Note: Further KRANCH, CRANC, GRUS – without genealogical connections – can be found according to HUMBRACHT Joh. Martin in "Excellence of the German nobility in family trees and coats of arms", Frankfurt 1707, traced back to 1042. For example:

KRANCH & Gruem & Frank v. Lambsheim, knight, vassal of the Counts of Leiningen, documented in 1237, 1249 & with brother Helfrich & 1250, 1255, 1256, (KRANCH) Syfrid von Kirchheim documented in 1129 or (KRANCH) Helinger von Kirchheim documented in 1135 (both without a family name!)

KRANCH N. N. – without mention of first name – 1042 at the jousting tournament in Halle/Saxony)

However, much of this information (ancestors) is taken from the Rükner tournament book, which was later exposed as a forgery for the Nuremberg city nobility, and must therefore be classified as legendary.

Note:

a) The following 10 generations come from family history and are legendary (probably fake). However, they have been included in this genealogy to show the importance of ancestry in the late Middle Ages for a distinguished family. The story refers to the Eastern Roman general BELISARIUS, who defeated the Germanic tribe of the Vandals in North Africa in 535 while serving Emperor Justinian (526-565). The French called the family "de Valis", but the Swiss called them Walliser.

b) Another definition of the name would be the family's origin from the small town of Wels in Upper Austria.
