects and so forth. And then people will not be able to be unified because they have a totally different worldview and understanding. So unless you have a common worldview and understanding based on a actual sound foundation of truth and evidence, then you're not going to be able to unify.

So that's first and foremost, is having some sort of understanding of things. Yes, exactly. And the goal of our podcast is to start to reveal a lot of the lost aspects of the Aryan spirituality.

So these were the building blocks in the future of a religion that we don't know how to call still. Aryanism, maybe? I would just call it Ariosophy. Ariosophy, yeah.

Even though that's von Leibenfeld's. Yeah, von Leibenfeld's. But he also was kind of strange in his belief system.

So let's say Aryanism or Ariosophy, it doesn't matter, but we will try to find these missing links, these lost parts of the puzzle that are common for all Aryan people. And by Aryan people, of course, we are looking at the modern day, at least genetically speaking, white man. And as I said before, the modern white man is not Aryan man because we are missing the spiritual component.

And because we lost the spiritual component, we are going towards the genetical component. So that's sort of like a continuance of the involution from the spiritual to the material, things becoming ever more materially dense and fragmenting through the cycles of time. Yeah, it is basic degradation from spirit to raw materialism, from materialism to even more basic form of materialism and from then to chaos.

Right. Just like South America. Because we are losing the idea, the ideal of the Aryan man, which was to be descendants of the gods.

From descendants of the gods, we become a slave of a Jewish demon or maybe a Jewish thought form. It depends how we look at the Jehovah. And from then we started to accept on the basis of this egalitarian religion, we started to accept that the other races are equal to us, which is not true.

And on the basis of that, we started to accept that if they're equal to us, they must have the same rights. On the basis of the same rights, they started to mix with us. We started to accept their culture.

And from that point, their culture became dominant over our culture. And that's negriified America, as in the article of Evola. Yes.

This is basically the story of America. And how the Jews lie and they spin that in the opposite direction. They claim that there's evolution, not involution, and that we're progressing, not regressing, and that it's considered a moral virtue and, in fact, a moral imperative for white people to deliberately forsake their own interests and their own people and even go out of their way to kill their own people through the genocidal practices of race mixing and non-white immigration and so forth.

So it's a complete inversion of castes. It's what I call the dark caste system, where they took the ancient Aryan castes, which were comprised at the highest levels in the more prior to the Kali Yuga, the current modern age, of the spiritual caste at top, which ruled over the whole of the caste system of the nation. And underneath them were the warrior caste.

And underneath them were the trader caste or merchants. And underneath them were the serf caste or the slave caste. And it was always graded in terms of when there were non-whites in the society, it was in terms of color, varna, as it says in Sanskrit for color, which was a determinant of caste.

And the mixture of castes is what led to the degradation of it. But what ultimately led to the degradation of it was a corruption of the priest caste. Anti-infiltration of the priest caste by Jews.

Right. And that was the corruption of it. Because it wasn't strong enough to repel them.

I believe that the first problem is degradation, is degeneration. And when you have degeneration, it's very easy for the Jews to infiltrate a certain nation or caste of people or group of people because the Jew looks on the degenerates like a natural ally. That's why they're spreading homosexuality and pedophilia and zoophilia, all these sexual deviations.

Right. The Jews are the ferment of decomposition, the yeast. Yeah.

So that's why they're spreading the race mixing, because the race mixing, contrary to their propaganda that the race mixing is preventing some kind of degeneration, actually the race mixing is creating degeneration. Because these genes that have little to do, the genes of the Germans, the genes of the Bulgarians, have little to do with, for example, the genes of the Negroids or the Arabs. When you mix these different ethnic groups, you're creating genetic chaos.

And from this genetic chaos, you can create basically a race of deviance, which is very obvious because a lot of these mixed race, even in the past, are famous with their sexual perverted practices like homosexuality, cannibalism, poor drinking, and all kinds of debauchery. I think that is a very significant cause, but the ultimate cause is still spiritual. It's something to do with the corruption of the people themselves, the priest caste themselves that enabled them to let in the non-whites in the first place.

Although maybe it might have been a lot of contingent factors too on a more material level, but it's also, it's sort of like reciprocally causal. It's the corruption of the priest caste, and it's the corruption of the non-white invaders and influence as well. But we can't discount the fact that the priestly caste, the fact that they became corrupt implies that they were not perfect, that they allowed themselves to be corrupted because they had a defective nature.

Yeah, because they started to... So it's like a cycle of a... You have a genetic degeneration, but it is most likely the spiritual weakness that is causing the genetic degeneration. And from genetic degeneration, you have a Jewish infiltration that is spreading the genetic and spiritual decadence. It might have also been some type of entities that came to the earth from some other location too.

Yeah. That's what upset the so-called paradise or Eden in biblical terms, in hyperborea when things were in a state of more or less perfection. And then they came down, these entities, which were in Gnosticism called the archons and so on.

And they probably did something that modified the environment, the ether somehow, that changed the consciousness of the people. Who is to say? I mean, it's all speculation at that point. It's speculation, but also I must remind you that one of the theories for the last of the previous yuga, the previous cycle, is that the earth was hit by a large object.

And this caused the last ice age and the end of the previous civilization that was hyperborean or maybe Atlantean hyperborean civilization. It depends if these two mythological groups are connected. Well, Atlantis preceded it a little bit so far as I've heard.

But with respect to that object that crashed into the earth, according to Hans Heinz Horbeger in his Welt-Ice-Lair or his world ice theory, which was like 1905, I think he wrote that it was a moon that came into the atmosphere of the earth that changed the rotation of the earth around its axis or that caused the earth to wobble, which caused the seasons. There was something with the moon that is not exactly right because their theory about the moon is changing all the time. It was part of an invader planet that was thrown into orbit around the earth.

Then they found that the moon is very similar to the earth. So they thought that it was part of the earth at some point. Then they found that it's a very weird composition that is similar to the earth, but it's not exactly the same.

So it's a very strange story about the people claiming that they remember the time when there was no moon in the sky or there were two suns. Right, like in Star Wars and Tatooine when Luke looks at the two moons. Yeah.

And of course, there's some linguistic evidence that, for example, Sol, the Latin term for the sun, means solo, alone. Right. And of course, Moon, Mono.

So this also means alone. So maybe there is something about that. And of course, again, as always, I will point out the Bulgarian mythos that the moon certainly was some kind of creation of Yaha, the demiurge deity.

That's very interesting in relation to Serrano's work in his Menu for the Man to Come about the moon and Saturn being connected as something that generates the matrix. David Icke also says that. And Yaha, that's sort of related to Saturn, which is Jehovah, I believe.

Yeah, yeah. Yaha is just this demiurge that was a tool of creation for the white goddesses to, can't say, to fulfill their dreams of this perfect earth and world that they cannot alone create. But the rest of the creation, basically, the end of the creation was not perfect, because at some point Yaha stole the fire of creation from the white goddesses.

And he started to change the nature of creation, basically to erase this novel aspect of the material world that he didn't like. And of course, at the end, Yaha was defeated by Tangra. And he escaped.

Now, where he escaped is not very clear, but it's some kind of other dimension. Some people claim that he lived under the earth. And he was waiting to return to the middle earth or to Arda, as it was known in Bulgarian mythos.

So he's coming to the surface of the earth from under the earth? Yes. Yeah. Yeah.

Of course, I mentioned before that there's that Edward Bulwer-Lytton and his book, The Vril, The Power of the Coming Race. He was the head of the Rosicrucian Society in England in the late 1800s. And he wrote that book, which showed how there was like beings, winged beings in the hollow earth.

And then also you have, as I mentioned before, in another podcast, Edgar Rice Burroughs with his Pellucidar, The Land That Time Forgot, and The Journey to the Center of the Earth's Core, which discusses like winged beings that feast on humans called the Mahar. And Mahar is actually a Jewish name too. This is interesting because I believe that in the book of Bulwer-Lytton, he mentioned that these winged creatures that are living in the earth, they were reddish color, but also they were descendants of the great Aryan race.

So it is maybe this weird British Israelite idea that the Israelites were also one of the worst tribes. I mean, the Brits are one of the worst tribes of Israel. And now the Christian identities that they came, that they were the Israelites were the Aryans or something like that.

Yeah. Around that time, that's when they were really picking up with the British Israelite ideology because that's when they were trying to go to India and set up the British East India Company through Benjamin Disraeli. And they were setting up the Opium Wars with the Sassoon family in China to try to take that over.

And they were building toward the Sino-Japanese War, the war between Russia and Japan, and then building toward taking over Russia and creating all their revolutions to destroy the nobility throughout Europe. That was sort of like what was being done at that time for the Jews and their projects. Karl Marx had created the Communist Manifesto and so on.

So basically, we look at the first steps of creating this Eurasian Union that they're just talking about these days and future race mixing. And this is another step of the Kalergi Plan and the restoration of the Byzantine Empire. And, of course, the future dominance of the Jews over the world with all these esoteric consequences.

Yeah, that's probably why a lot of that esotericism was created in the first place, just as a means of mind controlling the upper class whites so that they would go along with the program. They're definitely going with the program because, from what I know, these Christians in America, especially the people that believe in the rapture, they will be very happy to push the red button of the nuclear weapons because this will bring Jesus Christ to earth. It doesn't get more crazy than that, that's for sure.

Yeah, but this is what the Jews created. Right. They created them as a mind-controlled slave.

And, of course, Calvin, I believe that you mentioned before, could be a Cohen actually. Yeah, John Cohen. So a lot of these, and even the Christians themselves, they're debunking this rapture theory that has not existed in the Bible.

And they're claiming that it's basically created, especially to create this type of Christian going slaves for the Jews and to do their bidding. I think that's mainly C.I. Schofield, the Schofield Bible. Hmm.

That was only a hundred years old or so. The Bible's never been very positive in the history of the white race. Overall, we are binding ourselves to a black cube, and cube and book is basically one and the same, reversed.

So we are binding our psyche with the black cube, and they're not even reading the whole Bible. They're just reading certain passages from the Bible and claiming one or another of being in the nature, of projected nature, I must say, projected nature of their God. And on the basis of that, you have a religious wars, you have a different kind of destructive sex, you have different social movements, you have the basis of egalitarian society.

You have, but not to throw the trash against Christianity, I must say that Buddhism was also an egalitarian religion, and that's why most likely it was created or infiltrated by the Jews. Yeah, I'm pretty sure it was created because the original Tibetan religion was Bon, or Bonpo, B-O-N, and that was more or less destroyed, especially around the last, turn of the last century with the Chinese invasion of Tibet under Mao Tse-Tung. And then before that, the Anunnabi with Hermann Wirth and Heinrich Himmler were going into Tibet to try to discover all the ancient Aryan sources that prove the, you know, paleohistorical origins of the Aryans in Hyperborea and Agartha, which apparently was a city under the earth, Agartha, as Blavatsky speaks about in The Secret Doctrine.

Of course, we can't really trust Blavatsky because she was allegedly an agent of the Rothschilds who was commissioned to write Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine and create Theosophy as a religion, as a pseudo-religion, as René Guénon proves in his book Theosophy, Invention of a Pseudo-Religion, and Julius Evola proves in his book The Mask and Face of Contemporary Spiritualism. But still, obviously these things may very well be a reality in terms of Agartha and underground cities in the Himalayan mountains. But as to Hyperborea and Hermann Wirth, he was basically propounding the notion that there was this Arcto-Gaia or this original polar civilization in its, and that was the original language in the original civilization, that was the whole of the North Pole basically, and that's what Dugan and people like that are trying to hijack, they're trying to co-opt that and spin it to serve their agenda.

Yeah, Hermann Wirth, he could be influenced by the masonry at that point. Yeah, because he was speaking about the mother goddess religion as if that were the basis of Aryan religion. Yeah, they thought that basically these areas, they followed a matriarchal code, which is not true.

Actually, what they were referring is the different surviving elements of the pre-Aryan religion. So, these elements that survived the Aryan invasion in Europe, they integrated in the Aryan religion at that point, but this was not the original Aryan religion. The original religion was the Sky Father, or Deus Piter, and of course, there was deity, goddesses, of course, deity of the morning star, so it was the daughter of... What? That's Venus.

Yes, the original name in the religion, it is, of course, open the brackets, it was a reconstructive language, so there were a lot of speculation there, but the original name in the Indo-European mythos is Hesos, or Hesos, or Hesios. Which is the paleo-origins of so-called Jesus. Yes, but it was a feminine deity, the daughter of Deus Piter.

Also, we're talking about twin horse twins, which in Bulgaria, they are very obviously a horse twin. One of the brothers is called Horsul Herth, this is called the Iron Father, he's the blacksmith and warrior and horseman. And that's Vulcan, Vulcan, or two Vulcan of Masonry.

It could be Vulcan, but also it could be also a Thor, because it's a combined deity between several deities, and also his brother is Thor, that is the god of war and wisdom, and he's also connected with the protecting of the warriors, and there was even a small female following of god Thor, because in the Volga Bulgaria and in the steppes of Ukraine, there was groups of female warriors, so basically this is the basis of the legendary Amazons. Yeah, you know what's interesting, if I could just put a little side note there about the Ukrainian flag, which is blue, sky blue and yellow, so that could be a blue-eyed blonde-haired, it could also mean the sun and the sky, which is apparently the Aryan sort of paleo-mythos, with the sun god, or the solar logos, and then the sky father, like Uranus. I think that it represents the blue sky and the golden fields of Ukraine, because the fields of Ukraine are very rich of grain.

Well, it could also have more esoteric meaning as well, though. Yeah, yeah, yeah, of course. Because they always have their exoteric and their esoteric meanings, these sorts of things.

Most people, you know, that's the way the elite always play with the populace, you get their little jollies through manipulating and pulling the, you know, hoodwinking the masses. Yeah, because they leave the interpretation for us, and more intelligent and spiritually connected people will manage to decode their games, basically. This is their understanding, because they also believe in the... they are Darwinists in a way, but not in the racial way, because this suggests a group racism, so to say.

They're elitists. They're elitists, yes. They're very proponents of this elitism.

And the only people that are supposed to be saved on the racial basis are the Jews. The others could mix with the Jews or basically succumb to the Jewish superiority. This is from what I've seen from their agenda, that that's why they are propagating race mixing for the wolf tier going to create this slave race.

But also, the Jews are mixing with Nordic types to create this elite. And at some point, the Jews will have genes from the... at least predominantly genes from the white people, but they will rule. But of course, the Jewish gene is something that is very specific, and it always dominates the non-European genes, even in small quantities.

That's basically like the demon seed. There's this one Krishna identity book that I think everybody should have a read of. It's not a very lengthy book.

It was written by a guy named B.F. Jackson, and it's called The Mystery of the Serpent. And there's also another one of his works called The Mystery of Satan and the Devil. And it discusses in the sort of like biological and spiritual sense, how the Jews' genetics, how their blood is somehow, how it transmits itself and how it contaminates the blood of others and how they depend upon the blood of others in order to exist, to have the life force, like a vampiric transmission of their genetics, of their line through history, through posterity.

So it has some truth to it, even if it's... in spite of its Krishna identity source. Yeah, as I said, the Krishna identity, they had interesting approach to race. I don't believe, obviously, because they had a very bogus understanding of history, but at least they had the spiritual aspects of the Jewish problem and they combined spirituality with genetic origin.

And that guy was assassinated just a short time after he wrote those books as well. This is interesting. When he wrote the books? Oh, they were written in the 50s.

Because in the 20s, there was research from Bulgarian intelligence services. And of course, this is part of the problem that Bulgarian intelligence managed to how to say, they connected the obvious fact that the Bolsheviks, the Jews and parts of these artistic circles, these authors, the artists are very prone to Jewish infiltration and sexual deviations and all kinds of mental problems. So they did a research and they claimed that the Jews definitely, and this is in the 1920s, something, this is basically after the First World War, they claimed that the Jews will be always connected with some kind of mental and sexual deviations.

And that's why they are very... They like basically similar types of them. They like homosexuals, drunkards and drug addicts. And of course, much later, KGB, without naming the Jews, of course, they said that these factors of basically homosexuality, any kinds of strange, very pseudo-spiritual sex and religious sex and things like that, they're the main targets for infiltration from basically KGB agents.

So the KGB knew that these kinds of sexual minorities and religious minorities and things like that, they will be very useful tools for the destruction of the Western world and America. So it's not very surprising that recently Bulgarian archive actually shown that a Bulgarian secret service, basically, I believe it was in the 70s or 60s, late 60s, I believe, late 60s, they invest a lot of money in some popular groups in America because they believe that these pop groups will bring down American society. Right, they're sowing their seeds of degeneration.

Yes, yes. Maybe they believe that this degradation will happen much earlier, honestly, but it's obviously, after 50 years, it is obviously a fact. I mean, after what will be 50 years, two generations, three generations, you have the fruits of these poisonous seeds.

You have totally incompetent and passive generation that are succumbing to a bunch of raging orcs on the street. Right, just like Aldo Huxley's Brave New World. Yeah.

And I think he wrote another book, I forget what it was called exactly, but it was related to that and more theoretical about how he had intended to create all these sorts of things. Another one of his was called Chrome Yellow. But yeah, it's all predictive programming.

They all tell you what they're going to do before they do it as a means of trying to discharge their karma for what they do according to their value system that enables them to duck out of any sort of backlash in any spiritual realm because they've revealed to you what they're going to do. So that's your responsibility according to them and their logic? Exactly. Because, again, they believe that this is giving a chance to the more intelligent among us to save themselves and the rest, they don't care.

So as you said, this is part of their belief system that is telling the truth in one way or another to the goyim. Basically, they are washing their hands from the responsibility of what will happen, which of course doesn't mean that they won't try to stop us if we are gaining, for example, upper hand in the awakening of the people. So, yeah, it's very interesting and honestly, I'll be very interested in the future when hopefully we have more resources and people to make research on the sources of the Jewish belief system, the Kabbalah, and make, how to say, a very deep research without any religious biases.

Because most of the books that I've read on that matter were written by Catholics or Protestants or Orthodox. Or their Jews themselves are the only sources. Yeah.

Like that Gershom Shalem guy or whatever. Very few of them were written by people that are, so to say, racialsists. For example, one of the books that I have in my collection is from Flavien Bernier and he was a Catholic.

So, this is also a thing. Another book, basically, is another French author, which is also interesting, Jean Bouyer. How to translate that? For God's sake.

The Enemies of Humankind. Is that available in English or is it only in French? I'm reading that in Bulgarian, but he was also a Christian, of course, and he's looking at it from a Christian perspective. But he also connects the Jews with the Asians and infiltrators.

But another interesting book in that regard is, of course, what was the name? As I said, this is from a Bulgarian author, The Jews, the Beliefs and the Endgame. This will be the correct translation. You're breaking up a little bit in your audio.

What? You're breaking up a little bit in your audio. Oh, I'm sorry, because I'm looking at the books. Yeah, I think that the origin of all the Jewish religion, for the most part, is just a syncretic plagiarism of other people's religions that they've synthesized together and that they probably use the language and the symbols and rites of various other peoples and related it to those entities that they're possessed by throughout history.

And it's metamorphosed into its current form where they think that these entities are some sort of angels or whatever that they propitiate through blood sacrifice and so forth. Absolutely, absolutely. And if you look at most of the Jewish creations, so to say, they are exactly copies of something else or stolen by some other people.

And of course, they plagiarized everything. And the big genius, so to say, Einstein, he obviously plagiarized his ideas from other people, from his first wife. And so forth.

James Maxwell. Of course, those are false theories anyway, because aether physics is a more adequate description of reality, not algebraic. They kind of admit that it's aether, but they're not calling it aether these days.

I mean, these black matter, black energy... Dark energy matter. Yes. All types of stuff just to make the equations.

Right. Yeah. All right.

They've got to make the data fit their theories instead of the theory fit the data. So they have it inverted. And maybe that's probably a deliberate black magic act on their part to deliberately project upon reality their own delusional theories as a means of distorting people's understanding of reality and leading them to do things that are completely opposed to their own better interests and survival.

Yeah, yeah. It's a very... Well, it's a typical Jewish way of twisting the things, because they, on their hands, they're people of the scripture. They were never known as warriors.

They were never known as creators. They were never known as creators of any kind of art, even when they need some kind of destructive genius on their side. They obviously prefer to use some kind of goy.

Right, like Werner Von Braun as opposed to Robert Oppenheimer. For example, I was going to point out Alistair Crowley, for example. Right.

Yeah, that's a good example, too. If he's not a crypto Jew, but let's say... If you look at photographs of him, it's more like standard Germanic English. But I also don't believe that he's a Jew, but who knows? There was some infiltration going back to the early 1700s in England, and even maybe earlier.

Right, according to the British Israelites and Christian Identists that Jesus was in England in whatever AD or something, or I mean BC. What? Yeah, he was a tin merchant, allegedly. He went to England or something.

This is part of the missing years of Jesus? Yeah, that's what they're trying to say. Because I've heard the same story of Jesus being in Thrace or even being in India. Right, so he went there to become enlightened or something.

Yeah, this Jesus was traveling all around the world for his... And this is part, again, of the Jewish infiltration tactics. How they're trying to present Jesus being part of the cultural background of the different people in Bulgaria, and the guy that is telling the story, he's trying to present Jesus being Thracian and, of course, Bulgarian Thracians, even though it's not exactly like that. And, of course, he's trying to present that the original teachings of Orpheus was very close to the original teaching of Jesus, which could be partially true because the Orpheic teachings could be infiltrated by Eastern Oriental religions, like I believe I talked with you about that, or maybe with Dzungar, that we don't know much about the original Thracian mysteries about Orpheus.

We know something about the Greek mysteries, but they're not the same. Right, I know Serrano refers to Orphic Kabbalah in some of his works. That was the original Kabbalah, according to him.

Of course, in Sumerian, you've got the Tree of Life motif on those reliefs with the two birds looking at that DNA spiral in the center, which is just a representation of the Ida Pingala and whatever, Shushumna, the two natives of Vedic esotericism and the spinal canal, the Shushumna. You can look at the Orpheic myth from two perspectives. One is more like pacifying the religion.

It was not an egalitarian religion in any form. It was elitist religion, so it is not like Buddhism, but it was also similar to Christianity in that sense that they banned the blood sacrifices. They started to practice basically bloodless sacrifice, fruits, milk, things like that.

There is a strange story that is not from a reliable source, but I must tell the story. Basically, this is from the history of it. Of course, it's a quite late story.

It was written in the fourth century. It is a history of one of the saints, which my name may be. It was Bacchus.

The name Bacchus obviously came from Bacchus, so it's a kind of mindfuck from the side of the Judeo-Christians there. It could also be a means of salvaging the previous paganism, just like they did with St. Dennis, which is for Dionysus. They are blaming

Orpheus of teaching the traditions unknown until that moment, sexual practices, aka homosexuality.

This is a Christian source. According to some people, Orpheus went to Egypt and then he was part of these practices of the Hermes Trismegistus, three times great Hermes. According to some people, at that point, there were some homosexual practices in Egypt.

This is quite late. It's quite after the Semitic infiltration in Egypt and degeneration and things like that. It could be true if this figure, real Orpheus, went back and he started to practice these sexual practices.

According to this Christian myth, another cult, the cult of Dionysus and the female priest of Dionysus, they killed Orpheus. They killed him with stones. It's very funny that this saint with the name, what a nice name, of Bacchus and, of course, they said that basically he was expelling the evil spirits of paganism, things like that.

But they, of course, are bashing Orpheus of being homosexual, but also bashing the Dionysians of being vile and evil and aggressive. So, this is another aspect of Christianity. You can see this aspect in the modern day Christians that they are claiming that the pagans in the past were unsophisticated, they were stupid, they were uncivilized, they were practicing degenerative sexual practices or they were practicing child sacrifices, things like that.

Which, to some extent, I think that it's very obviously a Jewish interpretation of the European practice. Right, they're always trying to slander white people as if they're some sort of devilish pagans and yet they praise all these savages all over the earth as if they're the heroes of the earth and they've done such noble deeds, but for the evil white people who hurt them or whatever the case. Yeah, because they're trying to create a guilt complex on the white people.

Just like Israel Cohen said in his plan. And this is the way to destroy the white people, through guilt complex, because as we mentioned before, first you have a problem with the spirit and then you have a genetic degeneration. This is why these white, quite attractive ladies in the 60s, I believe this is the first larger wave of race mixing in America, these white ladies started to mix with the Negroes and other kinds of degenerates to some kind of white guilt.

Well, it's also because they, like Israel Cohen says in his racial program of the 20th century that we'll bring the Negroes to fame and fortune as sports and entertainers. And through the sports and entertainment industry, they tried to convince the white females to interbreed with the Negroes based upon their celebrity status. And you can see that that's the influence that that has on people with rap music and so on.

If you listen to that, then it basically conditions your mind to have that sort of basically negrifies your mind for the most part. So, yeah, that's why, because they're destroying the original European culture and making European culture very sterile. And they're bringing a culture that is much more aggressive and much more, of course, primitive, but also very interesting for the undeveloped minds of the young people.

Right. It becomes like a source of intrigue and curiosity. And so they exploit our curiosity.

Yes. Shift it toward degenerate forms. And then from there, it just leads to your being a low IQ wigger or some sort of race mixer type.

Of course. And unfortunately, this brings the race mixing problem that the white people that engage in this kind of culture, they always or almost always race mix. Right.

Because they actually succumb to the superior culture and they want to be part of the superior culture through mixing their blood. Yeah. You see how they are now at this present time, especially the Jews are creating a lot of culture around wiggers, you know, with bringing out a lot of white rappers and so forth, which tries to normalize the negrified white as if that were a representation of white people per se, so that even those who are more healthy minded whites will gravitate toward white rappers and wigger culture because it's not represented by Negroes so much entirely.

