

Iran Africa) all at once. The pseudo-Tradition, in turn, all traces back to Southern Mesopotamia, and, later, Babylonian-Semitic spirituality (technically pre-Semitic).

So, then, if all religion is really a single Tradition, the question becomes "what is it?" I spent several years on that question. In the end, I was able to synthesize all of the myths and motifs of the world down to a single sequence involving twelve gods performing four functions in three spheres. Basically, you have solar gods, aligned with light, infernal gods, aligned with darkness, and, a class of heavenly gods that relate to this created universe and sit in between the other two.

The key event in Tradition - a key event - is the creation of this world and the subsequent expulsion of its Creator from the true heavens - the solar sphere. To use Christian terms, Lucifer was corrupted by the Darkness in the person of Judah and persuaded to create this world in imitation of the true heavens. But, this world is a mixture of light and darkness, and, thus, inferior. Thus, Lucifer is the same as the Demiurge, the "lesser creator". He appears under many guises - Raynor, for example, in Nordic myth, Ptah, Hephaestus, Min, the Second Dionysos, etc. When he was cast out, this creation was made his prison.

Parallel to this is a meta-historical tale about a perfect society of golden people who existed on another planet in our solar system - the archetypal Temple - and, who had their planet destroyed, forcing their remnants to take here. This idea of "golden people", often portrayed as "golden serpents", lies behind a lot of "supremacist" racial pretensions. Whenever you trace back various "bloodline" stories, whether the "Hebrews" or the Roman Patricians or the Eteo-Bulidæ at Athens or medieval lines like the Swabians, the Saxons, the Aquitanians, the House of Flanders, etc., you find a variant of the "golden serpent" ancestor myth.

This, then, explains the problem of the Judæo-occult elite. White nationalists are looking too narrowly when they try to explain Judaism as a racial concept. There is no Judaic race. They are an amalgam of peoples. Judaism is a belief system with racial-supremacist pretensions. Because it is a belief system and its racial pretensions have no biological basis, all elites who subscribe to the myth that "golden descent" are themselves variants of "Jews". Therefore, they are more aligned with Judæes than with their own working people.

The belief system that unites the Judæo-occult elite is Kabbalah. Kabbalah is like Tradition but it denies that there is any god higher than the creator of this world. Thus, it also denies that there is a unique principle of Light - its highest principle is Darkness, the Ahi. Kabbalah began in Sumeria and Babylon as the worship of Sin-Nabu, son of the serpent Ea. It came to Egypt as the worship of Djehuty, who is Judah (Yehudi) and Thoth (Tehuti). All of the so-called "occult" philosophies from alchemy and Hermeticism to Masonry and the like are relatives of this Kabbalah. And all globalist projects, from Cyrus Persia to modern Zionism, have believed in this Kabbalah.

So, basically, European societies have been dominated - or at least, influenced - by these Judæo-occult forces