But now it's represented also by their own kind. So they take it as if it were normal. So basically, they also make these these because of the white culture or lacks the warrior aspect, contrary to the culture of the Negroes that the warrior aspect is replaced by the gangs.

Right. And the culture of the Arabs, which their culture as a whole is a warrior culture. They want to subjugate the earth.

So when you have a young guy that's obviously looking at their way of life, if they don't want to go to the sterile European fake culture, because this is not the original European culture, they must choose between the pseudo cultures of the Negroes or the pseudo cultures of the Arabs. Right. Yeah, that's why you can see that they're pushing a lot of the Islamicism in Europe, especially and trying to create an association between white people and Islam through people like René Ginon.

They're trying to who converted to or he didn't really convert to Islam. He just sort of used that as a development of his spirituality. But they're trying to push that non-white culture.

Then they can associate white people with jihadism and then they can portray them as terrorists and use a police state to go after them. That's my speculation because you have people like David Myatt of the Order of Nine Angles also, you know, claim that he had converted to Islam for 10 years and so forth. I started to look at that David Myatt.

I actually know about David Myatt since a lot of time, but never been interested in his religion or ideology or things like that. I just didn't know much about that. But it's very interesting how they claim that they're infiltrating groups that they have nothing to do with.

For example, they want to join a group that is Nazis, racialists. Called the Insight Rules. And change the group from Insight and then they could switch to, for example, totally opposite mind view to, for example, to join a Muslim group.

Very interesting. And also this is another thing that we must look at. If this David Myatt is connected similar to Alistair Crowley, he could be connected to British intelligence.

Yeah, I've heard he was MI5, was David Myatt, and he was also apparently a Catholic priest at one point also. Really? Yeah. Same with another one of the Order of Nine Angles figures, a guy named Hager.

He was also a Catholic priest. Well, they will explain to that that they're trying to infiltrate the Catholic Church and the Catholic Church could serve their purposes, right? Well, no, they were originally Catholics and then they allegedly developed the Order of Nine Angles afterwards when they broke away from Catholicism. But obviously they're probably just operatives of the Catholic Church from the beginning and they were just trying to associate pro-white values with Satanism so that they could vilify anybody who is a pro-white person and get the Christians to go and attack them, the Christian whites.

Because from what I've read about them, they didn't sound particularly Satanic, at least the original groups, but they were made to become, how to say, because they were created like open source cults. Everyone could follow the cult and could join the cult, even though the initiations of the cult are quite ridiculous and quite hard to obtain. Yeah, it's just a lot of exercise, basically.

It's a lot of exercise, but also very hard. One of the things was 300 miles through a hard terrain and before that you must fast for one week and then you must learn some to read. It's very complicated and you must have a lot of time and resources to make it.

And I suppose you must be in very good shape because 300 miles, this is what, 500 kilometers. Yeah, running for eight hours and stuff like that. They were prescribing.

Yeah, which on their own, honestly, these on their own, these initiations, they they don't sound bad. I mean, most of the most of the sects that I've heard, they were quiet. They are practicing different kinds of spiritual rituals and that's connected with shunting and praying or some sexual practices and things like that.

These kinds of initiations through through willpower, actually, I like because you can have some kind of selection of certain types of people that are much more willing, much more willing to act. Meanwhile, if you have basically Crowleyan practices, you have a certain type of degenerates. Yeah, not too many decent people are going to gravitate toward sodomy and cannibalism and various other dirty things of that kind.

But you can have a certain type of physically active and strong willed people that could go through physical initiations. If you put aside the fishy nature of Dakota, of course, just looking at more information about these cults of the Nile, because I've heard that certain groups are practicing basically real satanism, as I understand it, basically pedophilia and human sacrifice. Right, like Michael Aquino and people and Stephen Flowers bound up with Michael Aquino and so forth.

That's why I'm a little bit suspicious of a lot of these alleged occult organizations, especially things that Stephen Flowers is pushing, like a sort of Zoroastrian thing and then all various of his related left-hand path type of practices. Zoroastrian or Manichean? Well, yeah, Stephen Flowers is sort of becoming a proponent for Zoroastrian ideology at this time. And he obviously is some type of left-hand path occultist that was more or less following what would be called satanism.

So that just, to me, underscores further that Zoroastrianism was never a white religion. It's just more dualistic Jewish type stuff. You know, in one of his books, that's why basically this brought me to Reza Jorjani.

I never knew that he was part of the... As I said to Patrick, even though I'm kind of old and for a very long time in this ideology, I was not very active on the internet because, first of all, I didn't have enough time. And second of all, I was active in the real life with political organizations and then trying to establish my own life and things like that. Whereas now it's the opposite.

It's all basically more online than it is in real life, which is not the way it should be going. Yeah, yeah. But from what I've... I was interested in researching things about Bulgarian, old Bulgarian religion.

And one of the books that I found, or I must say not books, quotes or articles from Jorjani. And he mentioned Bulgaria and the old Bulgarian religion being part of the original Mitranic code. When I say original, I don't mean the Roman Mitranism.

The Roman Mitranism is something that they took the Mitra, the deity, and they created the code that is different from the original Mitranic. The original Mitranic codes, they were the religious practices of the Scythian people and were, I suppose, close to the practices of the Eastern Europeans or the Norse people. There's an article, a little article that Julius Evola wrote about Mitranism.

But what about the Mitra, which kind of Mitranism? Well, it's probably the Roman Mitranism he was discussing. Roman Mitranism. Because the Romans, from what I get, they started to... This was a male religion.

It was very popular amongst the legionaries. My suspicion is that it was popular amongst the legionaries because at some point in the Roman Legion, there were a lot of people from Sarmatian extraction. At Sarmatians, they also practiced Mitraism.

Let's call it step Mitraism or the cult of the horseman. In Bulgaria, they call this deity Heros, which means hero. Is that like Helios? Is there a cognate there? It's a cognate, but it's not the same.

It is Heros, like hero with S on the end. And basically means, they translated this like Thracian horseman. And the cult of the Thracian horseman was very popular in Bulgaria.

Interestingly enough, Bulgarians also worshipped, as I said, the god horse that was represented like a horseman with an axe. He forged because he was also a smithing deity. He forged armor for himself and iron bolts and also his axe called Vila, which means wheel.

This is the most venerated deity in Danube Bulgaria. In Volga Bulgaria, there are some sources that claim that the most venerated deity was Tur. Tur was the twin brother of the horse and he was the god of wisdom and war.

And of course, Heros, going back to the ancient time, the Thracian kings actually prayed to Heros because they believed that this is mythological ancestor of the Thracian kings. So, the Latin word for hero came from the word Heros. And of course, in English, you have hero, which is also originated from Heros.

And of course, the ancient Aryans most likely called themselves Herios, which of course is connected with Heros. So, we have the cult of the Aryan horseman, so to say. And of course, some people point out that Odin is also Herios.

He is a heroic, mighty figure, god on a horse. And also, as you said, Helios is also connected because he's always pulled by chariot by four horses. It's the same sort of mythos throughout the entire Aryan world.

Yes, this is the archetype of the Aryan horseman, of the charioteer, of the these... Basically, the Aryan spreading of the last, I'll say, area, the white civilization is connected with the horses and with the ships, which are always called, for example, the horses are called the ships of the steppes and the Viking ships are called the horses of the sea. So, there's also symbolic connections. So, it's interesting how Serrano likes to talk a lot about the ships, the Kaluche in his books.

He references that as well as if it were some sort of esoteric concept that was simply symbolized by a ship. I think the symbolism here with Odin and the eight footed Sleipnir is also a symbol, just as with Helios probably, of some type of transmigration of the soul, maybe, or transcendence. Because, you know, eight feet for the horse and that's an eight-pointed star.

Is that Venus or is that the pole star? Because the pole star, I believe, also is eight-pointed. This could be basically going through eight, I'll say, great celebrations during the year. So, this could be the passing of the sun through different dates, for example, the obvious four are 21st, 22nd of December, 21st, 22nd of March, 21st, 22nd of June, 21st, 22nd of September.

But then you have these small dates. So, basically, the Celtic calendar. This is the celebration of Imbolc that we have on the 1st and 2nd of February.

I forgot the rest, for God's sake. But you have basically the same cross of an important solar date going through the calendar. But also, there are eight phases, in the, as you said, in the spiritual aspect of passing through eight spheres.

And also, another thing, this is... Right, you mean like the planetary orbital spheres? Yes, there are different... Hebdomad and then the Ogdoad, the eight. Yeah. So, that could refer to transcendence or ascension, basically, to godhood or apotheosis.

And we are going in a very controversial aspect. Is it the ancient areas? How religious were the ancient areas? Are they believed that they could become gods? I think so. I don't see how that's just a Jewish thing.

I think that that was always our conception of reality because we were derived from the gods. And so, we want to go back to that state. I believe that they knew that there's something like reincarnation.

And it depends on what you're doing in the reincarnation. You can end the cycle of reincarnation. We know that the Celts believe in reincarnation.

We know that the Aryans, I mean the Indo-Europeans or whatever, believe in the reincarnation. We know that, and this was one of my points when I talked to Jan Lamprecht years ago, that Babylonians, one of his... Because it was an open support channel. It was in the good times when YouTube was too friendly, too racist.

So, one of his followers was a Christian, something. And he said, oh, this is a satanic doctrine that the Jews wrote that there are reincarnations. I said, this came from Babylon.

I said, yes, most likely it came from Babylon, but this means that the Aryans brought it to Babylon. Because the Aryans believed in the cyclic nature of everything, which is empirically, you can look at the nature around us, and you will see that it's a cycle. It's not a progression.

It's not like everything starts from the one end and ends in the other end. It's not like that. It's not like Darwinian understanding of evolution.

It's not like Christian understanding of evolution. It's not just a simple progression. Their conception of time, the Christians, is linear time.

It's just everything begins with Jesus and a bunch of evil pagans before him. And then it just ends with the end times and the apocalypse. And then either you go to heaven or you die.

That's why I talk to my comrades, because some of them are very... I mean, good people with hearts in their right place. But at some point, when you throw a lot of energy in our projects, and they fail, or they have some result, but they're not exactly what you expect, they think that, oh, it's Kali Yuga, because the red Evoa. And they said, oh, it's Kali Yuga, you must ride the tiger.

And I said, well, there is a reason that we are born in that time and place. There is nothing just like the Jews try to convince you that it doesn't matter. You're just basically a pack of genes, and you don't have any kind of purpose in that life, other than procreation.

Either that or you're just living your life to go and fly away to Jehovah or something. Yeah, yeah. Because this, by the way, this is the most... I don't know how the Protestants and Catholics, what are their end game, but I suppose it's more or less the same like the Orthodox.

But the Orthodox basically believe that if they are very good Orthodox, they believe in Jehovah, things like that. And this is one of the most appalling things. It doesn't matter if you're a good man.

If you don't believe in Jehovah, you're going to hell. So it doesn't matter according to them. So, and if you are even a pedophile, if you're a pedophile and you believe in your heart in Jehovah and just ask for forgiveness, he will forgive you.

Right. You'll go to heaven. But furthermore, what is the understanding of heaven? This is the most interesting thing.

According to the Orthodox, you will sit on some throne and the whole eternity you will sing glory to Jehovah, glory to Jehovah in heavens, glory to Jehovah. This is for all eternity. Right.

So one time I went to this meeting at the SSPX, the traditional Catholicism thing, because I was trying to find out if it was something favorable for white people. I had no knowledge of Catholicism. And then I went there at this old woman's house and they were just doing their little rosary rituals.

Hail Mary, Hail Mary, Hail Mary. This is like mentally ill or something like that. The place felt like it was possessed by demons or something.

Yeah. She had like she had like pictures all over her house and icons and everything else. So it's basically like a Jewish projection of their type of repeating prayers and reading from the Torah.

Vain repetitions, basically all of those. Yeah. So it's a type of prayer washing.

Yeah, because you repeat the same thing. It puts you into a hypnotic state of consciousness and then it blacks out your rational thought. Yeah.

And this is for whole eternity. Even there, heaven sounds like hell, honestly. We are going back to the Aryan spirituality.

So what do the Aryans believe? Aryans believe that through heroic deeds, through the acts of heroes and heroes, Aryans basically means the same. And also because some people said that the ancient Aryans, they didn't have understanding of race at the same time. It's not like that.

I mean, when you go to the mythos, for example, of Hercules or Heracles, it's the same, but you always see that he from his mother's side is descendant of kings, from his father's side. Well, he's God. So he's basically a mixture of these struggles typical for the Aryans mixture of human and godly DNA and human and godly spirit.

And if you look at the mythos, he's doing heroic deeds. He's fighting. He's defeating the enemies, the Kentaro.

So things like that. But also he's doing some absolutely appalling things like killing his wife and for nothing, basically. And this is, well, if I say fall of the spirit, this is mindfuck because as I said, I don't use the term fall of the spirit.

Well, let's say Promethean spirit of the Aryan people. Struggling with yourself and trying to overcome yourself and to become part of these lost, lost godhood, so to say, to become part of your ancestors, to join them in and end this cycle of reincarnation. I think that's a proper understanding of the notion of the first estate in the Bible.

Only the Jews took that and they distorted it into some sort of so-called moral concept, when in reality, it was actually a biological and ontological concept in terms of the actual state of being that people are in based upon their rituals, based upon their blood purity. Yeah, that's a very, very nice, I would say, analysis from your side, because as I said in the first part that we watched, what is spirit and spirit is both. You cannot separate one from another.

You cannot be like the modern 80s that reject any kind of spirituality because there was no proof of the existence of God or gods, or you cannot be a fanatical Christian or Muslim or Jew that are just reading one scripture or some scriptures that are connecting to each other. Just the Aryan understanding is an impure and wise understanding of nature and material and spiritual nature at the same time. Also, this is part of the encoded knowledge in the white race that at some point could become Aryan race or could go back to the Aryan state of mind and body, which, of course, the Jews are trying to achieve that through artificial means, through transhumanism, because they are unable to reach that point with purity of blood and soil, and so they are trying to reach these things through artificial means, like always.

They cannot be warriors that could conquer the world. They infiltrated the warrior societies and created multicultural empires that they dominated through the power of money. They cannot achieve God through ascending, through different spiritual and physical practices.

They are trying to achieve God through, I don't know, through genetic manipulation, through purely materialistic means, which is an absurdity, because you can't attain spirit through some sort of manipulation of matter. I wonder how they will, because obviously they're afraid of the death, how they think this will work for them. I mean, even if they manage to connect themselves with some kind of IT and cyborg body, it doesn't mean that they will be immortal in reality.

No, because if they're not mortal or if they're not immortal in their nature, they don't have the divine spark. But of course, they just speciously reason in their mind, and they think that, you know, they convince themselves that that is the reality, that they're somehow a superior being, when in reality it's just specious reasoning. It's just delusion that they deceive themselves, and that's pretty much the whole of their behavior is just based on falsehood.

This reminds me again of the myth of Yaga, the father of their creator, that wanted to have this fire of creation, this spark of creation, only for himself, because he was greedy. And basically, the Jews are like that. They are very greedy.

They want to obtain godhood and deny godhood for anybody else, but their way of obtaining godhood is through, obviously, through materialism, because they're material creatures. And I wonder how this will play for them, because it looks like they're destroying everything that they're touching. It is like the opposite of the areas.

The areas are finding a way to create a better world around ourselves, but the Jews are always destroying everything that they're touching. They're twisting. At the end, I believe that they will destroy themselves.

Maybe we'll... Well, it's either that or, you know, the Jews will be subjugated, but in and of themselves, they're basically the embodiment of chaos. There's nowhere they can go or anything they'll do that won't lead in that direction, because the entities that, in my opinion, the entities that control them or that work with them, basically derive energy through creating trauma and chaos in organisms when they create war, revolution, and so forth, and even just interpersonal strife between people. Whenever they drag people to lower states of consciousness, then what you could call vice, then these people, they give off energy or even animals, and then those entities feed off their energy that they secrete, I guess, if you want to call it that, because the entities that the Jews are bound up with are vampiric entities.

Yeah, exactly. As in the Bulgarian mythos that I said, that when the Yahu was wounded by Thangor, his drops of blood created the first upir, so basically the first vampire or vampir, which is the Bulgarian word. So, this entity was even greedier than Yahu.

So, in all his forms and all his entities, all these entities, all these sons of Yahu, they're greedy. They want to vampirize the world around them. They want to kill the host, but if they are killing the host, how they will survive, including in the spiritual sense? If they destroy the Aryan people, or the white people, because as I said, we are not Aryans anymore, unfortunately, how they will survive? I mean, how they will vampirize the Asians, how they will vampirize the Negroes? The Negroes have a very primitive nature, the Asians are very feminine.

Well, they can't really sustain their own society because they overpopulate their territory and they consume all the resources. Even in China, all the birds that I've heard have been consumed by the Chinese for food. So, there are no birds in China.

And the point is, that inevitably leads downwards. It's like what René Ginon wrote up in his book, The Reign of Quantity and the Signs of the Times, which basically discusses exactly what we're discussing with the Kali Yuga and the cycles of time and how it all becomes more materially densified because of these entities on the earth and because of the Jews. That is basically, although he doesn't say it's the Jews, but because of that, inevitably, if they are not put into quarantine, then we and everything on the earth will be destroyed, basically, and become more and more de-spiritualized.

So, in order to spiritualize the earth, then the Jews have to be put into quarantine. So, yes, so basically the Jews and the virus, which we found out in 2020. But a lot of people don't understand that.

But when I was going with all these things, I was going with the spirit of the hero. So, obviously, to be Aryan, it is not only a religion of faith, like in the Abrahamic religion, it is, well, not only the Abrahamic religion, with the exception of Islam. In Islam, you need certain deeds to be a good Muslim, right? But it's mostly this religion, the Abrahamic religion, the religion of the book.

In the Aryan religion, you need heroic deeds. You need heroic deeds that benefit you and also benefit the tribe or the tribes around you. And this basically breaks the cycle of reincarnation.

You may read, the listeners could read the mythos of Hercules, how he was basically doomed to a slow and painful death, but he was taken to the sky to his father, Zeus. And this is symbolic of the end of reincarnation. The same is in Bulgarian mythos, when the fallen on the battlefield, they joined the golden host of the golden army that will return at the final battle against the UD, against these evil spirits, UD.

Right, the wilderness here. Yes, and the same thing with the Norse mythos. The same thing with the Norse mythos, when the heroic warriors will join the Angir and they will fight the hordes of the Jotunn.

So, more or less, this is, I think, in the Scythian culture, even though we don't know much about them. We know that these heroes, these Thracian horsemen, these Scythian horsemen, this is obviously connected with heroic deeds. And it's obviously in many cultures, it was representing of killing dragon or some kind of demon, which from there, it became the representation of St. George.

So, in Christianity, of course, the Christians are taking everything from the European symbolism. It might also be a way that the Aryans or the Whites preserved their culture with a Christian facade or veneer, so that they could not be executed by the Catholic Church and so on. Yes, yes.

Sir Ramu had interesting thoughts about the temples preserving the... But I'm not absolutely sure about the temples being the preservers of the original Aryan spirituality. There's also the books, The Holy Grail, or The Myth of the Grail and The Hermetic Tradition by Julius Evola also discuss that. It is very... Because most of the people think that The Holy Grail is a typical Christian mythos connected with the blood of Jesus and St. Mary, things like that.

Holy Mary, I mean. In reality, you can find the symbology of the Grail and the Holy Blood in variation types. It is most likely connected with the ancient Aryan religion, that we just lost the whole story.

But we can find the bits and pieces from these mythos in the Christian mythos, but also in the Eastern beliefs, because I found that it was a very old belief, even in China, that they... Of course, the Chinese being very similar to the Jews, they understand the things literally. So they started to drink, basically, the menstrual blood of the women, which is... No comments on that. Sounds like Crowley to me.

Yeah, exactly like Crowley, but also exactly like some texts of early Christians, like the Gnostics that were drinking semen and menstrual blood. I think that's a Carpocratian Gnostics who did that stuff. Yeah, and they're even admitting these things in the letters, open letters to their followers.

So we're talking about a very primitive understanding of ancient, symbolical myths of cycles of time, of reincarnation, and the Holy Blood, Sangriao, very similar to Sangriao, the Holy One that is supposed to be underground. So obviously, for me especially, it is clear that the ancient Aryans had an understanding of the importance of the same blood, the Holy Blood. Yeah, that's what Jörg Landsvang-Leibenfels says in his works about the Divine Spark or Holy Grail being the blood of the Aryan.

Exactly, exactly. To some extent, it is referring again to Bulgar Mythos, the Flame of Creation that was originally called by the Seven White Goddesses. This is also could refer to the... and of course, they were situated on the island of creation, the island of creation is in the Lake of Creation.

It's this symbology of the water and the purifying qualities connecting with the female purity and the origin of creation being the Divine Spark. And of course, if you look at the original Grail story, it is the symbol of the purity of a certain bloodline that, of course, the Jews managed to turn to be the purity of the bloodline of Christ. But of course, the Grail is a female symbol and it was a holder of the blood.

And of course, the noble warrior, the Heros, the Aryan must find this Holy Blood and obviously procreate, continue the cycle until the end of the cycle, which is the end of the titanic struggle between the forces of creation, aka the Aryans and the forces of destruction and chaos, which are the Jews. It's interesting how in this cartoon called the Banned Mormon cartoon, which people can get from YouTube and so on, it shows how the Mormons, how white, blue eyed, blonde haired people come to earth from this other planet. And how in Mormonism, I think that's called Kolob, which is Sirius B in the Pleiades, which are seven stars, also called the Seven Sisters.

So there must be some sort of like hidden layers in a lot of this quasi-Christian esotericism from around that time. It's just probably distorted by Jews as usual, because they know that it's a threat to their power, so they try to corrupt it by infiltration. It is interesting because usually in some different stories, the Aryans are coming from planet Mars, of course.

Mars is Ares, the Aryan god, the red haired, red bearded god of war. Also, Ares was the god of the Thracians, but they didn't refer to him as Ares, as the Greeks. They referred to him like Tyr, and that's why the original name of the Thracians was not Thracians, Tyraki, so the Sons of Tyr, which most likely was the original name of God's Thor or Odin in the ancient time was God Tyr.

Of course, he's referred to God Taranis, to the Celts. And of course, Taranis is very similar to God of Sky and Thunder. It's very similar to the god Tangra of the Bulgarians, which, of course, is the originator of all these religious, I would say quasi-religious rituals amongst the Turks called Tangraism.

But for the Turks, they had very low understanding of Tangra, like Sky did today. Most likely, they represented the general word for them for God, like Tengri is a word for many gods, and also a word for the sky. So, this most likely came from this upper caste of white Scythians, so Gokturks, Blue Turks, that were the originators of the Gokturk Khaganate, that was an enormous political entity that was bordering China in the east and going to basically Ukraine to the west.

Is that something to do with the Uyghur people? It's hard to say. Most likely, some of the more European-looking Uyghurs or Uyghurs are descendants of the Gokturks. But most of the modern Turks, they are descendants of the lower caste, mixed-race tribes.

You can see that in Kazakhstan, for example, where you can see people with very fair skin, even blonde hair, blue eyes, and Mongolian features. So, obviously, some process of race mixing there. And the funniest thing is that they claim, these Kazakh people claim, that they are the original Scythian people, that the original Scythian people look like them.

So, some kind of weird Mongolians with blue eyes and blonde hair, according to them, which is not true. It's not true. If you open the Kurgans, you can see that the really ancient Kurgans, they were European types.

And they kept their racial purity for thousands of years. So, where was I? Basically, these kinds of religious practices, they always come, like almost everything else, from the Arab people. Even in Islam, you can find a lot of religious practices that refer to the Zoroastrianism.

You can refer to the ancient pagan practices of pre-Semitic Babylon. You can find different kinds of practices that refer even to some researchers, even they claim to ancient Egypt. Yeah, a lot of that, of course, the Masons, they always try to claim that Egypt is the source of everything and that everything comes from Egypt and so forth.

That's the sort of inverse of the reality of the migrations. Yeah, but they don't also reveal the truth that the source could be Egypt, but in reality, it was the Arab people that are much older than the Egyptians. I mean, they're trying to shift attention in a lot of these older Masonic works, such as Albert Churchward and James Churchward.

They're trying to claim that their origin was Lemuria and Mu, and then from there, it went to South America or whatever, and then to Egypt. So, in other words, they're trying to cut out the white origin. Hmm.

It's like, you see, for example, Meli Pichol, with his Masonic wisdom in brackets, he tried to convince his listeners that, for example, everything is dating back to Egypt, as you mentioned. But even he admits that there are some sources of people coming from the West, from the sea, and he referred to them as Atlanteans. According to him, these Dagon figures, these Oannes, they were the ancient Atlanteans that came to the Middle East.

But before that, he also forgot to mention that Atlanteans had colonies, and their colonies were in Europe and most likely in America. Yeah. Sort of obvious, if you think about it, because of proximity in terms of geographical location is much more similar to Europe.

So, if they had colonies in the Middle East, then they would obviously have had to go through Europe, too. Of course, and this is revealed by their racial composition. I mean, in the myths, they're described like fair-skinned people.

Now, there are a lot of different castes of people. There are most likely people that were brunettes in one of the castes. There are also a fair-haired priesthood.

And this is the same like the different castes that migrated in the Aryan history. Some people think accordingly, and I'm in that account, that the different tribes, different sub-racial groups, were part of the ancient caste system of the Aryan people. So, and this is also revealed in the Scythian Kurgans, that you can find two different... Well, they were not so different, racially speaking.

The Kordids and the Pontids. But you can find the burials of the two types side by side, that coexisted together and obviously were part of the same social structure. So, most likely, the Pontids were the warrior class, and the Kordid Nordic type were the priesthood class.

So, and of course, they were subjugating in the context of Eastern Europe, they were subjugating other people. For example, what would be the Baltics or the Proto-Slavic people. Or in the case of Central Asia, they were subjugating non-Aryan types or non-European types.

So, this is also interesting, I think, to think about the different sub-races forming different castes. So, basically, every sub-race gets specific qualities. Right, yeah, that makes sense.

Sort of like the Latin term, sum quaeque, which means to each their own. Mm-hmm. So, whatever's appropriate for them on an ontological level, in terms of their nature, their capacity.

Obviously, different types of beings are going to have a different capacity. So, obviously, they can't be equalized. And what are their capacities? We'll just look at how they behave and look at what they can do.

You know, that's been proven with all the free advantages that were given to Negroes, for example, through affirmative action policies and favoritism and hiring and so on. And they receive all of these copious advantages, like a veritable cornucopia of advantages.

And the only thing they do with it is just sit around and create an inept society, inept bureaucracy.

You know, they don't do their job properly. And so, that just demonstrates that they're not capable of playing that role. And therefore, they should not do that.

And that is not becoming them to do that, nor is it becoming white people to do menial tasks, like be maidservants and so forth. But this society is based on an inversion of the caste system of the ancient Aryan tradition. Basically, what I call a dark caste system, where all the Chandal, Sudra caste, the serf caste, have been elevated to the level of the priestly caste, as in the case of the Jews and all their other slaves, whereas the white people are demoted to the slave caste, which is, of course, a completely distorted perversion of ontological reality.

It's not reality in any harmonious sense. It doesn't accord with the truth. It's basically like a false world or a falsified, distorted world.

Exactly. And this is, again, I will repeat myself for the listeners, but this is, again, representing a decadence of the soul turning to become a genetical... Basically, decadence of the soul turning to become a social decadence and turning to become a genetic decadence. Because what the Jews did, basically, they turned against the warrior spirit with Christianity.

They twisted the Christian religion to be anti-warrior, in a sense, even though in the early stages of the Christianity, there were a lot of military orders and a lot of militarism that were contrary to the original spirit of the Christianity. Right, yeah, that's in the earlier stages, where they were still fairly late, though. Because the early stages of Christianity were just under Rome when the Jews took it over.

And then it was very decadent. But the Aryan spirit or the white... Yeah, the Aryan spirit just rose again later in different forms, such as in the Middle Ages with the Ghibellines and whatever. And, of course, they turned against the warrior spirit.

They turned against the idea of conquest and enslavement of the foreign hominids. And, of course, the Christians were the first that were against enslavement and slavery and things like that. Yeah, in South America, there's a papal bull, I think I encountered, which stated in the 1400s that they were against slavery.

You know, they're all humans, you know, they're all God's children or whatever. And they wanted to convert them and so forth. And now you see South America today, that's a direct result of Catholicism, of Catholic universalist ideas.

Yeah, I believe I talked with you about the role of the Jesuits in South America, how they created the first communist state there. And they basically helped the local population to multiply and even helped the locals, the Indians, I suppose, and the mestizos, protect them from the Spanish authorities or from the dreaded conquistadors. Which that's why I think that not all conquistadors were Jews.

I think that there are some normal white people there. Yeah, the conquistadors, they were just the soldiers and the generals, you know, the military faction that were used by the Jewish-Jesuit leadership to take over South America and kill off the white people. Because there were white people there, like indigenous whites, Aryans who had been there from Atlantis, and then they were destroyed by them.

This sounds logical for me because even the Spaniards admits that the higher, the upper class of the Incas, they were white, well, I suppose it's not exactly white, but with fair complexion. And they also described that a lot of these aristocrats were quite tall, quite even taller than the Spaniards, that on average were taller than the Indians. So, yeah, there's definitely something there.

And of course, these Jesuits destroyed a lot of their sources. So, we don't know what exactly was the situation before the Spanish invasion there. And, of course, another, obviously, gold.

They wanted gold to finance their plan of world domination. And, of course, South America was quite rich of gold. Right, like Dorado.

Which I'm open brackets here. White nationalists and national socialists from all kinds must look at the possibilities of finding rich sources of gold and all kinds of resources, because we will need these resources. Well, if people buy a bunch of land around certain areas, you can stake claims to gold.

Yeah, but it's... You can go prospecting in the woods way up in remote locations. Yeah, yeah, yeah. But also, I must say that I have some experience with gold prospecting.

It's quite a hard process. It is not for a week of body and heart. So, they must be prepared.

They must be prepared. But this is also good. I mean, the hard way is the good way, obviously.

Where was I? So, we were talking about different kinds of spirituality, different kinds of, I would say, the Jewish infiltration in the different Aryan system of beliefs. We also mentioned that the Jewish way to, basically, they have occult goal. The occult goal is to become gods or gods.

Only some addition is to summon their gods or gods on earth. Which, according to them, is the end game for us. Of course, this will be connected with some kind of extraterrestrial entities, according to them.

Yeah, from CERN, probably, from that wormhole that they're apparently opening up in Switzerland. Yeah, yeah. So, they can bring entities onto the earth.

And also, they're also looking at the artificial intelligence. So, basically, the entity could use the artificial intelligence to influence the earth. It's interesting.

Have you ever seen the movie Maximum Overdrive by Stephen King? No. It was a movie. And he also wrote another short story.

Basically, vehicles and trucks are taken over by entities. And they come to life. And the entities use the vehicles to attack humans.

I guess it's somewhat similar to Terminator, like with Arnold Schwarzenegger. The Terminator movies. The rise of the machines.

The machines take over. Because they're controlled by these entities. And it makes sense, too.

Because how do you think machines function? They function on the basis of electricity. So, if these entities can use their electrical bodies, or whatever, to spark the spark plug, or whatever. And then they can just, having the conscious awareness of how these machines work, they could potentially use these machines as actual bodies for themselves to create chaos.

And then they feed off the death energy of their victims. This sounds very much like the story in the Warhammer universe. Basically, the ancient ones were in the war with a race of less developed extraterrestrials called the Necrons.

And the Necrons, the ancient ones, were described like lizards, by the way. Yeah, they're always referred to as lizards to Jews throughout history. Or related to that, like reptilians.

And the Necrons lost the war because the ancient ones were very powerful. But they allied themselves with star gods. And one of the star gods showed them a way to become immortal, basically, of joining their consciousness, their spiritual aspects with cybernetic bodies.

And they joined themselves and became very strong. They fought the ancient ones and almost won the war. But in the process, they lost their souls.

Because they found that this god, this star god, basically stole their souls. So it's, I don't know, maybe it becomes self-fulfilling prophecies for the Jews. How do you think? Yeah, probably.

Because all this transhumanism is leading to that. I mean, for the Jews to lose their... Man and machine merging together. Yeah, to lose their last remains of humanity.

Right, exactly. Even though they're a very weird type. I mean, they originate from, who knows, from a Neanderthal species.

They definitely had some other dimensional influence, like demons manifesting through them. Yeah, that's what Serrano says. And I think Evel also sort of intimates that, that they derived from Neanderthals.

So maybe these Neanderthals are just creations of this demiurge. It sounds absolutely possible for me. I mean, these swans of Hor, they are the areas.

And in Bulgarian, the term, the word for people is Hora. I mean, this is the people of Hor. And of course, we have in the Egyptian mythology, these people that were called Shem Suhor, the children of Hor.

And they're described like white people. Just saying, it's not like the Scythian BS that the Shem Suhor was some kind of extraterrestrials. We're talking about it in one of the texts.

And that's why I wanted to visit Luxor and Egypt. Eventually, if the Jews open the borders someday. In one of the texts written in stone, I believe in Luxor, they describe these people like with shining skin and bright eyes.

Yeah, we were referred to as the shining ones in different myths throughout history. And that's why I believe that these cannot be Africans, obviously, and they cannot be even white skinned Semites. So if you look at the oldest records of Egypt, the earliest kingdoms are always they have like lighter colored hair to sort of a blonde, strawberry blonde hair.

There are cave paintings that date from there or not cave, but, you know, whatever hieroglyphs and so forth. Arthur Kemp's book, The Children of Ra has all that photographic evidence in it that suggests that we were the creators of Egypt. I believe that the first and I have the Book of Art of Egypt.

You can find that the different pharaohs, of course, the book is printed in Germany, but it's quite a good representation of Egyptian art. It is called Egypt, the world of the pharaohs. It is by Regine Schultz and Matthias Seidel, and I'm using Bulgarian translation.

But overall, they're representing the art of Egypt. As you can see, the obvious European features of most of the pharaohs, not of all, not of all. There are some that are kind of with mixed features, but most of the pharaohs that are known, they're quite European looking.

You can see like Ramses, for example, also Mekerin, I believe it was Sonar, the grandson of Cheops. So he obviously has a white face, and even his face was made because the whole statue is from white marble. And you can see how the face is obviously left without any pigmentation, contrary to the rest of the body.

So it was obviously some kind of spiritual connection, racial connection, I would say, with the white founders of Egypt, the white gods. And, of course, you can see, I would say, the statuettes of the pharaoh, what was the name of the two goddesses called Maya and Meret, and they obviously look European. And, yeah, most of the founders of Egypt definitely look European, definitely didn't look African, but also you can look at very European looking, the bust of pharaoh Merneptah, if I remember correctly, and his descendant of Ramses II.

So that's why he looks very European. And also Ramses II, very tall, red hair, red beard. And, of course, their skin color was always tanned by the sun, so I think they also covered it with like a dye or something.

With red dye. This is also some kind of connection with the Alen or Awan area. Also, I forgot to mention that in the creation myth of the Bulgarians, there was also mentioned the red, what will be the red stash or something that is connection between the god Horst and the tribes, 72 tribes that he created, 72 forefathers of the Aran people.

And they mentioned also people like, for example, Tervilini, yeah, this is Ramses. They mentioned the name like Tervilini, that most likely they meant the gods. They mentioned Masagi, so most likely the masochists and things like that.

So they're talking about Eastern European and the Iranian people. So what else we can, what we talk about? Well, I'm more interested in these entities that the Jews are allegedly bound up with, whatever you want to call them, the Asherahs. So in the Bulgarian mythos, Yaha is just considered one entity.

There's nothing with them. There's no other, like a plurality of entities. It's only just one being.

They, okay, they, Yaha is, as I said, he's created by the female deities because the female deities tried to create the world themselves. But they, obviously, because being female, they are lacking male creation. So they tried to create this entity.

But when the, basically, Demiurge stole the flame of creation, their cries of pain and desperation brought to this dimension or to this earth, the sky got thunder. He tricked, because he knew that Yaha is very powerful on the material plane. So he tricked Yaha.

And this is basically, this is another story that he opened his mouth so widely. Yaha opened his mouth so wide to swallow the sun and the moon. And then Thangor used his spear or his saber, it depends on the myth, and penetrated deep in the mouth of Yaha.

And because the pain was so enormous, Yaha blew the flames of creation. And he was deeply wounded. Now, from his blood, when he was running away, he threw a curse to Thangor and to his sons and basically, the curse was to meet once again in the final battle and things like that.

But from the blood of Yaha, the blood is dropping while he was running away. The drops of blood, some of the drops of blood fell on the ground. And from this poisonous blood, the blood gave birth to entities called Yudi, the Jews.

But I mean, is there not, is there in the mythos, there's not any other like a plurality of dark energy matter entities that possess the Jews? No, everything comes from this source of destruction. So basically, their blood related to Yaha. And also, I suppose, spiritually related to Yaha.

Now, there is another thing that is not clear in the Bulgarian mythos, because a lot of sources were lost. Of course, I mentioned the upir, the first upir was created by the drop of blood of Yaha, but this drop of blood fell in the water of creation. And this blood was felt exactly in, basically, moonlight fell on this drop of blood.

I don't know. There is some esoteric thing that you can think about, but definitely there is some connection between Saturnian and lunar aspect. And from this drop of blood became the first upir, which was enormous creature, some kind of flying wolf with the long teeth or something like that.

And he tried to eat the moon and just a very interesting story. Isn't there a parallel with the Nordic mythos with Fenrir? Doesn't he eat the moon too? I believe Fenrir wanted to swallow the sun. Oh, okay.

Yeah. Something different. But it's similar in a sense.

And then Horst, with his horse and his axe, I believe that he forged his axe and his armor exactly for the battle against this enormous creature. He fought the upir, the first vampire. And basically, from the ashes in the blood of the upir, he grew the first vampires.

So that might be something to do with how the Jews always have a hive mind entity that they're bound up with. Yes. So this Yahag thing might be this collective of entities that constitutes one entity or maybe that controls that collective plurality.

Just like in Tolkien's mythos, you have Sauron. That could be the same thing. So it's not just necessarily metaphorical.

It could be a literal thing that this entity is maybe this demiurgic deity that sort of imposed itself on things somehow or as a result of like the Big Bang type thing. So definitely, there is something there. And also, it reminds me that it's very Aryan type because every evil that is trying to destroy the natural order.

So basically, to dominate the earth in the case of the greatest evil, Yaga. And Yaga finds, well, it's not clear that it is the end of Yaga because at the end story of the Bulgarian mythos, there is almost a Manichean battle between the forces of order and forces of chaos. So basically, the forces of destruction are led by enormous dragon.

And that is not clear if this is a Yaga or it is the son of Yaga or it's the creation of Yaga. It's not very clear. It could be these reptilian entities.

Could be, but it is known that the Judeini, and this was not clear in the beginning of the mythos, but it is clear at the end that the Judeini had the form of half man, half lizards or half reptilians. So there in Bulgarian mythos, there are snake people. And that's why on the 1st of May, it's called Zamskideos, Miyskideos, Miya means snake.

And of course, the 1st of May, it's Irmin then. And Irmin is the sacred oak. Right, it's the world pillar.

Yes. And it's very close to Irminsul. Yeah.

And the sacred oak. And of course, this is also, again, symbolical because on the top of the oak is sitting in the roots of the oak, supposedly, or under the roots of the oak is the sleeping, wounded Yaga, which is, I believe, is the closest thing is Jormungandr in the Norse mythology. And then in the middle is basically this middle earth or Arda.

And when I say Arda, in Bulgaria, there is a river called Arda. Very similar to Tolkien and how he called the middle earth Arda in his mythos. Because I believe in the old Aryan, Arda means something like shining.

Right. And it brings us back again to the shining ones or the Aryan. Yes.

The divine spark of the Holy Grail. It's interesting how Arnold Schwarzenegger was called the Oak, and he starred in the Terminator movies, The Machines. Yes, in his early period, when he was still bounding to some principles that he inherited from his father, that obviously was sympathetic to National Socialism.

Yeah, it's interesting. There's got to be some sort of symbolism there that suggests that, you know, there's not total power on the part of the Jews. But also, there is something about a sad story of the present world, because Arnold was his shape, first of all, and then he subjugated to race mixing and politically to basically serving the Jews.

Yeah, I guess that's sort of the way the Jews bring down the hero figure in their distortion in their media. Yeah, it is kind of funny because in his, my favorite, honestly, film, Conan, the first part of Conan, he's representing the Chimerian hero, that is legendary Proto-Scythian warriors, the first wave of Aryans, so to say. That is, he's rejecting the Jewish corruption in the form of feast and sexual pleasure.

Right, like that snake, Tulsa Doom. Yeah, snake, race mixed, weird type. Most likely representing the dark Atlanteans, these cults that brought down Atlanteans.

Most likely these, well, in the Tolkien mythos, they refer to the dark Numenoreans, but they're not really dark in the skin color, they're more like dark like their souls. In the case of Tulsa Doom, I'm not absolutely sure because it's weird, right? But I'm not sure that these Atlanteans were even with different racial color when they went to the Middle East. I'm not absolutely sure.

Could be something that we mentioned, that they could be from different castes of people. Yeah, that's what it says in the book Atlantis, Edda and Bible by Herman Wayland, which was written during the National Socialist period. It basically depicts how there are different groups in Atlantis and the Aryans were pushed out of Atlantis through the slave rebellion and the corruption of the Atlantean priests.

So, as we talked this many times, so basically this is the modus operandi of the Jews. This is the story of how they took all empires that we know of, they took Rome through slave religion and infiltration, they infiltrated the elite and they infiltrated the lower caste of people. They took down the Scythian empires, they took Persian empires, they took down Egypt and they're taking down the British empire and the American empire.

Right, exactly. Yeah, it's always the same formula. Once you understand the Jews' formula, then you can easily defeat the Jew when you have sufficient power, of course.

For my personal understanding, what we can do is to create this at first closed society of warriors and wise men and through hidden means, so basically a little bit of trying to duplicate the actions of the Jews through hidden means, trying to influence the society and save more white people from the Jew influence. And a good way to do that is through charities and so forth, through assisting the poor. You know, you could get like a chip van, one of those little fast food vans and drive around, give the poor people some food and so forth with some pamphlets or whatever, you know, tell them to come and meet you somewhere, then they all gather around and then, you know, whatever.

Yeah, exactly, exactly. But mainly the youth are the main objective or should be to target the intelligent youth. Exactly, through books, through games, because most of the games are the way to reach to music, to physical activities.

People must be healthy, strong-willed, youth must gather and train in gyms and out in the nature in a group. Yeah, I saw one video in Bulgaria how they have like outdoor, you know, sort of like pull-up bar type setups. Yeah, we have, we have.

That's definitely something that other people should try to adopt if their country is warm enough to do that. It's, well, now it's not very pleasant, honestly, it's something like minus, but it's better than Canada. But it's... Nobody's going to go out in a jungle gym when it's like, you know, sub-zero temperatures.

On the other hand, as I mentioned before, the colder weather is benefiting the will and the body of the Aryan man. Right, exactly. That's a challenge.

So could be, could be something about that. And also, also, we must remember that a certain type of people will, will try to develop themselves in the present world. Back in the time when we have dominated the, I mean, warrior culture that was dominated by the Aryans.

Very few people actually managed to join these warrior societies. And this was the main strength and at the same time quite a weakness of the, for example, the Mitryani cult, because the Mitryani cult was an elitist cult. It was an elitist cult amongst the Tusketeens and an elitist warrior cult amongst the Romans.

And that's why the Jews actually started to undermine this cult through the women, interestingly enough, because the women were not allowed to join these Mitryani cults. Just like they did with feminism. Yes.

That's just like an earlier form of feminism. Probably the same thing. They probably use the same exact procedures to try to, you know, make them feel like they're inadequate or that, you know, they're being kept down.

You know, oh, I sympathize for you. I want you to become, you know, to have rights. All you got to do is just, you know, attack the white man.

But not only even the specific type of men could join the Mitryani, the secret temples of the Mitryani cult in Rome. And of course, I must point out that most likely this is specific only for the Romans, because I've never heard about secret underground temples in Scythia or in Bulgaria or anybody else. I mean, it's definitely something with the Romans.

So take this with a pinch of salt, because it could be, could be, some people also said that could be Middle Eastern infiltration in the Roman Mitryani cult. Not too sure about that, because I know in France they have similar things. And also in Scotland, when Scottish Rite Freemasonry was being developed, it was, I think they had a bunch of underground type of scenarios there.

And with the Knights Templar also they did. That was mainly around in France. The only underground thing that I can think of in the Great Scythia are basically the dolmens, the kurgans of the Scythian kings.

If they use these, the kurgans for the rituals of the Mitryani cults, yeah. But otherwise, I don't think so. Yeah, it might have been just Jewish infiltration because the Jews are all about the earth and the subterranean catacombs.

They're not about the sky or anything of that kind. Yeah, I believe that the Mithraic cult was around the sky worship. And that's why they didn't allow, at least I'm talking about the Scythian, they didn't allow the dead to be buried.

And they practiced funeral pyres, which for the, and these traditions were kept in the old Bulgarian empire. Basically, the warrior castes, they were all burned. And it's very typical for the Indo-Europeans, horse sacrifice.

You basically, the Norse people also practiced horse sacrifices and pyres. But of course, in the case of Bulgarians, the horses were more important. Right, symbol of wealth.

Yes, this is a symbol of wealth. It's a symbol of how supposedly the Bulgarians imagine how they will enter the battle on the side of the sky gods when the time comes. They're supposedly horsemen, so they'll enter the battle on the back of the horses.

So when they sacrifice the horses, they created the effigies from the skin of the horse or this representation of the war horse in the, let's say, I've lost my words for a second, but it's in the underground. So. Right, in their tomb.

Yeah, yeah. The dolmen, just like it was in the burial mounds in Tolkien's trilogy. I believe that the groups that he described, they came from the east, the humans, and they joined the elves in their fight against Morgoth.

And Morgoth is basically similar to Yaga. In some way, Yaga is very, it's not well described. The only thing that we know that he was greedy and he was arrogant.

And Morgoth is a very complicated, I would say, very complicated deity created by different chthonic deities from the Aryan mythologies. I believe that Morgoth is very close to Ahriman of the Persian cult. Right.

Very, very close. And this is another thing. I was, in the beginning, I was trying to say how I found the writings of Reza Jorjani, one of the few Western European scientists that actually acknowledged that the Bulgarians were Iranian tribes.

And not only Iranian, I believe that there was a very strong Baltic component and a lot of Gothic components. But what exactly were the Goths? This is very, it's another story. But let's say, I'll stick to the traditional description that they were Germanic.

So, Reza Jorjani said that the traditional Mithraic cult, the last people that followed them were the Bulgarians. But he didn't mention that the Bulgarians hated the guts of the Persians. All Bulgarians didn't like Persians.

Like at all. And my suggestion is that there is something with the religions, because Bulgarians prefer to help the Byzantium against Persia than to help the Persians. They had the choice back in the time.

So, weren't the Byzantines more white? The Persians at that time might have become more intermixed because they were closer in the Middle East to the non-whites. Compared to what? Compared to Persia? Yeah, that Persia was more non-white than Byzantine. This is a very complex question.

I think that the elite of the most of the empires back in the time were white. And it depends how numerous were these warrior castes. I believe that there was a tendency of marrying in the caste and then to marry out of the caste.

So, I believe that these processes of race mixing were very slow. So, I'm not absolutely sure about the Persians. I know that, for example, the Persians at the time of the ancient Greeks were depicted very white.

Actually, I'll show you. Yeah, there's one fresco with Alexander the Great that shows it sort of more or less similar to the Carthaginians. But nonetheless, they still had dark hair.

So, they were still somewhat mixed at that time in history. I know that there's this one show, this one book rather, that I heard an audiobook on from Radio Albion, which basically discussed how the Egyptians, their civilization mainly fell apart through mixture with the white men mixing with the Negro slave caste. And that the transformation period was quite extensive.

Now, you can find, for example, the Sassanid princess of 300 AD that is with reddish hair and blue eyes and obviously white skin. You can find, for example, yeah, dark hair, but a lot of white people had dark hair. I guess that's true enough.

Yeah, you see a lot of even Nordic people, like in Norway, they have dark hair. But they're still 100% Scandinavian. This is, and also I must remind you that the people that invited the Iranian plateau, they were Pontic type from both, how to say, subdivisions of the Pontic type.

The Northern Pontics and the Southern Pontics. So, the Northern Pontics, the transitional type between Mediterranean and Nordic types. So, basically, they have the same dimension and facial features like the Pontic types, but with fair hair and very often blue eyes.

Meanwhile, the Southern Pontic type, they're predominantly with dark hair and dark eyes, but very often with, not so often, but not so rare blue-green eyes. So, these are the, they're also called European Iranians because they are descendants of the people that conquered the Iranian plateau. And these racial types were found in the Kurgans.

And so, basically, we're talking about, I believe, that this super racial type came with the Hittitians, with the Hittitian empire. So, where was I about these things? Yeah. So, I guess we could say generalizing that the ferment of decomposition of the Aryan society is when the Aryans become weak and allow non-whites to do their dirty work.

And then from there, they're corrupted by their own lusts, I guess you could say. And they want to fornicate with the non-whites and give them rights and so forth. And then from there, it just leads to destruction, just like in the last couple of decades in all the white countries of this world.

Yeah, more or less, it's like that. You can find this thing where the striped nose, by the way, you can find most of the statues were obviously European people, but later you can find the striped nose and the fair features replaced by quite more Semitic features. So, I believe that at the point when the Bulgarians were fighting on the side of the Byzantines against the Persians, Persians were still quite white people.

At least the elite, the warrior elite, we don't know. Most likely, they subjugated a large percentage of non-white population. So, the subjugated classes.

Well, I think this time around in history, obviously the whites, those whites who are still racially conscious, the elites who I assume probably exist and probably have some influence in the background that we don't necessarily know of, or at least the average person wouldn't necessarily know of. I don't, but I'm pretty sure they've learned their lesson in terms of the mixture with kinds. And so from that point, once the conflagration comes in this world, you know, sort of Turner Diaries type conflagration, you know, like it says in the Turner Diaries, too, you know, retroactively, the Turner Diaries were written sort of like after or, you know, the preface of it was written after the conflagration.

It says, you know, what used to be referred to as a Negro race. I'm sure that's inevitably what will occur this time around because the whites, you know, they've learned their lesson. They understand that all it does is lead to corruption to, you know, give the non-whites whites employment and so forth.

So there's no point in bothering with that. That's just, it's not a worthy investment. This is an interesting quote that could be proof for Jewish infiltration or for, I don't know, it's comparing the female beauty standards of the Ethiopians with that of the Persians.

The Ethiopians preferring the blackest and the most, not most, the Persians preferring the whitest and the most hook-nosed, hook-nosed. What quote was that from? This is from Sextus Empiricus book against, look at this, I cannot, second century AD author Sextus. It's a Roman author, so it's a little bit, but.

Right, Sextus Empiricus. Uh-huh. Yeah, it's good to delve into the ancient world for sources about what the views of the people were.

Get some insight into it from a primary source because you can't trust any of the secondary scholarship after a second world war. But mostly the Persians were looked like white people. Look at this, for example.

This is exactly from the time of the conquest of the Persians by the Macedonians. Right, I've actually, I've encountered people who were from Afghanistan and as well as Iran who had blue eyes. And they even said that, you know, that was the case in the ancient world.

And also, this is a Persian princess from the 5th century AD, you can see the. Maybe you should list in the video some terms that people can look at on image search or yeah, different civilizations, and then they can just do the image search and find it out. This is a Persian princess.

You can see the red hair. Even if you do image searches at the contemporary time for actual photographs of people in different regions in the world, all you have to do is just type in like blonde haired XYZ, blonde haired Afghanistan, blue eyed Afghani, blue eyes, whatever, and then you'll find images. The modern Afghanistan is after several large waves of invasions in Iran.

You have the Arab invasion. You have the Turkic invasion. And as I said, I don't think that all Turks were Mongolians.

But at that point, the Mongolians were subjugated races. But at that point, there was definitely a process of race mixing there. This is also a very obvious European type of face.

This is a Persian horseman, I believe. Typical European face. And another thing that we can read at the end of the of the podcast is about... I'll try to find the material.

A good source for books is australopublications.com for ancient world history for white people. So, in studying the racial composition of southern Russia, there was evidence of a moderately tall, long headed brunette Mediterranean form, which is considered along the northern shore of the Black Sea, but which also appears sporadically in the entire Russian population. To the Western Europeans and Americans, it is known that its frequency was varied, for it's exemplified by several world famous ballerinas and opera singers.

This is the Mediterranean racial division, which the Russian anthropologists call the Pontic race. And the Poles recognized as a very minor element of their own population. They recognized it, but also their nobility had a lot of these components because the Poles had the tradition, at least the Polish nobility, had the tradition to trace back their origin to the Sarmatians.

Recognized as a very minor element of their population. It is with little doubt of Neolithic date in southern Russia, Romania, Bulgaria, and the Hellespont region, and probably Greece and Aegean Sea. In most of trace, it seems more basic than the Danubian type, or at least more common.

What is the relationship was made to be the introduction of the Neolithic economy into Europe by land or by sea cannot be determined without any data. And about the Hattians, the Pontic race, some anthropologists equate the Pontic type with the western Atlanto-Mediterranean type. Now, the Atlanto-Mediterranean type is very common in France and the British Isles.

The Pontic type is the eastern equivalent of the Atlanto-Mediterranean, but the two types are not identical. Atlanto-Mediterranean does occur in various frequencies through the southeastern Europe and is distinct from the Pontic type. So, Pontic are found in the greatest concentration in the northern, northeastern, and western shores of the Black Sea, after which they are named.

Pontus Eopsinus is the ancient name of the Black Sea. Pontic has been known under the names of the Pontic-Mediterranean and also the northern Iranian type. In the Balkans, and especially in Serbia, Greece, Albania, Romania, the Pontic type that occurs is heavily influenced by the local types of Dinarid, East Mediterranean, Carpathian, and East Alps.

The origin of the Pontic type has been determined by the anthropologists. It is probable origin is eastern, it's the eastern extremity of the, so basically this means that the eastern extremity of the Pontic step is the point of origin in the region north of Caucasus. The first people of this race may have been the Cimmerians.

The type may have been brought into Anatolia and the Balkans by Cimmerian invasion. The Pontic type is found through Cimmerian cultures and the Pontic-Caspian step and based on grave finds. Pontic served as a warrior caste of the Scythians and the Sarmatians, while the rulers were predominantly East-corded Nordic type, as I pointed out.

So that might be like a caste distinction between the priestly caste and the warrior caste. Well, most likely because of the northern Pontics and the southern Pontics, they had very minor differences, basically the pigmentation of the hair. The northern Pontic is a direct descendant of the corded Nordics.

So most likely we're talking about sexual selection here, not so difference, racial difference, I think. So another thing is that the other section of this, this is written by Cherkasov, I believe, the Russian anthropologist that was sent to a concentration camp by Stalin. Right.

I guess that's more trustworthy then. Yeah, because he claims that Bulgarians were Iranians and the Russians took a lot of the cultural things, not from Byzantium, from Bulgaria. So he was sent to concentration camps to think about his ideas.

So, according to this author, Ossetians, southern Russians, Black Sea Ukrainians, Cossacks, Volga Tatars, some Turks, Chuvash, Moldovans, southern Poles, Hungarians, Bulgarians, had the numerous of Pontics in their population, indicating that their descendants of the Khmerians, Scythians, Armenians and other nomadic tribes. Another thing about the origin of the Pontic race is the Hattians. The Hattians were the ancient people who resided in central Anatolia, at least as early as 2300 BC.

The land of the Hatti is the oldest name for central Anatolia and is found on the Mesopotamian cuneiform tablets. Hattians were Caucasian speaking, he means Indo-European in that case, thought to be Proto-Indo-European people. According to the linguist scholar Alexei Kasin, they were distinct from the Hittites who preserved elements of the Hattian language in their own archives and on clay tablets.

These remains of the Hattian language are mostly narrowed down to Hattian deities as well as personal and place names. The Hattian language was subject-object-verb, the Hattians were organized in city-states and small kingdoms. These cities were well organized and had established hierarchy.

The Hattians appear to have had continued contact with the Assyrians in Mesopotamia and probably employed scribes who could understand old Assyrian. The Hattian natural religion has origins in the Stone Age, it was about worship of the sky and represents a sky god. And also he mentioned that the sky god was married to an earth goddess.

Other elemental deities were worshipped like Taro, and of course Taro is close to Taranis and Tanga and things like that. But he was represented as a bull. Right, doesn't that have something to do with the constellation of Taurus? Most likely.

And Aldebaran too, because Aldebaran is apparently the eye of Taurus or something of that sort. Yeah. That's apparently where the Aryans came from so far as I've heard.

The Egyptian depictions... Many historians including Ekrem Akurgal, which had different differentiated the Hattians from the Hittites who brought a different type with them from their place of origin. The Egyptian depictions of the Battle of Kadesh appear to show straight nose Hattian soldiers. It is believed by many anthropologists that the Hattians are ancestors of the Pontic type.

So yeah, this is the origin of the different subraces and you can see you can see basically the Hattian warrior, I believe, in this picture. It's interesting how Arthur Comte de Gabineau, the guy who wrote the essay on the inequality of human races, he wrote a novel called Les Pleiades for the Pleiades, which are the star system and the constellation of Taurus the bull and the center of that is Alcyon and that's near Aldebaran because Aldebaran is in the same constellation as that. So that must have something to do with our origins.

That book is only available in French though, Les Pleiades. So, basically, this is the story of the Eastern Europeans. Ah, another thing, this is a Khazar warrior according to medieval description and this is you can see the blonde mustaches and beard and quite fit sort of thing.

And they always have the axe, which is a symbol of Aryan. Yeah, so this is about the Turkic origin and things like that. Yeah.

Well, I guess we've been going on for quite a while here. So yeah, I better just finish off. It's about two hours and 15 minutes now.

Yeah, if we don't include the last recording. Right, well, in total, that's about four hours and 24 minutes. Yes, so we will stop conversation here and leave it for another time.

But overall, my advice is go to your ancestral practices and start to go back to nature and to more healthy, well, spiritual and physical, how to say, practices, techniques and develop more of your Aryan self. Yes. And purify yourself of all the Jewish degeneracy.

With this, we'll end the show and hail victory. Hail victory. So.

Nordlux: South Africa War Everlasting

Today we will be discussing the issues and events in South Africa with Arend. He is a native of South Africa. Would you like to introduce yourself? My name is Arend.

Thank you for having me on your show. It is a privilege and I have been listening to your show, which I find quite intriguing. I'm glad that you appreciate it.

Unfortunately, there's not very much in the way of content in this movement anymore, very suppressed and marginalized. So it's very hard to get the message out to anybody, except through, you know, very grassroots. So I guess you could say that we are basically the grassroots, whatever, revolutionaries of the mind here anyway.

So we're discussing South Africa and the events that are going on right now. I don't know where you want to begin, because there's quite a lot of topics that you'd like to cover and that I'd like to know more about, and I'm sure the audience would also. Okay, where would you like to start? By Siena Calm? I guess you could do that.

We could discuss even what's going on right now, maybe trace it back, or we could go through the history and then bring it up to the present moment, if you want to do it in a logical way. Yeah, let's do it the historical method then. Okay.

Okay, how soon would you like to start in history? Well, maybe you could just give a very, very brief overview, as you had said in your notes, you wanted to do a sort of Colesnotes version of the history of South Africa. Yeah. Okay, well, it was in the mid-17th century when Dutch people landed here.

But of course, this was the Dutch East India Company, which was 50% owned by Jews. And this was originally not intended to be a colony, just like an outpost, like a refreshment station on their route to India. Then, so there were like, I think there were 60 families living there that were left there.

So it was a very, very small community. And they, unlike the Portuguese who had come before, but never set up any outposts, they didn't have conflict with the natives, the Boesmans or the Hottentots, as other people know them, the Khoi Khoi. So these people were willing to trade with us with stock and stuff.

So we did well. Later on, the religious persecution in Europe started from the French. Well, the French started with the enunciation of the Edict of Nancy, or I think it's Nancy, or Nantes, where they started massacring the Huguenots.

But an interesting side note about the Huguenots is that some of the Huguenots came from the north of France and were Dutch speaking. And the Huguenot name is actually a latinization of Heisgenoot, which means housemate, or Heisgenooten, which means, which is the Dutch version of Heisgenoot, which means housemate, because of course, they were Protestants, therefore rejected the centralization of religion. So these Huguenots then went all over Europe, to Germany, to the Netherlands, to Austria, Hungary, all these places.

And they then decided to go to the Dutch colonies. That's why you have a lot of French sounding names in Afrikaans history, because these were the Huguenots, the Heisgenooten, who were, of course, refugees, because they were chased out of their home by the Catholics. Yeah, I had a South African doctor who sewed up my wrists after I attempted suicide, had a very French name.

But I could still tell he was South African, though. I guess his accent, his appearance was somewhat, I don't know, they have a different appearance to some extent, it appears anyway, to me. Well, yes, definitely.

And so, yes. By all means, continue with your narrative. Sorry to interrupt you.

No, feel free to interrupt. But anyway, so the French came, and little by little, more Germans came as well. That's why actually, if you look at the Afrikaans surnames, or more the Boers surnames than Afrikaans, and we'll go into that, why I make the distinction later, you will see that about 34% of them are Dutch, and 33% of them are German, and like, maybe 10% of them are Huguenot.

So the Germans made a very slow entrance, but a constant, there was a constant influx of German immigrants. And that's why we have this, obviously, the Dutch and the Germans were obviously very close, as well as the Huguenots and the Germans. That's why we've always had this, at least the Boer people have always had this strong connection to Germany, which I also feel.

Yeah, I've also noticed that, yeah, I've also sensed that sort of continental quality to South Africa. It always struck me as a very Germanic environment, just given my superficial researches. It's different from the British, the Anglo.

Certainly, yes. We have a very strong anti-British sentiment, because of the history, obviously. Are you still there? Yep.

Okay, just making sure my apologies. I thought the connection dropped or something. Yeah, sometimes there's delays.

Yeah. But so now you have the beginnings of the people, you know, the Cape Colony. Now, the Napoleonic War happens, and the English take over the Cape Colony.

My ancestors are the Boer people, and their ancestors were the people, the Freiburgers, who translated it means the free citizens, who did not want to live under British rule. They didn't even want to live under Dutch rule. So, the Freiburgers actually developed even during the Dutch rule of the Cape Colony.

Now, with the British administration, they were forced to action, and they started moving north into what would become the two republics of Transvaal Free State. You had small republics like Stalinland and stuff like that, but these are mostly insignificant. But the main ones were founded there, the Oranje Free State, and the Transvaal Republic, or the South African Republic, the Zuider Afrikaanse Republiek, which is why if you look at our currency, it's still called the ZAR, Z-A-R, because it's the Zuider Afrikaanse Rand, which is the currency, obviously.

So, we founded these republics, and on the way, we had some conflicts with blacks. For example, most people by now know that blacks were not native of Southern Africa. The Haudenosaunee are the natives, and the blacks were migrating downwards.

Some of them were the Xhosa, and these were the first people we encountered, and they would raid our track booths, the people who were migrating. So, we had a very negative experience with the Xhosas, but we defeated them. They're small parties.

Then, we founded those republics, and some of them went to Natal, which is today KwaZulu-Natal, and tried to establish a republic there. The English had gone to the Zulus there and tried to manipulate them, well, successfully manipulated them to be anti-Boer, because they knew that we had pro-German sentiment, and there was a German colony in Southwest Africa, which would later become a part of South Africa, which is today called Namibia, and they knew of our pro-German sentiment, and it stood in the way of their colonial aspirations for Southern Africa. Yeah, they wanted to get it, because that's the most mineral resource rich area in the world, isn't it, in South Africa? I think so, yes.

The thing is, the only resource that we don't have is oil, but everything else we have. We had the stainless steel, which comes from Viridium, and I think it's Viridium. I'm not sure, but stainless steel, that steel originally came from here, the British stockpiles from that.

Gold, diamonds, coal, everything comes, you can get everything, copper, silver. Cash cow for the Jews, they wanted to get their greedy hat. Yeah, in fact, the Jews, Jewish people were directly involved in the Second War, like instigating the Second War, but I'll get to that.

So, we fought against the British, or not the British at that stage, the Zulus, because we had made, we went to, Peter Thief went to Dingan, who was the king of the Zulus at this time. But actually, they weren't actually called the Zulus yet, they would actually become called the Zulus, so they were proto-Zulus. They would actually become Zulus after this fact, and this is something that many people don't understand.

So, then we made an agreement with Dingan to raid these other blacks who had stolen their cattle, and bring back their cattle, and then they would give us a treaty for the land. So, they did that, then they went back, then they got murdered, and they got impaled on spikes and stuff. Then they sent people to, then they sent their warriors to kill us off, or the people who were there.

Those families were slaughtered. From these other republics, though, came Andrei Pretorius, and Andrei Pretorius is the man after whom Pretoria is named the capital of South Africa, and has always been the capital of the South African Republic, or the Transvaal. So, he led a group, I think it was 460 men with 64 oxwagons, which he would form into a lager during the battle.

Now, a lager is when you attach them, so it's like a mobile fort that the Zulu could not penetrate. It's like circling the wagons. Yeah.

So, in this battle, they formed the lager, and they utterly destroyed the... Let me just try and see if I have the statistics here. Is this the battle for Blood River? Yeah, Blood River, yes. And this also plays into the Abirbia, which we will discuss later as well.

So, they were very outnumbered, and there's... Yeah. Okay, here it is. On 26 November 1838, Andrei Pretorius was appointed as commander of 64 wagons and 464 plus heavily armed Burk combatants.

Dengan had thousands. The military commander during Degan's attack on Frelager was Ndela Blabla. The highly experienced general Ndela had served under Shaka, with Shaka Zulu, who fought against the English.

And was also prime minister and chief advisor under Degan. Ndela with his 10,000 troops had retreated from the Frelager after three days and nights of fruitless attempts to penetrate the enclosed Trakker wagon lager. So, there's 10,000, and I think, yeah, most of the... At least almost half of them, I think like 3,000.

Here's the battle part where it says... Aftermath. Oh, it doesn't really give the amount. 2,000 Zulu casualties, perhaps 1,000 killed over three hours before being overrun.

I think there were four people killed from the Burz. And another, yeah, but of course... Yeah, and... But they had like spears and shit, but that doesn't really matter, because they actually did very well. They actually beat the British in a few instances.

Yeah, I think there's a Zulu, too, about that. I think it was about their attacks against the British. That was like in the 60s or something that that movie was made, called Zulu.

Yeah, that is... Yeah, I remember that movie, yeah. I think the battle was called Isipande or something like that, something with an I, but they beat the British because, of course, the British weren't... They wore these bright outfits and they marched in these formations. This would not work against such a numerical disadvantage.

Yeah, you'd have to use guerrilla tactics or something like that. Yeah, yeah, definitely. Or any kind of unconventional fighting that you could adopt to fit the situation.

But yes, in that situation, they had... The women were also in the lager. So the women would reload the guns, because back then you didn't have... If I remember correctly, they didn't have these semi-auto... They had these one-shot guns at the time. So they'd shoot, women would reload, give them the gun, shoot, you know, so like that.

Well, that was like in the 1800s or something. Yeah, yeah. Yeah, I'm not too sure when the repeating rifle was made.

Must have been like in the late 1800s. Yeah, late 1800s. So now we have that small Natal outpost after that battle for a while, then the English came and they abandoned it and joined the others in either the Free State or the South African Republic.

So in the First War, the British were soundly defeated, so soundly defeated, in fact, it's the only other incident in that period of British dominance in which the British had been so decisively defeated that they had to sign a treaty. And this is actually the treaty that... What's his name? Eugene Treblance had made reference to when... Before Apartheid, they were something, and then... Before Apartheid ended, they were something, and then when it became democratic South Africa, they stood for something else. So after Apartheid ended, this treaty is what they made reference to in their movement.

And so we beat them soundly, and this was so humiliating that they no longer acknowledged the existence of the First War as a real war. That's why they always say the Anglo-Boer War and not the First Anglo-Boer War and the Second Anglo-Boer War. And after that, they never wore the red coats again or these white helmets.

And they started adopting the khaki for camouflage. So they learned from these tactics. Yeah, it's pretty stupid tactics that they used there.

I think they did something similar in India too, the British. Yeah, I think so too, yeah. Maybe that was just a Jewish, either deliberate on the part of Jews to slaughter their own people, which is not likely, but maybe just the stupidity of Jews and their lack of understanding of military tactics.

Yes, they don't understand it. Yeah, obviously the British Empire is controlled by Jews. British means covenant man in Hebrew.

I just get so tired of having that thrown in the face of every white person, as if somehow white people were the British Empire, when obviously Jews controlled it from the beginning, ever since Oliver Cromwell came there in the 1600s. And there were white children who were forced to work at factories for like 14 hours a day at the age of eight years old. And they were in Britain, starving in the streets.

And suddenly they benefited from the British Empire. How exactly? Yeah, exactly. And it's actually also the same with the Dutch Empire, actually, because not to the extent that it was with the British, but you see the Dutch had their companies, like the East India Company and the West Company.

And it was the between 25% and 50% of that company that was owned and led by Jews. And this is never mentioned. And the Dutch colonial system was much different from the British system because they didn't have the agrarian approach.

So there was much more of an exploitative approach to colonialism. And after some while, the agrarian method of wealth became the dominant one and gold and slavery wasn't the most appropriate method by which to determine your wealth. So the Jews realized that, okay, well, the British, if we want to do that here, we can't do that because we'll have to deconstruct everything.

But we can hop over to England with our other friends in England and make this East India Company, which was obviously larger than England, like two thirds of the Royal Navy. It wasn't the Royal Navy. It was like the East India Company.

I think it might be more, but I think it was at least two thirds, was actually the British East India Company. So they jumped over because now the English could adopt this agrarian style economy, which was, like I said, a better indication of wealth. And that is why the Dutch all at first, they're like all over the place.

And now they just disappeared because the Jews jumped ship to England. And they came to the Netherlands from Spain, of course. Yeah, when they were kicked out by Isabella, Queen Isabella.

Yeah, good decision. But yeah, so now we get to the Second World War, the Second Anglo-Boer War. And what happened was, obviously, there were diamonds discovered and more mineral wealth than was thought there would be at the time by the British Empire.

So they created a bunch of pretenses for the war. One of the instigators was a Jew called Alfred Biet, who was a British German. How do you spell his name? I'll just make it in the show notes.

Yeah, A-L-F-R-E-D, Alfred, B-E-I-T, Alfred Biet. And he and Cecil Rhodes were key instigators in the Second Boer War, because Cecil Rhodes wasn't a Jew, I believe, but he was a British supremacist. Well, probably.

Yeah, probably. But this Alfred Biet guy, he was a gold and diamond magnet, yes. So you could see here the mineral comes into place.

So he started, and he actually has some kind of dedication in Imperial College London, you know, stuff like that. So this Jew and Cecil Rhodes were some of the instigators. Another factor was that Paul Creer, at this time you had the government in the Transvaal, which was the preeminent Boer Republic.

There was also the Orange Free State, but they were like a buffer between the Transvaal, which was the South African Republic, and the British presence, because the Transvaal was vehemently opposed to the British, obviously. So they had intercepted some telegrams between these wireless communications that they used back then, between Paul Creer, who was the president, the staunch president at the time, and the Kaiser of Germany, and they used this as some kind of indication, once again, that we were going to be on the British side, or on the German side, which we would have if we could have. Was that Kaiser Wilhelm II? No, I think it was a previous one, or, you know, I think it was a previous one.

I think Wilhelm II was the one who betrayed us, because he made, he, I believe he informed the Queen of England about some of our activities. So he betrayed us, actually. Yeah, he was like a Freemason and a traitor to Germany as well.

I think he enabled Jews to really have a greater influence in Prussia, and intermarrying with the nobility. That makes sense, yeah. Because he really fucked us.

Yeah, this is the previous Kaiser that you're referring to, which is, I guess, his father or something. Yeah, I think so, yes. Or it could have been him, which would make sense of how or why it was intercepted by the British in the first place, and they used this as the main pretext.

Because at the time, this was slightly before World War One. So the tensions between the Germans and the British wasn't, it wasn't something to joke about. If you read the books by Edgar Rice Burroughs, the author from around that time period, he's got a lot of anti-German sentiment in his books.

He discusses that sort of issue of the warring between the colonies in his Tarzan novels. Oh, is he the guy who wrote Tarzan? Yeah. Oh, never mind.

Yeah, he's got a lot of racial content in his works. That would make sense, yes. But yeah, because they didn't want us to ally with the Germans in South-West Africa, and like I said, jeopardize their wealth in Africa.

And so the Second World War was the bad one. It's also called the Freiheits-Werloch, which is the freedom war, because we lost our freedom in that war. But we had somehow, unlike the Americans, we didn't get the entire French colony.

But apparently the Russians and the French at the time did want to, oh yeah, this is where Wilhelm Betrayed Us. The Russians and the French wanted to intervene in the Boer War, the Second Boer War. And they wanted to include Kaiser Wilhelm II.

This is now I remember. And Wilhelm II then sent this information, these telegrams, to the Queen. I don't remember which one it was, but they sent it to the Queen of England.

And so they really fucked that. And so we couldn't get help. But what we did get is we did get the best rifles at the time, the Mauser rifles from the Germans, which was far superior to the English rifles.

And also unlike the British, professional military standards were very low back then. These people that they would send over weren't as professionally trained as they should have been. Right.

Just a lot of cannon fodder they wanted to get rid of, maybe. Yeah. And for example, these soldiers, I believe they had like a month of volley fire.

So they didn't really do good target practice or anything. So they weren't very accurate. And that's what they struggled with in the First War and what they struggled with in the Second War as well.

Because my ancestors rode on horseback shooting at their plate. That's where the bulk of their meat came from. Yeah.

So they were at that stage the best cavalry in the world. That's sort of like a characteristically Aryan trait, that hunter on the horses, because horses have always been a signifier of wealth and status amongst Aryans throughout history. Yeah, definitely.

I completely agree with that. And I saw it as that too. So I'll take part in that aspect.

There are some things not to take part in, and we'll get to that later. But so you had these, we were like these horse riding people and like our military wasn't a professional military. It was made up of like volunteers, mostly, who were paid sometimes, but not entirely professional.

And most of them were like farmers who would bring their own guns and their own horses and stuff like that. And the, like I said, the British had problem with the sharpshooters and the mobility. So at first they were losing, but they were losing pretty badly.

So they replaced the commander. I think it was, I don't remember, but they brought in Buller, who also struggled. And so they brought in, there was Mullner and later on Lord Kirchner, who was the guy who started with the burn the land policy, the scorched earth policy, which led to the concentration camps.

Yeah, that's typically Jewish. Yeah, definitely. Or British, because the British are somewhat interbred with Jews, especially the nobility.

Yeah, yeah, definitely. And like, so where were we? Oh yeah, so the outbreak. So they struggled a lot that first, so they kept bringing more and more people in.

So at the end of the day, let me just check the amount of people that were involved. There was over 452,000, I think, or was it 458,000? No, 448,725 troops of the world's largest empire. And they were, the active birds were like 6,000, but obviously later on, that would include more people because it was apparent that this was a real struggle.

It couldn't just be the active personnel. And that's actually where the commando come from, where the word commando also comes from and all those traditions come from. Yeah, I can see that happening again soon all over the white world because now they're facing a similar existential threat as at that time.

You're going to pretty much have to throw your hat in the ring, otherwise you're just going to be destroyed anyway. Yeah, that's actually something I think about a lot because you have these conservative governments or these right-wing governments, and they're actually really counterproductive because it's apparent that people will wake up when they're pushed far enough. And then you have these right-wing governments that stole these leftist policies.

And the only result of that is it takes longer for these policies to come into action. And at the end of the day, these right-wing governments, they don't do anything. They cannot undo what, they don't have any policies to fix these problems, but all they do is they stall.

They stall for time. And that's something that we don't really have. So they're actually worse than the left-wing governments.

It would actually be better if people like us would actually vote for the left-wing so they could bring their shit so that we could wake up sooner. Yeah, I agree. Basically, that works hand in glove with the Steinleit plan of Stephen Steinleit, the Jew, where he was saying, you know, we got to make sure that we slow down the non-white immigration, otherwise the whites are going to pick up and, you know, try to rebel against us.

So it's just a more gradualistic methodology that they employ to try to, you know, dampen the flames of anger of white people, make it perceptible. Yeah, more and more digestible to the public. And so people could say, oh, there's nothing going on.

Oh, it's been going on for a very long time. Nothing has happened. People can clearly see something is happening.

But yes. So at the time of the war, I believe our entire population was about 250,000. So you had almost double the amount of soldiers for the British that would fight against our people.

And obviously, most of us were not fighters at the time. And they were seeing some progress. There was like a stalemate.

And then they called for more reinforcements, which would have broken that stalemate. Obviously, this included the British colonies, like they got people from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, all kinds of colonies. I believe some Indians too.

And this would have broken that stalemate. And so the commando, the commando in Afrikaans system became very vital, because this is the guerrilla warfare that really made a big difference. And they couldn't fairly deal with it.

But of course, there's nothing truly fair about war. So they brought in this guy called Kirchner, which sounds very Jewish to me. But anyway, this Kirchner started the burn.

I think it was Kirchner, not Lord Muller. But he started with the burn the land policy. Let me just see.

Concentration. Yeah, the British have sort of been painted with the black brush of the Jews as the most dishonorable people. And that's probably the fault of the Jewish influence, that they become infected with that Jewish consciousness through Freemasonry, and so on.

And interbreeding, you were saying? Oh, no, I just said, and Freemasonry. That's Freemasonry, interbreeding. Yes, I agree.

And yes, it was Kirchner. And the way that they would deal with these commandos, who would perpetrate very devastating attacks on their positions and their supply lines, was by burning down the farmhouses, which were all vital importers to the commando. Because they didn't have to report to some leader.

They had a leadership structure, but it was very mobile in nature. They got their supplies from the farmhouses and stuff. So they started killing all the, well, what they did is, they did it themselves.

And they also paid the blacks who were on their side, those who weren't against them, who were also interned. They paid them to hunt down Afrikaans families, or not Afrikaans, Bur families at the time, and to get them there. Obviously, this included a lot of rape and stuff like that.

But these things are mostly forgotten, because obviously British history dominated. Yeah, that's the way they psychologically terrorized the population. Yeah.

And so what they would do, for example, when the Australian or Canadian contingents would get there, they usually used these newer soldiers to do it. So it was also British, but it also included the Australian contingents and the New Zealanders and the Canadians, when it wasn't the blacks who caught these families. But then they'd burn down the farmhouses, the children would be made to watch, the women and children would be made to watch how they killed the farm animals in horrible ways, like dynamite and killing them.

Like, imagine a child seeing how they kill their dogs or their cattle that they have some kind of bond with, with bayonets stabbed to death, blown up, set on fire, really disgusting tactics. Basic sadism. Yeah, very disgusting tactics.

And then they put them on wagons and took them to the concentration camps. I believe it was about 155,000 people who were in the concentration camps. Let me see somewhere in my notes.

I think Winston Churchill was instrumental in that too, wasn't he? He was part of the, yeah, the last part of the war. He was instrumental in that, but not particularly the concentration camps, but he worked under Kirchner. And Winston Churchill was actually caught, he was caught and interned by my people, but he wasn't really interned, he was just held captive.

And here's actually a quote about why he was, they were, and this is one of the flaws of my people, because we treated the prisoners very well. Yeah, I was going to mention that too. It's just the fatal flaw of the Aryan is that they're too noble against their enemies.

Yeah, because you see that in the case of like Antonio Gramsci, the guy who created cultural Marxism, more or less, he was just kept in a jail cell in Italy, where he could have just easily been executed right away, and then there would be no cultural Marxism. Yeah. But here's a quote from Bureau Assistant Commandant General B.A. Yefelyan, which is a Yuganok man, that's why it sounds French.

The soldiers we had made prisoners during the fight, as well as those we took at Talvetia, were given up to the British officers a few days afterwards, as we were not in a position to feed them properly and it would not be humane or fair to keep the soldiers who had the misfortune of falling into our hands without proper food. And if you compare that, if you contrast that with the concentration camps when the Boers were in there, I bet they were given similar treatment. Yeah, they definitely weren't.

It was completely different. There was this other quote that I was looking for. It was from this other English guy who I wrote.

Here it is, something. Here it is from private correspondents from a private in the Derbyshire regiment to his father, Patrick McHugh of Sunderland, published in the Daily News, stated, the Boers behaved like men, never shooting when they could take prisoners, and even apologized because they had to take our rifles and ammunition. Yes.

And if you look at, so they put them in concentration camps. Now you get the concentration camps. There were 155,000 women and children in the concentration camps, including some men, but mostly women and children.

And this was more than half of the population, because at the time, like I said, we had an estimated 250,000 population. That's more or less a genocidal endeavor. Yeah.

And so it was like about two thirds of the population were in the camps. And then those who died, about 34,000, that's 22%, 34,000 of the inmates of the concentration camps died, of whom 27,540 were under the age of 16. So these were children.

So 81% of the child population died. This was more than 50% of the entire Boer population's children at the time. So if you look at the losses, the British, their military had lost about something like 20,000.

But whereas 9,908 Boer soldiers died, more than 34,000 civilian concentration camps inmates, mostly women and children, lost their lives. Yeah. So most of the casualties from our side were, of course, civilian casualties.

And that is why the commando eventually surrendered, because these families who had men still fighting, they were treated even worse than the others. They would not receive proper rationing, so they would die first. And also, there are some hearsay stories about some of the torture techniques and the cruelty, if you want to hear about that, but I'm not sure if this is completely true.

Well, it seems like something a Jew would do, because obviously they were behind the tortures throughout history of the Middle Ages and so forth. And every revolution ever staged, they ended up basically subjecting the population to brutal abuse. Basically, many would call it satanic abuse, but I guess Jewish would be a better word.

Yes. It's kind of funny when they conflate that, when they make their own devil, so to speak. Yeah.

Yeah. So for example, one of the stories was that, and this was from some of the women who survived these concentration camps, so they would say that some of them would obviously be raped by the British soldiers, including the children. But this isn't something new, this is what they did in World War II as well.

They just like to say, oh, it was only the Soviets. Bullshit. So it was, these women were raped, but some of them were used in sports.

So they would take them and then they would throw them to the black laborers to be raped, gang raped. And then they would have these mixed race children. And the story goes that they would break their necks after they were born and throw them in, put them in a circle around the camps so that the British would be scared.

It was pretty freaky to see all these dead babies around these particular camps where this was occurring. So I have no idea whether this is completely accurate. I'm sure there was the rapes.

I'm not sure about the baby thing. That would take quite a trip of time to lead to that. Yes, exactly.

So I know there's also mass rapes that occurred after and after the Second World War, too, with the women, the Jews leading the Soviets. Yes. And all over Europe.

It wasn't only Germany, it was like in Croatia and all that stuff, too. That's why it's a pretty shitty situation for them. Yes, that's why a lot of the women in today's society need to understand that if you're going to throw your lot in with the Jew, you're not going to have a future anyway.

So you may as well not bother being a traitor to your race because you're going to be kept around. Yes, it's a problem of the fact that most people don't have the long-term interest of their family in their mind, mostly their entire lives. People think that way.

It's all just instant gratification, what I can do in my lifetime and not what will happen to my children because of this decision or this course of action that my country or my state is taking. Or even in their own lives, because you can't live your life all by yourself because you're part of a collective group. And if you don't work as a collective group, then you'll be destroyed as an individual by enemies.

So yeah, we lost the war. After the war, we now became their dominion, obviously, so we had lost the right to independence. And so for a while it was that way, but then it was made into a union, the Union of South Africa.

And here is where we get to one of the big problems in the history of South Africa, because remember that this was not a democratic system or anything. So when they made this Union of South Africa by combining these Southern African territories, including the Cape Colony, the Natal Colony, the Eastern Cape Colony and the Boer Republics, they made what is today South Africa. And of course, Afrikaans people or Boer people did not have a say in this at all.

They didn't have a say in it. So this is what has led to the problem caused by apartheid, and I will address that later. So now we have a British tactic which they used.

The British had a tactic where they were going to make the Boer people docile by taking the Cape Dutch people. An interesting fact is 26,000 Cape Dutch fought against the Boer people for the English during the Boer War. And when I say Cape Dutch, I mean the people who stayed in the Cape Colonies because they were content with being ruled by the Dutch and then content with being ruled by the British when the British came.

That's where Cape Town is now probably? Yeah, yeah. So that's the South Africa right on the tip. Yeah, yeah.

And so now they were planning on making a single identity for the Boer population and the Cape Dutch population, even though we had linguistic and cultural differences because the Cape Dutch people still spoke Dutch. Well, a dialect of Dutch from which Afrikaans originated called the Hollandic or Hollandese dialect of Dutch. Because if you know anything about Dutch, you know they have so many dialects.

And this was just the dialect that we interacted with, which is why we don't have a lot of Zs in our language as opposed to the Dutch language. I guess later in the show, after you get past the more historical elements, in the present moment, we can discuss the Afrikaans language and how it's under attack and the whole culture. Yeah, definitely.

And so we have the British creating this plot to make us the Afrikaners. So now there is a single identity that they refer to us by. And this is a problem because the Cape Dutch people have always been the more liberal-minded people.

And this will also relate to later subjects. And also, they didn't like Afrikaans at the time, and they were opposed to the Afrikaans replacing Dutch, whereas my people were speaking Afrikaans. And so this was actually a very successful tactic used by these Jews, these British and the Jews.

And also to make us believe that we had an identity that was false, because like I said, these people were not Bur people, their ancestors did not go. For example, I come from the Transvaal area, right? I've been in the Transvaal area my entire life. So if you go up, yeah, you have some, if you go to like a kindergarten, you know what that is, right? Like for small children before school, but anyway, preschool, nursery.

Yeah. So you have that. When I was doing that, we grew up playing, doing stuff like Bure sport, running with eggs in spoons and stuff like that.

There's like a cultural aspect that people from the Cape don't have. And we also have a much different, for example, the way that we pronounce words, we have different accents and different parts. My accent comes actually from more like the Northwest province, which is, so I don't sound like people from Pretoria, actually.

Right. You want to reveal somewhere close by where you are, just so we can, because I'm looking at a map of South Africa now, just for reference sake. Oh, okay.

You know, the province Gauteng. This is just listing cities on this particular map that I'm looking at. I'm in Pretoria, which is the northern city in Gauteng, which is the capital, the largest, the smallest province with the largest population, obviously.

So historically, it was like divided in North and South. No, it wasn't really divided, but it became divided after, because Johannesburg used to be where the mines were and stuff like that. And Pretoria used to be the capital before the end of the war, before we lost the war.

And later on, Johannesburg would actually become the area where more English people in Gauteng would congregate. At that time, the only province which had a dominant majority of English speaking South Africans was actually the Natal part, which is the eastern coastal area. So that portion of the country was the only place where there was an English speaking majority.

And you could see it in their politics for the most part. And as time went on, Johannesburg actually became, obviously in English, it would be Johannesburg or Jo'burg. They just say Jo'burg.

Let's just say Jo'burg because we're speaking English here. Yeah. So the English people congregated and started living in Jo'burg.

So Jo'burg is a more English city and Pretoria is a more Afrikaans city. So now it's more of a North and South thing and an Afrikaans-English thing. Because like I said, to the North, you have more Afrikaans speakers.

To the South, you have more English speakers in Gauteng. What is the demographic split like in terms of black and white? Is it somewhat even throughout or just more concentrated Negroes closer to the non-white countries? I'll try to answer your question because it wasn't very clear. My apologies.

Or maybe it's me not clearly understanding what you're asking. I mean, like in terms of the demographics in different regions, like the ratio of black and white, is it somewhat evenly distributed? Yeah, it's definitely evenly distributed. But I would say that in the English areas in Johannesburg, there's a disproportionately larger ratio of black people in the Johannesburg part.

For example, the biggest township is Soweto, I believe, and it's also in Johannesburg to the South. Whereas in Pretoria, it's very complex because before the end of apartheid, Pretoria was just the city of Pretoria, which they now call Chwane. But Chwane now includes Pretoria and these townships, which is where the blacks live, obviously, kind of like favelas.

And they live like on the outskirts of Pretoria, but they weren't traditionally part of Pretoria. So now it's more even, but historically it hasn't been the case. But every area is about the same, except for, I would say, the Northern Cape, which is very scarcely populated.

It's a very rural place. You have farms which are about the size of states or provinces in Europe. So you have very big farms.

But you come from Canada, so I don't have to tell you how big farms can be. But in Europe, they probably don't know that because they have much smaller farms. Some of these people live like 16 hours away from, well, not 16 hours, but like maybe 10 hours away from the nearest hospital, depending on how far you live from the big cities.

So this area is actually quite safe compared to the rest of Africa because it's obviously not as populated, and there's not as much going on. And this is actually where Rania exists. You probably know Rania, the white town.

Yeah, I've heard of it. That's where that Simon Roach wants everybody to be concentrated. I guess we'll get into him after we get through the historical discussion.

So now we have the Union, and we didn't have a choice in the foundation of apartheid, which is contrary to the original desire of the Bur people. But of course, now we are called the Afrikaners because of the language, even though the Cape Dutch didn't speak Afrikaans. So now we have this problem, and eventually we were made, I think it was 1942 or 1948, we were made an independent country.

So we were still part of the Commonwealth, but we weren't directly overseen. Now we didn't just have prime ministers, we also had presidents. And here's some interesting insight to the Jew infiltration in Bur, not only Cape Dutch, but Bur society.

For example, the Bur general, Louis Buetta, he was born in the British territory, it was either Natal or the Cape, and it's the same with Herzog. No, not Herzog, but who's the other one? There's Buetta, oh yeah, Smith, Jan Smith, the biggest traitor. You've probably heard of Jan Smith.

Yeah, it says in your notes that he was. Yeah, he's a traitor. He was actually a field marshal for the English and second in command in the British military structure behind Churchill.

So that's how hardly they valued their little title. But anyway, because they were born in the English areas, and they fought in the second Bur war and so on. So they fought with us, but they were born in the English areas.

And they were definitely spies. These people would become the leaders of this union at first. So Buetta, Barry Herzog and Jan Smith, these were the three main traitors.

And Louis, for example, in World War I, right before World War I, the, like I said, the presidents during the pre-British conquest of us, of my people, there was the president was Paul Krier, which in English you would say Kruger, who was of German descent. The movie, the Third Reich movie, Kruger. Yeah, Uncle Krier, which is uncle.

Yeah. Or mister, depending on how properly you want to say it, but it's more like uncle. And that is actually an interesting point because Hitler and I have the Stalag edition here.

Hitler used, you've probably seen that poster that they used to recruit the Dutch SS. No,

I haven't actually. Let me try and say, can I send you links on Skype? You can put it on the chat.

I remember Hitler having said something. I don't know if it was in Mein Kampf, it must have been. Yeah, it was in Mein Kampf, yes.

Was he praising the genetic stock of the Boers, I think? He was praising the character of quality, but I sent it to you and you'll see it says, alles sall recht kom, which means all will be right. And straight, and that's in Afrikaans. And then beneath that, on the lower part, you'll see it's Strijd niet tegen het Bolschewisme, which is probably their version of Bolshevism, and the Waffen-SS.

So, that's how they recruited and that guy is Paul Krier. He was the president and then the vice president was Piet Joubert, who was a general. He was the leader of the Boer army and the vice president.

And then Pretoria is named after that guy who defeated the Zulus Andrei Pretorius. So, these guys disappeared after, in other words, and this is another tactic that the Jews use because they infiltrate the caste system, right? They infiltrate the caste system and then they supplant and replace, obviously, the nobility, the upper tier people. Either through interbreeding with them, usually buying their position through bribery.

They marry into the nobility through money. And then also, I guess they use Freemasonry too, to corrupt the upper class, maybe entice them. The gent, El Goyim, I think it says in the Protocols of the Elders of Zion, there's a section on Freemasonry in there where it speaks about how they use that to beguile the Goyim and then the Goyim don't know what they're doing or what the function of Freemasonry is and or what agenda it serves.

But obviously, it's serving the Jews' Zion government for global dominion for themselves. Yeah, I agree with that. That sounds appropriate to us.

But in this instance, what happened is, so these families, these three families were the leading families in the republics, like the Ubairs, the Kriers, and the Praetorius families. And after their conquest of us, these families never rose to prominence again. So there was no president called Ubair or president called Praetorius or Krier.

Again, it was all different kind of men, which not all of them were bad, but it's just another indication of how they do it. But yes, this is what Hitler said in the... What did you say? Dysgenics in a leadership. Yes, definitely, definitely.

And it says, here is the quote, right? Here is the quote from the Stalag edition. So it's the edition. Why could I not have been born a hundred years ago? I used to ask myself somewhere about the time of the wars of liberation, when a man was still of some value, even though he had no business.

Thus, I used to think it an ill-deserved stroke of bad luck that I had arrived too late on this terrestrial globe. And I felt chagrined at the idea that my life would have to run its course along peaceful and orderly lines. As a boy, I was anything but a pacifist and all attempts to make me so turned out futile.

Then the Boer War came like a flash of lightning on the far horizon. Day after day, I used to gaze intently at the newspapers and I almost devoured the telegrams and communiques overjoyed to think that I could witness that heroic struggle, even though from so great a distance. So he had knowledge of that.

And there are other editions of Mein Kampf, not the Stalag edition, but there is another one, which is like 554. This is the annotated version, I believe, but it's not the Stalag edition, where he talks about different things, some different things. He talks about the Zulu and like the Odintot.

And also he adopts the word that we use for the blacks or used to use. We can't do that now. You've got a peasant.

It's called Kafka. Yeah. Yeah.

And now that means, yeah, it's funny. I was just going to mention that I read this one, a very cheesy action novel, where they had this stereotyped figure of the South African Boer guy. And he was always saying, calling the black females, a calf ear cows.

And he was trying to work with them and stuff. Pretty hilarious. Yeah.

I remember in Lethal Weapon, they even add that to that, the one guy that called the black guy, I can't remember the black guy's name, that played Danny Glover or something. Danny Glover. Yeah.

He called him, he said to him, you puscaver, which is your cunt, nigger. So they always the bad guys, but that's fine. There's another, just if I could mention another example of that, this movie called Shaft in Africa, which is like a sequel to Shaft, where the black guy, he goes to Africa.

And then there's this portrayal of the Boer, this rich white Boer who is driving around with like this female. And he says, you are the only woman who could ever get it up for me. And he's like this sexually deviant, perverted person.

So that's how they're characterizing, like a child's caricature of the evil white man type figure. It's ridiculous that people actually think that is real. Goes to show how stupid.

Yeah, it's funner. Yeah. Jan Lampart actually made a video called what Adolf Hitler said about the Boers.

And there's a lot of deviation from the subject, but he mentions that aspect about it too, how that movie that the Germans made, and this was like a high quality movie at the time, because they had all their best actors and Dr. Goebbels signed off on it. And so that was the non-South African positive portrayal of the struggle of the war in the world. Yeah.

I watched that before too. I watched that about 10 years ago when I first heard it. Actually, the first time I heard about it was when I was like 19.

I had some nationalist friends on Facebook and they pointed it out to me. So I was like, oh, wow, that's fucking awesome. And I had subtitles, so I could understand it, but it was really interesting to see other people.

But I already had that, but we'll talk about that later. But anyway, so they replaced these nobles with other people. Most of these people were honest people, but they weren't very smart people, obviously.

What did you say? Useful idiots. Yeah, useful idiots in a sense. But yeah, definitely useful idiots who thought they were doing well, but obviously, like you, I saw that video that you linked to me about the real problem with Christianity and whites.

And this is ultimately what destroyed us. It's the real core problem with my people is that Christian aspect to it. And I'll discuss that later.

But anyway, so now you have these other people, but I also have to now mention the Afrikaner Bruderbund. Do you know who that is? No. Is that the good general? No.

Okay. What did you say? Yeah, I think you had said in the show notes, the Afrikaner Bruderbund is like the brotherhood, African kind of brotherhood, and that's some sort of a Christian thing. Yeah, yeah.

So they were formed after the war to kind of re-establish the Burr as the dominant force. But now they had adopted this Afrikaner thing. But they were to put this into perspective.

If you look at the way that religion was practiced here, there was a racial aspect to the Christianity. Right, so it's an identity, basically. Yeah, like a prototypical version of it.

Because like I said, we called them Kafirs, and Kafir means non-believer in Muslim, part to the Muslims in Arabic. And the reason we adopted this term is when the Dutch came here, obviously there were Indonesian slaves who were Muslims. So these Indonesians would call them Kafirs, and we would call them Kafirs too, to signify that they were non-believers.

And at the time, for a long time, there weren't really established churches. So the Burr people would eventually have churches. So the kind of Protestantism which is dominant in South Africa, and was dominant back then, was Calvinism.

But it was changed. It was changed to something much different. Not really much different, but it had a slightly different twist to it with the racial aspect.

And the Afrikaans, for example, they saw themselves as kind of the Israelites. Yeah, they're Israelites. Did they look upon themselves as a particular tribe of the Israelites? Not to my knowledge, but they did believe that God put Afrikaans people in this land.

And this ideology actually started before that war. Paul Krier wanted to make a unified religion to unify the people. So there was the Protestant religion.

There were also the Baptists, the Duopenars, but it was mainly the Protestant people, the normal Protestants, the Calvinists. And so they created this principle around it, to have this racial veneer, this flavor to the Calvinist, Protestant, religious aspect of the Burr culture. So it started before, but these people really drank the Kool-Aid.

And so they really believed that they were these chosen people. But they did a lot of good, but also they were infiltrated later on, which fucked us. And so people would think... Another Protestant secret society is the Orange Order.

Do you know them? I think I've heard of it. Scotland, yeah. The Orange Order in Ireland.

Yeah, I was going to mention that it's Irish as well, it seems. So they had the same kind of idea, but some people would say, oh, they're a secret society, so they have to be Masonic. And that's not true.

They were just these Christian identity type Calvinists who believed they were chosen people. And so these people believed in it, and they did everything they can to pull these things behind the scenes, so that the Afrikaans people could become the more dominant force in the political scene in South Africa after the war again. And that did happen.

But obviously, this included traitors like Smith and Buerta. So the first... Louis Buerta was the first prime minister, and he's this traitor, like I said. And he and Jan Smith were very close.

And Herzog... Well, Jan Smith made a party called the South African Party. And Herzog... The thing about Herzog, and I didn't explain this to you, I explained to you the other two, they were born in English territories, and they were definitely spies and shills. But Herzog was actually a Jew.

Herzog was a general in the Boer Wars, but he was actually a Jew. And I'm not sure if he was... Generals. Yeah.

I don't know if he was aware of it, but he was a Jew, because Herzog is a Jewish Dutch name. So Herzog was the leader of the National Party. So these were the supposed nationalists.

And there was another guy called D.F. Malan, and he's not a Jew. He was a somewhat positive guy, okay guy. And Herzog merged with the South African Union Party, or the South African Party of Smiths, to remain as prime minister.

This was a bit later on. Because he was like a Jewish... And this is what convinces me that he knew that he was a Jew, and that he was absolutely a Jew. Because the thing is, he's so wishy-washy.

So here he's now the nationalist. He's the nationalist. And now he has to join with these conservative pro-British guys like Jan Smith, in order to keep his position as the prime minister, which he did.

Then a section of that split off, and D.F. Malan instigated this. D.F. Malan was a Huguenot guy. So you can see the Huguenot leadership was very prominent in these days.

So D.F. Malan was... People would say, like, the one thing that Jan Lampard gets wrong, is because he's obviously a Rhodesian, but he knows much more about history than I do. But one thing he gets wrong is he says that apartheid was our version of National Socialism, which isn't true. D.F. Malan was not a National Socialist, but he was like these Bruderbund types.

And he personally believed that Afrikaans people were the chosen people, and so on. But he was a white nationalist, definitely. So unlike Herzog, that is, who was a Jew and just controlled opposition.

So he was, in earnest, trying to... And that's the thing. Most of them were trying to do it, be good for their people. But ultimately, he was a person that... The Christian aspect of him, it corrupted many of his noble traits.

And many of the things that would come to be apartheid would be outlined by some of his beliefs. And another aspect would be the relationship between Oswald Pirro and Oswald Mosley. And I'll get to that in time.

But anyway, so he broke away, making the Herford, like the renewed National Party, because these other people weren't nationalists, like he was. And they were bullshit. And eventually, they came into power.

And then Herzog, once again, goes to the winning side. Now he's like, okay, I make peace with you. I will join your party, and so on.

But anyway... Jewish. Yeah, just this flip-flopping, no honor, no integrity, don't stand by your principles, just fucking flip-flop, like a fish out of water. But so these people, this was now leading up to World War II, obviously.

But in World War I, we tied to, well, some of us, the most famous general in the Second Boer War, the Freedom War, was De La Rye. You've probably heard about De La Rye. What's his first name again? It's like Kuus or something? Yeah, Kuus.

It's a very shitty name, but it's a very Afrikaans name, but it's a very shitty name. Does it have a specific meaning, or just... No, I don't know. It's just a very shitty name.

Kuus De La... I know many people with Kuus. Kuus De La Rye. And he was the most, because he was one of the commando generals, which is why I have the song De La Rye from Bock van Blark.

But he and some other generals were trying to, they resigned their commission, and they didn't want to be part of this British coup, or this British invasion, because this was World War I. So they wanted to... Louis Boetin was instructed by the English to invade Southwest Africa, which would be Namibia, which was part of South Africa after the First World War, and also until 1990 or 1989. That whole section, didn't they call that German Southwest Africa? Yeah, yeah. German Southwest Africa.

Back then it was German Southwest Africa, because they hadn't unified it, they hadn't conquered it yet. Was the intention of whatever group, I guess there was divisiveness amongst obviously the British and the continental powers in South Africa. Were they expansionist in any way? They had intentions of maybe trying to colonize, move further north? Yeah, they definitely did, and they were further north because they had Rhodesia, which was part of the... And obviously the Rhodesians at the time had fought against us as well, but they weren't that numerous.

But you had these... So some of these people wanted to, the generals wanted to secede, to join the Germans, because they didn't agree with Boetin's approach. And like I said, Boetin himself was a traitor, he was a British shill. So he would do anything.

He and Smith. Smith is also a piece of shit, but both of them are... Most of these people are Freemasons, right? Probably? I think maybe Smith. I don't know about Boetin, but Smith definitely.

He was very, very connected to Churchill. They were like best of friends to some extent. And like I said, he rose to the rank of field marshal.

And there was this... I remember that there was this report that stated that Churchill was trying to convince the parliament at the time that if Churchill were to die, then he wanted John Smith to become his successor. So he wanted this Afrikaans speaking traitor to become his successor in the leading role in Britain. I'll quote a couple of quotes from the Protocols of the Elders of Zion on Masonry and what their intention is.

From protocol number four, it says, Gentile masonry blindly serves as a screen for us and our objects, but the plan of action of our force, even its very abiding place, remains for the whole people an unknown mystery. It says in protocol number 15, death is an inevitable end for all. It is better to bring that end nearer to those who hinder our affairs than to ourselves, to the founders of this affair.

We execute masons in such wise that none save the brotherhood can ever have a suspicion of it, not even the victims themselves of our death sentence. They all die when required as if from a normal kind of illness. So this is basically... I think it says somewhere in the protocols that basically they'll serve the masons up as a sacrifice in the sense of basically destroying them all.

That all members, all former members of secret societies will be liable to exile from Europe as the center of our rule. So these people, you know, yeah, here it says, every kind of new institution of anything like a secret society will also be punished with death. Those of them which are now in existence, namely masonry of course, are known to us, serve us, and have served us.

We shall disband and send into exile to continents far removed from Europe. In this way we shall proceed with those goy masons who know too much. Such of these as we may for some reason spare will be kept in constant fear of exile.

So at the very least all these people who serve the Jews will be either exiled or they'll be executed. So that's the price you pay when you deal with the Jews basically is guaranteed extermination. Yeah, long term you're always fucked.

Yeah, they sell out for short-term self-interest. That's the nature of the trader. Yeah, and that's actually a very good quote.

It would make sense that Smedt and Boethe would probably be masons. I guess they got to live their lives out comfortably. Well, Smedt, yes.

Smedt definitely. Louis Boethe to some extent, but Smedt especially was like, not only that, but he was like made this hero. They needed a face of the new Afrikaner and this had to be him, this pro-British person.

But to put things into context about Delarey, so after the war he was elected to the colonial Transvaal parliament. So this would be where Transvaal would be today. That would be Mpumalanga, which used to be the West Transvaal, Gauteng, which used to be Transvaal, just the central part of Transvaal.

Then you had Noordwest, which is still northwest, and the northern province, which is today Limpopo. Those provinces were all part of Transvaal. So this was the former South African Republic, which he fought for, obviously.

So he was elected to the colonial parliament and he was one of the delegates to the national convention, which led to the Union of South Africa in 1910. He became a senator and supported Louis Boethe, the prime minister, in his attempts to unite Boer and British, an opposing faction led by Herzog, the Jew shill, who wished to establish a republican government as soon as possible and resisted cooperation with the British. So yes, the reason he did this is because obviously we still had this kinship thing with the British and the Rhodesians made this mistake as well.

But of course, they would only be fucked over later. And Jan Lampracht admits that because he's Rhodesian and they thought that the English would be like their kin and stuff. So these were Germanic people as well, so it wasn't too bad, but I guess they didn't understand the nature of English people.

Yeah, people learned the hard way with the British Empire. Yeah, definitely not. All these people who side with the Jews, they're elite masons, usually they end up having their statues smashed apart anyway.

Like Cecil Rhodes, I think he probably almost certainly was a free man. Yes, and he's, yeah, Rhodes must fall, you probably heard about that stuff. And of course, it was called Rhodesia and now it's called Zimbabwe.

Yeah, that's what they get and that's what they deserve. It's only the people I feel sorry for. The leaders aren't the people, the leaders are just self-serving hypocrites.

Yeah, that's like the separation when you don't have a national socialist perspective, where it's between the land, the people and the leader. So it's very unbalanced and disgusting. But yes, in 1914, right, De La Rey was opposed to Louis Boetta sending troops to the German colony and annexing it.

And most Boers were, but remember, this is about 12 years after the Boer War. So we were, you know, we'd lost a sizable portion of our population. We were knocked in a good place.

So most people would probably just roll over, but they weren't rolling over. They just really didn't want to join in the war unless they were attacked. But then you had the smiths, part of this fake government that wanted to join the British effort.

Then you had the Herzog, the Jew government, part of the government that wanted to say, oh no, well, we're going to stay neutral until we are attacked. Well, some generals, like I said, like General De La Rey and others were resigning their commissions as generals and leaders and politicians and so on. And they came, they were planning on meeting each other to discuss this rebellion.

And here is the details. On 15 September 1914, Christian Friedrich Bayers, Commandant General of the Armed Forces and an old comrade of De La Rey, resigned his commission and sent his car to fetch the latter from Johannesburg to Pretoria, and he wished to consult with him. The two generals then set out that evening for Poscherstrum military camp, which is in the northwest, a camp where General J.C.G. Kemp was, so J.C.G. Kemp was also, had also resigned.

They encountered several police roadblocks, but refused to stop. The roadblocks had in fact been set to capture the Forster gang. This is bullshit.

The Forster gang was a gang at the time, but this was like, Jan Lampraat points this out, that the British had a very strong intelligence community by then, right? So they could completely fuck us with their intelligence network. So this, this was an assassination. And then at Langlachte, the police fired on the speeding car and the bullets struck De La Rey's back, ending his life.

His last words were, that is rock, it hit. He returned to his Lichtenberg farm as Van Rensburg had predicted. Many Boers were convinced he had been deliberately assassinated, while others could not believe he would have joined the rebellion, breaking his oath.

According to Boers, the plan had to coordinate this simultaneous resignation of all the senior officers in protest at the attack on southwest Africa. The theory of a government assassination holds sway to this day, and this is obviously what happened. They're just trying to cover it up.

And then after his funeral, there was a short-lived rebellion by some of his comrades called the Meretz Rebellion. De Wet, Beiers and Gert Meretz, they, and along with the Kemp and other veterans, they rebelled against this desire of Boerta to invade southwest Africa. And they got cursed, obviously.

And some of them later went to southwest Africa, but returned. So it ultimately came to nothing. But, you know, like I said, there's a strong connection between Germans and Boer people, more so even than Boer people and Dutch people.

You understand? So, and that's, it's just a historical thing. You understand? There was this- The quote articulates that pretty well. Yeah.

And I remember, I don't remember where I, oh yeah, this was also from that video of Jan Lampraat. I can't remember what the source is, but he says that, oh no, it wasn't, it was also from that source, but it was also communicated through the Abwehr, the intelligence service, to this guy that will get to Robi Leybrand, who was a national socialist intelligence agent sent to South Africa during World War II. But anyway, so we entered World War I with the British, but obviously we didn't have much manpower, because this was after the war.

And most of the children were killed. So most men were now older. So then we get to World War II, during World War II, we had more, we had gained back most of the really dominant position in South Africa.

So by now, Malan and his, for this renewed party, nationalist party, had become the party, and Herzog, like I said, jumped to it. And they were very, at this stage, they were very, he was very pro-national socialist, obviously, because he hated the English, but he chose to remain neutral. But there were other elements, for example, the party were, they were mainly interested in domestic affairs, but there was another group that came onto the scene, the Ossawa Brandwag, who had a, and so there was the Ossawa Brandwag, the Oxwagon Sentinel, obviously, the Oxwagon is related to us with the Great Pack, the Great Migration.

And then there was the Geyser. And wasn't that the same sort of device used for that, circling the wagons during the? Yeah, yeah, yeah, the lager, yeah. Yeah.

So it's like, basically, one of the symbols of the Boer. Yeah, definitely. That and the Ox and stuff like that, which Eugene Marais, Eugene Terblance, I mean, talked about.

And so there was these, now these groups sprung up, three groups in particular sprung up. Two of them were true national socialists. So like I said before, the National Party and DF Milan, they were good-meaning people, but they weren't truly national socialists, because they, because obviously, their labor structure would include ruling over black people as the, you know, so that they could produce things.

So they weren't truly even fascist, but they were, they were very ethno-racialist Christians. Somewhat similar to the southern states of the US, basically. Yeah, somewhat similar.

Yeah, somewhat. They tried to compromise with the blacks, because it was mutually advantageous, and the blacks went along with it. You know, it's not like the blacks were crying and having chains, you know.

Yeah, they fought with them. Because the blacks understood, at least probably most of the more intelligent ones that, you know, if you want to have food and shelter and have clothes and so on, then you're going to have to, you know, go along with white people and, you know, play your proper role, suum quique, to each their own. Yeah, it's a Latin phrase.

But yeah, now these three parties come into existence, these three movements. The one is called the New Ordin, and this is the, these guys were fascists, but their leader, Oswald Pirau, was not a true fascist in the sense, he was a Germanophile, but he was more of an opportunist. Because, and yeah, he was not a real, he was not a national socialist, he was a fascist at the time.

But after the war, he changed a lot. And obviously, this is probably just because he accepted the defeat, but he wasn't a true national socialist. Then there was the Kreishemde, the grey shirts, and I'm going to send you pictures.

This is the South African Christian National Socialist Party. Yeah, there's a lot of that sort of thing at that time. I know Surak speaks about how it's like a tolku that basically possesses the collective consciousness of the people.

And they embody this sort of ideology or idea. Yeah. And I like Savannah's is so insightful.

Is there a significance to the color schema of this? Oh, I was going to mention it. Like you see, the shirt is grey, and the band is, it's a blue band with the orange swastika and inside a yellow circle. Inside a white circle? Yes, no, a white circle, my bad.

And these colors are related to the prince's flag. It goes back to the Dutch ancestry, the Dutch aspect. So this is more like the, and you can also see this on the Free State flag, you'll see like there's orange and white and blue.

And the orange, white and blue is in acknowledgement of the Dutch ancestry. So this is more like the, so that's why they use the prince's flag, which used to be the one of the flags of the Netherlands. And it used to be flagged by the Dutch East India Company.

Yeah, the orange is still the color of the Dutch soccer team, I think. Yeah, yeah. And they're flagged if I, yeah, flagged.

Definitely. And the blue line. So yeah, the orange and the blue.

So this is just like the Afrikaans version of the, you know, the Nazi party. Does it have any occult significance though, the orange and blue? Because I see a lot of that color pattern everywhere, orange and blue. I don't know.

I definitely don't know that. I think it might have something to do with like the black sun and the yellow sun. The orange might be the yellow sun and the blue might be like the black sun, maybe, you know, like the visible sun and then the invisible sun.

Well, that would make sense. And like I said, these people were very Christian and this party was called the South African Christian National Socialist Movement, also referred to as the South African Gentile National Socialist Movement. So they were Christians.

But as you know, like there's like unconscious manifestations of Aryanism that have, you know, bubbled up at the time. So you could absolutely be right. And that could be just how it manifested here.

You know, like they're, they don't, I don't, I absolutely don't think they knew about that, but it could definitely be the case. Maybe the leadership were occultists and they just had to, play to the crowd with Christianity. Yeah, definitely.

And I was going to mention that there was a great seer in South Africa and he's actually the most, he's more accurate than Nostradamus. He predicted like everything in our history and also world history up until now. He was called Sine van Rensburg.

Have you ever heard of him? Yeah. He was touted by Simon Roach and people like that quite a lot. Yeah.

Yeah. But like part of the reason why they do that is because they're just trying to also, yeah, just trying to create like talking points like, oh, they do this, so they must be legitimate. You know, kind of like the knowledge resistance movement.

Yeah. They're associating themselves with something which may be legitimate because if the guy's predicting things or prophesying certain things and then those things correspond with reality to a very, you know, tight correlation, then obviously what he says should be, you know, ascribed value. Yes, definitely.

But like, so these people, oh yeah, like I said, that Sine van Rensburg was this prophet and he claimed to be Christian, obviously, but it's like you said, it could have been just facade, like to fool the common people. And Sine van Rensburg, the reason I believe that the Zeitlanders adopted, you know, the Sine van Rensburg aspect to their nationalism, their fake Jew nationalism, is because it legitimizes them to people who aren't aware of how these Jews operate because the Ossawa Brandtwacht, the Oxwagen Sentinel, the other truly national socialist group, the larger group, they also had this relationship with Sine van Rensburg and believed in his prophecies and stuff like that. And if you look at, I'm going to send you an image.

Again. So this is the other group. So they believe, these guys, the Ossawa Brandtwacht, they believed in a lot, they resonated with what Sine van Rensburg said.

He was like a prophet and so on. And so these guys were the, they were the biggest group. But anyway, we were talking about these guys and this, this Gijshemde, this Christian national socialist movement, they were a movement in like, you know, South Africa, but they were smaller, smaller than the Ossawa Brandtwacht.

And they weren't very militant. They were agitators. And Louis Theodor Weihardt, who was the founder, this guy, he was actually sued by Jews because he, you know, bloody battles, shit like that.

He was talking shit about them in some of his posters. And here's some newspaper clippings of him. I'll put these images up in the show so that they can play as a montage.

They'll be, they'll exactly correspond with our discussion. But yeah, you can see how the people then were so very, you know, in perfect condition. And now you look at people in Walmart walking around these fat lumps and so forth, you know, they're all degenerated.

Of course, it's not always their fault. They don't know how to be healthy. They don't know how to live.

And the food and water and air supply are also shitty. Yeah. And that's all Jewish dysgenics in a nutshell, deliberately trying to destroy us through every means they possibly can.

Yeah. So, so these guys were around and then there was the other guys who I sent you these, you know, the Ossawa Brandtwacht. These guys were, so like I said, one thing, here's a quote, by the early 1950s, the South African National Party government was lettered with men who prior to the war were strongly sympathetic to the Nazi cause and had actually declared themselves full blown national socialists, along Nazi political doctrine lines.

Oswald Pirro, who we will get to, Birje Forster, a future president, Hendrik van den Berg, Johannes von Moltke and Louis Weghart, to name a few. And there is no doubt that their brand of all right politics known collectively as Christian nationalism, a form of Nazism was influencing the National Party's government. Yes, by the early mid to mid 1950s, this state of affairs led to open anti-apartheid protests from the South African military veterans community returning from World War Two.

Yeah, so there was all these people, you know, they fell out of favor at some stage, because obviously the pro-British aspect, it succeeded in the end, even though that was against the FMLN's will, we weren't, we were, you know, we were a dominion, we weren't an independent country, we were still part of the Commonwealth until 1961, which, after which we left. But, so, this guy, he was, he became a National Party politician and an elected official and most of them did, most of them did. So, like I said, even though, so, like I said before, even though they weren't National Socialists, these Christian Nationalists, they were still very pro-German in their hearts.

And the people were very receptive to that message. And like, I can tell you that when I was growing up, and I'm not that old, I'm about your age, when I was growing up, you know, and this was, I grew up when apartheid had ended, you know, it was still very popular to like the National Socialists, and it was still very popular to say positive things about Hitler and stuff like that. And so, I grew up in a family, you know, but I'm talking about the Transvaal, like Afrikaans people, but like I said, among the Transvaal people, it was very common to praise Hitler and, you know, think shit about the Jews and say like, oh, well, if he, usually they would say something like, if he had done that, then he would have killed all the niggers that left.

So, it was in our interest. So, that was very common. That's how I grew up.

And so, that was a positive thing about my, you know, about my people that there was that. And they didn't have, they didn't let it, the Jews and their propaganda demoralize them or beat them down. Yeah, because we were also the bad guys, obviously, during apartheid.

We were now the evil Nazis. So, it didn't, it just wouldn't work. Yeah.

Yeah, though the Jews, of course, anybody who sided with the Jews from that time who was white, now they're the ones who are being vilified as evil in the most indirect and circumstantial way, like, oh, looks like you, your country manufactured some something or whatever, and derive some natural resource from some third world country, therefore you owe them because whatever, just ridiculous argumentative fallacies or whatever, pseudo arguments. So, it just goes to show that doesn't really matter how much you hate white people or are against your own kind, you're just going to be screwed over anyway. So, you may as well side with your own people.

Otherwise, you'll have no future anyway. I agree. That is a good analysis.

But yeah, so, Weyhardt, they weren't very militaristic. They were, you know, agitators, but they weren't that big. Now, these guys, the Ossawa Brandwacht, they were, they were the big one.

They were the big one. And it made sense because it was more, you know, localized, a more localized form, and here is their symbol. And you can see it's the eagle, it's got the ox wagon, which kind of like the other time, you know, the Venera's rune? Yeah.

It kind of, and how I said that it was, you know, these symbols that Christians, supposed Christians were using at the time that they were using were actually Aryan in nature, like heathen in nature, and they didn't know it. Yeah. Yeah.

Cause you see the spokes of that ox wheel, ox cart wheel on the logo are eight, eight spokes, which is, you know, the star of Venus. So that, that, in my opinion, you know, I was always confused about the occult angles, how they're always seeing Venus stars everywhere. I was always thinking, oh, that must be Jewish Luciferianism or something like that.

But in reality, it's probably something Aryan. Yeah, definitely Aryan. And yeah, these guys were massive.

They were, there was, they said between 200 and 400,000 members. So they were massive. And they were the, like I said, they were the biggest group.

And they were also the one that was militant. They were very militant. And so now this is where it gets, he has an, yeah, he has an interesting aspect to it.

I'm also going to send you this guy's photo. This is Robie LeBront. Now it's not Robbie, like we would usually have its name in Afrikaans.

It's Robie LeBront. Now Robie LeBront was sent, he was born in South Africa and he was an Olympic boxer, right? A pugilist. Yeah, he's got a pretty beefy look to him.

Yeah, he was a strong guy and he won like bronze and stuff. So he was a very great boxer at that time. So how do you spell LeBront? L-E-I-B-B-R-A-N-D-T.

I'll send it to you in the chat. Robie LeBront. Now this guy, Robie LeBront, who was led by the German military intelligence out there during the Second World War under the pseudonym Robie LeBront.

Yeah, he was a nationalist of German and Irish descent. So he hated the English like we do, obviously. And he was also South African Olympic boxer and he was his ideal to become a German secret agent and freedom fighter.

LeBront went to Germany in 1938 to study at the Reich Academy for gymnastics and stayed on when the war broke out. He joined the German army where he became the first South African to be trained as a Fallschirmjager and a gelder glider pilot. Later on, a small number of other South Africans also joined the Wehrmacht.

LeBront was trained with the comrades of the Brandenburgers, a sabotage training course of Abwehr II near Brandenburg-An-Der-Havel, west of Berlin. So this German admiral, Wilhelm Canaris, ordered Operation Weissdorn, a plan for a coup d'etat in South Africa. And they wanted LeBront to assassinate Jan Smits and also to join up.

Yes, here it is. Under the codename Walter Kempf, LeBront was dropped on the Namakualand coast, north of Cape Town, by a confiscated French sailboat. His mission was to make contact with the South African pro-Nazi movement, the Ossawa-Brandwach, and expand his ranks of freedom fighters.

So, like I said, the National Party did very little to stop these people because there was some kind of truce between them and the Ossawa-Brandwach. And the creator of the Ossawa-Brandwach was Dr. Johannes van Rijnsburg. And you can see his surname is Van Rijnsburg, so this leads, this connects to the prophet, the seer, Siner van Rijnsburg.

So, there was this ideology. And if you look on the emblem, you'll see it says, how do I exit here? My God, my folk, my land, South Africa. So, it's like my God, my folk, my land, South Africa.

So, these guys were, they created a, before LeBront came, they'd already established a paramilitary wing called the Stormyars. And these Stormyars were called, in English, that would be the storm chasers or storm troopers. And that's where you get the Star Wars shit from, from the bad guys.

And they would sabotage the government, they would blow, they had many terrorist operations and explosions. They would blow up municipality buildings and attack targets. And they would beat, like, for example, the South African soldiers who went abroad to fight for the Allies.

They would go there and they would beat the shit out of them. So, and that would happen a lot. And so, LeBront was sent to hook up with these people.

And they were, like I said, like the Christian National Socialists, these were truly National Socialistic people. So, unlike the other group that I will mention, they were truly National Socialists. And they believe in the Führer principle and everything, despite what people, you know, want people to believe.

So, this guy, so, Roby LeBront, he came to South Africa and he met with Van Rensburg, but they had a massive falling out because they did not see eye to eye. They were, like, two bulls, you know, trying to fucking decide who the boss is. And I guess, well, the rumor is, LeBront was very arrogant, but I would just say self-assured.

But, yeah, so they didn't work together, but they didn't work against each other. And he took some, so he went, they went their separate ways. And LeBront took some of the Storm Jars and got some other new recruits and also carried out terrorist attacks, just like the Storm Jars from the Ossawa Brandwag.

And he was eventually captured. And so, well, initially what happened is the Ossawa Brandwag had, like, this kind of pact, this kind of pact with the National Party, these Christian nationalists who weren't National Socialists, but were sympathetic to the Germans. So, they had this kind of pact going on.

And I could find you the source, but it will just take long, so I'll just simplify it. So, they had this kind of pact where they would leave them to do what they wanted, and they would focus on different aspects of the folk. So, eventually this became problematic, and they were brought under the National Party's heel, because it was causing a divide, it was causing a divide in the nationalist structure in South Africa.

So, this was a problem to the Nationalist Party. So, many of these people were arrested, and they were interned, they were kept as prisoners, but of course these were Afrikaans people and German loyalists, so they were treated very well. Roby LeBront, he has so many books in Afrikaans, there's like a couple of books in Afrikaans about Roby LeBront, and he talks about how he was treated, and how he was received as a hero by many people, by probably most of the Transvaal people considered him a hero, only these stupid fucking soldiers.

Well, they're not stupid, but they fought for the Allies. They didn't like him very much, they saw that it was a betrayal that people wanted to treat him as a hero when he was released. But in 1948, there was a general pardon for all of these criminals when the Nationalist Party became the main party.

So, D.F. Mellon pardoned him, and he was set free. A lot of them were set free, but most of them were, most of the guys that were part of the Osservaal Brandwag were interned, but they were then set free, and became politicians. Roby LeBront did not become a politician, but he did have an anti-communist movement, which wasn't very large, but he was still active for a while, and he boxed for a while after he got out, winning a few bouts, and then he died of heart disease in his 50s.

Yeah, maybe that's, when was this in terms of the 20th century years, like what decade was that he died? I think this was, let me see, let me see. And yeah, his famous quote is, it's not treason if you win, which he said to his enemies. But anyway, where is he? Let me just check, where is this? Because I'm thinking that maybe he was, his so-called heart attack, or his heart disease was a result of directed energy weapons, microwave weapons, maybe that the Jews... I was actually thinking that too, because you talked about it with that German lady.

Yeah, and I'm pretty sure that that technology was developed at that time, if not before that time. I think even in the Protocols of the Elders of Zion, it speaks about that. Yeah, it says he was, Lebron died on 1 August 1966.

Did he have any symptoms of any alleged heart disease before that? Well, I don't remember. I read two of his books, where he had like interviews with, and these are in Afrikaans, so unfortunately, but there's probably some like propaganda stuff in English that you can look up. But they then mentioned that he was sick at any stage.

And of course, this was a boxer, an Olympic boxer, he was very healthy. That's the thing, I think that that's probably the way that a lot of these nationalists end up dying, when they claim that they had a stroke, or a heart attack, or whatever, or cancer, that is just directed energy weapons, microwave weapons that they use against them to kill them. Yeah, definitely.

I think in order for those to work, they have to go close to you. So like a next door, next, if you're in an apartment, it'd be right next to your apartment. If you're in a house, it'd be next door.

And they have to be, I think, above you. If it's from a distance, they have to have like a higher height than you. Because I know right next door, there are Jews right next door to me here, and their house is higher than this house.

Oh, that sucks. And I've, I've sensed something like that a lot of symptoms of that sort of, like you're standing in front of a microwave here. So, but that's another story going into a lot of details about how they deliberately have houses and apartments that are designated for these purposes.

And they can possibly maneuver you into these places, if you're looking for a place, then the Jews run all the real estate rental property management companies. And most of the realtors are either Jews or Freemasons who work with the Jews. So if you're looking for a house, then maybe the one that they steer you towards will be one of these like, like a death trap house, sort of.

Yeah. So that's, that's a probability. I'm thinking that's probably the case, but can't be certain about that.

I've heard one in, I've heard on every single block in every town, they have houses like this designated, allocated for that purpose. So it may very well be that Roby Levant was assassinated, only it just, you know, represented otherwise. Yeah, I definitely think so.

Look at what, look at what happened to Hess, you know, fucking strangled to death when he was like fucking 90. But he committed suicide after how many years? Yeah, all that. Just another ritual murder on the part of the Jews.

That's their, their gimmick. Disgusting. I know the judge here, the Jewish judge in my legal case, when I was in the court the last time, he was making some sort of sinister reference to the sun setting on my case.

And this, you've got, you know, the year 2020, November, which is the 11th month. There's a, and there's a Friday the 13th in November also. So these are all occult dates, very suspicious.

Did you deduct, did you like use gematria to determine whether it was? Not entirely sure. I don't really know. Yeah, I don't know enough of that.

I used to look into Pythagorean numerology. But I've, I've seen from experience, I mentioned those rituals that I did with other people, where you can decode their programming and their intentions with normal gematria. Because you have the normal gematria and not the Jewish gematria, which uses the English language.

So yeah, they, it's very straightforward. You should check into that for your, for your, to check out predictive programming and stuff. Yeah, maybe we can even do a show on that too, or, or, you know, you can give me some references at the very least to investigate that, because that's probably something very significant to decode their little plans, because they're always plotting and planning, because that's all they do.

They just freeload off white people's productive labor, and then just make evil plans to try to stick a knife in our backs in one way or the other. Yeah, rip off our technology and everything else, and then represent it as if it's their own creation, when obviously they have created nothing. Yes, definitely.

A culture destroyer, as Hitler called them. So I guess we could just pick it up with the historical narrative again, then, where you're discussing this. We're around like 1948 and 50, and so going into this.

Okay, so, so yeah, it says that, so we discussed Reubel Leibrandt, and we discussed that, you know, the Ossawa Brandwacht, they were arrested by the national, nationalist government at the time, because they were becoming, they were risking a split in the nationalist voters, which would give power to the English. But here's like a good, some good, good source, you know, like this is a nice source to just point out how, how much love there was for the German people, and how much love there was for these Ossawa Brandwacht people, among the, the larger portion of the Boer population, and Afrikaner population as well. But yeah, you'll see, at first, relations between the National Party and the Ossawa Brandwacht were cordial, with most members of the Ossawa Brandwacht belonging to the party as well.

At the higher levels, National Party leaders like P. S. Sauer and F. Erasmus, later to be made cabinet ministers when Milner came to power, were members of the Ossawa Brandwacht. Three future National Party South African prime ministers or state presidents held key leadership positions in the Ossawa Brandwacht. Generals like C. R. Swart, later South Africa's first president, was a member of the Groote Raad, chief council of the Ossawa Brandwacht.

B. F. Foster, later to become prime minister of South Africa, was a keynote Ossawa Brandwacht leader, and formed the Ossawa Brandwacht Cape branch. And even P. W. Botha, future South African state president, joined the Ossawa Brandwacht and worked with Foster to establish the Ossawa Brandwacht Cape branch. Now, P. W. Botha was a very late politician because, you know, you had the clerk who betrayed us, right, from the Karpia, the conservative party.

Is that P. W. or no, it's F. W. de Klerk? Is that what it's called? Yeah, F. W. de Klerk. He was a Karpia leader and before him, there was, like slightly before him, that there was, P. W. Botha was the leader of the country. So that just points out how long, so this was, you know, until the mid 80s, these guys were very prominent.

And like I said, these were former national socialists and involved in terrorist, but let's just say freedom fighting activity in South Africa. Well, I guess guerrilla, pretty much. Yeah, guerrilla activity and attacks on the government, the pro-British government, and they'd become presidents and ministers.

And these are just some examples. There's like so many examples, so many examples. So that's just to point that out.

And we discussed Leibrandt and the other stuff now. Now we're going to hop to Piro. Now, Oswald Piro, right? This was a, this was the opportunist guy that I told you about.

He founded the New Order. And this guy was, this is a picture of him and Oswald Moseley, and this is a picture of him in Germany. Now, the New Order, or Neue Orde, they were a fascist group, not a national socialist group, like the other two, like I mentioned.

So they're not a true fascist, it's a national socialist group. And this guy, this is his face. Piro, he was an opportunistic guy, but he was somewhat fascistic in his leanings.

And he would, he would go, yeah, you would see him with, for example, in November 1938 in Berlin, inspecting an honor guard from the German Luftwaffe. To his left is Wilhelm Canaris, to his right is Ernst Seyfert. So this guy had... Canaris was a Jew, wasn't he? That's Admiral Canaris, is it? Yeah, yeah, definitely.

He was one of the Jews who actually betrayed Hitler. He was partially Jewish, according to Miguel Serrano. Yeah, that actually makes sense.

Please continue, my friend. Oh, I was finished. I just wanted to interject that.

Oh, but that would make sense, because I don't really like this guy, you know, because it's not because he was just a fascist, but after he was done, right, like the other groups, like the Greeks and the Christian National Socialists, and like the Oslo-Brandenburg, he was brought into the fold under the Empire. But this guy had relations with like Jan Smet even before that, because he was on his part of his council. So this guy was probably like the control opposition, and you can see he and Mosley had a friendship, and they met multiple times, and this is him meeting some other members.

He's basically a Jew, actually. Yeah, yeah, that's what I'm saying. He looks kind of like a reptilian in a manner, like very, frankly, slippery.

His nose doesn't look very Aryan either. His mouth is very wide as well. He's got sort of like hooded eyelids.

Yeah, and also small eyelids. Yeah. This is him and Mosley.

But anyway, so he went to Germany multiple times. The Germans thought much of him, but obviously that could have been the PSYOP. Like I said, I personally think that he could have, it could go either way.

Either he was a fascist, but not a national socialist, and he did believe in it at the time, and then he just resigned in his beliefs and became something. Because after he went into government again, but now he was, and he also became a lawyer who actually represented some of the state against the trial against Nelson Mandela, and he was very nice to the blacks, because I remember Mandela at the treason trial, he mentioned that Peter always called them the Africans and never the Kafirs or the blacks. And so they had a good opinion of them.

Let me just look at something. Even if he wasn't a Jew, he would just be sort of like a career political whore, politician, like you said, an opportunist. Yes, let me just call my dogs inside.

My apologies. Yes. No.

What kind of dogs do you have there? Are they German shepherds? No, I wish, but not really. These are dogs I got for free, because obviously we have networking and stuff. It's like a mixture between a Maltese poodle and something else.

His name is Hachimaki, based on anime. And the other one is Muffin. She's a Scottish Terrier, just like Ytterhach, but she's not a black one.

She's not a black one. She's a brown one. Wasn't there something related to German shepherds in South Africa that, I think when Muhammad Ali, quote unquote, that black boxer was fighting some other black guy in South Africa, like around the time of apartheid being politicized in a negative light, that they were making a big issue about the rumble in the jungle? I'm not aware of that.

Yeah, they were making a big issue about a German shepherd dog, because allegedly, I think, so far as I can remember, that the claim on the part of the Jew media was that the South Africans were using German shepherds to harm the blacks or something like that. Well, the police used... That I do know something about, because the police used... You know that we have burbles, right? Those big dogs. Heard of those.

Yeah, but the police used the German shepherds. And I know that sometimes what they would do is they would take the black police officers, because in the black areas, they would have black people policing the black people. Yeah, it's usually the white police.

Yeah. So they would take these black officers and make them hit the dogs with pillows. So to aggravate them, to make them believe that the... Yeah, so they would become racist dogs.

So yes, the dogs were very racist towards the niggers, and they were trained that way. So, but the black police officers did that themselves? Yeah, they used them to... No, no, they didn't do that themselves, but they did that in conjunction with the white police officers, because obviously, they couldn't get normal blacks to do that. Right.

No. So I guess another symbol of where the Jews are trying to vilify the evil white man with this symbol of, quote unquote, oppression or whatever. Well, we were a state, but we weren't... They weren't... We'll get to that.

They weren't really that oppressed. But yeah, the German shepherds, they did bite black people if they stepped out of line, like broke the law. The law is there, it has to be enforced.

And things, like I said, unfortunately, apartheid wasn't what we wanted, but it is what we got, and it's much better than democracy anyway. So this guy was now a lawyer in the trial against Mandela, and he was praised. So it would make sense that he was like this Jew, because here he's connected with this Admiral Canaris guy that you talked about.

I never knew that this guy was one of these fuckers. So it would make sense. And they had no militant action.

Of course, they only had political action, and they were a faction within the National Party, obviously, too. And, but like I said, he had connections to the British through Jan Smet, who was himself a spy. So he could have been... He could have definitely been a shill, like a control opposition agent.

So... Oh, and another thing. This is another coincidence, right? Look at this. He wrote... I told you about Herzog, the Jew, right? Yeah.

Yeah, he writes... Here is his book on Herzog. Oh, yeah. So that obviously shows a connection between the two.

Yeah. I mean, there's only so much that can be a coincidence, right? So... Yeah. So this was... Yeah, so that's the end of that.

We talked about Oswald Brandwag, and how they attacked... They had many attacks, and stuff like that. And so now they became presidents, and part of the National Party, and part of popular culture. And in 1960, we became an independent nation.

And as a result of that, in 1961, we left the Commonwealth. And this was when the British went full tilt at us, because they were... And this is the thing, right? This... The apartheid thing, there's a guy trying to make... An Afrikaans guy trying to make a documentary about it, Dr. Dan Roet, about how it was mostly in the British interest to make apartheid, because of course, they didn't think we were going to leave the Union, or at least the Commonwealth, right? And they were the ones, their agents, and they were the ones who made the Union united in the first place. So now in 1961, we left the Commonwealth, and now this British propaganda started, and we're like, we made apartheid, and we were partially responsible for it.

But this was a reaction to the South African Union, which was made by the Jews. And actually, people like, like I said, D.F. Milan's principles played a part in it. But this Oswald Pirro guy, and Mosley, and Schmitz, and they all had a hand in it.

So it wasn't just Afrikaans people, you know. And like I said, initially, we just wanted our territory. And that's what, where the aviabeer comes in later.

But anyway, like in the 1960s, now we're like this, and the UN, this is like during the Cold War, right? Yeah, it's time when we're also using a lot of the cultural Marxism in South Africa, too. Like the hedonistic culture. Yeah, definitely.

It's popping society up. Yeah, it's definitely prevalent, and it's also in the educational system, unfortunately. And I was also subjected to that in high school, not in primary school, but in high school.

But so now in the 1960s, you have the Soviets, right, arming the Jews, arming the blacks, and the UN also arming the blacks. And Jan Lampracht does a really good job of explaining this, because he's a Rhodesian, so they were also affected by this. So our relationship to Rhodesia was better than the English relationship, but we weren't like very close, because, you know, these were the descendants.

So this Afrikaner nationalism was there, you know, and we resented the English. And now, to the north, we have the Rhodesians, right, who were the descendants of these English. But a few years later, they would also leave the Commonwealth, because the British were fucking them over, too.

Yeah, were the Rhodesians purely English or were there Dutch admixture, probably? Well, they were mostly English, but there was definitely some admixture. For example, like I said, Jan Lampracht's name is an Afrikaans name, so there was some Dutch element to it, but they were mostly just English people. And so the UN would go on to fund the worst of the Blacks, the worst of them.

For example, he has a video about the story of Katanga. In the Congo, there was a small portion of them that were pro the Belgian government and the colonial system. The other two factions were much more violent, and this was on the northern border of Rhodesia.

So this was like a massive, overarching campaign to fuck up white sin in South Africa. You can see how that works. So these Katanga guys, they were pro the Belgian government.

After the 1960s, these colonies were given up. For the Katanga, you had all these volunteers from Europe and South Africa and Rhodesia helping them, because obviously they were on the Rhodesian border. And sometimes the Rhodesian Air Force would help them out, not directly, but to keep the war from spilling into northern Rhodesia.

And that's also one thing that people don't fucking talk about. Their lives were stable in Rhodesia, and their lives were stable in South Africa too. The only thing is you had these Jewish instigators that made it worse later on.

So even the resistance movements, for example, there's this documentary called Tainted Heroes, and you should watch it. Tainted Heroes. There's also that Africa Ideal documentary too.

I think that's related to the Belgian Congo. It's got quite a lot of footage of that. Yeah, that would definitely mention that.

And the UN, they funded the other two guys. And look at the Congo today. It's still not fucking solved.

And that's what the UN does. They just fucking destabilize things. And they were funding these guys against Katanga.

And the Katanga army was basically made out of blacks and white volunteers from Europe and France and all over the place. And so this was on the border of Rhodesia. And then you have the Soviets and covertly through NGOs, the UN funding places like Angola and the terrorists in Mozambique, but I don't really care about Mozambique because they're part of the Portuguese colony to our north.

And the Portuguese, this is an interesting fact. Hendrik Verwoerd, who was part of the, I told you about that Bruderbond, many presidents were also part of this Bruderbond. Like I said, they were well-intentioned people for the most part.

And they just had this Christian identity kind of thing going on where they were the chosen people. But they really worked for what they believed was the better. But this core Afrikaner thing, this core Christian aspect of Afrikaans people is like a cancer.

It's like the worst thing for us possible. And that is why we got here. But anyway, I'll go to that later.

That's the point. Yeah. That's probably why Jews created Christianity.

This place is mind polluted, spiritual destruction. Yeah, definitely. Because it's so unnatural.

We just kill ourselves every time. But like this, and there was this Portuguese Jew who assassinated Verwoerd, who was a member of the Afrikaner Bruderbond, not the Ossawa Brandwa, so he wasn't like a national socialist, but he was Afrikaner, an Afrikaner nationalist like Malan. And like I said, the Afrikaner Bruderbond had actually had some hand in funding the Ossawa Brandwa.

So like I said, these were good intention people. So they weren't Masonic or anything, or at least they weren't at first. And they weren't Masonic or anything.

And it was just unfortunate that they were Afrikaans. Not Afrikaans, but like these Afrikaans identity questions. Because it could have been so much better if it wasn't like that.

Let me just drink some water. So Verwoerd, he was sort of vilified as like the Hitler of South Africa, wasn't he? Yeah, Dr. Verwoerd, yeah. So he was a doctor.

Was it a medical doctor that he was? Or was it like a PhD in other disciplines? He said applied psychology and sociology. So it's not psychology, but a doctorate. I think there's actually video footage of him at one assassination attempt that didn't succeed.

Yeah. And they really had it out for him because there is some hearsay, some speculation that I have no evidence of that Verwoerd wanted to. But this is like way out.

And I don't know if this is a fact. Like some of the theories around that is they had him assassinated because he was going to split up South Africa. So instead of just having these Bantustan regions, they were going to make those into countries.

And that you understand that would have actually been a good step forward because that would, you know, if they had their land, they had some land, then they wouldn't be, you know, trying to kill us, the niggers. But this Jew, Chafendas, he assassinated Verwoerd in 1966. And he was the Mozambican guys.

They were still very much controlled by the Portuguese. And he was a Portuguese Jew and he was sent to Mozambique. And they knew what he was there for.

And they wouldn't share information with us, which is ridiculous, because we were allies in the sense that we were allies of necessity, just like with Rhodesia, because, well, there was some kinship with the Rhodesians. Yeah. Because we had to stand together because the Soviets were funding these, you know, they were funding these black revolutionary guys and they were attacking the Mozambicans and they were attacking us, you know.

I think that's a trait with the Spanish and the Portuguese during the Second World War. I think, what is his name, Franco, that he sort of betrayed Hitler, too, at that point. Yeah.

I read up a lot about him, too. It must have something to do with like the soul type of the Mediterranean, that they're sort of, you know, mixed. So that creates a schizophrenic personality.

How long was the Muslim occupation? It was like 700 years, right? So that would make sense. Same with the Italians. Yeah.

They had a long time to interbreed with them. So that makes sense. And also like the Portuguese, like the Jews, have like a very strong hold or had a very strong hold over the Portuguese colonial efforts.

Yeah, I'm sure they still do. They either became crypto Jews or else they just came back again after they were allowed back in by whatever puppet. Yeah, definitely.

But yeah, he was assassinated in 1966 by this Jew from Portugal. And like I said, because of these rumors, I don't know if it's true. Maybe it's just speculation and he was just, but I don't think so.

I don't believe that this was a coincidence that the Jews would publicly assassinate this guy. Come on, that's bullshit. But anyway, so now it's the 1960s.

Now we go, now we have these wars all over Africa because the colonies now collapsed, right? The remaining colonies, the white people pulled out and it was fucking all hell because the UN were funding all sides and the Soviets were funding one side. And this pulled into the borders of South Africa, which included Southwest Africa at the time. But that wasn't a big problem because the people in Namibia or Southwest Africa, they were mostly Afrikaans speaking people too.

So the people in Africa that I have the most, like I said, I used to play online games and stuff. There would be people from all over Africa because they would play on the South African servers because they wouldn't have their own. And also from Seychelles and Mauritius and places like that.

But it would mostly be Namibians. And they would mostly speak Afrikaans. Most of the white people there are Afrikaans speaking people of German or Dutch descent.

So there are white people there still? Yeah, yeah. In Namibia? Yeah. Namibia is very, well, I would say it's much better than South Africa now.

Maybe not as developed because apartheid wasn't centered there, but it's safer right now than South Africa. But it probably won't be that long for long. Is that because of a lesser population of blacks maybe or just some reason? No, it's just, I think it's just because they broke away before the apartheid thing and because it wasn't centrally, you know, located in Namibia.

But like I said, most of those people are Afrikaans people too. So they just speak like me and they have the same culture. They play rugby, which is bad.

Because, you know, the thing about sports that I really dislike, because I grew up playing sports and doing sports and stuff, very athletic and stuff. But the thing about sports is they use it to kind of distract men and to redirect the masculine energy of men into like trivial things. Yeah, that's exactly my perspective.

I even wrote about that in a section of my autobiography called Health. What is it? An indictment of the ill health and unfit industry, where they basically shift the masculine drive towards superfluous endeavors that don't do anything really, just useless, even idiotic activities. So no efficacy in defending or protecting your own kind or advancing your own kind either.

So that's obviously the Jews technique to, you know, drain away all your energy. And if they're not draining away through sports and that sort of pseudo heroic nature of sports, then they're draining it away through, you know, dissipation through womanizing or whatever other drugging and drinking and so forth, just degeneracy. Yeah.

And I succumbed to most of those things in my day as well. But yeah, that's how it's designed. That's why sports are a bad thing.

And you have lifelong injuries from high level sports. And I don't know if you know, but in South Africa, the schoolboy rugby in South Africa is the strongest in the world. And I played schoolboy rugby.

And like I said, I have injuries, not cripple or anything or disabled or anything, but I have pains from that, because of that. You could break your neck or permanently be disabled. Mine isn't that bad, because I had a problem with my back for a while, but it's sorted now for the most part, because there's like dead nerve endings in my back and stuff like that, because of the position I'm in.

Yeah, you have nerve impingements, things of that sort. I know it's the same with weightlifting too. They encourage people to be builders and so forth.

I spent like 18 years of my life doing very heavy weightlifting and so forth. And that caused a lot of, at least when I was going at it very heavily, caused a lot of skeletal problems and so forth, sterile problems. So obviously that's, we all know who created bodybuilding.

That was Joe Weider and so forth and various other Jews. So that's obviously what they want you to do. Definitely.

Waste your life. Yeah, it's an absolute waste. And if you look at the photos you just sent me there, about some of the national socialists from during the time of, around the 20s and 30s, how athletic they were, and none of them did any of those activities.

Yeah. And they weren't like these buff, these super buff people. They were fit, but they weren't.

Yeah, because that's an unnatural form of physique to have that. But obviously they create that sort of norm, the Jews and the media they control. And then if you don't keep up with the Joneses, then you're looked down upon in so-called Jewish, Judaized, Westernized cultures.

Yeah. Which is obviously what they want, again, because it's destructive to yourself and a waste of your time and existence. Yes, it is.

Absolutely. So we should, yeah, people should stay away from sports because it's just bullshit. And also like, I just thought about it, you kind of look like Weyhart, that Weyhart guy.

Like which? That Weyhart guy, Theodor Weyhart from the, that guy, from the Christian Nationalist Socialist. Right. Movement.

Yeah. You look kind of like him, kind of lean. Well, that's the way people should look, I would say, is, you know, you don't need more muscle mass than what is necessary to move your body.

Yeah, exactly. Yeah. But yeah, so yeah, he was assassinated and we all had all that shit.

And then it led up to these wars. You probably heard about the Rhodesian-Bush war. What did you say? I haven't actually heard of that.

Well, the Rhodesian-Bush war, they were trying to, well, now the English had, by now the English were more in, or the Rhodesians, not the English, were more independent, but the English were funding their enemies, their communist enemies. So they were at a war with, let me just show you, Rhodesian-Bush war. Didn't they have some mercenary group called the Geese or something of that sort in Rhodesia? Yeah, I think so, yeah.

And so there was a movie made of that, which was starring like some Jew. I think it was called the Flying Geese. Yeah, they had very weird terminologies for their shit.

I don't understand where it comes from because I'm not Rhodesian or anything. But yeah, it says Zimbabwe War of Liberation. And if you look at the belligerents and stuff like that, the commanders, you had Hendrik Verwoerd at the time, was from, and Pierre Verwoerd and John Forster.

So you had two national socialists, Pierre Verwoerd and John Forster, who were part of the Ossawa Brandwag, like I told you, and Hendrik Verwoerd, who was assassinated, who oversaw the South African aid to it. Now you had, if you look, the Rhodesians had 1,120 casualties and the guerrillas lost more than 10,000 and around 20,000 civilians killed. What they don't mention is this UN and Soviet funded guerrillas killed many of the Black Tribes, the other Black Tribes from the ZANU-PF led by Mugabe's people.

They killed a lot of those people, just the civilians. So that's mostly not the Rhodesians, that's the Blacks. And that's how it always is, unless it's obviously the US and England, because they purposely make a habit of killing these people.

But yes, we had officially, they had 19,000 police reservists, 8,000 police, 15,000 troop reservists and 10,800 regulars, which isn't large. We sent them 2,000 to 5,000 troops, but another thing that people don't know, Jan Lampak probably knows this, but many people like Rhodesians don't like us in general, like Jan is more of an exception. Do you need to take that call or something? No, I'll just unplug it.

I forgot to do that before the show, sorry. It's fine. No, don't apologize, my friend.

But yes, so my experience with most people from Zimbabwe, in other words, these white Rhodesians from Zimbabwe, they hate us a lot. So Jan is kind of an exception. But it's not all of them.

I said the majority of them hate us, because they believe, and I had an argument with one of them before, and they believe, oh, you just let us die. But in reality, you are the English people, why would we help you to a great extent? But we did help you because we're the ones who sold them their weapons and their vehicles and their armaments for the most part. And not only that, you had the South African Defense Force, right? And now members of the South African Defense Force could take off their uniforms, their SADF uniforms, and go fight for Rhodesia in the Rhodesian uniform.

So some of those people on their side, which wasn't including the 2 to 5,000 members from South Africa, were actually South Africans going to fight for them, to help them out, even though we have a different tumultuous history, so to speak. And so we did try to help them. And yeah, they lost that war at the end, and they became Zimbabwe, and many of them came here.

But it was like a Cold War geopolitical thing. But it's also not only that, because like I said, the UN had gone out of its way to fuck over white minorities in South Africa a year in Rhodesia and in South Africa. And that's why they made the shit on the borders of these countries.

And in Angola, like I said, that's where the border wars were fought. Now the border wars were of course where we fought with the Cubans. Let me just show you this.

Border wars. This is now South Africa's war, where the communists helped them. So now you had the combatants.

We were fighting. So we had allies in Portugal, because Mozambique was threatened now, but until 1975. And it ended in 21 March 1990.

So it was 23 years long. And obviously, so what this basically means, like up until the border war, my people have never had long periods of peace, because there was always a war. There were the wars.

Then there was World War I, World War II. And then there were these wars. So my generation was really, and okay, well, until like everybody above the age of 50 today was in a war at some stage in their life, because they were conscription policies, which I agree with.

But just to point out that we come from, unfortunately, it was very tumultuous. So it wasn't so like, the men were often very brutal with regards to discipline in the house. And it's not intentional.

But of course, war traumatizes people. But anyway, it was South Africa, and then Portugal, UNITA and FNLA, which were these nigger armies that fought with us. And they fought and we fought against SWAPO, MPLA, CUBA, SWANU, ANC, which you obviously know the ANC-MK.

The MK is the militant wing, the paramilitary wing of the ANC. And also the country of Zambia. So we had 71,000 troops.

So 71,000 troops were committed in 1988. And these were only the South African troops. And they had 122,000 troops by 1988.

SWAPO had 32,000. Angola had 40,000. No, Angola had the FLAPA, Angolan troops, the communists, they had 50,000.

Cuba had 40,000. SWAPO had 32,000 and so on. The losses were at the end of the war, we sustained between 2,400 and 2,500 deaths.

The Cubans were between 2,000 and 5,000 dead. And the SWAPO, they had 11,335 dead. So yeah, and also there's over 1,000 civilians dead, probably blacks killing them again.

So this war was very important. Towards the end of the war, because what happened is there were actually, the Russians were sending a lot of money and aid to these people. And the Cubans came, like I said, we captured a lot of their stuff, their armor carriers, and their tanks, and their helicopters, and their planes, and we captured a lot of their stuff.

Would you like to see that? Or is that unnecessary? Yes, sure, we want to send some photos of that. I think Jan Lomprecht, he did the video, 50 Years of Race War in South Africa. Yes.

That was a very good presentation covering all the specialized and improvised weaponry that was used and techniques for those who were not very well funded or didn't have huge means and backing like the United Nations and Anglo-American whatever. And so they had to basically rely upon very minimal, sparse, scarce resources in a way similar to what the National Socialists in Germany had to do at that time. They also had to basically make, what is the expression, make lemonade out of lemons, or they had to really stretch the dollars thin and make something out of nothing, basically.

Yeah. So yeah, it was kind of improvisational, yes, as you say, because it was much different. I was specifically looking for pictures of these guys, their equipment that we captured.

But yeah, it doesn't look like I'm going to find them now. But yeah, anyway, we captured a lot of their stuff, which is still on display today. So your experience with these Zimbabweans, the ones, so there was a massive immigration you had stated in your notes, people trying to flee, being basically slaughtered in Zimbabwe, or in Rhodesia, rather.

Yeah, yeah, that was actually more after that, because of the poverty, because they had completely collapsed economically. And they're still completely collapsed economically. And that was Robert Mugabe, wasn't it? Yeah, yeah.

And Robert Mugabe is like a billionaire. So before he died, he was a billionaire and his family are extremely rich. But these black people, they are so poor.

They have people starving of hunger and shit. That wasn't the case in Rhodesia. That's typical of non-whites.

The leadership of the non-whites always just lives to serve themselves like a parasite. And they just let their own people stagnate. That's the same in Canada here with all the redskins, all these chiefs and so forth.

They live like a leisure life in giant mansions and just spend their lives drinking and amusing themselves while their own people are basically cast into total poverty and end up selling drugs and whatever. Which is not to say that they still don't get huge amounts of free advantages, way more than white people do, obviously. But that's typical of the leadership of the non-whites, that they just self-serve.

Destroy their own people. Yeah. But yeah, a funny thing about these Zimbabweans, like I said, I used to work as a waiter when I was about 18.

And I used to work at a pub. This was an upper class pub. And all of the kitchen staff were blacks from the townships, mainly from Momolodi, which is in the east of Pretoria.

And all of the people in the front of those, in other words, working in the bar or as waiters, were immigrants. So they were all from Zimbabwe and one of them was from Nigeria. And the assistant cook or the assistant chef in the kitchen was from Edy.

He was from the Congo. So these are white people? No, they're black people. Okay.

So the immigrants that came from Zimbabwe were blacks, not whites. Yeah, mostly black. When Rhodesia fell, whites came.

But of course, there weren't a lot of them in the first place in Rhodesia. There wasn't like millions of them like there was in South Africa. There were probably like a few hundred thousand.

I think it was like maybe six or seven hundred thousand white people there or maybe even less. They were mainly farmers, weren't they? Yeah, mainly farmers. So yeah, they didn't have very much in the way of population numbers, but they were doing a lot of productive work to actually help the blacks.

And then the blacks just... And that's another thing that Rhodesians always have against us. It's like, oh yeah, you had apartheid and you're evil racist, but come on, man. But those are more the younger generation who are brainwashed by communist bullshit.

But yeah, so these blacks came here and they actually had a better educational system in Rhodesia than we had for the blacks here. So they were educated very well. So this is like they have this concept... But anyway, what I was saying is these blacks, they had a better educational system than some areas, even the white schools in some areas, because they had the same educational system as the whites had.

There was no difference. That seems like there's a lot of very well-educated people coming from South Africa. Just based on my personal experience, it seems like they're a lot more educated than the people in North America, that's for sure.

Yeah, I would bet so. And it's also that the educational system is much more thick, because when I went to high school, this wasn't that long ago. Like I said, there was about 10, 11, no, it was like, yeah, more than that.

But there were still corporal punishments. I was still like beaten in high school by the teacher. It forces people to be disciplined and do what they're supposed to do.

I know in Canada, in my particular situation, I received almost no education at all. And they just pass you through the system. They don't really care in the least.

It's mainly only people from more affluent classes that they care about in this educational system. I'll just let my dogs out. Sure, yeah.

I've seen here in this particular town, quite a lot of South African immigrants. Quite a lot of dogs here too. Yeah, there's a lot of more affluent people who can afford to go to Canada, because that's expensive.

Because obviously they aren't plummeted. We can do a little bit of a digression on that topic too, because you had said you wanted to discuss how the immigrants or whatever, those who emigrated from South Africa to different countries, your thoughts upon those. I guess they're more or less traitors in the minds of many people.

Well, I would say that it depends on who they voted for, because when, like to get to the state where you had the blacks being able to take part in democracy, there was an election, right? And obviously, like in the Boer areas, former Boer areas, like the Free State and Transvaal, that didn't go well in the polls, but like in the other areas, like the coastal areas. So you had the more liberal Africans, people who were descended from the Cape Dutch in the Western Cape, and you had the English population mainly voting to do that. So they did that, they passed that referendum with a narrow margin.

So I would say the only people I consider traitors for leaving are the people who voted for that. And that's usually what happens, because these were the more affluent people, the richer white people, like the richer English people, the richer Afrikaans people, who were very liberally minded in the other, year or two, but also mostly, like I said, in these areas, like the Transvaal and the Free State, and what became like Mpumalanga and Limpopo and the Northwest. These areas voted massively not to, but the other areas obviously voted in favor of.

And in Gauteng, where I live, the English areas, like Johannesburg, they voted to, and we voted not, and Johannesburg has a larger population, of course. That's the nature of democracy, is that it tears everybody down based on quantity over quality. So quality out suffers, and quantity ends up suffering.

And that's the whole game of the Jews, basically, with their, the illusion of freedom through quantity. You're not having any value through that freedom, other than the freedom to be a slave to your passions, playing sports, and so forth. I know where I am, I've got a doctor from South Africa here, who works in a whole clinic filled with other South African doctors, and I'm not too sure, I've been questioning this, about this, you know, the black, red and white hermetic alchemical schema, the color schema, that their logo is that, it's got the same color schema.

So I'm wondering, is that, do you think that that is like a signifier of something potentially pro-white? Because I see this color schema everywhere I go, but I'm not too sure, but it seems like Jews know to hijack it, or something. Well, that would mainly depend on where they're from. I don't think it is the case, so I wouldn't trust them.

And whether they were sellouts, like I said, it would depend on, like, mostly their surname, because the English, you know, the non-Boer surnames, those people were in favor of it, and then you would have to see where they're from, and, you know, but, like I said, as I was saying, so I don't think they're, I don't think they'd be pro-white. Maybe they are, I don't know, but like I said, the only way that you could determine that would mainly be the, you wouldn't be able to definitively determine it, but you might be able to narrow it down. So if you knew, like, their surnames and where they came from, like, like I said, if they came from the former Transvaal areas, in other words, like Free State, Pretoria, Pretoria, the Northwest, Mapumalanga, or Limpopo, then they would definitely, there would be a chance that they would be Boer descendants, and they would have grown up, you know, very, with very conservative, nationalist, Afrikaner identity, like that of the Nationalist Party, but with doctors in, yeah.

It's probability that they would, people of that background, you know, they would probably be somewhat consistent with it, or do you think they might have been, flipped the script, I guess you could say, and, you know, rejected their upbringing values? I think, I think that, I think that that is definitely the case, because, like I said, when I, my generation, right, I, let's just say I, I was born right before apartheid ended, you know, like, I was not even going to school yet. Like, my generation were still, like, the pro-Hitlerites and stuff, and like, but by high school I was being, like, fed communist bullshit, even in Afrikaans, because I came from an area in Pretoria, which is, like, very Afrikaans. Most of Pretoria is very Afrikaans.

But, so, let me just take some water. So, they speak Afrikaans as a primary language there, then, or is that being, trying to be phased out? Well, they do, but yes, they're definitely trying to destroy the language, because they've been, for the last 12 or 10 years, they've been trying to completely erase it from all kinds of education, and they've, for the most part, succeeded in doing that, because all of the universities, like, all of these Afrikaans universities that were built for Afrikaans people, unlike, like, the Rhodes University, that was for English people, you know, but, like, all of these great universities, like, Stan and Bosch, and University of Cape Town, and the University of Pretoria, and all of these places, they've sold out. They don't teach in Afrikaans anymore, where they used to, because we had, and the argument is, oh, it's like a racist language, I mean, it's not like the English conquered you, right, and colonized you too, but yes, we're the racist ones, not English.

Yeah, and so, like, they had this problem, so the Blacks have this problem with Afrikaans being taught, while their languages aren't, they aren't taught in their languages, but now the thing is... If they were to try to teach it in their language, then they would basically not learn anything other than how to rub sticks and stones together. Yeah, because it's not even, yeah, because their language isn't academically developed. It's very simple, and it's not appropriate for university, but our language was academically developed, you know, like, because it came from Dutch, and, like, so it was academically developed, completely academically developed.

That's why, like, the first guy who did a heart transplant, this is also another hypocritical thing, like, most modern South Africans who are not Afrikaans internationalists, which is the majority, even Afrikaans people aren't anymore, like, there's, like, I would say, like, maybe 30% of them are now, and these are mostly from the Boer areas, like I said. In the other areas, they're not, but, like, most of them would take part in the fact that Chris Barnard, Christian Barnard is his full name, he successfully did the first heart transplant, right, and he's South African, but, like, so they take part in that, but this guy was living during apartheid, you know, and he was an Afrikaan internationalist, and that's why they refused to give him the Nobel Prize for such a momentous achievement, because, you know, it's all political in the end. And so, yeah, these, these people, where were we again? Oh, yeah, the education system, and they were trying to, so, in high school, so when I was, like, you know, so this was, like, more than a decade ago, let's say I started high school about between 18 and 10 years ago, right, like, they started teaching us a bunch of bullshit in the history classes.

Nobody really did anything in history class, so nobody took it seriously, but you had to still, like, not speak up, because you'd get beaten, you'd get your ass beaten. But anyway, what happened is, like, this one teacher would try to convince me that, oh, how they determined someone was white and not in this part, during apartheid, is they would take a brown paper bag, and it's, if your skin is lighter than you're white, if you're not, which is complete bullshit. Yeah, so they start, like, adding all this bullshit, you know.

Falsification of history. Yeah. That way they can try to mock it and denigrate it.

That's the whole nature of the Jew, is to, you know, basically mock that which is a threat to their power, so that they can make it appear as if it has no value, as if it appears something stupid or weak. So, that always reminds me of that quote from, I don't know what Jew said it, but first we destroy your culture, then we destroy you. So, all these.

Oh, yeah, that's from, I think that, isn't that from you Germans? Sounds like it might be. No. Or you Gentiles by Maurice Samuel.

Yeah, that's what I mean, yeah. That might be the case, yeah. Yeah, and I also have this quote from Rothschild, Nathan Rothschild, I care not what puppet is placed upon the throne of England to rule the empire on, which the sun never sets.

The man who controls Britain's money supply controls the British empire, and I control the British money. Yeah, so obvious, they even openly, explicitly acknowledge their control, and yet all these stupid people are like, oh, the British people, the British empire, they're doing, that's a sort of propaganda they've implanted into the mind of the non-whites, as well as the whites, based upon that plan of Israel Cohen, the racial program for the 20th century of the 1905, or whenever it was, which is to instill a guilt complex into the white population for such things as quote-unquote slavery, etc. And everyone was doing it.

Yeah, and then to increase the power of the non-whites through sports and entertainment and making them appear like heroes or like Nelson Mandela, I guess we can maybe back into the history of that too, if you want, or do you want to continue with the educational? Let me think. Yeah, I addressed that falsification. Oh yeah, we were talking about the language thing.

So yeah, all the universities no longer, only one, which is the Northwest University, they're the only university that still teaches in Afrikaans. And it was because the blacks said, oh, we can't learn in our languages, so why Afrikaans? But it's because they're not academically developed. So yeah, that's definitely happening.

And you have high schools, high schools still do it, and primary schools still do it. And like I said, when I grew up, I grew up in a very, it's like an Afrikaans enclave, like the white areas were segregated from each other, because the English had their areas, because they didn't want to live together. And you also had the blacks didn't mix until much later, where I grew up, there weren't a lot of black people.

In my primary school, there were like 500 children, and there were like three blacks in the entire school. And yeah, and also like they were racially abused and shit. When I grew up in the countryside in Ontario, it was mainly a white area, you know, the whole area district was mainly white.

The only ones that weren't white were redskins. There's just a couple here and there, maybe like not even 10%. And so it's mainly a white place.

And then you go to the big cities, and you see all the non-whites and you're like, oh, wow, that's diversity. Yeah, it's interesting, man. Just like in the rap music that I'm listening to, and so forth.

And then you actually have real experiences with them living in their areas at their level. And then it's like, yeah, I don't really want to deal with you anymore, because you're rude and considerate, low minded, violent. Yeah, you come to understand that it's usually only upper class whites who live in privileged areas who don't really have any comprehension of what it is to deal with.

It's also them. It's also they who have the largest voices, unfortunately. Yeah, that's it's all built into their so-called morality, which morality is designed by the Jew through Christianity for the purpose of, you know, getting whites to be suicidal in their activities, in their activism.

So I guess for those South Africans who had left, you were mentioning that there are the doctors, there's lots of doctors, you were going to, I think, touch upon that specifically. Oh yeah, the immigrants. So like I was saying, the immigrants, I don't consider them traitors at all, because this is like a very shitty situation.

Right. Like during apartheid, like I said, now we get back to the Christian problem. If we didn't have these Christian ideals, then a number of things would have happened.

We were developing nuclear weapons. We had six nuclear weapons, which we, like the two countries in the world that didn't boycott or sanction us and would trade with us openly, were actually Israel and Switzerland. But then on the other hand, you'd also have, so this is like the sleight of hand thing, they're fans of the Christian.

But on the other hand, you'd have these Jews who funded the ANC and taught them everything, because the ANC was a very irrelevant little movement for a very long time. The main opposition were the IFP guys. But I'll get back to that now.

And like, so we had to, we could have killed them all, you know, we could have killed them all. I would have been fine with that. Well, because they obviously deserved what they got.

That's karma. Yeah. And we could have killed them all.

But what happened is like, like I said, we had this racial Christianity, right? And now the more established we became, now we have these more churches and, you know, more, uh, now the main church was the Nederlandse Heer voor Meerde Kerk, which is like the Dutch Reformed Church. So now these guys, and we had our own flavor, that racial flavor, to do the Calvinism, like what I told you about, the Christian identity kind of thing. So as time went on, more blacks became Christian, right? Because the only thing the church cares about is getting more people to be Christian and more people to, you know, give money to them and blacks to give them more money, because they're stupid.

But so they started having more black members. And now it became harder and harder to, you know, hate the black people because now they weren't, you know, and the racist element began to fall out because the churches destroyed that, you know, they destroyed that. And to his credit, William Luther Peirce wrote about, not wrote, but he made a speech about it, one of his letters on South Africa.

And it's absolutely correct, because as soon as these blacks now became Christian, now it became harder for us to kill them, because now they were fellow Christians, not just blacks. And now there was a conflict within the Afrikaans community, because now there were people who were first Afrikaans and then Christian, and then there were people who were first Christian and then Afrikaans. The people who were first Christian and then Afrikaans, they were pro the blacks, you know, they helped the blacks.

They wanted, they thought that what we were doing to them was unfair, but it wasn't unfair, because they had jobs. Like one thing that I don't mention is like blacks from all over Africa would come to work for us, because there was so much, so the economy was so efficient and there was jobs for everyone. You didn't have need like to finish high school or anything.

Everybody had jobs. That's not the case anymore. Like most university graduates don't have jobs.

Yeah, it's the same with myself. I'm a university graduate, but I don't have any employment. I'm blacklisted from getting employment too.

Yeah. It's damaging my reputation. But yeah, it's all voluntary on the part of the non-whites.

Nobody forced them to come there. They came of their own accord. Yeah, yeah.

Nobody forced them to come here. They could leave the country and that's what the MK of the ANC did. They went to other countries to be trained by these communist Cubans.

And also they went actually to Vietnam, because we know that Americans are bastards, but the Vietnamese were also bastards and they learned, you know, because they couldn't make leeway in the border war when they fought against us, because we were hard. So they couldn't. And we were going to, in that particular war, we were going to crush the Cubans because we were now going to send an extra 120,000 men, which was the biggest deployment.

And we were going to send, they already struggled with those numbers, which was about like 80 or 90,000. But we were going to, and with that we had repelled the, so it was back and forth. But we held the line and we were now going to send an extra 120,000 to crush them, if they, there was some kind of treaty that they were disrespecting.

And so like these, so they knew they couldn't make leeway in a conventional war, because we'd just beat their asses, like we did them and their communist allies. But then they went to Vietnam to learn from the Viet Cong, those communists. I think they're called the Viet Cong, right? Yeah, I'm pretty sure.

Yeah. Like, so they went there and they talk about it in that documentary Tentadieros. They went there and they learned from them how to wage this unconventional type of war, mixing yourself with the civilians, targeting the civilians, creating, like killing people and then telling people it's your enemy, you know, like that kind of, that's the kind of warfare, I think it's called.

Yeah. And that's what they did here, because when they came back, now you had the IFP who were the main guys. Oh, and to further solidify my point that apartheid wasn't even so bad, just look at this.

I'm going to show you something. The Zulu King, right? Zulu King praises apartheid. I think there's a temporary Zulu King who said that.

Is that the one you're referring to, or is that another one? No, King Goodwill is the Zulu King. Oh yeah, the one that currently exists, apparently he was supporting of that too. Yeah.

That's the guy. Yeah, like here is the article and he praised apartheid. But that was during the Zuma administration.

This was like many years ago. This was about 10 or 8 years ago when he said that, but it's true. And here he says, the economy that we are now burning down, you do not want to you know, that we are now burning down.

You do not want to build on what you have inherited. You are going to find yourselves on the wrong side of history. You don't want to use them.

You want to say this is apartheid infrastructure. Your leaders are occupying buildings where apartheid laws were made to oppress you. You on the ground are burning everything that you found here and stuff like that.

And he also said other stuff like, and also Prince Goodwill, who is also he was the leader of the IKANDLA party, the IFP. Now the IFP were the main opposition party and they weren't militant. Then the ANC came back from this Vietnam adventure and they started attacking all the blacks.

So this is where the black on black violence gets heavy. And that documentary is very good because it points out that they were framing what the ANC was doing as what we were doing. And the ANC knows this and they admit it.

And so the ANC went around killing the other blacks to convert them to the ANC, to basically communism. So the IFP became militant in response and they were killing each other now. And obviously this was blamed on apartheid.

But in reality, this was the black communists at work that the UN was supporting and all of these Western governments. So that's kind of a shitty situation. And if we can get back to the original point, I don't blame them for leaving because this was our chance.

The only apartheid was our chance to kill our enemies. Because that's the only way. There is no white people who stay out of Africa.

Like I said, these Europeans, they came to tell us how to live among blacks when we had lived among blacks for more than 300 years. So what do you know? Look at Sweden now. The Norwegian prime minister or foreign minister or one of them said that they're going to leave the UN refugee charter if Sweden collapses because they're not taking them in.

That's how bad it is there. So these people with their big mouths now, you have a small portion of your population that is black, like 10 or maybe 15 at the worst case, not 80 percent. And you're collapsing and you're shedding your pants and you wanted to tell us how to live.

But look at you now. Look at you getting raped and getting killed and you have no go zones. And we had a way of dealing with that, you know, even if it wasn't what we originally wanted.

This is what we got and this is how we handled it. Do you understand? So originally you wanted just purely segregation of land, like in terms of totally separate, more or less countries. Yeah.

Yeah. Because that's how it was before the British. If we wanted to colonize, to take the entire place, then we would have done that if we had the means, which we had for a while.

But that wasn't the case. Like I said, the union was made, the unification of these different nation states like was made by the English. And now we had to rule over people who we only ever fought against, like the Zulus and the Corsos.

So what do you think is going to happen? Do you think we're going to be their buddy-buddy? No, they killed us. We killed them. It's like ridiculous.

And like I said, apartheid was not voted for by the Afrikaans people. This was when we were still, we were coming, this was decided without us. While we were still coming out of the British rule and the union itself, which would lead to that was, you know, British rule.

We were under British rule. This is what they wanted. They wanted a big territory, a big tax mine, a big mineral mine, you know.

And that's what they couldn't allow that to happen because that way they'd have less control, you know, less money, less resources. So sort of basically Jewish controlled British empire that created apartheid and forced it on the Boers for their expansionistic, imperialistic goals. And the imperialism is, of course, Jewish imperialism, not white imperialism.

Yeah, it's an anti-Jewish. We didn't, like, according to the definition of what is indigenous, we are indigenous Africans because our culture, it originates in South Africa. We are the only indigenous Africans of European descent.

So, and we didn't try, like I said, we made our republics and we didn't go to Natal to kill the Zulu or to the Eastern Cape to subjugate the Kossars, which we had the means to because we beat them in wars, but we didn't do it. So that conduct would just tell you that we didn't want that. We just wanted our own place after, you know, we were kicked out of Europe for the most part.

Because remember, this was during the, for the most part, it was this migration took place during the 30 Years War, you know, the Protestant-Catholic Wars. And I think it was instigated by Luther, who was an agent of the Jews. Yeah, definitely.

Which killed about a third of all German people. Or was it more than a third? I don't know how many, but I know it was like a massive thing. So that's why the French and Germans came here.

And that's basically like the whole history of the world is that, you know, of course, Jews try to infiltrate white created countries. And then Jews try to incite through corruption of the elite upper class. They try to incite white people to go and fight some war, you know, crusades over here, or whatever over there, you know, go and colonize this and do that.

And then the Jews profit, and then they stick a knife in the back of white people. And then, you know, only the upper class whites who are the ones pulling the strings, you know, and enable the Jews to have power and to serve their agenda, only they're the ones who really benefit. And with all the colonialism, that's largely, it could be argued that non-whites benefited more than white people.

But it could also be argued that nobody other than the Jews ultimately benefit, because even the traitors of the upper class, even they basically end up getting screwed over. Or their children get destroyed, or their statues get torn down, or whatever the case. So much for their cooperation.

Yeah. There's no point in that, because either way it's gonna end up bad. With Jews, yeah.

Yeah, with Jews you lose. That's a good slogan. And the guy who made that slogan up, or who, I think he made it up, that Robert Ransdell guy, and I think it was in Kentucky in the States, he was actually assassinated.

I think he had his vehicle either hijacked through the electronic hijacking of the vehicle, or it was run off the road, and he was killed just in recent times. A couple of years. Oh, that sucks.

I know that in the US that Bill White was also interned, right? Imprisoned. I think so. I'm not too sure if I really trust him though.

It might have been just a psy-op. That's what the Joy of Satan say. They say it was a psy-op to associate the white movement with violence.

Oh yeah, yeah, that makes sense. And we'll get to that topic soon. Let me just finish this one.

So yeah, we were talking about these people who left, right? And also the Afrikaans language, but we cleared that up, that they're doing that, and there's like a deliberate attempt to destroy the language. And these people who left, like I said, I only blame the people who voted, who voted for it, then left, which is the majority of them, are those kinds of people. Because obviously the poor people who didn't have the means to leave, most of them were Afrikaans people who weren't rich and well-off, and they weren't badly situated, but they weren't rich enough to go there.

And they had more nationalistic fervor, and so they weren't in the right mind. All the doctors who left South Africa are basically largely traitors because they're usually more affluent people. Yes, and not only that, like for example, if you want to be a doctor in South Africa, right, you have like penalties, you have only a certain amount, a certain percentage, which can be white.

And to do the same things in South Africa and study the same things in South Africa as like everybody else as a white, you need to have better marks. And many of the times these people are like, they have these deep connections in their families, like, oh, my family, my uncle is a doctor, and he works with this university. So yeah, it's the more affluent people in general.

So most of them there would be like that, John. That's interesting, because I referred to the logo of this South African doctors. It's sort of like a hospital of its own, right? A collection, which is almost exclusively South Africans who run it, it seems.

And the color schema is red, black and white. And it's called Health Works, but the works is spelled with an X. Wow. Instead of a KS.

So yeah, and they have like nothing but Jewish nurses in the front. So that's that. I'm thinking they're probably Freemasons or something like that.

Yeah, yeah, that they do exist here, but they don't for a long time. But they do now. And like I said, those are more like more the English speaking peoples that would subscribe to that kind of ideology.

But yeah, like these, so like I said, only those people, anybody else who leaves, you know, whose ancestors didn't vote for this or anything. Sure, if you leave, I understand why this is a shitty place. Like, imagine spending every day of your life thinking about when is the next time that when is the war going to start? When are they finally going to come and kill your family and stuff like that? And you have to think about, oh, what am I going to do when that does happen? Oh, well, maybe I'll go to my mother's house and gas her, you know, in the car, because it's better than getting raped and mutilated.

You know, and that's the kind of mentality people have because that's a possibility. And the only people who don't, white people who don't think like that are these brainwashed people. But this is a massive reality.

Like I said, with the Senegal thing, with the instigators and stuff like that was a massive, this could have been, it wasn't, but it could have been a massive, massive boiling point that could have, you know, led to a race war. Because these white people were, you know, rioting for the first place, for the first time, and these EFF thugs wanted to instigate violence. They wanted us to attack them so that they could say, oh, these people are racists, we must kill them, you know, stuff like that.

Yeah, they're always looking for some excuse to agonize and attack whites. So I don't think they're traitors because, like I said, they're Europeans, and they go to Europe, you know, they're Europeans. Because this country is not their country anymore.

No matter how hard you lie to yourself, this is not a country.
